JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER SENDS A GIFT TO THE BRIDE.

Rev. L. M. Wheeler, of New Brunswick, and Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, of This City, Officiate—Miss Gunning as Maid-of-Honor.

Miss Mary Onderdonk Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hamilton Hunt, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Clarence Joseph Foist Gunning, a prominent New York business and society man, were married at "Vailmere," the Colonial homestead of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Vail, at New Market, last night.

The ceremony was performed in the huge old-fashioned parlors, amid a bower of greens and potted plants, the color scheme being green and white. Rev. Lloyd E. Wheeler, pastor of the First Baptist church, New Brunswick, officiated, assisted by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor emeritus of the First Baptist church, of this city.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Florence C. Hunt, as maid of honor, and Miss Emeline Gunning, a sister of the groom, as bridesmaid. Miss Virginia Phyfe Vail, a cousin of the bride, was flower girl and she strewed bridal roses in the path of the party as they entered the parlor. The ushers were Frank Frost, of this city; Alfred D. Fettrech, James A. McCormick and Gerald N. Thaxter, of New York. The best man was Frederick Gunning, of Chicago.

As the bridal party entered the parlor, and during the ceremony, the wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Garland's orchestra. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white chiffon, trimmed with duchesse lace and she wore her mother's wedding veil, fastened with a large diamond brooch, the gift of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses.

The maid of honor wore a gown of yellow crepe de chine, trimmed with moire panels and lace and she carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaids and flower girl wore white net over white silk and carried yellow roses. Among the guests were seen many handsome gowns.

After the ceremony the bride and groom departed on an extended wedding journey and upon their return they will go to their country home at Searsdale, N. Y. The reception held during the evening was attended by guests from Chicago, New York, Trenton, New Brunswick and Plainfield.

The bride received a large collection of gifts of both use and value, including a costly clock from Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, four substantial checks and a curiously wrought decanter, which came from Russia.

Among the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Howard Colby, Mr. and Mrs. I. V. Brokaw, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Field, Mr. and Mrs. Carstensen, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Cannon, and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Palmer, of New York; Mrs. M. A. Ryerson and Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane, of Chicago; Prof. H. D. B. Mulford, of New Brunswick; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Frost, of Trenton; Dr. and Mrs. Frank Donahue and Dr. Schuyler Clark, of New Brunswick; Mr. and Mrs. Halsey, of Newark; Alexander Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Frost, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, James Middleditch, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Leonard, the Misses Marsh, Arthur Stout, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen and Mr. and Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, of Plainfield.

Muirs vs. Firstbrooks.

From the Muir children of Essex street to the Firstbrook children of West Fifth street has come a challenge for a series of game to decide the inter-family championship in baseball. Each side can muster a large majority of players from among an active troop of brothers, ranging in age from six and eight to fifteen and sixteen. All of them are players, and the series is being seriously arranged.

ALIS TO MEET AEOLIANS

FINE EXHIBITION IS PROMISED AT CRESCENT OVAL TOMORROW.

Manager Johnston, of Alis, has about completed arrangements for his contest with the Aeolians at Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon. He realizes that it must be a case of "play ball" from the start, as the organ grinders have decided to win the contest, if such a thing is possible. The two defeats this season at the hands of Alis has not discouraged them, and they will come here strengthened considerably. It is almost a sure thing that Doescher, the Brooklyn National League twirler, will stand on the firing line for the visitors. He faced Westfield twice this season for the Aeolians and the Mt. Aarat bunch had to bite the dust. That is what the organists hope to do in the third contest of the series.

Alis does not propose to be asleep and if they are defeated, their opponents will have to put up the best ball they know how. Manager Johnston will be unable to have Quinby tomorrow, but from Monday on he expects to have the Yale man steady. For tomorrow's contest he hopes to have Jack Dunn at second. In case he fails he has another strong man for the position. Badgley will probably pitch and Davie will go to right garden. This will be the probable lineup of Alis:

Farmer, c; Badgley, p; Gauven, 1b; Walton, ss; Heckman, 3b; Oregan, lf; McGeoy, cf; Davis, rf; Dunn, 2b.

GEO. H. FROST'S PURCHASE

FORMER COUNCILMAN WHO BOUGHT THE PLAINFIELD COURIER-NEWS.

As told in yesterday's issue of The Daily Press, Frank W. Runyon, editor and proprietor of The Courier-News, announced yesterday that he has disposed of the entire plant and good will of that newspaper to George H. Frost, of Watchung avenue, a former member of the Common Council, who will take possession of the business today and in the future publish the paper.

Mr. Runyon founded The Courier as a daily paper October 5, 1891, and June 2, 1894, purchased The Evening News and consolidated it with his own paper under the composite title of the Plainfield Courier-News. Mr. Frost, the new owner of The Courier-News, has lived in this city since 1886. He is the founder and editor of The Engineering News, one of the most successful trade publications in the United States. Charles Hamilton Frost, a son of the new owner of the paper, who is now in charge of the publication department of a large manufacturing concern in Canada, will be associated with his father in the management of the paper, commencing next September.

Mr. Frost is a Republican in politics and will continue The Courier-News as a Republican newspaper.

MISS DAY'S ANNUAL MUSICAL

LITTLE MAY ARDEN RECEIVES SPECIAL RECOGNITION AT THE AFFAIR.

The annual musicale by the pupils of Miss Irene Day was held in the lecture room of the Presbyterian church, at Dunellen, last night. Several Plainfield young people took part. May Ardern, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ardern, of South Second street, was loudly applauded for her piano solo. She was also presented with a handsome roll filled with music, for the best scholarship for the past year.

The presentation speech was made by Rev. W. W. Casselberry, who said that he "never heard of a girl at the age of six years master a piano so cleverly, and that the young lady was well deserving of the prize." Twenty-two pupils took part, and twenty-four selections were given. The piano duet, "Sunflower Dance," played by the Misses Nellie Squier and May Ardern, was well rendered.

Another musicale will be given next Tuesday evening, at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church.

Married at Mt. Olive.

A quiet wedding took place at the parsonage of Mount Olive Baptist church last night, Robert Gray, of Trenton, being married to Miss Matilda Binns, of Allentown, N. J., by Rev. Dr. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the church, in the presence of Clifford Hill and Miss Emma Spring, who acted as witnesses. Mr. and Mrs. Gray left shortly after the wedding, for a honeymoon trip. They will make their home on Plainfield avenue.

OVERTON WITH MILLSTONES

TEDDY SIGNS WITH GEORGE DUPEE'S CRACK TEAM.

Now that the Y. M. C. A. nine has gone the way of the has-been, Teddy Overton, the lively little fielder, will probably play steadily with the East Millstone team. Teddy is a rattling good catcher, and he will very likely be kept playing backstop and field alternately for the swift Middlesex combination. George Dupee, the Millstone twirler, likes Overton's catching a whole lot. He had him in a game recently to try him out, and Teddy made good so splendidly that Dupee has been urging him to sign with Millstone permanently.

Overton learned his game on the High School nine three years ago. Overton came up to expectations and has been doing it ever since. He is a heady player, a sure fielder and a timely hitter.

Letter-Carriers' Vacation.

Vacation time has arrived for the local letter-carriers, six of whom go off duty for fifteen days, beginning today. The fortunate half-dozen are Edward T. Dunn, whose place will be filled by Elmer Squires, Philip Giese, relieved by William Callahan, Thomas Burns by Robert Goldsack, Charles Stephens by James Bailey, O. R. Pearson by D. J. Shea, and Charles Glaentzer, by George L. Apgar.

Miss Mallen's Party.

Observing her twentieth birthday, Miss Mary Mallen, of West Third street, entertained a number of friends at a porch party last night. Lanterns were strung about the porch with pretty effect. Pit and whist were played, and songs were sung, until 11 o'clock, when refreshments were served.

FLAG ON CITY POLE ALL THE YEAR 'ROUND

Junior Order of United American Mechanics to Supply the Starry Banner.

POLE 125 FEET HIGH

FRANKLIN COUNCIL HAS THE MATTER UNDER CONSIDERATION.

Benevolent and Somerset Councils May Aid in the Scheme—Edward White Gave the First Flag.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., the oldest Council of American Mechanics in this city, has taken steps to purchase a large American flag to float in the breeze from the city flag pole on Front street, at the head of Park avenue. When one banner becomes worn out, a new one will be supplied and the flag will be unfurled every day.

The matter has been under advisement for some time, and there is no doubt but what the action will be taken. It has always been the pride of the Junior Mechanics, as well as the general public, to see Old Glory flying from the city pole. Heretofore, there has been more or less trouble in having a flag raised on this pole. Edward White presented the first flag to the city after the pole was put in position and later Former Mayor Charles J. Fisk gave a flag for the same purpose. According to a resolution adopted by the Council Chief Doane, of the fire department, was to display the flag on all legal holidays and other proper occasions. And he has taken pains to preserve the flag by only displaying it on holidays.

It is quite likely that both Somerset and Benevolent Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., will join in the movement.

WORKING ON NEW BRIDGE

PUTTING ON THE FINISHING TOUCHES AT GIRAUD AVENUE STRUCTURE.

F. A. Roe, superintendent of bridge construction for the Dover Boiler Works, has several men at work on the new Giraud avenue bridge, putting the finishing touches to the railing and painting the girders. Much of the railing for this bridge was so damaged in transit as to make it impossible to erect it without taking it apart and removing the damaged portions.

Several times the delay has been so aggravated that the Board of Freeholders has been on the point of abrogating the contract, taking up the company's bond and finishing the work on its own responsibility.

BABY CAMP SEASON.

Arrangements Made for Formal Opening on Thursday.

The opening day at the Baby Camp, which was planned for yesterday, on account of the threatening weather, was postponed until next Thursday, when the City Union of King's Daughters' hope to see a large number of their friends between the hours of 3 and 6 o'clock. Carriages will meet the 2:30 car at the Somerset street terminal and every half hour afterward.

The camp was opened for children early this week and already a number are enjoying its advantages. Miss DeLaney is again in charge, and under her efficient care it is expected that many little ones will be benefitted, during the weeks to come.

Miss Matthews Agreeably Surprised.

Miss Jessie Matthews, of West Fourth street, was given a surprise party last night. The affair was arranged by her brother, Elias Matthews. There were twenty young persons present who spent the evening playing "pit." The winners were Miss Mabel Gano and Munroe Squires. After the game dancing was enjoyed.

—Go otherwhere than to Neuman Bros. for vegetables and run a grave risk of disappointment. Their display is always complete and of the finest quality.

—Twenty-two members of the Clinton Hill Social Club, an auxiliary of St. Luke's church, Newark, enjoyed a trolley ride to Plainfield Monday night and were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. George H. Fairchild, at their home in Grandview avenue. After spending a pleasant evening and the serving of refreshments the guests departed for their homes.

I. O. O. F. ENCAMPMENT ENTERTAINS ITS FRIENDS

Women Share in Enjoyment of Programme as Presented by Noah Dove, Odd Fellows.

SPEECHES A FEATURE

GRAND PATRIARCH KAHN TELLS OF TRADITIONS OF THE ORDER.

Violin selections by David Dreier and Songs by Aleck Muir—Refreshments at Close of Entertainment.

Winding up their social season before the summer shut-downs, the members of Noah Dove Encampment, No. 28, I. O. O. F., entertained their women friends last night. It passed off as a most delightful affair, full of pleasant features. There was a large attendance, and keen enjoyment was the keynote of the evening.

Two prominent State officers were present to mark the importance of the event, Grand Patriarch Kahn and Grand Senior Warden Taylor, of Newark. Both delivered addresses. A delegation from the New Brunswick canton was present.

There was a long and enjoyable bill of entertainment. Grand Patriarch Kahn's address was the first thing on the programme. He spoke in happy phrase, touching on the traditions and aims of the order, and complimenting the Encampment upon its make-up and success.

Musical features included several violin selections by David Dreier, vocal solos by Aleck Muir, and a number of selections by an orchestra. Miss Lila Case recited, and Fred Becker gave an exhibition of club and sword swinging. All the numbers were cleverly rendered, and insistent applause compelled several encores.

Grand Senior Warden Taylor spoke on lines somewhat similar to the address of the Grand Patriarch. He evoked warm applause with neatly turned compliments for the organization and its work.

Only one local member spoke. Dr J. Hervey Buchanan delivered one of his inimitable speeches, putting the assemblage into great good humor by his hits and digs.

After the entertainment the gathering adjourned to the dining rooms, where refreshments were served. The committee in charge of the affair comprised Stephen H. Schlief, John A. Kriney and John Becker, Jr.

Barclay, 6-3, 3-7, 7-5; Miss Marjorie Fleming defeated Miss Virginia Hegeman, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3; Miss Helen Brown was defeated by Miss Helen Hassell, who had to give her a fifteen point handicap in each game, by the score of 3-6, 6-4, 6-2; Miss Margaret Goddard won over Miss Schuyler by default, Miss Florence Stuart defeated Miss Harriet Goddard, 6-2, 0-2, 6-2.

In the second round Miss Ellen Merrill was defeated by Miss Marjorie Fleming, 6-1, 6-2; Miss Margaret Goddard defeated Miss Helen Hassell, 6-, 6-0; Miss Margaret Goddard defeated Miss Florence Stuart, 6-3, 6-3.

The semi-finals this morning between Miss Ethel Hassell and Miss Marjorie Fleming, resulted in victory for Miss Hassell, who defeated her opponent by a score of 3-6, 6-3, 9-7. The last set was the most exciting thus far in the tournament. Tomorrow afternoon Miss Hassell and Miss Margaret Goddard will play the final match.

A DELIGHTFUL MUSICALE

GIVEN FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE SCOTCH PLAINS BAPTIST CHURCH.

Under the auspices and for the benefit of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, a delightful musical and literary entertainment was held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Westcott, in Fanwood, last night. There was a large attendance of members and friends of the church and the receipts were most gratifying.

Miss Frances Klepetko, a well-known soprano of Brooklyn, pleased the audience by singing "Beloved It is Morn," and she generously responded to an encore. She was accompanied on the piano by Miss Lillian Fancher, who also rendered several piano selections.

A feature of the entertainment was singing by a male quartette composed of Marshall W. White, first tenor; Howard U. Gilmore, second tenor; L. D. H. Gilmore, second bass, and Phillip Neider, first tenor. They sang "A Continuous Performance," and "Laughing Gas," receiving hearty applause.

Vocal duets by Mrs. Charles Vincent and Mrs. VanBrakle, and mandolin selections by H. C. Gilmore, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. L. D. H. Gilmore, were well received, as were also the excellent recitations by Miss Mildred Bass, of Paterson. Those presenting the programme were in each instance obliged to respond to encores. Following the entertainment there was a social time.

ALIS-WESTFIELD COMPACT

TERMS UNDER WHICH THE SERIES OF GAMES WILL BE RESUMED.

The agreement drafted at the meeting of the Alis Club on Wednesday night whereby the Alis and Westfield teams may resume the series started earlier in the season, appears to meet with general approval, provided the dispute is settled purely on its merits.

Mayor Perkins, of Westfield, an official of the Westfield Baseball Association, has taken an unusual interest in the matter of a settlement of the dispute. He has been very anxious to have the contests resumed.

This is the agreement drafted Wednesday night and signed by representatives of both clubs:

"We agree to continue the baseball series as heretofore arranged between Alis and Westfield Clubs with the following modifications. The managers of the respective teams will arrange new dates for the balance of the games to be played; the guarantees to remain as heretofore agreed.

"The disputed game played at Westfield June 11, 1904 will be referred to three arbitrators, one to be selected by Alis Club, one by Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, and the third arbitrator to be selected by the two so chosen. The sole question to be determined by the arbitrators is whether the disputed game shall be counted for Westfield as won, or be played over. The arbitrators shall decide this question on the facts to be presented by both teams and the rules of the game.

"The schedule and umpires for the balance of the games to be played, when arranged by the respective managers, shall be presented to Randolph Perkins for his approval, and when approved by him, shall stand as the agreement between the two aforesaid clubs.

Stanbury's Luck Returns.

After six months of comparative peace, W. R. Stanbury's auto broke down again at the corner of Somerset and Front streets Wednesday afternoon. It attracted a big crowd and kept Patrolman Overbaugh and Detective McCarthy busy clearing the corner for foot traffic. Mr. Stanbury, collarless and in his shirtsleeves, helped one of F. L. C. Martin's men tinker the machine into shape. "This is just like old times," said the Fanwood chauffeur, mopping his head. "I'd begun to think the old machine was going back on me."

Mrs. Gow's Mother Dead.

Mrs. Robert Gow, of Lee place, this city, has just received word from her home in Cheadle, Staffordshire, England, that her mother is dead, having passed away June 20. She was buried on June 23. Mrs. Gow was about to leave for a visit at her old home, having arranged for passage on the "Oceanic."

FIFTY-ROOM ADDITION AT THE TRUELL INN

Extensive Improvements Are Planned by Mrs. Truell, Including a Big Dining Room.

NOW A POPULAR RESORT

FIRE ESCAPES ARE TO BE PLACED ON THE BUILDING.

When Proprietress Returns From St. Louis Further Arrangements Will be Made—Formerly Known As Park Avenue Hotel.

Extensive improvements to Truell Inn, formerly the Park Avenue Hotel, are being considered by the new owner, Mrs. J. R. Truell. The plans include the material enlargement of the structure and the remodelling of the dining room.

At the hotel this morning the representatives of the management said that they had no positive knowledge that Mrs. Truell intended to enlarge or remodel, but said that she had talked of such action. Mrs. Truell is in St. Louis at present.

According to a statement given out at the hotel, the plans considered by the owner include the erection of a big addition on the Park avenue side of the house. This addition will give the house fifty more rooms.

Under the tentative plans proposed, the dining room would be enlarged by thirty or thirty-five feet. It will be remodelled, with a circular front as the special feature. So enlarged, the room will be by far the most spacious of its kind in the city. It is to be refurnished in striking style.

In addition to these improvements the exterior of the hotel is to be completely equipped with fire escapes. Before any of this work is done, the present structure is to be put in perfect condition, inside and out, so that none of the guests will be inconvenienced in the slightest degree when the contract is started.

Mrs. Truell is credited with the desire to make her Inn the peer or even the superior of the palatial hostelries at the select resorts. Under her brief management the hotel has forged perceptibly ahead of its record under the old regime. There are fifty guests there at present, and during the few weeks of summer that have passed the house has been so crowded as to make the use of two parlors as bedrooms necessary.

HELPING WATCHUNG SCHOOL

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL IS GIVEN TO RAISE NECESSARY FUNDS.

A highly successful strawberry festival was held Wednesday night at Texier's mill in Watchung. The object of the affair was to raise funds for a new well at the Watchung school house and the following members of the school board formed the committee on arrangements: Mr. Duffy, Mr. Clark, George Schmidt, Edward Canning and Mr. Voorhees, of Greenbrook. There was a musical programme in addition to the good things served by the Misses Emma and Addie Wyckoff, who presided over the cake and fruit table and the Misses Demler, who were in charge of the cream and berries. The musical portion of the entertainment included vocal solos by Leonce Texier, of Watchung, and Alex. Muir, of this city, who were enthusiastically applauded. Probably 250 people were present and the affair was conceded to be such a success that another will probably be held late in August or early in September.

Friends' Society Picnic.

In spite of what promised to be a rainy day, the First-day school of the Society of Friends, held their picnic at the Fanwood home of former Mayor Thomas S. Young, on Midway avenue. The afternoon was spent in playing various games on the lawn and refreshments were served.

Law Collection at Library.

It is not generally known, but there is a good sized collection of valuable law books at the Public Library. The library authorities have just sent lists of the legal works on their shelves to the lawyers of the city, inviting them to make use of them.

Borough Council Tonight.

The regular monthly meeting of the borough Council will be held tonight. Nothing of any great importance is pending, and an uninteresting session is anticipated.

It makes no difference how fine the fabric, Meissner's Laundry, Watchung avenue, will clean it in perfect style. Lace curtains, silky, lacy trifles, all restored to pristine freshness without harm.

Good meat must be eaten in this weather, if at any time. The heat debilitates the system so that poor meat may be worse than starvation. Get M. R. Giles' meat and be sure of fine quality.

If you contract with William Hand & Sons, of East Second street, to do your moving or carting, you can rest assured that the work will be done satisfactorily and that you will not be overcharged.

Thorp's foot relief is a great help to persons having tender feet. After an application of this wonderful remedy you at once feel relief and in a few applications the feet are restored to their normal condition.

The prescription department at Armstrong's drug store is like the cigars sold by Armstrong—the best possible. Patronage continued for year after year attest the truth of this statement better than anything else possibly could.

If you seek release from all the usual trouble encountered by persons having painting just turn the next piece of work you have, over to J. C. Hansen. The result will be as it has in hundreds of other cases: one customer more for this popular painter.

Summer goods are needed just now and A. M. Griffen, the East Front street hardware dealer, is prepared to sell you the best screens for windows or doors, hardwood, oiled and varnished and at low prices. A special drive is being made in oil stoves and ovens—quick meal stoves and Monarch ovens, also refrigerators, water coolers and many other things.

Cool and comfortable, the best things for women to wear this weather are the shirtwaist suits. The Fair, West Front street, is offering special values in shirtwaist suits that present an unusual opportunity to womenfolk. These suits have style as well as comfort. Wash skirts for a change off with the waists at wonderfully low prices. Special values, too, in washable waists.

The proper summer girl rig is the cause of lots of brain work among the designers of millinery and in order to see the best results of this work one should go to Bonn's. Flat sailors of white soft duck or linen, pure white in color, trimmed with smart black binings and band set off with a neat steel buckle. Other sailors of rough straw in either black or white. Some very modish things with wings in them and others embellished by the presence of a few flowers or leaves.

If you are preparing to go away for the summer you will need a substantial trunk and there is no better place to get just what you want than at Woodhull & Martin's store. They are of the famous Peddie make, built to stand the hardest wear. A full line of dress suit cases, satchels and bags are also kept in stock. The firm is having a big sale of refrigerators just now and you can get a good bargain in one of the best makes. Oil stoves and hammocks and all sorts of household articles are yours for a reasonable price.

AMONG MEN IN THE SHOPS

SEEN AND HEARD IN PLAINFIELD'S INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

Raymond King, of East Second street, has resigned his position at the Central Railroad shops at Elizabethport.

George Wilson, of West Sixth street, is on the sick list.

Sidney Gilbert, of Prescott place, who is employed on the clerical force of the Tide Water Oil plant, of Bayonne, is on a week's vacation.

Robert Kirck, of the borough, has resigned his position at the Scott Printing Company's works.

Robert Hangliter, a former employe at the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant, has taken a position at the Tide Water Oil Company's shop in Bayonne.

Herbert Naylor, the son of John Naylor, of the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant, slipped on the car tracks while riding his wheel on West Front street last night. The lad was badly cut about the face and hands and rendered unconscious. Dr. Brennan was summoned, and after working over the lad for a short time brought him back to consciousness.

Herbert Glentzner, who was injured at the Scott Press Company's works a week ago, has returned to his position.

Samuel Apgar, timekeeper at the Pond Machine Tool Company's works, has returned from the wedding of his brother in Bloomsbury.

John Thompson, foreman of the erecting department at the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant, has returned from a trip to England, where he spent several weeks.

John Duckworth, of the Potter Press Company's plant, has returned from the wedding of Thomas Chamberlain, which was held in Elizabeth.

After a strike lasting more than six months, 500 table cutters, the most expert workmen in the Johnstown, N. Y., glove trade, voted yesterday to go back to work. The fight was over the open shop.

Throughout the country there appears to be a general slackness in the locomotive industry, and in many of the shops of the American Locomotive Company men are being laid off in large numbers. At the Cooke shops in Paterson all the departments are closed, and the large force of men usually employed there are idle.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

In Trenton, on Saturday, Somerset County Detective Totten, of Somerville, arrested John Moore, known as "Mountain Jack," a noted character of Sourland Mountain district. Totten heard Moore was in Trenton and knowing he was wanted in Mercer county for an alleged crime, he went to the Capitol City and nabbed his man and spirited him to Somerset county before the authorities of Trenton were aware of the arrest. Moore was indicted by the April Grand Jury on a charge of criminal assault on his sister-in-law, Nellie Stoker, a fourteen-year-old girl. He had frequented the mountain and successfully eluded the authorities since the crime was committed. It is said Moore has from time to time come from his mountain retreat and annoyed the residents of Neshanic vicinity. He has a wife and child, who are cared for by a neighbor.

AMUSEMENTS.

Arrangements have been completed by Messrs. Rush & Weber and the management of the Madison Square Garden for the opening of the Madison Square Roof on the night of Monday, July 4, when there will be presented the musical spectacle called "Paris by Night." Not only will the musical play itself be known by this name, but the ensemble of attractions of the roof of New York's most famous amusement resort will also be called "Paris by Night." It is intended that this will be the most pretentious open air attraction of New York's mid-summer. There will be several hundred persons employed about the roof itself in the way of French waitresses, booth tenders and other attaches, while in the musical play of "Paris by Night" there will be over a score of principals and some sixty persons in the chorus, most of whom will be pretty girls.

Klaw & Erlanger's Aerial Garden and Theatre, on their New Amsterdam Theatre, Forty-second street, just west of Broadway, have become the most popular summer evening resort in New York city. The theatre, complete in every detail as any of surface construction, but so built that it can be thrown open on all four sides, will seat 1,200 people. With the gardens, 2,000 people can be entertained. The attraction, John J. McNally's skit, "A Little of Everything," presents a notable aggregation of novelties to which the Offenbach Review, the musical hit of Paris last season, has been added. This consists of a selection of complete scenes from eight of Offenbach's most popular operas. Fay Templeton and Peter F. Dailey have made notable hits as Rosa and "Gen Boom" in this review, which is the musical sensation of the town. Since its opening three weeks ago there has not been an empty seat in the Aerial Theatre at any performance.

Three years ago a young Englishman, 6 years of age, calling himself "Datas," created a sensation in a London music hall by answering instantly and correctly all questions in reference to the dates of historical events, both B. C. and A. D., and in connection with the careers of historical personages. "Datas" came to fill the American engagement two weeks ago and began a six weeks' stay at the New York Theatre roof garden last Monday evening, answering questions as to dates, shot at him as from a rapid-fire gun, instantly and correctly, except in one instance—"When did Commodore Perry enter the American Navy?"—in which he failed, but he could tell the date of the battle of Lake Erie and knew that Perry was in command. After the performance, explaining his failure, "Datas" said he would wager that Commodore Perry's birth, entrance into the United States Navy and death could not be found recorded in the standard work of the world's histories, Haydn's Dictionary of Dates. An investigation of this point last Tuesday found this statemen true. "Datas" will make dates a fad in New York, for the next six weeks at least at the New York Theatre Roof Garden.

Chancery Mortgages Not Taxable.

An opinion was filed Tuesday in the Court of Chancery at Trenton to the effect that mortgages issued by Chancery are not taxable under the law of 1898. The test was made in the case of the Assessor of Delaware Township, Hunterdon County, against Mrr. Julia Larue. The effect will be general throughout the State.

R. V. Brokaw, of Regent street, has been visiting relatives in Bound Brook.

Miss Adelaide Carney, of Craig place, has returned from a visit to friends in Newark.

Miss Tina Voehl, of Somerset street, has returned home after a visit to friends in Mendham.

Mrs. J. B. Tiger, of Duer street, has returned home after a week's stay with relatives in New York.

ELI FRESHMEN WON

Yale-Harvard Oarsmen's Contest on the Thames.

FEW SUCH IN AQUATIC HISTORY

Race Was a Desperate Struggle From Start to Finish, Harvard Being Beaten by Half a Second—Other Events Postponed.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 1.—The thousands who journeyed to the Thames for the annual Yale-Harvard boat races saw one of the best freshmen races that was ever rowed on any course, and then for eight hours the crowd sat in the rain and waited in vain, first for the varsity four oared race, which was postponed, and finally for the big varsity eight oared race.

Yale won the freshmen race by half a second, or a quarter of a boat's length. For the two miles of this race the two shells zigzagged, and neither crew ever had a lead of more than a quarter of a length. It was one of the most remarkable boat races in the history of intercollegiate rowing.

At the sound of the pistol both eights dashed away in splendid style. Yale showed in better form at the start than Harvard and for the first eighth of a mile had a trifle the better of it. Then the Harvard men settled down and slowly drove their boat to the front. Yale was rowing thirty-four and the crimson thirty-two. Raising her stroke a point or two, Harvard reached the half mile flag a third of a length in the lead. Over the next half mile the boats only changed in their relative positions by one second. Harvard finished the mile in 5 minutes and 9 seconds and Yale in 5 minutes and 10 seconds.

Over the next half mile the struggle was superb. Each crew raised its stroke one point. Harvard steered out of her course in order to catch better water, and Yale followed her. At the mile and a half flag the two boats were exactly even, nose for nose. The time for each crew for the mile and a half was 7 minutes and 50 seconds. Just as the last half mile flag was passed Yale began a spurt that won the race. She jumped her stroke up to thirty-six and began to pull ahead inch by inch.

Harvard did not make her effort until an eighth of a mile from the finish. Then her stroke went to thirty-eight, but it was too late. Yale was leading by the length of her canvas bow as the flags dipped at the finish. The two flags went down almost simultaneously, and it was several minutes before the crews knew who had won. Finally the referee shouted out the name of the winner, and the Yale youngsters sat up in their shell and gave the Yale cheer, with Harvard on the end of it. Yale had won by just half a second. Yale's time was 10 minutes and 20 seconds and Harvard's 10 minutes and 20½ seconds.

The crews had a fair wind, but practically no tide, and considering this fact the time was fast. The prediction made Wednesday night by John Kennedy of Yale that the freshmen race was a toss up came true. Two crews more evenly matched had never met.

The postponement of the varsity races brought forth much criticism. Throughout the entire programme there seemed to be a lack of system in the handling of the races.

To Keep Her From Sinning.

BOSTON, July 1.—On the stand in the superior criminal court Ray C. Johnson, who is charged with having murdered Sarah Peters in this city, admitted that he killed the woman. He was asked by his counsel, "Did you kill Sarah Peters?" In a scarcely audible voice and with despondent air the man answered "Yes." "Why?" "I wanted to keep her from sinning." "How would that keep her from sinning?" "She was going to a better world." With the examination of Johnson the defense closed.

Mrs. Kershaw Convicted.

TRENTON, N. J., July 1.—Mrs. Anna Kershaw, colored, was last night convicted of murder in the second degree for the killing of her eleven-year-old niece, Isabelle Adams. The burned body of the child was found in the Kershaw home covered with a carpet. The woman denied knowledge of how the child met its death.

Danclowszky Has a Record.

VIENNA, July 1. — Edward Danclowszky, accused of having murdered his aunt, Mary Danclowszky, at Chicago in June, 1903, has been arrested at Budapest. He had been acquitted here previously, the police aver, of a charge of murder, but convicted of robbery and sentenced to six years' imprisonment.

Will Follow Raisuli's Lead.

"Cleveland will get it by a neck," says our office boy. Maybe "in the neck."

Gen. Miles threw cold water on the Prohibitionists by declining to become their nominee for the Presidency.

Japan is proving its claim to the title of Flowery Kingdom. It is getting all the bouquets in the war with Russia.

The Daily Press wishes George H. Frost every success in his new venture and takes this occasion to extend to him a cordial welcome to the local newspaper field.

A Pennsylvania weekly suggests that the stray iceberg sighted off Nantucket might be the Parker boom. Wrong again brother. It was frozen enthusiasm from the Chicago convention.

It is safe to predict that Swallow, the Prohibitionists' candidate for the Presidency, will not be flattered by the vote he receives in his own State. The people of Pennsylvania have little use for cranks, and the doctor's record there entitles him to a first prize among the obnoxious class.

Governor Murphy is consulting Edward Stokes before making any appointments. The party's convention will be allowed the privilege of naming the Cumberland man for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in the fall. Of course the convention will express its own will by making the nomination unanimous.

Former United States Senator Smith, the persistent advocate of Cleveland's nomination, pays the freight for a whole trainload of Jersey Democrats, who will start for the convention tomorrow. About the same time, Charles A. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, who is equally instantant upon Cleveland's nomination, will start for St. Louis with another trainload of his friends. A telegraph wire is being run into the Cleveland summer home in New Hampshire. Parker is losing ground every day. No gains are being made by the radical element of the party. Guess the rest.

A law of New Jersey says: "It shall not be lawful to sell, barter, exchange, hire or loan to any person under the age of fifteen any gun, pistol, toy pistol or other firearm," or for any person under such age to purchase or carry any such weapon, "except in the presence of his father or guardian or for the purpose of military drill in accordance with the rules of the school." According to the same act it is "not lawful for any person to sell, barter or exchange or offer to exhibit for sale, barter or exchange, any firecracker or squib;" or for any one "to explode or throw the same." The prescribed penalties upon violating these laws are from $5 to $25 for each separate offense.

THE FORUM.

Communications from readers of The Daily Press on all subjects of local interest are invited. All such communications must be stripped of personalities, and must be signed by the writer. His name will not necessarily be published. The editor is not responsible for views expressed in this column.

Editor, The Daily Press:

In your issue of yesterday there appeared a few statements in the baseball article of Alls vs. Westfield that the St. Mary's baseball managers take exception to and they would like this to appear in today's issue to set matters right. Manager Johnston gave the St. Mary's five dates, the first to be played on July 30. The next three to be played in August and the final game on September 10.

Regarding authority to use the name of St. Mary's, you state that Manager Johnston had given up his agreement with St. Mary's because he learned from John P. Owens and Henry Wierenga that the committee he was conferring with did not represent St. Mary's.

John P. Owens, just before leaving on his wedding tour Wednesday, wrote Manager Johnston that he was perfectly satisfied and indeed was glad that the teams would meet and revive the local interests in the game. Mr. Owens also stated publicly on Tuesday evening, in the presence of a prominent member of the Alls Club, that he had no objection to the present management of St. Mary's, in fact they had authority to play any baseball team they saw fit under that name.

By placing this in your news column you will put the managers of St. Mary's baseball club in a fair light, under which they wish to continue with whomsoever they may encounter in baseball circles or otherwise.

VanWinkle, Special Master in Chancery, sold the lands yesterday at public sale. The Somerset street property was sold to A. Gibby Spencer, a son, and Fannie L. Force, a daughter, for $5,600, and the Harmony street property to the same parties for $825.

Jacob Sachar Arrested.

Jacob Sachar, of West Third street, arrested by Roundsman Flynn for allowing his horse to run at large on the public street, was released by Judge Runyon this morning under suspended sentence after a severe lecture.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY

The Dunellen A. C. will meet the Rahway F. C. on the morning of July 4 and in the afternoon the Garwood A. C. It is hoped that an extra large crowd of rooters will accompany the team to New Market tomorrow. New Market will have a big bunch on hand and it seems as if the boroughites ought to give their representatives the support they deserve. The lineup has not been changed as it is believed that it is now as strong as possible.

Elizabeth Varden became so helplessly drunk at Findlay's saloon on East Second street, early yesterday evening, that Patrolman Kelly had to remove her to the lock-up in the patrol wagon. She was released under suspension of sentence this morning. The trip of the patrol wagon through the streets to the saloon caused wild rumors of a free fight with revolver trimmings to be circulated, one story having it that two men were shot and might not live.

Recorder E. S. Campbell, of Dunellen, sentenced Wesley Gaskill to a $10 fine or 15 days at New Brunswick for being drunk and disorderly. The fine was paid. A Suggestion from are continually doing a great deal of mischief to good pianos. It will therefore doubtless be of interest to owners of Steinway and other pianos, residing at not too great a distance from New York, to learn that we are now prepared to take orders for the tuning and regulating of pianos during the summer months at special rates. Not only the members of our large regular tuning force but also those of our staff of experts who, during the winter season, have been traveling with eminent pianists on their concert tours, and who have now returned to New York, are available for this work. The greater the number of orders from any one place or vicinity the lower our charge will be for each piano attended to. Consequently we would suggest to prospective customers in any locality that they "club together" in sending us their orders, whenever feasible and agreeable, as the most economical and satisfactory plan. Your patronage is respectfully solicited.

STEINWAY & SONS

About Piano Tuning

SPANISH PEGGY

A STORY OF YOUNG ILLINOIS

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

"You have as much spunk as a boy," approved Dick. "I like to see a little girl able to hush up crying."

"But I am not a little girl," said Peggy. "I am 15 years old."

"Fifteen, Peggy! You can't be 15! I thought you were about 10."

"That's because I am so little for my age. And my name isn't really Peggy."

"They called you Peggy."

"That's because I have a peg leg. My own name is Consuelo Lorimer. And I have another that the Sacs called me."

Everybody who went to Minter Grayham's school-house, knew that her name was set down as Consuelo Lorimer on his book. It meant nothing in New Salem, but Yates heard it with quick interest.

"Was old Don Luis Lorimer, who used to be a Spanish governor down the river a long while ago, any relation of yours?"

Shickshack on his keg uttered so strong a grunt that all the others stopped talking and listened.

"The young chief knows a heap," said Shickshack.

"I only know there was such a governor, on old Spanish ground—part French himself, but his wife was pure Spanish. I've been to Cape Girardeau. But I don't know whether he has any living descendants or not."

"Last grandchild," said Shickshack, indicating Peggy. Her eyes moved apprehensively from white lad to Indian.

"Then you're a Spaniard?" said Dick.

"I'm not a Spaniard!" denied Peggy, facing down the accusation vehemently. "I'm white!"

"Spaniards are white."

"I'm like white folks in New Salem," insisted Peggy, repudiating the vague foreign taint. She saw the young Rutledges and Mahala Cameron and Martha Bell Clary looking at her suspiciously. Spanish governors cut no figure in the imagination of New Salemites.

"I suppose you are of mixed blood and really ought to be called a Creole," pursued Dick, interested in the case.

"That's a kind of a pullet," whispered Martha Bell to Mahala.

"I'm not of mixed blood!" cried Peggy, unable to bear any more.

"Why, everybody here is of mixed blood!" asserted Dick, and that was a comfort. It gave her the chance to look back at her antagonists.

"Have you never told her that she was Spanish?" Dick inquired of Shickshack.

The silent Indian shook his head. His impassive face glowed in the firelight. Young Yates seemed to have cast a spell on him. From the contents of his heavy game-bag, which he had unslung as he entered and left beside his gun, to the secrets of his past, he was ready to lay everything he owned at the young chief's feet.

"How did the Sac brave come to adopt the Spanish child?" inquired Dick.

Shickshack silently admired his knowledge of how to address a Sac brave without offensively shouting out that brave's name in public.

"No father. No mother. Me hunt with her father on the Platte. Me love white men since that time. Never in my life me shed white man's blood. When he die he give his child to me."

"Was Peggy lame from the start?" inquired Ann.

Shickshack looked at her steadily without replying. Then he shook his head.

"Me love white men. Me marry white woman," he answered, and dropped his face.

"Does he mean that Sally lamed her?" whispered Ann to Lincoln.

"Sally is a mighty energetic woman," admitted Lincoln, smiling from the hearth corner. A huge mole showed in the crease made under his cheek by a smile.

"Will the young chief be here tomorrow?" Shickshack asked Dick Yates.

"No. We must go back to Jacksonville to-morrow."

Slicky Green added that it was not vacation time. The two had begged a day off on account of his extreme homesickness and would have to ride early next morning.

"Me like to talk," said the Sac, fixing his gaze on Dick. "Me have something for the young chief's ear."

"We can take a walk together now," suggested Dick.

Shickshack rose up at once. The sheath of a long hunting-knife hung down his side by a leather strap. He had kept Peggy's crutch in his hand. He stood it against the wall beside the chimney, and Dick stepped over the bench to follow him.

"Hello!" shouted a cheerful voice. Two horses were brought up abreast, facing the door, their hoofs at the very step. Light shone out over them and their riders, revealing the weekly mail-carrier with the post-bag from Springfield bulging on each side of his saddle, and his leggins splashed with mud, and a stranger having black eyes and hair and mustache, whose entire equipment was foreign.

Shickshack stood while he drew one breath and looked at the stranger. For the first time a Sac war-whoop was heard in New Salem, and as he yelled he snatched his hunting-knife from its sheath.

CHAPTER II.

The whole village knew before bedtime how Shickshack had threatened the stranger. A community of interest as swift as the telephone carried news the length of the winding street.

"Shickshack screeched loud enough to be heard at Wolf," gasped Mahala Cameron, telling the tale to her folks, "and drew his knife and jumped at the man like a wildcat!"

"And Abe Lincoln and the other boys caught him," put in Martha Bell Clary, assisting her. "The man's horse and the mail-carrier's horse both reared up—they were scared nearly to death like the rest of us! But just as soon as the boys caught hold of Shickshack he dropped his head and stood like he was ashamed."

"He's a live Indian yet," said Mahala Cameron's father. "He'll stir himself and take a scalp one of these days. I wonder what he had against the stranger?"

Rutledge's tavern entertained rare travelers who stayed over night in New Salem. The candles were all put out early, yet before folks covered their fires they had in some way absorbed the facts about the new arrival. He was a well-spoken man, with a foreign twist to his tongue, inclined to laugh at the rage of Shickshack, whom he knew very well. He told openly that he was Don Pedro Lorimer, a sugar planter from the island of Cuba, and that his errand through the states was political in the main; though he intended when other matters pressed him less, to remove his half wild young cousin, Consuelo Lorimer, from the care of the Indian, who had taken advantage of her father's death on the plains to adopt her.

A tropical sun had given him the darkest skin ever carried by a white man around New Salem. He walked abroad in the early morning, and having had Shickshack's closed house pointed out to him, stood and looked at it smiling, without attempting to enter.

The Indian and his adopted daughter were not seen abroad during that day, though both of them were accustomed to live outdoors at all seasons. Shickshack said he loved to see the deer galloping in the bottoms, or to watch them as they gathered in herds, the sun shining in their eyes.

New Salem was a single long and winding street on a high ridge, which sloped so suddenly on both sides that all the gardens ran down hill. Seen from the schoolhouse, it looked like a huge wave of earth riding against the northern horizon. The schoolhouse, standing at the base of another ridge, was divided from the village by a deep ravine, through which ran a small stream called Rock creek.

The schoolhouse was the only meeting place. Its log stack and white clay chimney represented church, town hall and theater—if so godless a place as a theater had been allowed—in New Salem. It was headquarters on muster days, and the arena of those wordy wars which the pioneers called debates. Eager to hear any strange, new thing, the whole town flocked across Rock creek as soon as candles began to bloom like primroses at dusk in boot-shaped sconces on the schoolhouse walls. It might be that the cousin of Shickshack's girl had not as much to say as he had given out that he had. But New Salem would hear him and judge. Minter Grayham's pupils—particularly the smaller ones—were lined up on front benches, which their own long use had worn to the smoothness of glass. The stranger had advertised through their schoolmaster that he would give the prize of a book to any boy or girl who could, at the close of the lecture, stand up and spell correctly the word Ompompanoosuck!

Unusual war had raged on the playground at both recesses and noon concerning the spelling of this word. Camps divided to play Indian or horse-thief met to wrangle over combinations of letters. Some sly ones who thought they were going to get the prize retired to puzzle alone. Minter Grayham, who thought a modest amount of spelling, the Testament, the English Reader and the Rule of Three in arithmetic to advanced scholars, was in honor obliged to look as ignorant as he felt in this great matter.

Some women saw with consternation that the boys from Clary's grove were gathered on the back seats, a couple of dozen young villians, whose leader, Redmond Clary, was the most desperate rider in the Sangamon country. The gravest charge brought against these uncurbed youths was their determination to govern the community. In them the life of the frontier found its wildest expression. When one of them had a colt to break he summoned the others, and they forced it into the Sangamon river. One sat on its back, another hung to its tail and the rest clung about and hampered it in every way. The untamed thing, obliged to swim for its life carrying weight, finally came out of the water a subdued beast. They were ready to deal in like manner with anything that antagonized them. Each man had brought an egg carefully bestowed on his person, and at a concerted signal he expected to throw it at the lecturer, for the mere sport of seeing an uninteresting foreigner smeared from head to foot. But he caught their fancy.

SHIPS RAID GENSAN

Vladivostok Squadron Again Steal March on Japanese.

TWO VESSELS SHELLED AND SUNK

There Is Continual Fighting In the Vicinity of Port Arthur, and the Mikado's Army Is Gradually Closing In.

LONDON, July 1.—Advices from Tokyo say that the Russian Vladivostok squadron, accompanied by torpedo boats, has appeared off Gensan, on the east coast of Korea. The torpedo boats entered Gensan harbor, shelled the settlement and sank the steamer Koun and the small coasting schooner Seitsu.

Two hundred shells were fired into the settlement by the fleet.

Later the Vladivostok squadron, consisting of three cruisers, one torpedo boat destroyer and nine torpedo boats, was reported off Anpen, about fifteen miles to the east of Gensan, proceeding in a southeasterly direction.

The Russian vessels which took part in the bombardment of Gensan were the cruisers Rossia, Gromoboi and Rurik and nine torpedo boats. The vessels when they left Gensan steamed to the north, but were seen to return from this direction.

Generals Fukushima and Inoguchi accompany Field Marshal Marquis Oyama and General Kodama, his chief of staff, to the front. The emperor has presented his favorite horse to General Kodama. It is reported on authority that there is continual fighting in the vicinity of Port Arthur and that the Japanese forces are closing in on that place. It is expected that the foreign military attaches and the newspaper correspondents assigned to the second Japanese army will leave for the front soon after the departure of Field Marshal Marquis Oyama.

A Tokyo cable says that General Oku reported after the fighting at Telissu (Vafangow) that the Japanese buried 1,854 Russians. The trophies taken by the Japanese at this engagement consisted of sixteen guns, forty-six wagons, 958 rifles and other war material.

A Tokyo dispatch says that Japanese officers who were engaged in the last naval fight at Port Arthur assert that they saw women on board the Russian warships and that this confirms the suspicion that the Russians were attempting to escape to a neutral port and had no intention of fighting.

The last mail from the front, it is said, gives additional instances of the mutilation of Japanese wounded by the Russians.

The Japanese have occupied Wolf mountain after desperate fighting, in which a Russian regiment was almost annihilated.

The correspondent of the Standard at Matsuyama, Japan, cabling under date of June 30, says:

"Today I visited the Russian prisoners here. Five hundred and eight of them were admitted to the army hospital, practically all of whom suffered from small arms. Two hundred and nine have been discharged as completely cured. At present there are 12 officers, 37 noncommissioned officers and 245 privates under treatment here, and all of them are likely to recover with the exception of one, who has been paralyzed.

"There are five temporary hospitals in Matsuyama, in which Japanese women, American women missionaries and members of the Red Cross assist in the nursing.

"The unwounded prisoners consist of 21 officers, 54 noncommissioned officers and 583 privates. The officers have separate quarters and are allowed to employ a cook from the town and to purchase luxuries. Twenty-two wounded sailors have been received, and they are frequently visited by the American missionaries."

Destroyer Ran Blockade.

NEWCHWANG, July 1.—The Russian torpedo boat destroyer Lieutenant Burukoff has arrived here from Port Arthur and is berthed alongside the gunboat Sivouch. The officers of the Lieutenant Burukoff tell several stories. One is that Admiral Togo's report of the fighting was exaggerated and that the Russians have made two cruises in the gulf of Pechili in five days. The Lieutenant Burukoff is one of the torpedo boat destroyers taken from the Chinese at Taku in 1900. The general belief here is that she ran Admiral Togo's blockade and came here with dispatches for the army and for St. Petersburg. Two Cossack officers were on board.

Russian Torpedo Works Burned.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 1.—News of a fire at the torpedo works at Cronstadt has filled this city with the wildest rumors, including one to the effect that the Peterhof palace had been blown up. The damage at Cronstadt was confined to the torpedo mechanism shops, which were almost wholly destroyed, together with twenty Whitehead torpedoes. Five of the torpedoes had war heads attached, and they exploded, which added to the fire and the excitement. A considerable quantity of oil stored in the works was also burned. An alarm was given in time to prevent loss of life and more serious loss of property.

Dr. Jarrecki Assassinated.

DENVER, July 1.—Dr. Seymour T. Jarrecki, a young physician, has been shot and killed at his home in this city, a bullet entering his body near the heart. He was called to the door and assassinated. The murderer escaped. On Dec. 28, 1903, Dr. Jarrecki was beaten almost to death in his office by an unknown assailant.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS.

QUESTIONS OF THE DAY DISCUSSED BY THE PRESS.

Prosecutor English, of Union County, who was recently successful in convicting a dozen or more of the saloon-keepers of that county for keeping disorderly houses, gives credit to the police forces of Elizabeth and Plainfield, the former more particularly, for co-operating with him and giving him assistance without which his efforts might have been futile. In the worst three cases, one of which resulted in a sentence of two years in State Prison for the guilty proprietor, the police were months in collecting evidence. They were foiled in many well-laid plans and it was only by long and zealous and judiciously directed effort that they got the information and the witnesses that made conviction possible. It must be admitted that one of the most difficult pieces of detective work a police officer can undertake is to establish the charge against any hotel proprietor for keeping a disorderly house. The crime is surrounded with darkness and hidden in inaccessible places. The Elizabeth police authorities may have seemed to be dilatory or derelict because of their long watching and apparent inactivity, but the results of their work, as acknowledged by the Union County prosecutor, not only justify their caution, but contribute to their reputation for faithfulness. When city and county authorities work together, the violators of the law are very apt to be brought to justice. Patterson and Jersey City might advantageously make a note of this fact.—Newark Evening News.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was headed by Edgar F. Sheppard. It was the last meeting of the association, which will resume its sessions in the fall.

BRITAIN AND THE PORTE.

Relief of Persecuted Armenians Is Now Assured.

LONDON, July 1.—Great Britain has successfully brought pressure to bear on the porte for the relief of the persecuted Armenians, according to Foreign Secretary Lansdown's statement to the Anglo-Armenian association. He said that Sir Nicholas O'Conor, the British ambassador at Constantinople, in a long interview with the grand vizier Ferid Pasha, had pointed out that the porte would be held responsible should the reports of Kurdish outrages prove true.

The ambassador called the attention of the grand vizier to the design which had been accredited to the Turkish authorities of driving the Armenians from their mountain homes to the plains and urged that orders should be sent to the vali of Bitlis that refugees be allowed to return to their homes and be given protection from the Kurds.

The grand vizier acquiesced in the wishes of Sir Nicholas O'Conor and telegraphed orders to that effect in the presence of the ambassador. The British vice consul at Bitlis was notified of the grand vizier's action and instructed to report its effect.

Lord Lansdowne said that the porte had also granted permission for a British officer to accompany any troops engaged in expeditions against the insurgents.

Gates Ajar For Dowie.

ZION CITY, Ill., July 1.—"Prophet" Dowie is at home again. On the arrival of the train Dowie's carriage, a victoria, trimmed with carnations, ferns and smilax, conveyed the "doctor" and his chief "overseer" at the head of the procession to the arch, the Zion brass band furnishing music. At the arch ten little girls stepped forward, robed in white, with blue badges across their breasts bearing in gold letters the names of ten of the principal countries which Dowie had visited. The children carried large bunches of roses, which they threw over Dowie and his party. The gates of the arch were then unlocked by Dowie's chief "overseer," who returned to Dowie the key which the "doctor" before departing for the antipodes had handed to the "overseer." Although rain began to fall and spoil the effect of the exercises, brief addresses were made by Dowie, his wife and others.

Her Birthday Guests.

A party of little girls were guests of Miss Madeline Howard, who celebrated her birthday this noon by giving a luncheon at the Park Club house. The guests included Miss Louise R. Hooley, Miss Kate Barlow, Miss Dorothy McCutchen, Miss Jeanne Saunders, Miss Eunice Watson, Miss Mary Barlow, Miss Helen George and Miss Helen Beaier.

The traps were in charge of Harry Potter, of this city, and Oy Wilcox, of the Carteret Gun Club.

ATTRACTIONS HERE ON INDEPENDENCE DAY

Horse Racing, Baseball, Golf, Tennis, Shoots, Excursions and a Dance the Events.

TWO FINE BALL GAMES

MEMBERS OF HILLSIDE AND PARK CLUBS TO BE BUSY ON THE LINKS.

Three Events at Plainfield Driving Park — Independent Shooting Club's Contests—Flag Raising in the Afternoon.

The Fourth of July will be celebrated here quite generally and in addition to the part to be taken in the day by the small boy, who will have his usual supply of firecrackers and other explosives, there will be many events to keep the residents at home, if they want to enjoy the day in that way.

Throughout the day there will be a celebration at the home of Col. Albert Perry on Rockview Heights and Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer will be the orator in the afternoon. There will be the usual flag raising. Another event that is sure to attract a large number of persons, will be the horse races at the Plainfield Driving Park. They will begin at 2 o'clock and the programme will be divided into three classes. The entry list is large and some fine horses will start. Stages will convey persons from the trolley to the Park.

On the Maple avenue grounds, the Independent Shooting Club will hold one of its holiday shoots for prizes.

In the way of baseball there will be two big contests. In the morning at 10:30 Alis will meet the Murray Hills and in the afternoon at 4 o'clock the locals will face the Hobokens Both visiting teams have defeased Alis one game and a reverse order is expected. In the morning the clerks from J. A. Smith & Bro., and Neuman Bros.' grocery stores will battle for honors on St. Mary's field, West Fourth street. The Clinton Avenue team will play at East Millstone.

As stated yesterday there will be special events in golf and tennis at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, Park Club, Park Golf Club and Westfield Golf Club. In the afternoon and evening there will be music at the Hillside Club. There will also be a tennis tournament at Roselle, in which several local players will take part.

One of the important celebrations will be at the Park Club in the afternoon and eveping. In the afternoon there will be tennis and tea will be served, while in the evening there will be a fine display of fireworks, followed by a dance in the clubhouse.

For those who wish to escape the noise and din of the day, the New Jersey Central offers one of its well-conducted excursions to Mauch Chunk. These trips are delightful and among the mountains of Pennsylvania one can thoroughly enjoy themselves.

The signal corps attached to Co. K will spend a portion of the afternoon in practice. One point will be Washington Rock, while the other one will be kept a secret, the object being for one detachment to locate the other.

The local drug stores will be closed Monday afternoon from 1 to 6 o'clock.

There will be no books circulated at the Public Library. The reading room will be open from 2 until 6.

A holiday club tournament in men's doubles will be held by the Cedar Brook Tennis Club on the morning of the Fourth. The play will begin at 9 o'clock. Silver cups will be awarded to the winning team.

Manager Johnston, of Alis, announces this lineup for the two games on Monday with Murray Hill and Hoboken: Walton, ss; Quinby, 2b; Cregan, lf; Heckman, 3b; Farmer, c; McGoey, cf; Badgley or Davis, p; Gauven, 1b; Davis or Badgley, rf. Quinby, commencng on Monday, will play second base and captain the team for the season. Monday morning Tyler, of Columbia College, will pitch for Murray Hill and Lindeman will pitch for Hoboken in the afternoon.

The New York Colored Giants will play two games at Westfield on Monday, morning and afternoon. Jimmie Montross has not signed to play with Westfield, as reported. McManus, who was playing in Pennsylvania, has been signed by Denman and will remain through the season.

Miss Mary Griggs, of Somerville, who has been visiting Miss Mae Batchelor, of West Seventh street, has returned home.

DEMAND REMOVAL OF STREET OBSTRUCTION

James Forrestel Claims That O. T. Waring's Big Barn Blocks College Place.

NOTICE TO VACATE

SUIT TO BE BROUGHT UNLESS OFFENDING BUILDING IS TAKEN AWAY.

Papers Are Served on Mr. Waring, the Mayor, Street Commissioner and Common Council—Court's Decision is Depended Upon.

Action to compel O. T. Waring to reopen College place, which he closed to traffic several years ago by the erection of a barn on his property line, there, has been taken by James Forrestel, one of the abutting property owners on the place.

Formal notice that his right to close the thoroughfare is denied, and the reopening of it demanded, has been served on Mr. Waring by Mr. Forrestel, through his lawyer, V. W. Nash, Jr. Notice to the same effect has been served on the Mayor, the Street Commissioner and the Common Council. These last are notified to give them the authority, if they see fit to exercise it, to order the obstructing barn removed. Should neither Mr. Waring nor the city officials take the action demanded by Mr. Forrestel he will bring suit, and contest it through the courts until the question of Mr. Waring's right to block the street has been settled beyond doubt. Mr. Waring erected the offending barn several years ago when the street was little used.

Mr. Forrestel's claim is based on the decision of the courts in the case of the city against J. W. Price in 1878. It seems that T. B. Stillman dedicated the city park site on the map of his land, and that Price ignored this dedication by attempting to close the park tract as Mr. Waring has just closed College place. The courts held that when a tract is designed for public use on a map published by the owner that no individual has any right to close it. On the same map as the park appears, Mr. Forrestel claims, College place is designated, and he holds the court's decision in the Price case makes the erection of the Waring barn clearly illegal.

It is probable that the matter will be discussed at the next Council meeting.

CROWDS AT BAND CONCERT

THIRD IN SERIES OF FREE MUSICAL FEASTS IS ENJOYED BY THE PEOPLE.

Popular musical fancy was again tickled by the LaVere Band at Concert Park last night, when the musicians gave the third concert of the scheduled series. There was a large audience, and enthusiastic applause indicated how much it enjoyed the programme.

The bill was long, but very delightful. Descriptive pieces always popular, were a feature, and the two classical bits were not too heavily burdened with classicity.

L. R. Anderson, the cornet soloist, scored a great hit with his "Aquarilla Polka," the shading and tone effects of which he handled in splendid form.

Somerset Council Elects.

Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., elected the following officers last night: Councillor, F. L. Soper, Jr.; vice councilor, William LaTourette; warden, H. W. VanArsdale; conductor, L. C. R. Dunham; inside sentinel, George Wilson; outside sentinel, E. D. GaNue; assistant recording secretary, Charles Sebring; recording secretary, W. C. Walker; financial secretary, G. B. Allen; treasurer, Jesse M. Scull; trustee, E. D. GaNue; chaplain, P. H. Latourette.

Prize Winning Gardener.

Harry Howes, the gardener on McCready Sykes' Scotch Plains estate, has attracted a lot of attention to his work. The beauty and size of his vegetables and flowers are notable. His agricultural and horticultural display is the envy of his fellow gardeners here.

Will be Judges at Horse Show.

Lewis G. Waring, of West Seventh street, and Robert A. Fairbairn, of Westfield, will be two of the judges at the horse show to be held at New Brunswick, Saturday, July 9, under the auspices of the Raritan Driving Association.

REFUSE HOSE HOUSE TO EDUCATION BOARD

North Plainfield Council Declines to Donate West End's Building for a Kindergarten.

TO SELL THE BUILDING

MAYOR SAYS BOROUGH CAN NOT AFFORD TO GIVE IT AWAY.

Factional Lines Drawn When the Vote is Taken, Mr. Smalley's Ballot Killing the Proposition—VanWinkle Introduces Resolution.

By a party vote, at its monthly meeting last night, the Borough Council quashed the project to use the old West End Hose Company house on Harrison avenue as a kindergarten. The idea of using the house originated with the Board of Education, and at its last meeting the Board appointed Dr. J. H. Cooley a committee of one to ascertain the sentiment of the Council on the matter. Councilman VanWinkle introduced a resolution giving the house to the board, with the idea, he explained, of finding the sentiment of the Council on the subject.

Every member of the administration party promptly spoke against the plan in forcible phrase. Mayor Smalley spoke at some length. A kindergarten in that neighborhood might be advisable, he said, but it was up to the Board of Education if it wants one there. If the majority of the Board asked for it for themselves, he said drily, he might be inclined to grant it to them. There was need of a kindergarten in public affairs as well as in school life. But there was no need to put the borough property to the use expected by the Board. Incoming bills showed the need of money by the borough; let the Board offer to buy the house if it wanted it. Under present conditions, after all that has been done, the Mayor thought that for the Board to ask the borough to supply it with a school house was out of order.

Councilmen Lee, VanArsdale and Arnold declared emphatically that they were opposed to the motion. They maintained that the borough needed the money, and that the house had been already offered for sale on that account. None of the Cits spoke on the resolution, but on roll call they all voted for it. With the three straight party votes against it, the ballot was a tie. Mayor Smalley's vote killed the resolution.

In the course of his argument against the project, the Mayor said he was in hopes that the Council would effect a sale of the property very shortly.

JOSEPH W. REINHART SUES

PLAINFIELDER SEEKS ASSETS OF OLD DOMINION CONSTRUCTION CO.

Joseph W. Reinhart, of Belvidere avenue, has filed a bill in the Court of Chancery, at Trenton, against Thomas Stokes, Dewit Smith and others to get for himself and other stockholders of the Old Dominion Construction Company certain assets which he asserts belong to that company. He asks an accounting and a receiver. The company was organized to obtain the contract to build the Chesapeake and Western Railroad from tidewater in Virginia to the coal fields of West Virginia.

Reinhart charges that by an arrangement with Stokes and Smith he surrendered his stock in the Old Dominion Construction Company for stock in the Chesapeake and Western Security Company, a concern organized to acquire the property of the Chesapeake and Western Company and the Old Dominion Construction Company. He alleges Stokes and Smith have appropriated 4,585 shares of the Security Company's stock, and have bought in the name of the Pocohontas Company 60,000 acres of land along the line of the Chesapeake and Western Railroad and hypothecated the same with the Bowling Green Trust Company of New York. He says the subsidiary companies have been run by dummies.

ITALIANS PLAN GAY TIME

ELABORATE ARRANGEMENTS BEING MADE FOR A BIG CELEBRATION.

Arrangements of the most elaborate kind are being made by the Italians of this city for their celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel on July 18 and 19. Martine Common has been finally secured for the site of the observance, after several hitches had all but compelled the celebrators to seek a location in North Plainfield.

It is declared by those in charge of the celebration that the fireworks display that will bring the second day of the festival to a close will be the most extensive thing of its kind ever witnessed in this vicinity. At least $1,000, they say, will be spent for set pieces and crackers. The display is to be conducted by half a dozen trained men from the Pain works.

Park avenue, from Front street, to Martine Common, will be decorated in festal array. Arches, draped with American and Italian colors, will be erected at every corner. At night torches will illuminate the arches, and beneath the flaring lights the celebrators will march, headed by a big Italian band, said to be the best in New York. The arch at Front street is to be studded with 200 lights forming the words "Maria Santissima del Mont Carmela." Permits necessary for the erection of the arches and the other features of the event have already been secured from the authorities.

The celebration will be more than a neighborhood event. The Italians of New York, who cannot hope to have a celebration of the same character in the city, have taken an active and personal interest in the observance, and great thongs of them will be here to take part. They will join with the local Italians in attendance at a full high mass in a temporary chapel to be erected on the field. An Italian priest from New York will conduct the service. The band will assist at the mass, some of its members acting as a choir.

A stand, with the capacity of 1,000 spectators, will be erected near the scene of the fireworks display. To help defray the expense of the celebration, a small fee will be charged for seats on the structure.

SPLIT HIS HEAD WITH AXE

HOWARD C. DRAKE IS SEVERELY HURT WHILE AT WORK IN WESTFIELD.

Howard C. Drake, of North avenue, cut his head open with an axe while driving stakes with a force of H. C. VanEmburgh's surveyors in Westfield yesterday afternoon. The wound was severe, and he lost enough blood to weaken him considerably.

Drake hit himself by making too long a swing for a downward stroke. He was assisted to a Westfield's doctor's house, where the hurt was dressed, and helped by one of the force, returned to this city. Before going to his home, he had the wound dressed again by Dr. Probasco. He was able to leave the house today, but the loss of blood has left him too weak to return to work.

JERSEYMEN START; CLEVELAND THEIR MAN

David J. Carney Among Those in the Smith Party Enthustic for Sage of Princeton.

SITUATION AT PRESENT

BOB DAVIS AND COL. PRICE ARE OPPOSED TO EX-PRESIDENT.

Hon. Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, a Cleveland Enthusiast—Probable That He Will be Jersey's Choice.

Outspoken sentiment for Grover Cleveland's nomination by the Democratic National Convention, which had been growing steadily throughout the State, was brought into local politics this morning by David J. Carney, one of the prominent members of the Somerset County delegation. Before leaving for St. Louis on the 8:34 train, Mr. Carney announced that he was for Cleveland first, last and all the time, and would work for his nomination without let-up until the final ballot.

Reports from all over the State indicate that Mr. Carney's views coincide with those of a majority of the party men in New Jersey. Cleveland is regarded as the one man to lead the Democratic hosts to victory, and there is little, if any, doubt that his name will be presented to the convention by one of the New Jersey delegates.

Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., has assumed active leadership of the Cleveland forces, and looms as the most prominent supporter of the Princeton sage in the country. He has been working hard to mould the sentiment of the party in this State for Cleveland, and has succeeded in making it a force and a factor in the battle for the nomination.

He has marshalled the Cleveland delegates for a trip to the convention in a body, and Mr. Carney left for St. Louis as his guest, with a large party of other Cleveland men. With that party Former Congressman Alvah Clark, the Somerville leader, Former Senator C. A. Reed's father in-law, goes also. His advocacy of Cleveland was announced by his Republican son-in-law in yesterday's Daily Press.

While the wave of Clevelandism is swelling and sweeping over the State with increasing power, there is still a force that opposes him. Robert Davis is firmly set against the former President, and has swung the delegates that think with him into organization. The Hearstites, while vociferous and noisy enough for a majority force, enter but little into the calculations of New Jersey's action on Cleveland. They are practically nil, and their game will end when Col. Price brings his protesting delegation into the convention to be thrown out.

There is every chance that the New Jersey delegation will fall into line solidly for Cleveland when the ballot is taken at St. Louis.

IN CHARGE OF ST. STEPHEN'S

A. S. PECK, A DEACON IN THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH, IS NOW IN CHARGE.

A. S. Peck, of Trenton, who has deacon's orders in the Episcopal church, has been assigned by Rt. Rev. Dr. John Scarborough, Bishop of New Jersey, to St. Stephen's church, and will be in charge temporarily. Mr. Peck is connected with the House Mission at Trenton and has officiated at St. Stephen's church during the past two weeks.

Mr. Peck is planning to spend Friday, Saturday and Sunday of each week in this city. He is about 30 years old and has made a favorable impression here. St. Stephen's church is not now in such a position financially as to warrant a regularly ordained clergyman being put in charge.

Married at Grace Rectory.

Miss Pauline Maris Jensen, of this city, and Peter Johansen Hoeg, of East Sixth street, were married Thursday night by Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace Episcopal church. The couple, attended by Miss Jennie Jensen, sister of the bride, and Christen Hove went to the home of Dr. Rodman, where the ceremony was performed. The couple will reside on East Sixth street. They are natives of Denmark.

"MAYOR" BILL SMITH RETURNS HOME TODAY

Brings From St. Louis a New Automobile, But No Fire Engine As Promised.

IMPROVING HIS HOME

ELECTRIC HEATING PLANT IS INSTALLED IN HIS HOUSE.

Has Valuable Old-Fashioned Bedstead—His Prize of $50 for the New Market Nine May Be Won.

"Mayor Bill" Smith, of New Market, who, together with his wife and children, has been visiting the St. Louis Exposition and other points of interest in the West, is expected to arrive home this afternoon over the Lehigh Valley. Advance information indicates that both Mr. and Mrs. Smith have had "one of the best times of their lives." Bill has purchased a new automobile of the tourist type, but for some reason or other, the residents of New Market have received no word as to the fire engine which the "Mayor" was to buy for the town.

Before going West the Mayor told the members of the New Market baseball team that he would give them $50 if they would win every game played this season Today's contest between the locals and Dunellen ends the season and as New Market has not lost a contest yet, that fifty depends on this last game.

The home of the Smiths has been undergoing great changes. The old-style heating apparatus has been taken out and in its place has been substituted an up-to-date electric heating plant Other improvements include additions to the house and the dwelling has been painted inside and out. Before going away Mr. Smith purchased a very large old-fashioned bedstead at the Schepflin sale. It was afterward learned that the piece of furniture would not be taken in the house on account of its size. To obviate this the legs of the bedstead were sawed off and the valuable piece of furniture now occupies one of the finest rooms in the house.

It is quite likely that a delegation will be at the railroad station to meet the returning tourists, provided it can be ascertained what time they will arrive.

FUNERAL OF JOHN REILLY

FATHER DUNPHY OFFICIATES AT SERVICE, INTERMENT BEING MADE HERE.

Funeral services over the remains of John W. Reilly, who died Wednesday, were held at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Reilly, at South Plainfield, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A large number of friends and relatives were present at the services, which were conducted by Father Edward Dunphy, pastor of St. John's church, Dunellen.

Floral pieces in great variety were in evidence, some of the handsomest being sent by the classmates of the dead boy. When the body was borne from the house, twelve boys under the direction of P. Kane, of New York, ranged themselves along the walk from the house to the hearse, six on either side, each of them bearing flowes, and the whole number forming a sort of escort to the casket, which was carried by six Sunday-school classmates of the dead boy. Several of the largest floral tributes were taken to St. Mary's cemetery, where interment was made at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Among the speakers will be Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie and Rev. Mr. Rodman. In addition to the addresses, there will be other interesting features.

Excursion to Asbury Park.

The annual excursion of the Crescent Avenue church Sabbath-school and others to Asbury Park takes place on Thursday, July 14.

ROUTINE BUSINESS OF BOROUGH COUNCIL

Several Changes Are Made in the Make-Up of the North Plainfield Fire Department.

THE USUAL REPORTS

POLICE COMMITTEE ORDERED TO SEE BICYCLE ORDINANCE IS OBEYED.

H. A. Woodruff Protests Against Confusion in Numbering Houses—Thirty-One Arrests Are Made in June—Dog Catchers at Work.

Several unimportant matters came up for action at last night's meeting of the North Plainfield Council. William Barry, captain of Hose Co. No. 2, who was recently convicted of sending in a false alarm, was formally dismissed from the department, upon motion by Chairman Lee, of the fire committee. William McCullough was appointed in his place—not, however, to the captaincy—as a call man. The captaincy is left vacant for the present. George Giddes resigned his place as a regular fireman, requesting appointment as a call man. His resignation was accepted, and the requested appointment was made. It is expected that his place in the regular ranks will be filled from among the call men. John Johnson, E. L. Smith and E. B. Bennett were appointed special marshals.

H. A. Woodruff, of 131 Westervelt avenue, appeared before the Council to complain of the way in which his neighbors disregard the new numbering ordinance governing his street. The numbers are greatly confused, and complaints over the jumple have been frequent. Mr. Woodruff said his was the only household on the block numbered rightly, with numerals visible on the door. He said tradesmen bothered him at all times of the night for directions to his neighbors' places. He complained bitterly of the hardship he suffered on that account, and wanted to know if a subscription for the purchase of numbers for those neighbors couldn't be started. The matter was referred to the committee on streets, with directions to stir the property owners up on the subject.

Councilman Arnold said that complaints against habitual violations of the bicycle ordinance had become numerous, and he asked that action be taken to have the regulation enforced. The Mayor instructed the police committee to see that the force stopped the sidewalk and lightless riding.

Through Councilman Lee, Henry DeMott asked that a tax bill for 1903 on a piece of property on Greenbrook road be wiped out. In May, 1903, four months before he became the owner, the property was owned by an old soldier, exempt under the taxation law. Mr. DeMott thinks the tax for that year ought to be quashed, because it was exempted in May. The tax bill amounts to $12. The matter was referred to committee.

For the police committee, Councilman VanArsdale reported thirty-one arrests during June, seventeen suspended sentences, two commitments and ninety-three dollars collected in fines. He filed a report showing that between June 8 and June 25 twenty-two dogs were captured. At fifty cents apiece the borough paid eleven dollars for the work, and took in seven dollars in redemption fees.

Chairman Arnold, of the street committee, reported an expenditure of $364 for general repair work and sprinkling during June, and $463 for stone used in macadamizing. Collector Brown reported a balance of $961; his receipts during the month amounted to $5,448, expenditures, $4,486.

A sidewalk was ordered laid before 27 Somerset place, owned by Miss Mary Gardner.

First as usual, Neuman Bros. are displaying some fine watermelons. They are big, and sweet and juicy—perfect dreams of melons. One does not have to be a cullud brother to feel a reckless desire to bite into those melons. They would tempt a sour-minded recluse. There are other fruit treasures at the Neuman store—sweet flavored berries, plums, peaches, muskmelons, cherries.

Trunks, bags, pocket-books, instrument-cases, tool-kits and in fact anything in leather can be bought for something less than the special bargain stores on the West Side of New York. This claim is made without including the cost of a trip to the metropolis, no small item in many cases. Novelties in the way of cases for special purposes are shown here in all the latest wrinkles. Belts too.

With all of its tremendous amount of floor space, Powlison & Jones' furniture emporium becomes overcrowded at times and the people who take advantage of this condition never have any reason to wish they had bought in a metropolitan department store instead, because the prices which are always satisfactory, are remarkably low during the sales and the quality of the goods is fully up to the high standard maintained by this firm in every particular.

BOERS MAY RISE AGAIN.

Three Leaders Said to Have an Army of 4,000 Men.

YORK, Pa., July 2.—A former officer in the Boer army who is employed in this city as a private instructor of languages named G. H. Van Deventer has received a letter from a Boer friend in German Southwest Africa which says that near the border of German Southwest Africa there are three Boer officers who have never surrendered their arms to the British and who have collected an army of 4,000 Boers, which is daily increasing in number.

These leaders are Generals Vanzyl, Moritz and Van Brummelen. All three lost wives and daughters in the last war and have sworn never to yield. They find aid and provisions for their army in German Southwest Africa and by making raids into the British territory. They hold such a position, it is asserted, that it would cost the British not less than $100,000 to send troops against them.

The people of German Southwest Africa look upon this small Boer army as the nucleus of a great army which will fight the British for the repossession of the Boer territories.

Boer sympathizers in Europe and the United States are being asked for funds to assist the Boers in a new uprising.

Brigand Won at Sheepshead.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The feature at Sheepshead Bay was the handicap at one mile and three furlongs. In a driving finish Brigand won, with Graziallo, the favorite, second and Douro third. There was much crowding on the stretch turn, and after questioning the jockeys the stewards disqualified Graziallo. The official placing was Brigand first, Douro second and Male Hanlon third. Ancestor, in the second race, equaled the world's record of 1:18 3-5 for six and a half furlongs, held by Jane Holly.

Anderson Gained Western Golf Title.

In a sensational finish of the western event at the Kent Country club's links Anderson gained the western title from the holder, Alexander Smith of Nassau, totaled 304 for the seventy-two hole competition and reduced the course record to 73. Smith had to be satisfied with 308 and runner up honors.

McGee and Bluebird.

CHICAGO, July 2.—Fair weather and a fairly good programme livened things up at Hawthorne. For an off day the card was especially attractive, and the result was a decided increase in attendance. McGee and Bluebird were the winning favorites. The other four events went to two second choices and two outsiders.

VARSITY FOR YALE

Great Intercollegiate Regatta at New London.

HARVARD WON FOURS BY ELI'S MISHAP

The Eight Oared Race, the Event of the Meeting, Goes to the Boys in Blue by Seven Lengths.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 2.—Yale has won the annual varsity eight oared boat race from Harvard on the Thames and crowned a year that has been replete with brilliant athletic achievements. She proved, as she has done many times before, her superiority in everything that goes to make a perfect crew—skill with the sweeps, seamanship and physical endurance. Her victory in the varsity race considered with her grand battle in the four oared race, which she lost through an accident when it looked like a walk-over for her, and the win of her freshman eight in a magnificent struggle, makes it fair to say that she completely outclassed her rivals from Massachusetts. No regatta ever held on the Thames course was more worth seeing despite the sweeping triumphs of Yale, and none proved such a cruel disappointment to spectators through the bungling manner in which the events were managed.

In the varsity eights both Yale and Harvard had phenomenally fast and powerful crews, and, while no record was broken or even threatened, the struggle was, as anticipated, that of young giants.

In the four oared race the defeat of Yale was due to the breaking of a lock on the outrigger of Fish's oar. Harvard's hollow victory accordingly was brought into greater contrast through the superb work of her rival. An incident occurred in connection with this race, but its bearing on the outcome is not considered to have been material. Swain, who rowed No. 3 in the Harvard boat, collapsed just as the crew was called out, and John Bowditch, who never had filled that seat, went into the boat. He was not in tip top condition, having suffered a fortnight ago with an attack of the measles.

The official times of the finish of the three events which now constitute the annual competition, including the freshmen, were as follows:

Freshman eights, two miles—Yale, 10:20; Harvard, 10:20½.

Varsity fours, two miles—Harvard, 12:12; Yale, 12:15; winning distance, one and a half lengths.

Varsity eights, four miles—Yale, 21:40½; Harvard, 22:10; winning distance, seven lengths.

The prediction that both varsity crews were of remarkable physical strength was proved true, for both finished in grand condition. Harvard never before had a crew return to quarters after a hard race in such fine shape.

More people saw this year's races from afloat than ever before in all the history of boating on the Thames. The railroad company ran good observation trains up and down both banks of the river, but thousands of patrons got disgusted and threw up their tickets, as it was impossible at times to learn what the prospects were for a race, and the railway men had no warning of the four oared race. To be sure, the elements were against a quick running off of the announced programme, and for this reason as well thousands of people were put to great physical discomfort in their eagerness to see the spectacle and were obliged in many instances to camp out overnight on cots placed in hotel corridors.

George F. Emery, LL. D., Dead.

PORTLAND, Me., July 2.—George F. Emery, LL. D., who until 1881 was managing editor and treasurer of the Boston Post and who for years was prominent in politics as an old time Maine Democrat, has been found dead in his room here. Death was due to heart failure. He was eighty-seven years old. Mr. Emery was a brother-in-law of Vice President Hannibal Hamlin. He was graduated from Bowdoin college at the age of eighteen years, and he was admitted to the Oxford county bar on his twenty-first birthday.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The annual meeting of the New York State Society of the Cincinnati will be held on Tuesday, July 4 next, at the Metropolitan club for general business. As is their custom, after the meeting adjourns the members of the society will lunch together. To this lunch members of the Society of the Cincinnati of other states residing in or near New York have been invited.

EXODUS TO ST. LOUIS

Democratic Politicians Gathering For Convention.

TALK IS OF PARKER AND CLEVELAND

New Yorker's Friends Have Plans to Destroy Tammany Opposition. May Be Stampede For Former President.

ST. LOUIS, July 2.—David B. Hill, William F. Sheehan, Jacob A. Cantor, Eugene D. Wood, P. E. McCabe, Eliot Danforth and other adherents of Chief Judge A. B. Parker while en route for the Democratic national convention are said to have perfected plans for a complete destruction of Tammany's opposition to their candidate. Senator Hill professed to believe that Judge Parker would be nominated on the second ballot if not on the first and that the nomination would be effected on Friday.

It was learned that former Lieutenant Governor Sheehan carries in his pocket four proxies of national committeemen who cannot be present at the meeting scheduled early in the week and that he expects to use them in perfecting the temporary organization in favor of Judge Parker. This will be a great advantage gained, for the seating temporarily of delegates from contesting states favorable to Judge Parker will give them the naming of members of the committee on credentials who will make the permanent vote controlling the delegation. The death of the national committeeman from Nevada, it has been noted, removes a vote against Judge Parker's friends on temporary organiaztion.

There is a general feeling that the Tammany opposition cannot amount to much at St. Louis.

Former Senator Cantor voiced sentiments which the rest of the party approved by nod when he said:

"The fact of the matter is that the rank and file of Tammany is for Parker, and Leader Murphy knows it. In fact, a majority of the leaders are for him."

Asked how the plans of Tammany to oppose Parker would be met, Mr. Cantor said: "We shall accuse them at once of bad faith and shall prove that bad faith to the various delegations. In the first place, they will be asked how they will vote, and they will tell that they have to vote under the unit rule for Parker. We shall point out that in their own resolutions offered at the state convention they indorsed Parker as fine presidential timber, but asked not to be instructed."

And then former Lieutenant Governor Sheehan added, "And as we name all of the members of the various committees we feel that we have very much the upper hand."

Practically the only feature of political interest associated with the Democratic convention is the possibility of an attempt to stampede the convention to former President Cleveland.

The movement in the interest of Mr. Cleveland, so far as it has taken shape, is directed against the candidacy of Judge Parker. So far no headquarters have been established in Cleveland's interest, and no delegates who express a preference for him have arrived, but each train coming in from states east of the Mississippi seemed to bring passengers who regarded the former president as a formidable possibility. This circumstance has led to the conclusion that a systematic campaign had been organized in New York or Washington.

The friends of Judge Parker have met the situation boldly, and apparently are welcoming it. They freely express the opinion that the serious discussion of Mr. Cleveland's name in connection with the presidency will have the effect of driving many delegates to their candidate.

John Sharpe Williams of Mississippi, leader of the minority in the house, will probably be temporary chairman, as there is now little or no doubt that the selection will fall upon Mr. Williams.

The permanent chairmanship will probably go to some northern delegate. Thomas E. Barkworth of Michigan and Patrick A. Collins of Massachusetts are mentioned in that connection.

Upton and Wife Killed by Explosion.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 2.—As the result of injuries sustained in the explosion of a gasoline tank on a pleasure launch at Lake Minnetonka George L. Upton, a society leader and clubman, and his wife are dead and five others, including Llewellyn Christian, father of Mrs. Upton, are painfully burned. Mr. Christian, who is prominent in the flour milling business, was entertaining a party on his launch when from some unknown cause the explosion occurred.

John Jones Met Regulation Fate.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., July 2.—John Jones, the negro assailant of Mrs. Banister, was lynched near the scene of his crime about nightfall. Judge A. W. Fite made a speech in an attempt to restrain the crowd of about 200, but it was useless. The negro's body was riddled with bullets, more than 500 shots being fired.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report That Half Yearly Returns Are Encouraging.

NEW YORK, July 2.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Although the new fiscal year opens with an extended holiday, many manufacturing plants having closed for all of next week, while the exchanges have adjourned from Friday to Tuesday, there is much encouragement in the evidences of returning confidence, and statistics for the past six months indicate that there is no little reason for anticipating better things in the last half of the year. Half yearly returns of insolvencies show that liabilities have steadily decreased, each month recording smaller losses than the one preceding, an evidence that most of the weak spots are eliminated and the evils of inflation largely corrected.

Railway earnings, that in earlier months showed losses of 5 per cent or more in comparison with last year, exhibit an increase of 2.6 per cent for June. Reports from leading branches of trade for the last week testify to a quiet condition, but scarcely more so than is customary at this time of the year, while inquiries in several manufacturing lines promise a better distribution in the near future.

Prospects are still favorable for large returns on the farms despite some loss from storms during the past week. Foreign commerce at this port for the last week shows decreases of $1,213,632 in exports and $505,225 in imports as compared with the same week last year.

The local money market conditions continue easy and associated bank reserves large, but the demand for accommodation in the security market is light. This loss in volume of speculation partly accounts for the decrease of 28.6 per cent in bank exchanges at this city during the past week as compared with last year.

Confidence grows in the iron and steel industry, although as yet there is little support in the shape of increased orders. Bright prospects for a liberal yield of cotton had a natural influence on prices, particularly as the demand from the mills did not expand materially.

The crop year closed with primary receipts about 40,000,000 bushels less than 1903, while the loss in exports was double that quantity. Little of an instructive nature is heard regarding the progress of the corn crop, but the majority of reports are favorable and cotton trading shows no evidence of confidence in higher prices. Receipts of 3,174,069 bushels compare with 4,388,678 bushels last year, and Atlantic coast shipments of 436,729 bushels fall far short of the 965,819 bushels exported in the same week of 1903.

SALVATION ARMY CONGRESS.

General Booth Has Been Offered an Island for Colonization.

LONDON, July 2.—At the Salvation Army congress here last night the audience which greeted General Booth was perhaps the most representative which he has yet addressed.

General Booth said that the social scheme of the Army had proved an emphatic success. After enumerating the official records relating to criminals and paupers, giving startling figures for London alone, he reported that there had been a great increase in the effective work and outlined plans for the prevention of pauperism in England, which, he said, was almost entirely due to the consumption of alcohol. He said that if the government would turn over the care of the paupers to the Salvation Army they would find work and relief for all and save the immense sums of money which were now expended on relief.

In the course of his address General Booth referred to his plans for securing land for industrial centers and stated that he had that morning been offered an island, but that he would not disclose its location. The island, he said, was about 300 square miles and in a climate splendidly suited for the purposes of Salvation Army colonization.

London is giving an especially hearty reception to the American delegation attending the congress.

"We expected to be treated as other delegations when we sailed," said Colonel French of San Francisco. "Now we are treated by the English as at least third cousins. We receive hospitality on every side."

The New York staff band was invited by the London county council to play on the Thames embankment. American airs were rendered to the delight of thousands, who applauded heartily. The members of the band looked extremely picturesque in cowboy costumes, with American colors on the shoulder straps. The stars and stripes waved aloft while the band played. The American delegation, headed by the band, marched during the afternoon from International hall to Exeter hall, not far distant, on the Strand. Large crowds gathered the moment the delegation appeared and followed the column to the hall, cheering along the route.

A memorial service has been held for the late Colonel Richard Evans of Boston, who died two weeks ago. The last words of Evans, which were a message to the Salvation Army, were read, producing a profound impression. Commander Booth Tucker, the head of the American delegation, spoke in behalf of the American branch of the Army. Referring touchingly to the work of his wife and other members of the Army who have died recently, the commander said that the history of their lives must spur others to emulate their example.

A Gigantic Sea Serpent.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Passengers on the French line steamer La Lorraine, which arrived from Havre, declare that they saw a gigantic sea serpent on Sunday, June 26, at 11:20 a. m., in latitude 40.50, longitude 17.06, when about 570 miles from Havre. The morning was fine, they say, and most of the crew and passengers were on deck when the sea serpent appeared on the port quarter about 400 yards away, having just come to the surface, accompanied by what looked like a small waterspout, the water in reality being cast into the air by what they took to be the monster's fins. The serpent, they say, remained some time at the surface, then dived and reappeared at frequent intervals, and at one time fully fifteen yards of water showed between what was evidently the creature's head and an enormous fold of its body, which rose fully three yards above the water.

HOLDS DALIN PASS

General Kuropatkin Forces Japanese to Retreat.

WITHOFT REPORTS SEA FIGHT.

St. Petersburg Says Japs' Report of Sinking of Russian Ships Off Port Arthur Is False—Vladivostok Fleet Safe In Port.

LONDON, July 2.—A Liaoyang dispatch says that General Kuropatkin, with re-enforcements, has personally moved on the Dalin pass, which has been evacuated by the Japanese and reoccupied by the Russians.

At St. Petersburg it is said that the Japanese report of the sinking of several vessels of the Russian squadron and that the killed included Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky and 700 sailors is absolutely untrue.

Emperor Nicholas has received the following dispatch from Viceroy Alexieff:

"A report received from the acting commander of the Port Arthur squadron, Rear Admiral Withoft, states that when the Japanese attacked Port Arthur eight torpedo boats were dispatched to guard the roadstead seven miles out to sea.

"The torpedo boats repulsed the enemy's torpedo boats, which had approached. During this action Commander Ellisseien, Lieutenant Smirnoff and two bluejackets were wounded. All the torpedo boats returned safely.

"Then the Novik, Diana, Askold, Sevastopol, Poltava, Cesarevitch, Pobieda, Peresviet, Retvizan, Bayan and Pallada steamed out into the roadstead in line ahead and anchored. Two floating Japanese mines having been perceived in the roadstead, the squadron remained at anchor.

"Meanwhile several small boats which had been searching for mines discovered and exploded ten on the eastern side of the roadstead. An examination showed that the mines were probably laid during the night by two of the enemy's torpedo boats, which had approached Port Arthur.

"Later the squadron, preceded by a flotilla of mine dredgers, torpedo boats and the Novik, steamed in line ahead toward the open sea, having emerged from the roadstead without mishap. The squadron shaped its course southward, and the dredgers were sent back to Port Arthur, escorted by armed picket boats. Two Japanese scouts with a detachment of torpedo boats were keeping our squadron in sight all the while.

"Twenty miles from shore a Japanese squadron was sighted steaming in division lines ahead, which on drawing closer was found to be composed of one second class and four first class battleships, four armored first class cruisers, seven second class cruisers, five third class cruisers, one scout boat, one steamer and thirty torpedo boats in two divisions.

"As they approached the Japanese were seen to be preparing to place a division of cruisers and torpedo boats between the shore and our squadron in order that during the darkness they might force by persistent torpedo attacks some of our ships to break the formation and engage us with all their ships.

"Taking into consideration the fact that the enemy's entire force was greatly superior to ours and in view also of the large number of Japanese torpedo boats, I decided to return to Port Arthur.

"The squadron reached the roadstead of Port Arthur, where it cast anchor. At the same time our rearmost warships successfully repulsed two Japanese torpedo attacks.

"The enemy continued to make torpedo attacks in the roadstead, but the attacks were always successfully repulsed.

"There were afterward found along the coast near our warships twelve Whitehead torpedoes which had been launched by the enemy at long range, the torpedo boats not being allowed to approach nearer than twelve cable lengths.

"The torpedo boats attacked in groups, and at least two of them were sunk.

"The bodies of a Japanese officer and two sailors have been found upon the beach.

"All our vessels entered port at high tide."

A Liaoyang dispatch says that General Kuropatkin and General Kuroki are moving their troops like men on a chessboard. The Japanese are now twenty miles from Liaoyang. Detachments totaling 1,200 men have been detailed from General Rennenkampff's Cossacks to scout in the defiles and hills, harassing the Japanese and not allowing them any rest day or night. The Japanese artillery is said to be commanded by an American. His tall form is frequently seen with the batteries.

The Russian center is being rapidly pushed northward to a point where Kuropatkin established his base after the battle of Yangfangow. So far as the Russians know Kuroki is steadily pushing onward through all the mountain passes, even toward Mukden. Preparations for a strong defense are now practically complete. The demonstrations made during the last few days against the Russian left flank threaten to completely change the position of the two armies.

Red Cross trains with wounded are continually passing northward.

Admiral Skrydloff has reported to St. Petersburg that the Vladivostok squadron has returned to that port undamaged. The admiral confirms the bombardment of Gensan.

Plainfield, N. J., July 2, 1904.

Monday being the Fourth of July, The Daily Press will not be issued.

According to the Philadelphia Record a sensible observer tells manufacturers that intelligent advertising not only influences the public and creates a demand for their products, but has a decided effect on dealers. The dealer prefers to handle the goods of the manufacturer who makes use of the public prints, and will sacrifice some other advantages in order to do it. It is a mistake for the manufacturer to neglect advertising.

One hundred and twenty-eight years ago next Monday, an immortal document, the Declaration of Independence, was signed. From that act sprang a great government, today the foremost and most liberal on the face of the earth. The anniversary is a holiday throughout all the land. Today prosperity rules the land but the wheels of industry will stop on Monday while the people rejoice and give thanks that they are Americans.

The Trenton State Gazette seems to think that because Roosevelt's name was cheered for fully twenty minutes when he was placed in nomination the Republican convention was not a frost. It neglects to say that the delegates only cheered for forty seconds when the Rough Riders' name was mentioned by the chairman. Enthusiasm was largely an absent quantity at the Chicago convention, but it is a cheap quantity anyhow. The votes are what count and already Strenuous Teddy seems to have cornered the market in that respect.

There is an element in every community that firmly believes that the press has no right to make use of any person's name without his consent and it is often amusing to hear the demands of wrongdoers who wish their names kept out of print. When criticism is passed upon his nefarious acts, he becomes greatly incensed and makes all sorts of foolish threats. As a rule newspapers know just how far they are privileged to criticise a citizen, in his individual or official capacity, and seldom overstep the bounds. If every journal was sued for libel as often as it is threatened, every newspaper in the country would have lots of lawsuits on its hands. From the foundation of the government until the present time the freedom of the press has always been recognised. The editor who construes liberty as license damages the reputation of his paper far more than does a jury hurt his bank account by returning a verdict against his journal. The authority given to pass criticism upon public officials is so general that even the courts can not and do not escape. As Judge Purnell, of North Carolina, said the other day: "While all citizens should entertain due respect for the courts of the land, it does not follow that editors and public speakers are to refrain from legitimate criticism of the acts of any tribunal. Such criticism should be invited by public officials in order that the people may fully understand what is being done by those who are acting as their agents in the administration of the law. Public questions are generally settled in the right way, and the fact that such is the case is due in a large measure to their free and untrammeled discussion by the press of the country." This decision is worthy of reflection. The press has done more to bring about reforms and to punish wrongdoers than any other single agency in the civilized world. It is a police officer that never goes to sleep.

SEEN AND HEARD IN PLAINFIELD'S INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

It is reported in some of the Hunterdon County newspapers that the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company has secured contracts for work which will keep the plant running for six years. Work is expected to start on a new contract about August 1.

A notable event in the history of the New Jersey unions of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners was the convention recently held at Newark at which representatives of the Jersey locals formed a State organization. Out of the eighty unions in the State fifty-one sent delegates. During the convention reports received from different parts of the State showed that the affairs of the brotherhood in New Jersey were in excellent condition. The total membership in the State is about 7,620. According to the officers of the new organization, the purpose of forming it was to bring the New Jersey unions into closer touch; to enable them, through the State body, to adjust matters which may arise from time to time, without the necessity of referring them to the head of the international organization, in Indianapolis, and to gain for the Jersey locals a better representation in the international conventions and, if possible, a representative in the general office.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

There is no prospect of this Fourth of July being anything out of the ordinary in the borough. Nothing special has been planned by any of the local organizations and outside of the efforts of the small boy there will be no excitement of any sort. The ball team will play two games on the Madison avenue grounds, meeting the Kahway F. C. in the morning and the Garwood A. C. in the afternoon. The races at the Irving Park will probably engage the attention of the horse lovers.

An Italian, with an unpronounceable name, was put in the borough lockup yesterday afternoon for a series of offenses. First he drank too much whiskey and then started in to work off the effects. He had gotten as far as starting to enter some houses and clean out the places when his career was checked by Marshal Mohan. He was fined six dollars last evening by Recorder Campbell. The fine was paid by a friend.

Frank Touzeau, who is now located in Arizona, writes that he is having a fine time and is rapidly regaining his health. He is getting to be quite an expert "bronco buster."

Abraham Nelson, Jr., has made arrangements to go to St. Louis the latter part of this month. He will then go to Hot Springs or California to spend the winter.

The ice cream and strawberry festival, which was held in the Presbyterian chapel last evening, was well attended and was productive of many shekels.

An Italian employed at the brickyard is suffering from an extremely bad case of ivy poisoning, so that he is obliged to lay off from work.

The regular monthly meeting of the borough Council will be held Wednesday evening in the town hall, as Monday is a legal holiday.

A large number were present at the opening of the Hotel Nelson, under the regime of the new proprietor, Charles Thorton.

Borough politics are as yet very quiet and will be for some time until definite platforms are decided upon by both parties.

The regular monthly meeting of the fire department was held Thursday evening. Routine business was transacted.

The Board of Education has called a special school meeting for tonight, when the voters will again consider the question of a new school for district number 2. The resolution, which will be voted, has been approved by Attorney General McCarter.

The noisy and glorious Fourth is due on Monday. The Twilight F. C. play the Somerset A. C. team at 9:30 in the morning on the local diamond. Many will spend the day out of town. Altogether the day promises to be as noisy as ever.

The members of the Epworth League held their monthly social last night at the home of Mrs. John Marsh. The pleasant event was one of the most enjoyable affairs the social committee has arranged this year.

One of the prettiest drives through this section is Front street, from Park avenue to Richmond street, the only break in a continuous line of shade trees being the drive over Coles' hill.

FIGHT AT BULL RUN

FALL ARMY MANEUVERS TO OCCUR ON OLD BATTLE GROUND.

OLD SOLDIERS TO ATTEND

Hundreds of Them Will Be Present as Critics for the Regular and National Guard Forces—Other Washington Gossip.

Washington.—Washington, and for that matter the soldiers of the entire country, are taking more than a passing interest in the coming battle maneuvers scheduled to take place on the historic Bull Run battlefield this coming autumn.

For this series of maneuvers troops will be drawn not only from the regular army at the eastern posts, but from the national guard of the eastern and New England states to the number of about 25,000 men, and they will be under the direct command of Maj. Gen. Henry C. Corbin, commanding the department of the east with headquarters at New York. Of this force some 18,000 will be militiamen, and regular army officers, especially those assigned to general staff duty, are anticipating a golden opportunity of studying the soldiers of the guard of the various states. But not only will the officers of the regular service be present in considerable numbers, but the young soldiers will have as critics many hundreds of civil war veterans, many of whom fought over this same ground during that conflict.

One reason for the great interest shown in the maneuvers by the old soldiers is that the problem to be solved by the troops will follow very the movements of Gens. Lee and Pope 40 years ago, with the exceptions that are made necessary by the change in arms and battle formations. The maneuver ground will cover an area of some 50 square miles, and the maneuvers will be the largest ever held in this country.

STONE BRIDGE OVER BULL RUN.

There has been little change in the physical aspect of the old battleground which is now being surveyed and the chief points marked out for the coming conflict.

A sparsely settled community is embraced in the territory covered by the battleground, which is a succession of beautiful valleys, intersected by small streams of water, irrigating farm land. Many crossroads are encountered over the old battlefield, which lead to hills running up the sides of the Blue Ridge mountains.

Bull Run gets its name from a small river in eastern Virginia, which joins the Occoquan, a tributary of the Potomac river, 25 miles southwest of Washington, D. C.

Near it occurred two important battles in the American civil war. The confederates, under the immediate command of Beauregard, about 31,000 in number, defeated the federals, under McDowell, about 28,000 strong, July 21, 1861. The loss of the federals was nearly 3,000; of confederates, 1,752. This battle of Bull Run was called by the confederates the first battle of Manassas.

The confederates under Gen. Lee, about 40,000 all told, defeated about 35,000 federals under Pope, August 29, 1862. The loss of the federals was about 15,000 men; of confederates, 8,400 soldiers. This was called by the confederates the second battle of Manassas. The battle of August 29 is sometimes called the battle of Graveton.

During the first battle of Bull Run Gen. Barton Bee, of the confederate forces, selected a position on a large hill south of the turnpike, known as the Henry House hill. This house received its name from its original owners, and to-day still stands as a monument of two great conflicts.

This hill, on which the old Henry house stands, lies south of the Warrenton turnpike. On the east it slopes down to an affluent of Bull Run and not far from it, known as Young's branch, and on the west it is bounded by the road which runs south from Sudley Springs to Manassa.

In the western corner of this field, a third of a mile from the turnpike, but very close to the Sudley road, stood the Henry house. The confederate officers endeavored to establish a connected line, in a general way, but this was a difficult matter to effect.

It was during this battle of Bull Run that Jackson received the epithet "Stonewall." Probably no chance word was ever uttered on a field of battle which became more famous than when Gen. Bee, referring to Gen. Jackson, used the expression "standing like a [illegible]." The epithet "Stonewall" stuck to Jackson's brigade throughout the war, and it certainly is the name by which its first commander will always be known as one of the most brilliant and formidable of American soldiers.

The Battle of Bull Run has been classed as one of the decisive battles of the late civil war. As the pitched battle—the first trial of strength between the north and south—its inception and issue were pregnant with grave consequences to the future of a struggle in which the two combatants were yet hesitating to engage. It is purely military results; it has been well said that "the cannon of Bull Run echoed henceforth on every battlefield of the war."

The meeting of the national conventions has so far over-shadowed the cabinet changes as to leave the latter almost entirely without comment. Corporations' interests have been far more interested in the successor of Attorney General Knox than in the man who is to be the future head of the department of commerce and labor. These interests would have preferred some man outside of the cabinet, and are said to have presented the names of several big New York lawyers for the position, arguing that New York would be left without representation in the cabinet upon the retirement of Secretary Cortelyou. The president, however, did not look with favor upon the men proposed and will undoubtedly name Secretary Moody for the place in the near future.

Moody is a lawyer of exceptional ability, and one who knows the purposes and policies of the administration. He has announced his desire to retire from the cabinet on several occasions and take up again the practice of law. This he would probably have done had not this opportunity for a change been offered him. As it is he is now given an opportunity to secure a place more to his liking, and because of the amount of litigation ahead and opportunity for active work in the courts which is pleasing to him.

Joseph H. Choate, the amoassador of the United States to Great Britain, was also being talked of, and the president is represented as desiring to have Mr. Choate enter the cabinet in some capacity. Mr. Choate, however, is well pleased with his present position, which suits his tastes and inclinations, and there is every prospect that he will remain in England as long as Mr. Roosevelt is president.

Gov. George H. Carter, of Hawaii, who visited Washington a few days ago, traveled in greater style than is usual with executives of American states. His journey from San Francisco was made in a private car, with all the luxurious appurtenances that goes with such a mode of traveling.

Gov. Carter's luxuries, however, are not charged to the government. He draws a comparatively modest salary of $5,000 a year, which is, however, larger than that paid half the governors of the states in the union. The honor and influence attached to the position is of far more value to him than the salary, as he is a wealthy man, with many financial interests both in the islands and in the states.

The outlying territories have added greatly to the work of the administrative departments of the government. From the departments of war and justice especially they take a vast amount of attention. Every day brings with it some problem for solution. On the same day of Gov. Carter's visit, which among other things was to discuss with the president the availability of men for territorial judges, of which seven new appointments must be made in the near future to fill existing vacancies, Beekman Winthrop, the new governor of Porto Rico, talked with the president about affairs in that island. Winthrop goes to Porto Rico early in July, where he will succeed William H. Hunt, who is to return to become judge of the United States district court of Montana.

ELABORATE GOWNS.

A Creation In Oyster Taffeta—Jeweled Berthas For Evening Dresses.

A silk gown seen recently was of oyster gray taffeta trimmed with Irish point lace, and it had ruches of silk over full frills and a quaint little detachable pelerine of the silk with just one center row of the lace insertion, which was much run through with gray baby ribbon and fastened across with a couple of old silver buttons.

The lace scarf, frilled around with finer lace, makes a dainty stole, especially if embellished with knots of ribbon or chiffon rosettes. In fact, it is the fashion nowadays to embroider and enrich nearly every bit of lace, including the wide collars so much affected.

The deep berthas on evening dresses are not left unadorned either, and some have complete wreaths of roses and foliage or folds of tulle dotted at intervals with clusters of small blossoms.

A dainty trimming for a low necked gown consists of a wide bertha worked in jeweled net, with tiny green cut beads, gold sequins and pink pearls, and this is set into a band of embroidery insertion worked to correspond in tints.

Accordion plaited coats of poplin or etamine are adorned with wide lace collars and are very pretty for afternoon wear.

The picture shows a bride's dress trimmed with a fichu effect of yellow lace. The skirt is accordion plaited.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHIONS OF 1830.

They Still Prevail Both In Gowns and Hats—Summer Coats.

The very long shoulder is still with us and promises to remain. In general it may be said that the 1830 modes still prevail and have become very popular. The mushroom hat goes with this period, but it is by no means becoming. The French sailor, with its crown or wreath of flowers, is seen on all sides, and the prettiest and newest development is to have the flower crown triangular instead of square. The torpedo toque packed closely with shaded flowers is also very smart. Every hat is very much trimmed with flowers, lace and foliage.

Mohair is used a great deal for suits, but it is unpractical because it wrinkles so when it is elaborately plaited, as all skirts must be now in order to be in fashion.

GRENADINE DRESS.

Mohair and alpaca make very smart dust coats and also pretty yachting coats in white trimmed with collar and cuffs of pale blue.

Champagne colored taffeta is being used a great deal for coat and skirt costumes. It is trimmed with touches of deeper brown or white.

Poplin makes an ideal summer gown, particularly in gray or pale blue.

The picture shows a gown of coffee colored grenadine. The applique girdle is well worth noticing. It has two long ends daintily fringed. The hat which accompanies the costume is of black chantilly lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

AUTOMOBILE COSTUMES.

They Are No Longer Hideous, Hats and Gowns Being Dainty.

Automobile dress for town wear has become less hideous, and one occasionally sees very pretty costumes. One of these noticed recently was of Havana brown mohair trimmed with flat frills piped with mauve silk. The dainty bolero of the alpaca had a double cape lined with mauve. The double breasted fronts buttoned up high, but opened to disclose facings of ivory silk and lace. Two blouses went with this—one of tucked mauve batiste inlet with ivory medallions, the other of white wash silk and lace insertions embroidered in mauve and brown silk.

A small hat of brown alpaca was worn with this costume. It had a full crown and a shallow brim covered with bias alpaca and two choux of coq feathers in the same mauve tint.

Another automobile hat seen recently was of brown panne cloth trimmed with a bunch of fruit. Fruit seems to be a favorite trimming for these automobile hats, as it is usually made of india rubber and is therefore quite durable and sheds the dust easily.

The newest thing in shirt waist suits is the foulard of a dull brown shade lightly figured with white spottings. With this is worn a sailor shape of rough straw trimmed with a white sea gull.

The parasol of the season is a work of art. The handles are of tinted wood beautifully carved. Some of these are in black wood, carved to represent grotesque heads of animals. Others are of ivory inset with imitation precious stones. The rage for checked parasols continues unabated, and next to it is the popularity of the changeable parasols made with a plain handle and a hemstitched edge. Embroidered parasols are a fad of the moment and are usually designed to match some gown. All the red and old rose shades are smart and becoming.

IN WOMAN'S REALM.

The Art of Dressing Well on Very Little Consists In Simplicity.

Very few women really have enough to dress on, but the girl who goes around a great deal certainly has a struggle to make both ends meet. If, however, she wears well cut corsets and simple, full blouses and skirts and, above all, is simple in her headgear, she will achieve success where an overdressed woman will fail.

Simplicity is the keynote of good fashion, especially for girls, who would do well to remember that they can wear bright shades which later on would appear very trying.

Real old fashioned blue and white checked gingham is having quite a vogue. A model seen recently had a bolero effect held in place by a wide rose color suede band. This bolero showed a waistcoat of rose lawn edged with narrow valenciennes lace. The skirt of this is gauged around the hips and finished with a simple hemstitched hem and rose colored stitching.

There is no compromise in the skirt of today. It must either clear the ground all around or be shorter even in the back than in the front, or it must lie on the ground all the way around and be excessively full. This last is for dressy occasions alone.

Delaine is a material which can be charmingly treated in two ways. For morning wear the short, full skirt and unlined bodice, worn with a belt of silk or leather, is delightfully cool and smart.

The picture shows a white chiffon waist. The yoke is of all over lace edged with passementerie. The body is heavily shirred.

SPANISH PEGGY

A STORY OF YOUNG ILLINOIS

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

Don Pedro Lorimer, smiling on the plain men and women of New Salem, told them he was traveling through the states to urge everywhere the annexation of Cuba. He described the tropical luxuriance of Cuba, and its relative position to the continent; and some of his hearers learned for the first time that there was such a place. He told how planters were made to suffer in estate by unjust tyranny of a dominating European power. Some like himself had even been driven into exile, with only a remnant of their once large fortunes. So bad was the government that people had starved there in the midst of abundance. He begged to have Cuba admitted into the union. Such a novel plea had never been urged before upon men who were struggling to get a living out of the scarcely upturned sod of a new state.

Some older men smiled at each other, thinking the United States had all she could do at that time to take care of her own territory. But it was flattering to have a rich island, represented by an elegant man of the world dressed in the best clothes which money could buy, appealing to them for protection; and they helped their neighbors stamp vigorous applause every time he rounded one of his glowing periods with—"If Cuba may only be annexed to America!"

Still there was a hard-headed element that held out against the stranger. They would give him fair play, but they would test his arguments.

"Look at Abe Lincoln," one Carolina settler whispered to another during the stir which followed the conclusion. "I'd like to hear what he thinks. He can beat this fellow all hollow making a speech."

"Abe says the fellow looks just like gamblers he saw in New Orleans when he went down with the flatboat."

"I allow," said a third Carolinian, "and I have been watching him close, that this brown gentleman, with his shiny hair and eyes, is a runaway slave putting on a bold face and trying to get through to Canada. Some body-servant that knows how to wear his master's clothes."

"What spite would Shickshack have against a runaway slave?" objected the first man. "And his hair is as straight as that little girl's at the In'ian's cabin. I'd sooner take him for a horsethief. We've had some fine looking horse-thieves in this part of the state."

Mahala Cameron's father, who, on account of building the mill, had claimed and obtained the privilege of naming the town, and had called it New Salem for old Salem where he was born on the Massachusetts coast, put in his word.

"I had an uncle," he said, "that followed the sea, and made voyages to Cuba. It's about such a place as the man describes."

While private opinion thus seesawed, the row of Minter Grayham's pupils on the front benches, roused from drowsiness to keen interest, stood up at the stranger's bidding, and accumulated the worst kind of a case against him. For however they attempted Ompompanoosuck—

"O-w-m, owm; p-o-w-m, powm—'

"A-u-m, aum; p-a-u-m, paum—"

"O-m, om; p-o-m, pom; p-y, py, ompompy—" it was not right; and the audience began to laugh with appreciation of a joke. Martha Bell Clary heard her own brother Redmond shouting with such delight as she struggled hopelessly with Ompompanoosuck, that she turned and made what was called in New Salem "a mouth" at him. Though the lecturer endeared himself greatly to the Grove boys, it was plain he had only put up Minter Grayham's scholars to be made ridiculous before their parents and friends.

"I'd hate to have him for a relation, even if I was as bad off as Peggy Shickshack," whispered Martha Bell to Mahala Cameron.

"So would I," responded Mahala. "I don't believe he has any book to give as a prize. And I don't believe he has any plantation in Cuba, either."

Shickshack's wife came in late, and sat by the schoolhouse door, looking steadily at the speaker. It was the first time the village had ever seen her at any meeting. The women nearest were more occupied in being repelled by her than they were with the annexation of Cuba. It surprised nobody that she should come out to hear Shickshack's enemy. But it surprised some who departed slowly after the dismissal that she had a word or two, and touched hands with the stranger as he passed by her at the door. An unlovely nature had worked so long on features striking for angularity that she carried habitually a malignant look. The boys of New Salem liked to venture on Sally Shickshack's door-step, or climb her garden fence, and have her chase them with gourds of hot water. Though she had been so short a time in the village, it was already known that Antywine La Chance, a former husband's son, had not inherited a fip'ny-bit of his father's property; and as a fip'ny-bit was smaller than the proverbial shilling with which heirs were sometimes cut off, it was plain that Antywine La Chance had been cheated by his step-mother.

Don Pedro Lorimer mounted his horse the following morning, and took the eastward-stretching road which separated north and south beside the Sangamon. He nodded to everybody he saw along the narrow street. His departure was as public as his errand had been, and a not unkindly feeling went with him and would welcome him again. For a man who traveled around at his own expense, without charging a price, to lecture on the annexation of Cuba, must be in earnest; and frontiersmen respected a person in earnest.

Lincoln usually closed his store soon after the village supper-time, in order to recite his daily lesson to Minter Grayham in the cooper-shop. Few customers were so belated as to need anything at the store when candles were lighted. Those who dropped in met to talk and whittle; and since the nightly study blaze had begun to show in the cooper-shop these gossips felt obliged to seek another rendezvous. The law student therefore found himself delayed by Shickshack, who entered with Antywine as he was about to blow out the lights.

"What shall I show you, Shickshack?" said Lincoln. The Indian looked around at a country stock: barrels of New Orleans salt and sugar, and sacks of coffee; a few scant shelves of calico; hoes, rakes and shovels; a grand leghorn bonnet or two, of mighty brim and crown; threads, needles and pins; and all the simple necessities of people on the edge of civilization. He shook his head.

"Me want to talk. Shut the door."

Lincoln closed the door and sat down on the counter, drawing up his knees and encircling them with his arms in a favorite attitude for relaxing chat; motioning his visitors to make use of the same high bench. Shickshack got up and curled his legs under him Indian fashion, but Antywine remained standing by the door. Two candles on a high shelf at the rear cast swaying shadows of the white man and the red man and the crowded objects in the little store.

"I reckon all New Salem is talkin to-night about the man you were going to kill when he came to town."

Shickshack glowered at his young counselor.

"Me wrong to give the war-cry. Me ought to keep still, and stab him in the dark! But when see that man me forget me Christian Indian!"

"The whoop might pass muster better than the stab among Christians," suggested Lincoln.

Shickshack fixed his restless eyes like the eyes of a snapping-turtle on the rugged and sincere face before him.

"Pedro Lorimer is a bad white man. He not one of Don Luis' sons."

"He says he wants Cuba annexed to the United States. Is he a Cuban planter?"

The Sac uttered a contemptuous grunt.

"No! No planter. No Cuba. He is New Orleans man; gambler."

"I reckoned so," said Lincoln.

"Me live in my tribe's country, where the chief Black Hawk has his village. Pedro Lorimer come there and trouble me. If my tribe take my part, all the people who want their land will say, 'These Sacs are dangerous. Drive them out.' So Black Hawk say to me, 'You love white men: go to Belleville.' Me go to Belleville. Think me marry a white woman; she help. An Indian cannot get a very good white woman. But me see the Widow La Chance, and Antywine, her husband's son. Me getting old; and Antywine is young. He can take care of the child when me die. So year ago me marry the Widow La Chance. The first thing she hurt the child. And Antywine"—Shickshack uttered the words deliberately, turning his head toward the figure at the door—"he is nothing but a squaw!"

Antywine opened the door and went out, closing it behind him, and sitting down on the step.

"Pedro Lorimer follow to Belleville, and trouble me there. Me come to New Salem. The moon has not changed four times since me come to New Salem; and he is here to trouble me again!"

"What does he want?" inquired Lincoln.

"He want the child's money."

"Has Peggy money? How much has she?"

The Indian held his hands less than a yard apart; the length of a full-grown rattlesnake.

"A snakeskin full of gold."

"What have you done with it?"

"Me hide it from my white woman and Pedro Lorimer. Sometimes me think she divide it with him, if he could help her get it. All day, all year, she want that money herself. But she take what is Antywine's, and was his father's, and give him nothing."

"You have fed and clothed Peggy by your own labor."

"She is my adopted child. Me send her to white man's school, too. Me give the schoolmaster four dollars."

"You are a mighty good fellow!" said Lincoln. "But Pedro Lorimer is gone; so what troubles you now?"

"He come back. He would steal the child to make me give up her money as ransom. He would take her as far as New Orleans."

"Does he know what she has?"

"No. But he would rob her of the last piece and leave her to starve. He got much that belonged to her people."

"Have you put Peggy's money where he cannot find it?"

"It's in a safe place."

"Has he ever made any attempt to carry her off?"

"Me no let him make attempt. Me watch."

"As a relative, he might prove that he had a right to guardianship if he were a fit person."

"What a white man want he can take from an Indian!"

"No, Shickshack, you stand your ground and fight him. If he troubles you again in this community count on me for all the help I can give. Every decent man in New Salem would take your part."

Shickshack's face relaxed from sternness to satisfaction.

"Such men as you and the young chief Yates and the chief Lorimer make an Indian want to live with white men."

The tavern directly across the street had its windows open to let in the soft spring night air. At intervals a chorus of bullfrogs came faintly across the dark from where the Sangamon, swelling with freshets, rose frothing yeastily toward its brim. As Peggy hopped on her crutch around the tavern she could see a white fog floating over Rock creek in the valley, like fairy linen spread to bleach by starlight. One of Rutledge's deer-hounds loped up from the stable down the slope to bay at her, and recognizing the intruder, drew back at once with a greyhound's sensitive apology.

ideal Location
Dale and Linden Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER, AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.
FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

With the retirement of Herman Long from the management of the Toledo American Association club, there passes from public view one of the greatest players the game has known. At his own request he has been released as his throwing arm has finally gone back on him entirely.

Herman Long.

Long was one of the oldest players in the professional ranks and learned the game on the Chicago prairie. For years he was recognized as probably the leading shortstop in the country. He was a member of the famous Boston infield, which included Tenney at first, Lowe at second and Collins at third. Not only as a fielder was Long among his topnotchers, but also as a sticker, his hitting always being above the .300 mark. His knowledge of "inside" baseball was recognized as equal to the greatest field general in the game and he was known the length and breadth of the baseball world. Long and Lowe perfected the famous "trapped ball" play until the National League was compelled to legislate against it by making a batter out on an infield fly whether it was caught or not, provided first and second bases were occupied, with less than two out. Then these two conspired with McCarthy and Duffy, who were outfielders on that famous team, and they pulled off the "trapped ball", in the outfield, something no other team has ever been able to work successfully. When the American League broke into New York last season Clark Griffith induced Long to quit the Boston National League club to join the Highlanders. He did not stay long with the Gotham team, his decline beginning from that date. When Elberfield was suspended and fined by the Detroit club Griffith negotiated for his services and gave Long in exchange for him. Long stayed with the Tigers last season and this year went to the minors, becoming manager and playing shortstop for the Toledo club until given his unconditional release.

One of the most unique characters of the racing world of to-day is Charlie Hughes, familiarly known as "Trainer Hughes," and who has charge of the racing string of H. M. Ziegler, the Cincinnati turfman. Hughes graduated from the sulky before taking up with the runners, beginning as a driver of trotting horses in the far west, and he marked many fast performers. He first came prominently into public notice on the running turf in the early '90's as trainer of a division of H. Eugene Leigh's then extensive racing string. Leaving Leigh, he next became trainer for Bromley & Co., the company of the firm being A. Featherstone, the now well-known millionaire Chicago turfman. Hughes raced Pearl Song, Buckwa, First Mate, Chant and other cracks for Bromley & Co., and on quitting them joined fortunes with Charles Head Smith, another Chicagoan, of Lieutenant Gibson and Garry Herrman fame. On Smith selling the latter great horse to Capt. S. S. Brown for $20,000 he went out of the racing game for a time and Hughes was engaged by Ziegler, in whose employ he has been constantly since. Hughes has the distinction of having trained two winners of the Kentucky Derby, Chant for Leigh and Lieutenant Gibson for "Board of Trade" Smith. He, however, attained his greatest fame by introducing to metropolitan racegoers the mighty Hermis. Hughes is in the neighborhood of 45 years old. He is remarkable for his easy-going methods in his stable. He always on race days has his horses fit and just how he does it in his easy-going way is a secret many of his fellow trainers would like to know.

Charley Hughes.

The world's hour record in bicycle hour racing is now 54 miles 545 yards, by Tommy Hall, of England. It must be remembered, however, that this journey was made behind a big motor bicycle with a wind shield, so that the performance of Walthour is believed to be more creditable. Walthour's 30 miles in 33:52 3-5 is almost a minute and a half faster than Hall supplied when he made his hour record.

Italy will give the Olympian games in 1908, the committee of which Baron Pierre de Coubertin is the head awarding the meet to Rome at a meeting held at London recently. It will be the fourth Olympian, Athens holding the first, Paris the second, while the third will be contested at St. Louis this summer.

When Lou Dillon starts to beat 1:58½ this season she will pull a sulky weighing just 24 pounds and will carry on all four feet just 16 ounces of shoes. The combined weight of her driver, Sanders, including sulky, harness, boots and shoes, will not aggregate over 180 pounds.

Colonial Girl won the rich $10,000 World's Fair stake at the old fair grounds race track in St. Louis; Hermis was second and Moharib was third.

The University of Chicago track team won the Stevens cup at the Olympic national collegiate championship at St. Louis.

MADE VALUABLE BY INSECTS

Swampy Meadow in Lincolnshire, England, Furnishes Curious Source of Revenue.

It would come as a shock to many an astute city property speculator, who knows the value of town lots to a fraction, to learn that there are scattered about this country, states London Tit-Bits, certain heaths, fields and plantations that are, so far as the mere land goes, worth but a trifle, but that are rendered the source of considerable riches solely through insects.

All entomologists through the length and breadth of the land recognize the fact that some particular and very rare butterfly or moth will recur again and again in due season in one small plantation of a very few acres, and yet will not be found in any other spot for 100 miles round, though a vast fortune were offered for a single specimen. To such a favored spot ardent entomologists will flock from all parts of the kingdom, and will pay a fee to be allowed to hunt for the insect itself or for its caterpillar or chrysalis. In one case a Lincolnshire farmer has realized a small fortune from a dismal swampy meadow surrounded by dikes and small willow trees, for in this field specimens of the gorgeous "Camberwell Beauty" butterfly have been found when they have been almost wholly non-existent elsewhere.

Only lately some acres of sedge were burnt in the district known as Wickham Fen, and every entomologist in the land is mourning the fact, for in this locality insect specimens have been found that were thought to have died out in England. Were it not inadvisable to give the name of the place exactly, the writer could point out one small plantation at the edge of a considerable forest that, solely through the insects found there, brings in to the owner an average of £400 a year. The actual value of the land is only a very few pounds.

One for the Company.

A well-known comedian, celebrated for his eccentricities, boarded a street car the other day and duly paid his fare upon demand. After riding a block or so farther he produced another nickel and tendered the same to the passing conductor.

The honest conductor refused the proffered coin, while the actor vehemently protested his desire to pay his fare.

"You have given me your fare already," argued the man in uniform.

"I know," responded the comedian, "but this is for the company."

Everyone laughed excepting the discomfited conductor, who had omitted to register the first collection.—N. Y. Times.

Smoke as a Conductor.

On the approach of a thunderstorm French peasants often make up a very smoky fire, in the belief that safety from lightning is thus assured. By some this is deemed a superstition, but the custom is based on reason, inasmuch as the smoke acts as a good conductor for carrying away the electricity.

Sebring to Build.

Charles F. Sebring has applied to the borough Council for a permit to erect a frame house on his lot on Grove street near Prospect place, to where he designed to move the old house that caused a rumpus in the borough several months ago. His plans will be inspected during the coming week. According to the design submitted the structure will be a handsome one, of frame construction. It is to cost in the neighborhood of $4,500.

Miss Flynn Hurt.

John Scott, colored, a driver employed by Hackman Henderson, in hurrying to catch the 8:30 train this morning, struck Miss Winifred Flynn and knocked her down, inflicting slight injuries. The accident occurred in passing the trolley stand on Watchung avenue. Scott was arrested by Patrolman Overbaugh and arraigned before Judge Runyon, who fined him $3. The fine was paid.

Realty Change.

Miss Addie Weaver, of Brooklyn, and her uncle, David Weaver, of Manning avenue, have purchased of Mrs. W. H. B. Drake her property on Orchard place, adjoining that of Peter V. Weaver The property will be improved. Neither one of the owners will occupy the residence at present.

Plains Battery Signs.

Jimmie Montross and George Allen, the Scotch Plains battery, and Rutherford Daily, of the Dunellen team, have signed to play with Cox's New Brunswick team. They will make their first appearance on Monday at New Brunswick.

Lucky Sportsmen.

J. A. Staats, Fred Sandford, Dr. P. J. Zeglio together with several other sportsmen, spent yesterday in the vicinity of Dead River, on the mountains. Besides catching a number of fish, the party bagged thirty-five woodcock.

Miss C. T. Hill Resigns.

Miss C. T. Hill, who, during the past four years, has had charge of the Woman's Exchange, has tendered her resignation to take effect on Saturday, July 9. She will be succeeded by Miss Shelton, who has been her assistant.

—R. W. Barnes, of 178 Grove street, North Plainfield, has been granted a permit for the erection of a two story house, which he will have built on West Fifth street, near Prescott place.

WASHINGTON CAPITOL

PROPOSED ADDITIONS WILL ADD GREATLY TO ITS BEAUTY.

An Architectural Marvel Which Has Grown with the Country—Supposedly Completed Several Times —Plans of Walter.

A commission designated by the last session of congress has been investigating proposed additions to the national capitol building at Washington, and will recommend the extension of the east front of the building to conform to plans drawn by Architect Thomas U. Walter way back in 1865.

This will add another to the many additions and extensions the original building, as designed by George Washington, has received. Still, through all of these the harmonious proportions of the great pile have been maintained, the architectural scale followed and the rounded whole will yet be a thing of beauty and inspiration to all who look upon it.

The capitol to-day contains 430 rooms, and with the contemplated addition it will have about 450 rooms. When the extension is completed the whole edifice, including the works of art and fittings which it contains, will have cost very nearly $18,000,000, a sum much greater than the fathers of the republic ever imagined would be necessary for a capitol building.

The corner stone of the original capitol building was laid on September 8, 1793, with a speech by Washington and a grand military procession, followed by a barbecue. The plans of the structure were altogether in the hands of President Washington himself and the site selected was of his own choice.

The federal government came to Washington in the year 1800, and on November 7 the senate and house were called together for the first time in the new building, then incomplete.

Following the partial burning of the building by the British in 1814, President Madison was authorized to borrow $500,000 to restore the structure. This work was finished and the building pronounced complete in November, 1817. Ten years later the building was again "completed," by the addition of a rotunda and dome.

Thomas U. Walter became connected with the structure in 1851 and designed the wings, the construction of which was inaugurated on the Fourth of July of that year. The addition of the wings made a new and larger dome necessary, and this was begun in 1855, and ten years later the building stood "completed" again.

There were many long and heated debates over the additions, which were begun in 1851, and Jefferson Davis prominently participated in the senate. He was in favor of the extensions and a capitol building commensurate with the growth of the country. During one speech he made the significant remark that "if this union stands" the country would need even a greater building than was contemplated.

In the opinion of Mr. Walter, the architect, there still remained necessary enlargements of the center of the structure to match the senate and house wings and maintain the classic proportions of the edifice. Since then many changes have taken place in the interior. The terraces on the west were completed, so that the harmony was maintained, even though the center was not built out. This is now to be accomplished on the east front, according to the plans adopted by the commission, if congress approves, and again the national capital will be considered a completed structure.

Mr. Walter died in 1882, but he had left his plans for capitol extension in detail, and the work of the new construction will be carried out faithfully according to his artistic ideas.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

The prevailing weather conditions during the week ending June 27, 1904, have been most favorable for growth of all vegetation, except in portions of the southern section, where a continued deficiency of rainfall has already shortened the hay crop; all kinds of truck, wheat, rye and oats have greatly improved; the first two are maturing rapidly; harvesting will be quite general during the coming week; some rye has already been cut in places; early potatoes are doing well in all sections; digging has begun in portions of the southern section. Orchard fruit is dropping, and the outlook is not as promising as it was a few weeks ago. Widely scattered showers fell on the 21, 22 and 25, but were generally insufficient. A good soaking rain would be most beneficial to all crops.

The day selected is July 5th, and the program and arrangements for the day are in the hands of William C. Sprague, editor of THE AMERICAN BOY, of Detroit. The program includes athletic contests in the stadium between the boys of the public schools, in which public school teams are entered from Chicago, New York and other cities, and opportunities will be given for individual entries.

BADGLEY'S FINE WORK

PLAINFIELD'S PITCHER COVERS HIMSELF WITH GLORY.

Cregan the Only Man to Cross the Home Plate — Patience, of Kingston, in Great Form —The Scores.

Without doubt the finest exhibition of baseball ever seen here, was played on Crescent Oval Saturday, between Alis and Aeolian, it being the third contest in the series with these clubs. Alis won by a score of 1 to 0, twelve innings. Badgley, who occupied the box for the home team, pitched the game of his life and covered himself with glory. For twelve innings he held the organists down to five hits, striking out ten men. Doescher, of Brooklyn, his opponent, pitched almost as well, striking out eight men and allowing the same number of hits.

The excitement was intense and when the one run was made everybody broke loose. Cregan tallied the run on a single by Heckman, the left fielder having reached first by being hit with the ball. Then Farmer, McGoey and Heckman each followed with singles. The whole Alis team played gilt-edged ball. Patience, of the Kingston, Hudson River League, covered second in good style and O'Gorman, of the Murray Hills, was in right field. The detailed score:

NEARLY BLEW HIS HAND OFF

LEWIS MILLIGAN HELD A GIANT CRACKER WITH SERIOUS RESULTS.

Lewis Milligan, of this city, had his right hand nearly blown to atoms Saturday night at 12 o'clock, in Dunellen. Milligan held on to a large cracker loaded with dynamite and when the explosion took place he had the flesh stripped from the palm of his hand and the inside of the fingers.

His friends took him to Dr. Platt, of Dunellen, who temporarily dressed the wounded member and told them to take Milligan to Muhlenberg Hospital, as it might become necessary to amputate the hand. After passing the remainder of the night under the influence of an opiate, Milligan's hand was examined by Dr. Long on Sunday morning and it is thought it can be saved.

Smith's steady pitching and the support given him at critical times won for Dunellen. W. Nelson and Mack played best for the Y. M. A. A large crowd was in attendance. The lineup:

POUNDED WITH A BALE-STICK

GARFIELD NELSON VICIOUSLY ATTACKED BY HARRISON RANDOLPH.

Garfield Nelson, colored, had his head nearly knocked off his shoulders with a bale-stick, wielded by Harrison Randolph, another colored man, last night. Randolph attacked Nelson with a razor and a knife. These gentle weapons were taken from him by the neighbors and he resorted to the bale-stick, one blow from which put Nelson to sleep. The disturbance was caused by a dispute between the two.

Chief Kiely was attracted by the disturbance and in company with Detective McCarthy, proceeded to the select neighborhood along the mill-race where the trouble took place. They placed Randolph under arrest and called Dr. Lufburrow to attend Nelson's injuries which seemed to have nearly killed him at the time. After working some time over him, Dr. Lufburrow restored Nelson to consciousness. Harrison will probably go to Elizabeth for a forty day stay, although a woman friend of his is endeavoring to raise the $15 fine imposed by Judge Runyon.

BLAZE IN STRAW PACKING.

Small Boys' Celebration Costs Geo. Tobin $285.

Premature celebration of the Fourth by the boys in the neighborhood of Watchung avenue and East Second street caused a blaze in the straw packing of a couple of large crates back of George Tobin's plumbing shop about 2:30 Sunday afternoon. The fire was seen by Starter John Mowen, of the Watchung avenue trolley stand, who immediately reported it to fire headquarters. The chemical engine put a quietus on the conflagration in short order, but the dozen or more water closets, contained in the crates were ruined, entailing a loss estimated by Mr. Tobin at $285. The end of a small frame shed, against which the crates rested, was charred to cinders also.

HOLIDAY'S OFFENDERS IN THE POLICE COURT

Drunkenness and Disorderly Conduct the Charge Against the Majority of Culprits.

THE SENTENCES LIGHT

JOHN MARA PROTESTS TOO LOUDLY AGAINST HIS WIFE'S COOKING.

Mike Donko Pays $5 and Mike Reddington Follows Suit—Morris Sorenson Gets a Suspended Sentence.

John Bishop was arrested by Patrolman Overbaugh yesterday and this morning Judge Runyon adjudged him guilty of being helplessly drunk. He was fined $5.

Michael Reddington was in court this morning to answer a complaint made by George Moore charging him with entering his kitchen at 4:45 this morning and committing a nuisance. He was ordered by Judge Runyon to pay $5 damages to Moore.

Morris Sorenson, helplessly drunk, was gathered in on East Fifth street, by Patrolman Higgins and Driver O'Gorman, with the patrol wagon yesterday but sentence was suspended on him by the Judge this morning as it was his first offense.

Mike Donko, an old offedder, was on the war-path last night on North avenue until Patrolman Kelly took a hand in the game and sat on his man until the patrol wagon arrived. Donko wanted to devour everything in sight but he had cooled down considerably this morning when he was brought before Judge Runyon, who sentenced him to a fine of $5 or twenty days in the county jail. He paid the fine.

On complaint of his wife, John Mara, of Stebbins place, was arrested last night and locked up until this morning, when he appeared before Judge Runyon, who suspended sentence on him. The charge made by his wife was of being drunk and disorderly and announcing to the neighborhood, at the top of his voice, that he was being starved, his wife refusing to cook food for him.

Tommaso Carcone, an Italian, reported to the police at 2:25 this morning, that he had been shot in the back while sleeping in a field near Leland avenue about two hours before. He was sent to Dr. Albert Pittis, who dressed the wound, a very slight one, afterward being examined by Dr. Lufburrow at the request of the police and pronounced a merely superficial injury, no indication of his having been shot being found.

PLAINFIELD HORSES TAKE FIRST MONEY

Woven Wind and Rex Win Two of the Three Events at Driving Park.

BIG CROWD THERE

ONLY ONE MISHAP AND IT OF LITTLE CONSEQUENCE.

Races Start at 2 o'Clock and Drag Along Until 7—Purse in Each Event $200 — The Results.

In two of the three races on the card at the summer meeting of the Plainfield Driving Club at the Driving Park, yesterday afternoon, Plainfield horses took first money, defeating their fields handily in three straight heats. J. W. Johnson's Woven Wind captured the first race, 2:25 trot and 2:28 pace, and Adam C. Blair's Rex won the second race, 2:10 trot and 2:20 pace, the fastest class on the card.

There was some pretty racing, all but one or two of the heats finishing close. A holiday crowd witnessed the sport, the grandstand being crowded, and the "lawn" well filled all the way to the first turn. The programme dragged to a tiresome extent, however, the heats stretching from 2 o'clock until after 7 o'clock. Some of the starts aroused bowls of protest from the grandstand, and one of the drivers who was distanced after a ragged go protested unsuccessfully against his flagging. Still, on the whole, the crowd witnessed good sport.

Eight horses started in the first race. Lady Onward, owned by G. Ditzler, of Elizabeth, took the first two heats in 2:23¼, and looked like a sure winner. She got the worst of the succeeding starts, and were down so that Woven Wind captured first place without much trouble. Lady Onward got second money; Albert L., owned by M. H. Brandon, of this city, took third money, and Nellie Collins, owned by James Smith, Jr., of Newark, took fourth money. Jerry Red, owned by J. H. Green, Jr., and Agnes, owned by Stonewall Jackson, both of this city, were among the starters. Agnes was badly distanced in the first heat.

Rex got first money in the second race by winning the second, third and fourth heats. There were five starters, among them being J. H. Green's Glitters Lad. Rex went his fastest heat in 2:23¼. In rounding the first turn in the fourth heat, Jessie Dine, owned by J. S. Irving, of Westfield, tripped in her hopple and fell. Her driver, Frank Irving, was thrown into the crowd, and the overturned rig crashed into the rear of Glitters Lad's bike, pitching James Phelan, the driver, out. Neither driver was hurt. Glitters Lad kept on down the track at his racing gait, but ran himself down on the homestretch and pulled up without damage. Jessie Dine was cut, but not badly.

Billy Pizarro, owned by J. F. Brown, East View, took second money and Buzz, owned by Moses Hand, of Lyons Farm, took third money. Under the rules, not being the offending horse in the accident, Glitters Lad was awarded fourth money.

Jessie Delmar, owned by James Gregory, of Newark, took first money in the third race, 2:35 trot, by winning the second, fourth and fifth heats. Her fastest heat was 2:24½. Hank, a Bloomfield horse, took second money, and J. H. Green's Fancy Spot captured third money. Lida Mc., owned by Phillip Jenner, of New Market, landed the fourth share. There were six starters.

The purse in each race was $200. J. P. Rogers, of Brooklyn, was the starter, and thee judges were Mayor Smalley, R. A. Fairbairn, of Westfield, and Weston Rose, of Perth Amboy. William L. Smalley, Jr., was clerk of the course.

Sunday-School Graduates.

Miss May Batchelor, Miss Sarah Pauline Denton, Miss Violet Cronce, Miss Helen Robins and Miss May Serrell were graduated on Sunday from the Normal Class at the First Baptist church Sunday-school. J. D. McNabb is the teacher of this class. Each graduate received a diploma for having completed the course They will now teach in the Sunday-school.

FLAG RAISING IN PRIDEVILLE

INCIDENTLY ASSEMBLYMAN SWACKHAMER MAKES A PATRIOTIC SPEECH.

"Gen." Albert Perry conducted an old-fashioned Fourth of July picnic on the lot at the corner of Harrison avenue and Walnut street yesterday. Several hundred people, mainly Gen. Perry's neighbors in Prideville, attended the event.

The main feature of the picnic, which lasted all day, was a flag-raising in the afternoon. Assemblyman Swackhamer delivered a patriotic oration.

A large stand had been erected, and this was decorated with bunting and flags. After the flag raising, Prof. Naylor's band played a concert programme.

WESTFIELD NINE SPLITS EVEN

BADLY HURT BY GUN POWDER

REMARKABLE COOLNESS OF YOUNG MAN WHO SUFFERS SEVERE INJURIES.

With both hands badly burned and cut with glass, both eyes injured, and a good chance for developing a case of lock-jaw, John Cashin, of 550 West Second street, is in the hospital, bandaged and blindfolded as a result of putting a lighted piece of punk too close to a bottle containing cannon powder. The bottle of powder exploded and sent the broken bits of glass in every direction with great force. One of Cashin's thumbs was nearly split from his hand and his face was filled with the burning powder grains. He was remarkably cool and nervy, never making a sound while waiting for the patrol wagon to take him to the hospital, except to ask for a cigarette. He is progressing as favorably as can be expected.

HAPPY RESULTS.

Have Made Many Plainfield Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Plainfield citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Plainfield by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of No. 86 Summit avenue, says: "I suffered at times with a severe pain across the small of my back and in my hips. If I did any lifting or stooping my back became lame and sore, and though I used plasters, they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling very badly when I had my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills. They were so highly recommended for troubles like mine that I got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I felt their good effects in a few days. When I had finished the treatment my back was better and stronger and I had much more energy to attend to household duties."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

AMUSEMENTS.

Malcolm Williams, the leading man of the Fifth Avenue Stock Co., reenters the cast after a month's vacation in the mountains. Mr. Williams had played steadily for almost two years and a half, during which time he had studied more than one hundred roles, and felt the need of rest and recuperation before continuing his work. During his absence S. Miller Kent played a special starring engagement of two weeks, and Wallace Erskine, one of the old favorites, also made a brief reappearance. A number of important dramatic successes have been secured for the use of the Proctor stock companies at the Fifth Avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Theatres, and this promises to be the most prosperous summer season on record.

Not one of all the great array of popular places of amusement in New York holds a more prominent place than does Keith's Union Square Theatre. By theatre goers it is conceded to be one of the most popular of them all, a haven to the weary and sunshine to the downcast. There is a home atmosphere about the place that endears in the estimation of its immense clientele. Keith's holds a warm place in the affection of the out of town visitors to New York, who, when they attend the theatre never fail to drop around to the Union Square. Verily, Keith's is New York's home theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Newhall, left Saturday for Littleton, Mass., where they will spend the summer.

Miss Florence Dickerson, of Madison avenue, left town today for a short stay with Hackettstown friends.

Third. That before constructing said pole line the Northeastern Telephone and Telegraph Company shall obtain the consents of the property owners in front of whose property poles are to be placed or shall take proper legal action to secure the necessary rights of way.

Fourth. That after the completion of said pole line and the stringing of wires thereon, should it become necessary at any time to reconstruct the whole or any part of said pole line substituting new poles for the old poles, said re-construction shall not be undertaken by the Northeastern Telephone and Telegraph Company, its successors or assigns, without first obtaining the consent of the Township Committee for such re-construction.

Fifth. That no trimming shall be done to trees located on the highway without first obtaining the consent of one member of the Township Committee for such trimming in addition to that of the owner of the abutting property, and that before attaching guys to any of said trees, said trees shall be properly boxed or blocked before such guys are attached, first obtaining the consent of the owners of the abutting property.

Sixth. That in case of the cutting down or abandoning of any of said poles by the Northeastern Telephone and Telegraph Company, said poles shall be cut to the level of the road by and at the expense of the Northeastern Telephone and Telegraph Company, its successors or assigns.

Seventh. All expenses of advertising and publishing this ordinance shall be paid by the Northeastern Telephone and Telegraph Company upon presentation of proper bills therefor.

Eighth. This ordinance shall remain in full force and effect for the term of twenty years from the 15th day of July, 1904.

OFFER TO SURRENDER

Tokyo Hears Russia Will Give Up Port Arthur.

PROVIDED TH. GARRISON IS FREED

Rainy Season Stops Japanese Advance, but They Still Hold Dalin Pass—Czar's Army Has Lost So Far Eight Thousand Men.

LONDON, July 5.—Advices from Tokyo say that Russia has, through France, offered to surrender Port Arthur to Japan, together with its ships and arms there, providing the garrison is freed. There is no confirmation of the report.

It is said by military experts at Mukden that with the rainy season at hand the Japanese have lost their opportunity of dealing General Kuropatkin a crushing blow. Neither the world in general nor the Japanese knew how weak the Russian army was in the earlier stage of the war, and practically the Russian army was then nonexistent, but now Kuropatkin has 125,000 men, and re-enforcements are pouring in at the rate of 2,000 per day. Earlier the Japanese could have done anything if they had pressed the campaign with vigor. During the three months' delay in cutting off Port Arthur the Russians rushed in munitions and provisions. When the battle of the Yalu occurred, Kuropatkin had all in readiness to retire to Kirin. The vaunted Japanese secret service seems very defective because it did not discover the situation, and now it is too late, as at the end of the rainy season Kuropatkin will be strong enough to assume the offensive.

The general staff at St. Petersburg has received the following dispatch from Lieutenant General Sacharoff:

"The enemy's advance guard in the Kaichow district has retreated southward and occupied a line nine miles northeast of Senuchen.

"Senuchen is occupied by an infantry detachment.

"According to our information, the enemy has at least 50,000 troops concentrated around Siuyen.

"The Japanese are now occupying their original positions at Dalin pass.

"No movement beyond Dalin pass toward Haicheng is observable."

The Russian losses in the war in killed and wounded so far number 8,000. Many more have been in hospital.

Agents of the admiralty have tested five different types of submarine vessels and, according to apparently reliable information, have purchased the Protector, which is now at Cronstadt, and one Holland boat, now en route. Ten torpedo boats are being built at Riga.

The Russian war office believes that a further advance on Tashichao is impossible in view of the powerful resistance which can be made by the Russians, combined with the great difficulties of transportation over rain sodden roads. Desultory fighting, however, is likely to continue for the possession of the passes, which are particularly valuable to either belligerent for the purpose of obtaining information regarding the other's movements.

The Japanese still hold Dalin pass, while the Russians have captured Oudalin pass. The similarity of names led to the premature report of a Japanese retreat from Dalin pass.

Major General Mistchenko is harassing and driving back the Japanese between Siuyen and Kaichow, already inflicting a loss of about 600 in killed or wounded.

DELEGATES IN WRECK

Wabash St. Louis Limited Strikes Open Switch.

NINETEEN KILLED, SCORES INJURED

Express With Democratic Convention Men, Running at Sixty Miles an Hour, Left Rails and Crashed Into Freight Cars.

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—A pall has been cast over several of the delegations to the convention by the wreck of the St. Louis limited on the Wabash, in which more than nineteen were killed. Several more deaths have been added to the already long list, and in the St. Francis hospital, where many of the injured were taken, are others whose lives hang in the balance.

Until a roster is taken it will not be known just how many lives went out when the train which left Chicago bearing delegates and fair excursionists ran into an open switch while going at a rate of sixty miles an hour. The derailed locomotive shot into a line of thirty box cars standing on an adjacent track.

The tender was found torn to scraps at the top of the pile of debris caused by the smashing of the locomotive into the freight cars. Two passenger coaches jammed together, and every one in them was either killed or seriously hurt. Five cars in all besides the express and baggage car were destroyed so completely that the remains are like so much scrap.

Then came the fire. Hardly had the passengers in the rear coaches realized that the train had been wrecked when a fierce blaze broke out in the heap of cars. The screams of men and women and children caught beneath the heavy iron and piles of splintered wood told the story in an instant to those who were fortunate enough to have escaped.

The rescue work began at once, but little could be done for those pinioned down by tons of debris. In the plain sight of the rescuers many were incinerated. The cries of horror and the shrieks of pain that filled the air were terrifying. In several cases heroic efforts were made to get at those who felt the flames creeping upon them and death staring them in the face. The wrecking crew which had been sent at once to the scene of the wreck did quick and active service, but few were the lives saved by its efforts.

When the chair cars telescoped many of the passengers were hurled a great distance. In several instances men and women thus catapulted from the train were more fortunate than those who fell near by. They were found with limbs broken, their bodies bruised and their flesh torn, but they escaped the wreckage of cars and locomotive. The rescuers were led to these strewn along the tracks by their cries of agony.

At the rear of the train was an observation car and the private car Texas. These did not leave the track, but their occupants were badly shaken up.

Among those injured are William Archibald and George Archibald, Honeoye Falls, N. Y. Both have broken legs. Mrs. Anna Kenyon of Kingston, N. Y., is suffering from a badly bruised leg, and her face is cut. Miss Eliza Townsend, Bridgeport, Conn., sustained slight injuries.

Among those on the wrecked train who escaped injury was J. A. Buggie of Chicago, who has arrived in St. Louis. Mr. Buggie said: "It was much more horrible than one can realize. The first reports published do not begin to describe the terrible scenes. I personally assisted in caring for the bodies of fifteen of those who were already dead or who died later. The work of the citizens of Litchfield and of the uninjured passengers of the wrecked train cannot be too highly complimented. Almost without exception all the passengers who were able went to work with a will and helped rescue and care for those who could not care for themselves.

"Many lost their lives trying to save others, and one poor fellow who had been uninjured in the wreck was killed in trying to rescue some of those in one of the wrecked cars. As he approached the car it toppled over on him, crushing his skull and pinning him to the ground. The flames crept nearer every moment. Nothing could be done for him, and I turned away in horror, unable to bear the sight.

"Too much praise cannot be given the men who pushed away from the burning train a freight car loaded with powder which threatened the lives of those who had escaped the first catastrophe. A number of men loosened the brakes of the car and pushed it away where there was no danger of it catching fire."

Edward T. Clapp, chief clerk in the office of the president of the Wabash Railroad company, said that from all that could be learned the misplaced switch at Litchfield was tampered with by some unknown person.

Monument to Fallen at Cornwall.

CORNWALL, N. Y., July 5.—The soldiers and sailors' monument has been dedicated with appropriate ceremonies in the presence of 3,000 persons. The speakers were Congressman Thomas W. Bradley and Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott of New York. The doner of the ground on which the monument stands is Catherine C. B. Wood.

Land Rushers at Bonesteel.

BONESTEEL, S. D., July 5.—Five hundred excursionists have reached this town on a special train to be in readiness for the opening of the Rosebud reservation this morning. Another train of nine coaches, also an extra, is somewhere east of Bonesteel, but is delayed on account of light motive power.

FOURTH IN LONDON.

Choate and Mahan Addressed the American Society.

LONDON, July 5.—The American society in London celebrated the Fourth of July with the usual banquet last night. Sir Martin Conway proposed the health of President Roosevelt, which was received with enthusiasm.

Lord Kelvin, who met with a tremendously enthusiastic reception, proposed a toast to Ambassador Choate, saying, "When Mr. Choate is with us we feel as if the happy event we are celebrating had never occurred at all."

Ambassador Choate in reply to the toast dwelt on the progress of Anglo-American harmony and said that the Fourth of July had now come to be regarded as a day typical of British as well as of American liberty.

Captain A. T. Mahan, U. S. N., retired, who replied to "The Day We Celebrate," in an eloquent speech dwelt upon the theme of the Fourth of July, which, he said, had ceased to be a purely American event. It was no longer a day of secular thanksgiving for the unity of the two nations as well as forming for Great Britain the true solution of imperial federation.

Many prominent Englishmen and Americans attended the banquet.

FOR CHURCH UNION.

Roosevelt's Letter to the Presbyterian Council at Liverpool.

LIVERPOOL, July 5.—The general council of the International Alliance of Reformed Presbyterians have elected Rev. Dr. James Oswald Dykes, principal professor in the Theological college of the Presbyterian Church of England, as chairman for the next five years.

A cablegram was ordered to be sent to President Roosevelt acknowledging his sympathetic letter, which was read to the council.

"It has been one of my hopes," wrote President Roosevelt in his letter to the council, "to see some day a union of all the reformed bodies in every nation into a single organization, the better to do the great work that lies ready for their hands."

Two hundred and fifty delegates attended lunch in celebration of the Fourth of July, at which the toast of "The United States" was received with enthusiasm. The speakers included the Rev. Dr. McLeod of Scranton, Pa.

Twice Deported, Has Returned.

TELLURIDE, Colo., July 5.—Harry A. Floaten, manager of the People's Supply company's store in this city, who has been twice deported by the citizens' alliance, supported by the military authorities, has returned. He was not molested. "I am going to stay here and defend myself and my rights," he said. "I have had the best legal advice and was told to stand on my constitutional rights as a citizen and not submit to the tyranny and oppression of the citizens' alliance." The only accusation ever brought against Mr. Floaten was that he transacted the financial business of the miners' union.

Three Dead Through Canoe Accident

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 5.—A canoe containing Evelin Bliss, aged fourteen years, and Nellie Kane, aged fifteen years, was caught in the swift current above the falls in the Merrimac river, carried over the falls and capsized. Both girls were drowned, and Seymour J. Leighton, a fireman, later lost his life in attempting to recover the bodies of the girls. The parents of both girls and Leighton's wife have homes in this city.

Sailors' Fourth at Genoa.

GENOA, July 5.—The Fourth of July was celebrated on board the United States cruiser Brooklyn, flagship of the south Atlantic squadron, with much mirth and good will. The cruiser was gay with bunting, and the usual patriotic toasts were drunk. Rear Admiral Chadwick and the officers of the Brooklyn were entertained by the local authorities, headed by General Canzio, son-in-law of the Italian patriot Garibaldi.

General Flores Dead.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, July 5.—General Reinaldo Flores is dead at Lima. He took a prominent part in Ecuadorian politics until 1895, when the Liberal revolution overthrew the Conservatives, and General Flores was exiled to Peru. He resided there till his death. General Flores was a son of General Juan Jose Flores, a former president of Ecuador.

Four Loaded a Cannon.

COLFAX, Ill., July 5.—By the premature explosion of a cannon at Colfax Leo Chapman, Roy Harris, Fred Grending and Ralph Hester were perhaps fatally injured. While they were using a broomstick for a ramrod and were pounding it in with a baseball bat the powder exploded, blowing pieces of the ramrod into the bodies of the four victims.

Both Dead After Quarrel.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.—Martin Ockard, an iron worker of Baltimore, shot and killed Eugenia Hildebrand at her home in this city. He then shot himself dead. The murder and suicide is said to have been the climax to a love affair marked by many quarrels.

Veneer Works Destroyed.

BALTIMORE, July 5.—The Williamson Veneer works, located in Highlandtown, an eastern suburb of this city, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin last night. Mr. Williamson estimates the loss at $50,000.

Choate Celebrates the Fourth.

LONDON, July 5.—Fifteen hundred persons attended Ambassador Choate's Fourth of July reception at the American embassy here.

NORGE SANK ON REEF

Danish-American Liner Meets Disaster Near Grimsby.

OVER 600 FIND DEATH IN THE SEA

One Hundred and Twenty-nine Survivors Brought In In Pitiable Condition—Emigrants Rushed For the Boats and Sank Them.

LONDON, July 5.—Over 600 Danish and Norwegian emigrants bound for New York are believed to have been drowned in the north Atlantic. Out of 765 souls on board the Danish steamer Norge, which left Copenhagen June 22 129 are known to be alive, and for the rest no hope is held out.

The Norge sank suddenly where she struck on the islet of Rockall, whose isolated peak raises itself from a deadly Atlantic reef some 290 miles off the west coast of Scotland.

Instead of there being but twenty-seven survivors from the wreck of the Norge, as was at first supposed, there are 129 saved, with a prospect of still others being brought in later by tramp steamers and fishing boats.

The German steamer Energie brought seventy survivors into Stornaway, and a little later the British steamer Cervona brought in thirty-two more. With the twenty-seven landed at Grimsby by the steam trawler Salvia, that makes 129 out of the 765 aboard the Norge who have survived the disaster.

A fourth boat is said to have got away from the Norge by the survivors. Unless it was wrecked or the occupants are dead there may be another score of the rescued.

Those brought in by the Energie and the Cervona are in the same lamentable condition that marked those landed at Grimsby. They suffered fearful agony, exposed to heavy weather and tremendous seas for days in their open boats and without any food or water. The Cervona picked up her thirty-two Sunday night just west of the Butt of Lewis. They were almost all naked, and there was one dead child in the party. The mother was clasping it to her breast and refused to commit it to the sea. When it was taken away from her she almost went insane.

Many deeds of heroism shine brightly through the pall of the catastrophe. That of Jans Peters Jansen, who has relatives in Brooklyn, is told with admiration by the survivors. He was one of the engineers of the Norge. When the ship struck he learned the extent of the disaster and went below to where his relatives were and told them and those near by to go at once to the upper deck. He accompanied them to the boats and saw them safely on board. He was urged to join them, but said he must return to the engine room and, shouting a farewell, ran to his post of duty, where he died.

Some of the male passengers, without a thought of self, placed women and children in the boats, preferring to remain behind rather than take advantage of their strength.

The mate of the Norge, who left the ship in the boat which arrived here, seeing that it was overcrowded, leaped into the water for the purpose of swimming to a second boat not far away. He had only gone a short distance when, weighted by his clothes, his strength gave out, and he sank.

The crew of the Norge appear to have behaved well after the first panic, when, it is said, the officers were compelled to drive them back from the boats. But there apparently was no discipline, the orders which the captain shouted from the bridge being misinterpreted or unheard. So far as the survivors here remember there was no systematic distribution of the people to the boats, which were not adequately manned. No attempt was made by any of the survivors to save property. There was no time to make preparations.

Johan Johansen, a gray bearded man from Tromso, said:

"When the ship first bumped most of us were below. All rushed to the deck. I had my wife and five children with me. At first none of us was aware of what had happened, and we kept quiet. But in a minute or two we saw the ship was sinking, and then there were shrieks and cries too awful to describe. We had nearly 200 children aboard, and they screamed with terror. Their mothers, too, were frantic, though some of them—calmer than the others—began putting their little ones in the rigging and other elevated positions.

"So far as I could see, the officers of the ship kept quite calm, but the crowd was uncontrollable. Men and women began jumping into the sea, while others ran up and down trying to snatch life belts from those who had them. As soon as the first boat was got out there was a mad rush for her, with the result that she immediately sank. In this way three boats were lost."

The Danish Admiral Richelieu, a director of the United Steamship company, which owned the Norge, said: "The Norge was a good strong ship and had sailed 200 times to the United States without meeting with any accident. The catastrophe was due to the weather and to the strong current. After the disaster I passed Rockall, but it was impossible to see the islet. The best ship in the world might be the victim of a similar fate if during such weather she had to make the course that way."

American Colony Celebrated.

BERLIN, July 5.—The American colony celebrated the Fourth of July with the usual steamboat excursion to the suburb of Grunau, where there were field sports, a display of fireworks, a dinner, a dance and an address by Professor Burt E. Howard of Leland Stanford university, California.

Plainfield, N. J., July 5, 1904.

For a leap in the dark try Parker and Turner—the one speechless and the other unknown.

Another Glorious Fourth has passed and the celebrants are footing up their losses as usual. A "safe and sane" observance of the day would be a welcome innovation.

The only explanation that can be given the renewed friendship between Roosevelt and Payn is that rule of American politics. "Politics make strange bed-fellows."

Patriotic Service.

Patriotic services were held at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday evening. National songs were sung by a choir composed of members of the Junior C. E. Society and a stirring patriotic sermon delivered by the pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn. In the course of his sermon Mr. Finn sounded a warning against the tendency to secularize the Sabbath Day.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

Thefts of brass from the machine shop at the Pond Machine Tool Works, in this city, which have been occurring for some time, led Assistant Superintendent Fred Lynn to have the place watched. Choosing a spot near where a number of large brass bushings were piled, Houston concealed himself in a position to overlook that part of the shop. Frank Snyder, night fireman in the boiler room, is said to have picked up a heavy brass bushing worth about $20. Houston approached Snyder and spoke to him. Snyder dropped the bushing and returned to the boiler room. As he did not dare leave the boilers without attention, Houston could not place Snyder under arrest, so he went to the telephone and called up the police, who responded promptly, but Snyder had taken the alarm and fled, leaving his fires going, the steam having reached an alarming head, which Houston had to check.

An old barn, on North avenue, in the rear of the Chinese laundry, was burned down Sunday morning. Whether it was the work of incendiaries or was accidental, the loss was slight.

The resolution to build a new school house in district number two was passed again by the voters of the township and borough at the school meeting held Saturday night in the assembly room of the school. The resolution, as passed, specifies what particular bonds shall be redeemed each year by the Board of Education. This was the clause objected to by the State Attorney General in the resolution passed at the meeting several weeks ago.

A neighbors' quarrel between the families of Henry Guerrier and Elias Southard was aired in Judge Clark's court Saturday night. Mrs. Guerrier was charged by the Southards with being disorderly. The court imposed a fine of $2 and costs. The second chapter will be read this afternoon, when the Guerrier family will be the complainant against the Southard family on the same charge.

The Twilight F. C. defeated the Somerset A. C. team, of Plainfield, yesterday morning, in a fine exhibition of baseball, the score being 5 to 3. This was the local team's first game of the season. Bryant Johnston and Lyall Mooney was the battery used. Although Manager Frentz has several good pitchers in the team, Johnston will probably do the box work.

Briant Johnston and Lyall Mooney, the former battery for the High School team, played with the Gillette team against Berkely Heights on Saturday afternoon. Johnston pitched a twelve inning contest, losing by the score of 12 to 13.

The morning attendance at the Baptist church on Sunday was unusually large for a summer congregation. This was due to the many visitors who were visiting friends in town.

The local ball fans have fallen in with the Alis rooters. While the game will be missed here, still many will be found every Saturday rooting for Alis at Crescent Oval.

William Hocke climbed the flag pole early on Sunday morning and run the rope through the pulley so that the town flag could be floated to the breeze on the Fourth.

"If all the descendants of our Catholic forefathers had remained true to their faith there would be over 40,000,000 Catholics in the United States today, instead of 15,000,000. There is hardly a Protestant family in the country that has not had one of its ancestors, either on the paternal or the materna' side, a member of the Catholic Church."—Bishop McFaul.

Major Daingerfield at Sheepshead.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Major Daingerfield, at 20 to 1, won the Long Island handicap, one mile and a furlong, at Sheepshead Bay. The Major had to be ridden out to beat the favorite, Highball, by one and a half lengths. Hurst Park was third. Salvatella, who was played for a good thing, went to the front at the lifting of the barrier and made the pace to the stretch, followed by Sweet Alice. In the stretch these two stopped, and Major Daingerfield and Highball challenged, and in a hot drive Major Daingerfield won. Tradition, favorite, won the Vernal stake for two-year-olds, while Foxhunter in the Independence steeplechase scored an easy victory.

Ten Eyck, Jr., Won at Boston.

BOSTON, July 5.—The eighteenth annual championship regatta of the New England Amateur Rowing association was held on the Charles river here, and the events were witnessed from shore by more than 10,000 persons, while myriad small craft swarmed over the stream. James A. Ten Eyck, Jr., of Worcester, a seventeen-year-old brother of Edward H. Ten Eyck, easily won the junior single sculls, winning over William D. Berkeley of the Bradford Boat club by thirty-five lengths. In the intermediate single sculls Henry Bennett of the Springfield Boat club, a schoolboy who is soon to compete at the national regatta at St. Louis, won handily.

McGee Won by a Nose.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Colonial Girl, winner of the World's Fair handicap at St. Louis, was defeated at Hawthorne by McGee and Bad News. McGee finished a nose in front of Bad News after a hard drive through the stretch. Colonial Girl was third and pulled up very tired. Bad News got off in front and led to the stretch, when McGee came up, and the two raced to the wire like a team. Under a masterly ride by Larsen McGee managed to get his nose in front as they passed under the wire.

Coe Broke the Record.

SOMMERVILLE, Mass., July 5.—At the Fourth of July athletic games here Wesley W. Coe of this city, a Yale student, put the sixteen pound shot 48 feet 6 inches, according to the official announcement. This is many inches more than the world's record, but it is probable it will not be accepted by the Amateur Athletic union owing to the conditions under which the meet was held.

Canadian Handicap at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, July 5.—The Canadian Sportsmen's handicap at a mile and a sixteenth went to the Mackenzie stable at Fort Erie, their double entry, War Whoop and Wire In, finishing first and second. Nitor finished first in the steeplechase, but was disqualified for crossing in front of Trent-the-Mere.

Montebank Won at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—A large crowd attended the fair grounds races. Montebank, an outsider, won the Independence handicap by two lengths. He went to the front at the rise of the barrier and remained there to the end.

HOW TO OBTAIN
Summer Boarders!
There is in New York City one daily newspaper which has made tremendous gains in popular favor during the past five years. Its net cash paid circulation is over 100,000 copies daily throughout every section of New York City (including Brooklyn), larger than that of any other recognized resort medium. This newspaper's readers are among the wealthy, and well-to-do, intelligent people—those who can afford and do take extended vacations in the country during the Summer. It carries more resort advertising than any other morning newspaper, so the public naturally look to it for information as to where to go.
An advertisement in its columns is, therefore, exceedingly valuable and sure to produce results. This paper is

FASHION NOTES.

Printed Net Gowns Are Both Simple and Pretty—Yachting Costumes.

There is a great future for the printed net blouse in soft pompadour patterns and floral designs. No supplementary trimming is required, for the reason that the pattern supplies its own adornment, and a lustrous silk lining gives it just the right richness.

Most of the so called wash dresses this summer are not intended ever to see the tub. There is no denying that none of the elaborate waists can with impunity pass through the hands of the laundress, and it is well to recognize this from the first and give them to the dry cleaner.

Modes for yachting are very conservative, and last year's costumes are by no means out of style. Yachting costumes can always be produced at a comparatively small cost, as they are simple, consisting of coat and skirt of linen or flannel and a tailor made blouse. The coat is cut long enough to afford some protection from the winds, and perhaps the smartest thing this summer is the full length linen ulster, semitight fitting and cut strictly on tailor made lines.

An evening gown seen recently had a trimming composed of a couple of choux, one green and the other pink, holding a cluster of lilies and completing a smart color scheme in which these two delicate shades were mingled.

A yachting costume seen recently was of scarlet linen trimmed with white embroidery relieved with touches of black. The coat reached to the knees and was quite plain. The skirt, it is needless to say, cleared the ground. With this was worn a small sailor of stitched red straw, from which hung a red and white veil.

The picture shows a wide picture hat of ecru straw trimmed with a long white feather drooping on the hair in the back. JUDIC CHOLLET.

DAINTY TRIFLES.

Rosettes and Frillings For Summer Gowns—Poke Bonnet Revived.

The poke bonnet is being revived for smart occasions. It goes well with the 1830 styles. One of the prettiest seen recently was of white horsehair braid trimmed with bunches of sweet peas, while strings of soft white ribbon were brought around from the back of the hat and tied directly under the left ear.

A SEQUIN BLOUSE.

The pongee dress, beautifully embroidered and inlet with heavy lace and embroidery, will be perhaps the most popular gown this summer.

The button rosette is becoming a power in the land, and it is the almost invariable accompaniment of the taffeta gown. It usually appears with little ruffles and pinked out frills. In Paris these rosettes are introduced in contrast to the gown, a method which gives them importance in the color scheme. A gray taffeta being made by a leading house on the Rue de la Paix has tiny cerise rosettes, each with a tiny paste button in the center. The bodice was designed bolero fashion, with turned back revers edged with ruchings, but so short that it terminated just under the bust line, where it was replaced by a deep belt of the velvet to match the rosettes. All around the hip were little plaits, and it is worthy of notice that the skirt only lay on the ground a quarter of an inch instead of having a long train.

Automobile coats are made of gold cloth, a material somewhat on the order of pongee, but much heavier. This is cut semitailor fashion, with a belted in effect at the back, and the trimming consists of collar and cuff applications of pale blue, red or black and white, the buttons being gold.

The picture shows a sequin dinner blouse. The waist portion is made of two wide ruffles falling over a wide belt. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SPANISH PEGGY

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

Near the east side of the house stood a log hand-mill, one end being firmly planted in the ground, the other hollowed by burning and scraping. The pestle, hanging from a long pole weighted like a well-sweep, was a knot of hard wood spiked with nails, and had a crossbar handle. In this primitive mortar parched corn could be readily pounded to meal. A deerskin was stretched and fastened snugly over the top to keep grains in when the mill was in use, and litter out when it stood idle. Peggy caught hold of the sweep and lifted herself to a seat on the hand-mill. She could see, through a deep embrasure of logs, the Rutledge family at home. The tavern windows were movable sashes, with the tough oiled paper like transparent skin laid firmly upon them. Part of a tree smouldered crimson without flame in the white clay chimney. Shickshack's wife never allowed more than one candle lighted in his house. Mrs. Rutledge drew tallow tapers out of candle molds and filled a six-branched candelabrum of old English silver. It stood on a table surrounded by the children at their tasks, and the father, reading a paper, brought in the weekly mail. The younger girls were sewing; Ann sat at the flax wheel.

"The Rutledge girls can't say I'm tagging anybody now, because I'm not tagging," breathed Peggy. "But goody! I can watch them through the window!"

The most desirable thing in the world was to be lovely. She looked at Ann Rutledge, to whom hearts were given on sight. An ungraceful movement seemed impossible to Ann. There was no angle in the lines of her tall, supple body. Her deep blue eyes sometimes turned golden in moments of happiness. Unconscious that any outsider watched her, she lifted them and smiled at darkness through the open window. The passes of her hands as she spun and the sweetness of life expressed in her face brought a sob up Peggy's throat.

"I'll never be like her," whispered Peggy. "I'm a peg-legged Spaniard, little for my age, and ugly. I can't spin. I can't sew. Sally says squaw clothes are good enough for me, and Shickshack has to cut them out, and we piece them together as well as we can. He's done it ever since we left his people and have had no Indian women to help us. I can't read like Ann Rutledge does. If I could even knit I could make stockings for Antywine and Shickshack. They are the only men in New Salem that have to keep on wearing neips wrapped around their ankles for stockings."

She set her teeth together so the grating was audible. Something stirred behind her, like one of the hounds creeping near, but she paid no attention to it. A blanket dropped over her head.

Peggy fought it with both hands, hearing the crutch that had laid across her knees roll to the ground. This was the last sound she heard. Screaming in the muffling folds, she felt herself dragged off the hand-mill and carried away.

CHAPTER III.

Ann Rutledge heard through the open window Peggy's muffled cry and struggle, and ran to the door. By starlight it was barely possible to see a shadow fleeing from the hand-mill; but Antywine La Chance, in pursuit of it, passed across the bar of light, a lithe, long-bodied and long-limbed shape, his uncovered blond hair flying back from a face cut like the high-bred features of a French noble. He bounded by the hand-mill and crossed a fence at the foot of the garden.

When Antywine thought he was about to overtake the object down the ravine, a scamper of horse's hoofs sounded through the valley. Peggy's captor had left a horse ready for flight. Instead of making southeastward for the Rock creek bridge and the road to Springfield, he rounded the bluff and the village, and was evidently striking toward Beardstown. The western continuation of New Salem street, stretching across the prairies until it met and curved with bluffs along the Sangamon, was the route to Beardstown, which stood at the junction of the Sangamon with the Illinois.

Light-footed as a deer, scarcely pausing to think, Antywine with inherited instinct turned east toward the river, though it was the direction opposite that in which Peggy was carried. A boat could be found at the mill. The river was high and running swiftly. By taking advantage of the unusual current he might reach the bluff road as soon as a horse floundering across the mud of the prairies would be able to reach it. What he would then do afoot he did not attempt to foresee. There was a small settlement at the mouth of Rock creek called Wolf. Oxen were more plentiful than horses in Wolf, as New Salem; yet Antywine had one passing flash of determination to go there and demand a horse. But breathless with haste, he plunged through naked woods and down the terraced bank of the Sangamon, sliding on dead leaves in his descent, straight to the mill.

The boat was tied above the dam. He pushed out before he thought of the dam, half covered by swelling water and roaring across the width of the Sangamon. Antywine was never more alive than when his feet were planted in a boat. He came of a line of voyageurs who had threaded Canadian rapids time out of mind. Although his later years had been spent in Belleville, off great stream courses, his inborn dexterity was too much a part of him to be forgotten. There was no time for thought. He swooped down the curve poised in the stern of his boat, laughing aloud at the shock, which nearly swamped him. The boat ran without direction, making for partly submerged trees while he bailed with his hands. Antywine stuck out an oar for a rudder, and turned his craft into the racing current. So, baling with one hand and steering with the other, he got under way, and was soon able to sit on the bench, fit the oars into rowlocks, and pull with the racing force which spun him along. Branches and logs menaced his dim course.

The shores were black. Froth spots like white money appeared and disappeared around him with phosphoric swiftness. And underneath rose and fell the bullfrogs' diapason.

Not many miles down was the fork of the Sangamon, where the stream turned toward the Illinois. Beardstown, by prairie and river-bluff route, was nearly 40 miles from New Salem. Frost was out of the ground, and a bottomless trail would delay the most hurried rider. The scalloped bank, ascending and descending in serated cliff and hollow, seeming to swim past Antywine, finally curved away from a wider current; and he made for shore through drift. He drew the boat out, and left it beached above the rising water.

There was no sound abroad in all that void darkness except the Sangamon's low note and the intermittent cry of frogs. He thought of sloughs on the Beardstown road and of hungry wolves infesting the night. Starlight had become lost in thickening mist, and as Antywine pushed on he felt the sting of rain in the face. He tried to distinguish a track which ought to darken the pallid turf near this place, and set out in the direction of Beardstown.

He heard at his left the suction of horse feet in mud. It came nearer, and he braced himself to spring at the bridle, if he had been so fortunate as thus to intercept Peggy's captor. But two horses, instead of one, plunged up from a slough, and swept past him in a tearing race toward Beardstown.

"Shickshack and Sieur Abe," thought Antywine. He shouted after them, but they did not hear him. There was so little travel at that season he felt sure these riders were in pursuit of Peggy, and comforted, he followed lightly on, keeping to the spongy dead grass by the roadside.

The humid forest stretching from the bank of the Sangamon still darkened his way with skeleton trees. He passed an empty cabin which he had seen once before when hunting deer. The rain now began to pelt.

Though he had lived so long among English-speaking people at Belleville that their language had become in a measure his own, Antywine never found himself able to part with buckskins. The hunting shirt was sometimes exchanged for one of linsey, but buckskin breeches, molding his supple limbs down to his moccasins, he always wore, making them himself, as his father had done before him. Indifferent to weather, he stepped on through darkness and was within hand's reach of an unsteady object before he saw it.

BUT TWO HORSES INSTEAD OF ONE. PLUNGED UP FROM A SLOUGH AND SWEPT PAST HIM IN A TEARING RACE TOWARD BEARDSTOWN.

Antywine gave a laughing shout to scare a wolf and followed it by an exclamation. He lifted the toppling figure in his arms and ran back with it to the empty cabin.

Peggy had a blanket around her, but she was wet and cold and seemed partially stunned. The puncheons or split logs which floored the cabin sagged inward as if a sill had rotted at the farther side, and the chimney was a ruin upon its own hearth. Perhaps wolves or wild hogs made this place a lair. Antywine had not his tinder box with him. It was impossible to get a light. The fallen door he dragged aside from its opening and made a seat for Peggy.

"Stay here, sweetheart," spoke Antywine, using an English word which he did not quite understand, but translated in his own mind as "little one."

He made the circuit of the walls, kicking his way in the dark, satisfying himself that no beast housed with them. Then he sat down on the door where he could shelter Peggy from the wind.

"Are you hurt, sweetheart?"

Peggy found her voice with a laugh. "Goody! you've come, Antywine! I was trying to walk without my crutch when you picked me up. I had to hop."

"How you happen where I find you?"

"I don't know. The horse stumbled and fell down, and maybe I was pitched on my head. This blanket was round me so tight that I fought to get my mouth and nose and hands out. It seemed like there were a dozen horses racing, and I thought they would all run over me. But when I got up I was beside the road, and could just hear the mud splashing away off."

"Who is it that steal you?"

"Of course, it must have been that Pedro Lorimer man, though I couldn't see him, and only heard his voice when he spoke to the horse. He threw a blanket over me and made me ride on the horse's neck, and I'm so little and lame I couldn't help myself. Are you cold, Antywine?"

"No," he answered, with a Canadian's indifference. But Peggy gave him a corner of the blanket and bade him draw it around his shoulders, which he did.

The rain beat upon shingles and spouted from the cabin eaves. There was snugness in being housed after so much anxiety and exertion.

"We wait here." The boy laughed quietly to himself. "Shickshack say to Sieur Abe Lincoln, 'Antywine, he is nothing but a squaw.' But I find you, and Shickshack have not."

"Did he call you a squaw?"

"Me, yes; he call me that."

"You are like a woman, Antywine," said Peggy, after considering. "I want you to be like a woman."

"Tonnerre! Why?"

"Because you are like one."

Antywine turned this illogical reason in his mind.

"How can we go home, Antywine?"

"We wait," he replied, "until Shickshack and Sieur Abe come back. They ride the horses you think will run over you, and they not see you in the dark. They chase the man to Beardstown."

"Are you sure?"

"I think so."

Peggy's mind at once turned back to New Salem. "I wonder what Sally will do when we get home."

SHIP'S MARVELOUS ESCAPE.

Atlantic "Greyhound" Crashed Into an Iceberg While Going at Full Speed.

The most remarkable case on record of an iceberg collision is that of the Guion liner Arizona, in 1879. She was then, relates a writer in McClure's, the greyhound of the Atlantic, and the largest ship afloat—5,750 tons—except the Great Eastern. Leaving New York in November for Liverpool, with 509 souls aboard she was coursing across the Banks, with fair weather, but dark, when, near midnight, about 250 miles east of St. John's she rammed a monster ice-island at full speed—18 knots. Terrific was the impact and indescribable the alarm. The passengers, flung from their berths made for the deck as they stood, though some were so injured as to be helpless and the calls of these forward, added to the shrieks of the frenzied mob of half-clad men and women who charged for the boats, made up a pandemonium Wild cries arose that the ship was sinking, for she had settled by the head, and with piteous appeals and despairing exclamations the passengers urged the boats over, that they might escape the death they thought inevitable. But the crew was well in hand, the officers maintained order, and, a hurried examination being made, the forward bulkhead was seen to be safe. The welcome word was passed along that the ship, though sorely stricken, would still float until she could make a harbor. The vast white terror had laid across her course, stretching so far each way that, when descried, it was too late to alter the helm. Its giant shape filled the foreground, towering high above the masts, grim and gaunt and ghastly, immovable as the adamantine buttresses of a frowning seaboard, while the liner lurched and staggered like a wounded thing in agony as her engines slowly drew her back from the rampart against which she had flung herself.

She was head for St. John's at slow speed, so as not to strain the bulkhead too much, and arrived there 36 hours later. That little port—the crippled ship's hospital—has seen many a strange sight come in from the sea, but never a more astounding spectacle than that which she presented the Sunday forenoon she entered there.

Her deck and forepart were cumbered with great fragments of ice, weighing over 200 tons in all, shattered from the berg when she struck, being so wedged into the fractures and gaps as to make it unwise to start them until she was docked. The whole population of St. John's lined the water front to witness her arrival. Her escape was truly marvelous, and the annals of marine adventure may be searched in vain for its equal.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES AND TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

Parker's Friends Claim He Will Be Nominated on Second Ballot.

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—Parker on the second ballot, perhaps on the first. That was the claim of the men who are in charge of the political affairs of the New York candidate.

The Parker opponents have tried to perfect the programme which would prolong the balloting and afford an opportunity to name another candidate, but apparently they have not succeeded.

Many combinations have been suggested, but so far they seem to have proved incapable of being assembled into a shape sufficiently substantial to show the independent and uninstructed delegates how another candidate can be named.

Men who are supposed to hold the balance of power have asked the Parker opponents to say what would be done after Parker had been put out of the race, but they have received no satisfactory answer.

Gorman, Gray and Cleveland have been suggested, but no one is prepared to give assurances that either could receive the nomination. The mention of Cleveland has a tendency in many quarters to evoke enthusiasm.

At an informal meeting of the Missouri delegates it was decided that Senator Cockrell should be placed in nomination before the convention, the nominating speech to be made by Hon. Champ Clark.

The Iowa delegation is instructed for Hearst, but favors McClellan as second choice.

The Cockrell men claim that in addition to Missouri their candidate will secure the Indian Territory vote and also half of the Nebraska vote.

The demand for tickets to the convention is unprecedented. All the tickets will be distributed this evening at 6 o'clock from the office of Charles A. Walsh, the secretary of the national committee.

The subcommittees went into session immediately following the adjournment of the national committee, which will meet again this morning, at which time the subcommittees will report.

There is every indication that Pennsylvania's thirty-six votes in the convention will be cast for Parker on the first ballot.

Parker for president and Tom Taggart of Indianapolis for chairman of the Democratic national committee is a concise statement of the ambition of the Indiana delegation.

A Fool With a Gun.

WALLINGFORD, Conn., July 5.—A most disastrous Fourth of July mishap took place here, and as the result William Goldsboro of New Haven is held on the charge of manslaughter. Goldsboro emptied the contents of one barrel of a shotgun into the breast of his friend, Albert Ten Eyck. Both are colored and were watching a ball game. Goldsboro asked another spectator if he could borrow his gun for a moment; and it is claimed that he was told the shells were not blanks, but were loaded. This Goldsboro said he knew, but after taking the gun he went directly over to where Ten Eyck was standing, aimed it at him and fired. Ten Eyck died soon afterward, the entire charge entering his body below the left shoulder blade. Goldsboro gave himself up and is now held on the charge of manslaughter. He told the police that he thought the shells were blank and that he only wanted to frighten Ten Eyck.

Probing Attempt to Bribe Combes.

PARIS, July 5.—M. Lugrave, the French commissioner to the St. Louis exposition, gave evidence last night before the parliamentary commission which is investigating the alleged attempt to bribe Premier Combes by paying him $400,000 to allow the Carthusian monks to remain at the Grande Chartreuse. Questioned regarding the rumor of his compulsory resignation of the position of commissioner to the St. Louis exposition, M. Lagrave said that he expected to return to St. Louis in the course of the next month.

Princeton Men Drowned.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 5.—Walter Stead and Frank Rule of Princeton and a young man named Rulong of Philadelphia, who was visiting here, were drowned in the Millstone river by the capsizing of their boat. While rowing up the stream the boat got into a treacherous current, which threw it against a rock. The occupants went overboard, and they were caught in a mass of river grass and roots and carried under.

Young Couple Drowned.

EATONTON, Ga., July 5.—William H. Jones, one of Eatonton's most promising young business men, and Miss Myrtle Harper of Hancock county while bathing in the Oconee river, a few miles below Oconee Springs, were drowned.

English Members For St. Louis.

LONDON, July 5.—Eighty members of the house of commons have announced their intention of joining the parliamentary party which will visit the St. Louis exposition in the autumn. It is expected that a number of others will also go.

Steamer Will Have to Be Dug Out.

MONTREAL, July 5.—A dispatch from Sorel says that the Dominion line steamer Vancouver is so deep in the mud that a new channel will have to be dug to float her. This will probably require several weeks' work.

English Baronet Killed by Auto.

LONDON, July 5.—Sir William Henry Rattigan, member of parliament for Northeast Lanarkshire, has been killed in a motor accident near Biggleswade, Bedfordshire. A tire burst, and the car was overturned.

An Insurance Editor Says:

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

George Wiltse, of the New York National League pitching department, has been visiting his sister at Somerville.

Rahway Lost to Westfield.

Westfield defeated Rahway in a fast game Saturday afternoon, despite the presence of Dupee, the New York National barnstormer, in the box against them. The score was 5 to 1.

Red Waller pitched a magnificent game for Westfield, and held the other side down to five hits. Cotter's catching was a feature. Westfield only got four hits off Dupee, but errors aided them in crossing the plate.

Score by innings:

Westfield	1	0	3	0	1	0	0	0	x	5	4	5

Clerks on the Diamond.

The baseball team representing the employes of Smith Bros. defeated the Neuman Brothers' force yesterday morning by a score of 24 to 18. Some pretty plays were made in the course of the game, but a number of expensive errors robbed them of their proper effect. The line-up:

Neuman Bros.—Charles Squires, p; Harry Messler, c; E. Tinsman, 1b; A. Higgins, 2b; S. Perrine, 3b; J. Krieger, ss; W. Friday, lf; Robt. Marcley, cf; R. Lewis, rf.

Smith Bros.—Shearer, 2b; John Bolsterie, ss; Yawger, 3b; Polhemus, c; Mellock, rf; Pilger, lf; J. Love, cf; W. Daly, p; Bennett, 1b. George Voehl umpired the game in good style and Frank N. Marcley acted as scorekeeper.

TENNIS.

Play in the Park Club's mixed doubles tennis tournament was begun Saturday morning, with the following results: Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Weaver defeated Reginald Roome, —— 7-5, 6-2. PREACHED ON EXPANSION

REV. DR. SCHENCK'S ELOQUENT WORDS ON THE NATIONAL GROWTH.

A powerful patriotic sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, yesterday moring, in which he dealt with the growth of the nation and is relation to the closeness of the relations between the people of the nation and their God.

The prosperity of the nation, as indicated by its growth was shown to have been accomplished without invoking the spirt of conquest so common in Europe during the last century and the wonderful development of acquired territory was spoken of as a result of the confidence which our national policy has inspired in the people coming under our sway. These results were noted in the cases of all the absorbed people from the Louisiana and Florida purchases, to the acquisition of the Philippines.

UMPIRE KNOCKS OUT PLAYER

MERRITY AND POOLE IN A MIXUP AND THE LATTER WORSE FOR WEAR.

Athletic umpiring quashed D. Poole, first baseman of the Aeolians, in the opening round of the game on Alis field Saturday afternoon.

Poole didn't like Umpire Merity's decision on third base, when the cear declared Supple out after a try for the three-time bag from first on a likely looking single. Poole made an oration, punctuated with a sassarara or so, and emphasized his remarks with a strenuous effort to push in one or two of Merity's slats.

Merity took up the thread of argument earnestly, and made his remarks felt. He was more than holding his own when the two managers, Chief Kiely, a half a dozen cops, all the rest of the players, and seven delirious fans butted in with slabs of arbitration. Before the dignified umpire and the courtly player could be talked with, the delegation with the soothing syrup had to pry Merity's left arm from around Poole's neck and clamp down his right, which was pumping three-base hits back of Poole's jaw.

The fans howled joyously for Merity and yelped at Poole. But the latter squared himself at the beginning of the next inning by apologising to Merity and Manager Johnston. Later, it was a lovely thing to see Messrs. Merity and Poole do the Alphonse-and-Gaston thing whenever they came within hailing distance.

FEW FIRES ON THE FOURTH

AWNINGS ON NORTH AVENUE ESTABLISHMENTS ABLAZE YESTERDAY.

The fire department boys had their first bout with the foe about 2:30 yesterday morning when Michael Muldowney pulled box 13, having seen the awning on the front of the Belmont restaurant in flames. The apparatus arrived in short order, only to find that the conflagration had yielded to the water thrown on it by the occupants of the hotel.

North avenue was again disturbed by the fire apparatus at 3:30 yesterday afternoon, when Lewis Apgar's awning took fire from a spark from some flying firecracker and was destroyed. No other damage was done, although the awning next door caught fire in one spot, which was quickly extinguished.

CITY FATHERS BALK AT WOODEN PAVEMENT

An Ordinance Providing for Their Use is Adopted by a Vote of Five to Four.

A PROTEST IS MADE

SOME COUNCILMEN PREFER THE INTRODUCTION OF VITRIFIED BRICK.

Street Commissioner Gavett Explains the Durability of the Wood Block—Messrs. Bullock, Daniel, Higham and Lee Object.

Wooden pavement, which is to have a try-out on Watchung avenue, had a narrow squeak from displacement for vitrified brick at the Common Council meeting for July last night. Opposition to the wooden blocks was vigorously pushed on the third reading of the ordinance providing for it, and the measure went through by just one vote, five to four.

Councilmen Bullock, Lee, Higham and Daniel opposed the wood. Mr. Lee started the assault on the wooden blocks by having a letter from the paving engineer's office of Cleveland, O., read. The letter enthusiastically endorsed brick, and gave figures to prove that is was much cheaper than wood. Mr. Lee, Mr. Bullock and Mr. Daniel spoke strongly against the wood, maintaining that it was hard to lay properly and hard to maintain. Mr. Higham said brick looked very much prettier and more permanent.

Mr. Gloak, who introduced the ordinance for the street committee, said he was willing to change it to provide for brick, but thought the street commissioner, who had spoken for wooden pavement, knew what was best. President Tolles also argued that Street Commissioner Gavett, being the expert, knew better than the Council what was best. Councilman Tyler argued on the same lines, urging the body to give the commissioner a chance to carry the experiment through as he thought best. Commissioner Gavett spoke briefly, dwelling chiefly on the fact that he did not wish to be regarded as the advocate of wood as against brick. He thought wood, treated with creosote and resin, was better than brick, but acknowledged that the latter looked prettier and wore well.

On the vote Councilmen Bullock, Daniel, Higham and Lee voted no, Councilmen Gloak, Tyler, Wilson, Murphey and President Tolles voting aye.

TO ST. LOUIS BY WATER

CAPTAIN BUCKELEW AND FRIENDS COVER A DISTANCE OF 1,793 MILES.

Captain C. W. Buckelew, of 126 West Fifth street, has just completed an all-water trip to St. Louis with a party of friends on the steam yacht Cherub, of Perth Amboy.

The yacht started from Perth Amboy on June 1 and berthed at St. Louis on June 26. The total distance traveled was 1,793 miles, the route being as follows:

Perth Amboy to Troy, N. Y., via Hudson River, 175 miles; Troy to Buffalo, via Erie Canal, 352 miles; through Lake Erie, 237 miles; up the Detroit River, 29 miles; through Lake St. Clair, 17 miles; St. Clair River, 40 miles; through Lake Huron, 243 miles; on Lake Michigan to Chicago, 335 miles; Illinois and Michigan Canal and Illinois River, 325 miles; and finally from the mouth of the Illinois down the Mississippi to St. Louis, 50 miles.

Capt. Buckelew writes that it makes a fine trip. After taking in all that the exposition has to offer, the Captain's party will start for home along the same route in about two weeks. The distance that will have been traveled both ways will total up to 3,586 miles.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL EXHIBIT

MANUAL TRAINING WORK OE ST. MARY'S KINDERGARTEN IS PLACED ON VIEW.

A fine display of the work done by the kindergarten department of St. Mary's School was on exhibition at Stafford Hall, Sunday and Monday, for the purpose of illustrating to the parents and friends of the children of the parish, the progress made in the work in the one year's time it has been taught in the school The specimens of work include all branches of the course, from the crude first efforts of the four-year-old who has just entered to the graduating essays of the little one of a year later, in the line of fancy decoration with scissors and paper, or drawing with crayons and water colors. Some of the little ones are quite expert in weaving the straw braid for baskets and also in making the baskets themselves. The characteristic of the work, which strikes one most, is the uniform neatness and workmanlike manner of cutting out the different colored pieces of paper and arranging and pasting them together, symmetrically. The same can be said of the crayon and water color sketches made by the more advanced pupils, a number of these specimens being on view in the hall.

Not the least interesting was the sewing department, with samples of the various stitches, hems, tucks, etc., arranged in a large book. Some of the children become so careful and painstaking that they will take the work from another child and do it themselves just because the owner is careless.

OBJECT TO STREET WIDENING

PROPERTY OWNERS PROTEST TO COUNCIL AGAINST STREET IMPROVEMENT.

Strong protest against the proposed widening of Sycamore street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, was made on behalf of property owners at the public hearing on the project at the meeting of the Common Council last night. In consequence of the objections action on the matter was laid over until the next meeting. In compliance with requests from the protestants, the Council voted to give a further hearing to the objectors at that session.

V. W. Nash appeared for Bateman Thatcher. He maintained that the widening was unnecessary, because the street is as wide as those that intersect it. That it would damage the Thatcher holding to a very material extent and that a number of fine shade trees would be destroyed.

Appearing for his mother-in-law, Mrs. Chapin, who owns one of the properties on the corner of Fifth street, W. H. Brokaw protested on the ground that the proposed widening would ruin her house. He said the proposed improvement would cut off the bay window and put the house squarely on the street line.

John Brower, speaking for his mother, who owns the house on one of the other corners, declared that the advertisement of the hearing had appeared wrongly in one of the issues of the newspaper, giving the date as the fifteenth instead of the fifth. He protested on general grounds but said he had not had time to prepare a full statement or petition on account of that confusing error. On that ground he asked that the hearing be laid over in order to enable him to lay the matter properly before the Council. V. W. Nash also asked that the hearing be adjourned.

Mr. Brower maintained that it was unjust to widen the street between Fourth and Fifth streets and leave the block below untouched. Councilman Gloak argued with him, declaring that the thoroughfare should be widened to Seventh street.

A query by Councilman Bullock brought out the fact that all the properties mentioned by the objectors fronted on Fifth street.

Chairman Gloak, of the streets committee, said that he believed the objections should be considered, and that the committee desired to give them every consideration. It was on his motion that the hearing went over.

Councilman Tyler suggested that all the property owners affected by the proposed widening be personally notified of the hearing, to avoid another misunderstanding and insure action at the next meeting. It is expected that all the objectors will appear at the coming hearing fortified with long protests and strong petitions against the project.

A Boy Arrives.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinton, of 981 West Fourth street, are happy over the arrival of a ten-pound boy.

HIGH SCHOOL BIDS ARE ALL REJECTED

Architect is Instructed by the Board of Education to Revise Plans for New Structure.

THE LIMIT IS $107,000

NINE BIDS ARE SUBMITTED ONLY TO BE TURNED DOWN.

Costs of Grounds, Construction, Architect's Fees, Plumbing, Heating and Electric Wiring Must Not Exceed $125,000.

Because the appropriation of $125,000 was exceeded by the total of the lowest bid for building, plumbing, heating and electric wiring, taken together with the cost of grounds and architect's fees, all bids for the construction of the new High School were thrown out at last night's meeting of the Board of Education, and the architect, Herbert D. Hale, of New York, was instructed to revise the plans in such degree as would best bring them within the limit of the appropriation.

The plans as drawn called for the building complete in one case and with an optional four room addition in the other. It was thought that by this means the cost could be kept below the $107,000 available after the grounds and architect have been settled for at the figure of $18,000. The bids and names of the bidders follow, the alternative price under the heading "with addition" applying in case the structure is to include the four room addition. In each case, the prices bid are for the building itself, without plumbing, heating or electric wiring.

If the lowest bids for the general contract, the plumbing, wiring and the heating were combined it would make the building cost as planned for 500 pupils about $135,000, or, omitting four class rooms, about $125,000.

John Abbott, Plainfield, without addition, $103,979, with addition, $113,612; J. E. & A. L. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., without addition, $104,500, with addition, $117,500; H. A. Week Co., New York, without addition, $108,485; J. H. Parker, New York, without addition, $107,393, with addition, $115,985; Herman Probst, New York, without addition, $110,900, with addition, $124,277; T. H. Power & Sons, Trenton, without addition, $113,000, with addition, $125,000; H. C. Cummings Co., Lynn, Mass., without addition, $114,787, with addition, $133,387; Wheaton & Lumber Co., without addition, $116,850, with addition, $139,820; H. Wales Lines Co., without addition, $112,323, with addition, $123,325.

For electric wiring, the following proposals were received: M. B. Foster, New York, without addition, $3,533, with addition, $247 extra; S. H. Comklin, $3,533; Walker & Keppler, $4,950; Craig & Apgar, Plainfield, $3,950.

Two bids were received for the plumbing, Dennis J. Galbraith, $6,315, and James Tucker & Sons, Boston, $8,320.

The heating proposition called forth one bid, that of Evans, Almivall & Co., $16,000.

L. T. L.'S THREE DAYS' SALE

M. C. DOBBINS' LAWN THE SCENE OF THE LEGION'S ENTERPRISE.

The Loyal Temperance Legion opened a three-days' lemonade and cake sale yesterday afternoon. Mrs. M. C. Dobbins' lawn, on Elmwood place, was the scene of the affair, which started very auspiciously.

The porch and the refreshment tables were prettily decorated with flags and flowers, the lawn and house front looking decidedly en fete. There was a large attendance, and the lemonade and cake went rapidly.

Miss Ethel Vail was in charge of the affair, assisted by Anna Vail, Raymond Mosher, Kathie Gray and Miss Cora Gray. The latter is treasurer of the sale.

The receipts will be turned into the Legion treasury. This afternoon and tomorrow afternoon, if the weather permits, the sale will be continued.

POLICE ON BURGLAR HUNT

THE MISSES BASS BADLY FRIGHTENED REFUSE TO SPEND NIGHT AT HOME.

Three cops and a special officer were called into action by a burglar scare on Second place last night. It was a full fledged scare of the old fashioned kind, with distraught damsels in the leading parts, and the whole neighborhood in the supporting roles.

The scare originated at No. 815. The Misses S. Lena Bass, Imogene B. Bass and Roberta Lee Bass live there. Shortly after 11 o'clock one of them heard a burglarious noise, and within two minutes all of them were certain that they were about to be murdered in cold blood. They lost no time in getting to a second story window to call for the police.

Their cries of distress aroused all the neighbors, and brave men flocked to their aid in soothing numbers. Special Officer Jeremiah Cash arrived a minute or two later, and said he would get the bad man in the house if the women would open the door for him. The Misses Bass shuddered and said they didn't dare leave their room. They were locked in, and they never, never would unlock the door until somebody came in and took the burglar out.

Officer Cash notified police headquarters, and Patrolmen Myers, Mc Keon and Higgins came down to the scene on a run. All four policemen, assisted by men in the big crowd that had gathered, made a thorough search of the premises. They couldn't find the burglar or any trace of him. All the windows and doors were properly fastened, and gave no indication of having been disturbed.

The Misses Bass were finally persuaded to lave their fortress, but they refused to stay in the house. As long as there was any doubt about the whereabouts of the "burglar" they preferred to be elsewhere. Sympathetic women neighbors took them in for the night.

Baby Camp Opens Tomorrow.

The opening of the King's Daughters' Baby Camp takes place tomorrow afternoon, from 3 until 6 o'clock. Hope Chapel Outing Aug. 20.

The Hope chapel excursion committee met last night to further plans for the annual Sunday-school outing to the shore. The excursion will take place August 20.

COMMON COUNCIL'S MINOR TRANSACTIONS

The City National Bank is Awarded the Garbage Crematory Bonds.

MORE ELECTRIC LIGHTS

ORDINANCE FOR ADDITIONAL MACADAMIZING PASSED ON SECOND READING.

Corporation Counsel Marsh Gives Advice Relative to Claim of Jas. Forrestel As to Blocking of College Place—Reports.

The City National Bank, being the only bidder, the Common Council at its meeting last night awarded to it the issue of $2,100 worth of bonds, put out to pay for the purchase of the garbage crematory plant. The bid was for par and interest. These bonds are to be redeemed $700 at a time, at regular intervals.

Corporation Counsel Marsh sent in a statement relative to the notice served on the Council by James Forristel, who asks that O. T. Waring be compelled to remove a barn from College place, on the ground that the street was dedicated to public use by a former owner and that Waring, on that account, has no legal right to obstruct the thoroughfare. Mr. Marsh informed the Council that if the street was dedicated by a former owner the body had a right to accept it at any time and eject obstructionist property owners; that there was no statute of limitations to such a dedication. It was not under necessity to accept the street, however, if, in its opinion, the public need was not conserved by such action; that it was entirely within its own province to say that it was a street or that it was not. The communication was tabled.

Additional electric lights were ordered as follows: Two on North avenue, between Frederick street and Terrill road; one on Terrill road at Columbia avenue; two on East Sixth street, between Scott avenue and Berckman street; one on Denmark road at Berkeley avenue. A petition for three more lights on Clinton avenue, between Fourth and Seventh street, was received. A petition for the macadamizing of Berkeley avenue, from Belvidere avenue to Park terrace, and Denmark road, from Belvidere avenue to Berkeley avenue, signed by the Plainfield Land and Building Company and others, was received and referred to the street committee.

An ordinance, introduced by Mr. Tolles, providing for the following macadamizing work, was passed on its second reading: Monroe avenue, from South Second street to West Seventh street; Spooner avenue, from West Third street to West Eighth street; Lee place, from South Second street to West Seventh street; Carlton avenue, from Putnam avenue to East Seventh street; Kensington avenue, from Watchung avenue to East Seventh street; Randolph road, from Plainfield avenue to Cedar brook; Norwood avenue, from West Front street to West Seventh street; Berkeley avenue, from Belvidere avenue to Park terrace; Denmark road, from Belvidere avenue to the proposed macadamizing of Berkeley avenue.

City Judge Runyon reported that during the past six months there have been 122 arrests; 28 fines; 86 suspensions of sentence; two dismissed complaints; $137 was collected in fines. Police officers expended $36 80, leaving a balance of $98 in the court strong box.

$3,000 was transferred from the general fund to the fire department and $300 was transferred from the general fund to the poor fund. $30 was appropriated for the maintenance and repair of the town clock for a year.

The tax ordinance, for the collection of school taxes, was passed on its third reading. Councilman Daniel reported that the $60,000 worth of school bonds had actually been issued and the money was in the hands of the committee.

Building Inspector Doane reported that 19 permits had been issued during June.

Installation of Lodge Officers.

The newly elected officers of Freedom Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle, chosen last Tuesday, were formally installed last night. Deputy Grand Chief Kenny was the installing officer. Following the installation, an informal sociable was held. The entertainment committee passed refreshments and cigars.

SCHOOL DIRECTORS MEET

MUCH ROUTINE WORK IS ACCOMPLISHED BY BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Board of Education met last night at Stillman High School, all members being present except L. N. Lovell. The routine business before the Board included the tax report, in which the collector stated the amount collected for school taxes during the month, to be $645.53. The custodian of school moneys announced the year's receipts to be $71,452.44 and the expenditures the same. Superintendent Maxson turned over something in excess of $100 collected as fines at the library and suggested that the Stillman and Irving School library accounts, which have been overdrawn about $40 each, be made up from that sum.

The question of teachers' salaries came up and was referred to the teachers' committee for consideration.

All the janitors of the school buildings were reappointed at the same salaries. Drs. T. H. Tomlinson and A. F. VanHorn, were reappointed medical inspectors for the Board.

The finance committee was empowered to borrow $4,000 to meet current obligations, in anticipation of taxes which come to the schools next fall.

The request of the trustees of the Seventh-Day Baptist church for payment of interest on purchase money of the new High School lot was committed to the clerk with power. The Board contracted to pay for the lot August 1, 1903, but were unable to do so because the school law was declared unconstitutional. Meanwhile the trustees had purchased lots at Hillside and expended a good deal of money in removing the bodies from the old grounds, hence they ask for four per cent. interest on the deferred payment.

The premises in question was what was known as the Raritan Landing property on the outskirts of New Brunswick. William Newcorn, of this city, represented Mr. Boice.

Pierce, of Scranton, Pa., an uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. W. W. Casselberry, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church. The maid of honor was Miss Marion Duncan, a sister of the groom, and the flower girls were Miss Marion Hamilton, of Westfield, and Miss Beatrice Polhemus, of Newark. The best man was Spencer Smith, of Tenafly, and the ushers were Walter Bodine, a brother of the bride, and W. J. Hamilton, of Westfield. The bride was given away by her father. PLAINFIELD SETTLES CLAIM

COMMON COUNCIL EFFECTS COMPROMISE FOR ALLEGED INFRINGMENT.

Compromise with the Cameron Septic Tank Company, of Chicago, which is suing the city for alleged infringement of its patents in the operation of the septic tank on Rock avenue, was voted at the meeting of the Common Council last night. The city agrees to pay the Cameron Company $4,000, getting in return a seven-years' license, and a guarantee of protection from any other suit for damages, particularly from the American Sewage Disposal Company, of Boston, which has been trying to get money from the city on a similar claim.

Councilmen Bullock and Murphy opposed the resolution for compromise on the ground that it acknowledged the validity of the Cameron Company's patents, which had not been proved in court. Mr. Murphy thought it was the duty of the city to spend more money than the compromise sum, if necessary, to make the company prove its claim. Mr. Tyler explained that the claim was not of a hold-up character, but that it had strong legal basis, and the city stood to save money by paying the $4,000 rather than fighting the suit. The resolution went through over Messrs. Bullock and Murphy's nays. The $4,000 is to come out of the general fund at first, the fund to be afterwards reimbursed with money received from the sale of street work bonds.

For the reason that Badgley, the Alis twirler, wanted to go to his home in Hackettstown Monday afternoon, he was unable to be at the game. If proper support had been given him in the morning he would have won from Murray Hill.

Tyler, of Columbia College, who pitched for Murray Hills on Saturday, occupies the box for Quinby's Crescent A. C. team, and when the twirler hit his team mate in the head with a ball Monday morning, he gave evidence of his sincere regret.

George Zeiss, of the Potter Press Company's plant, is saying hard things against the Public Service Corporation. Mr. Zeiss was refused a ride on the car yesterday, at Scotch Plains, because he had with him a small dog. Rather than loose the dog Zeiss walked home.

John Day, the young son of Buck Day, of Liberty street, shot himself in the left hand yesterday. The lad found a rusty revolver in the rear of his yard, and inserting a blank cartrige in the weapon, pulled the trigger, but the blank failed to go off. He then placed the muzzle against his left hand and tried to pull the hammer back. The gun was not a self repeater and the hammer slipped and the blank went off tearing an awful gash in his hand. The injured boy was taken to the office of Dr. Van Horn, where the wound was dressed.

GREAT SPORT AT SHEEPSHEAD.

Ort Wells Won Realization Stakes Mineola Made New Record.

NEW YORK, July 6.—Ort Wells, winner of the Commonwealth handicap, has added another stake to his list by capturing the rich Lawrence Realization stakes of $20,945 to the winner at Sheepshead Bay. He was quoted at the prohibitive price of 3 to 10 and won handily by one length. Mercury, paying 8 to 5 for the place, finished second, with Graziallo third. The time, 2 minutes 47 3-5 seconds, is two and two-fifth seconds slower than Africander's time made last year in this event.

Veto won the second part of the double event of $10,000 by a length and a half from the favorite, Blandy.

Mineola in winning the second race established a new world's record for six and a half furlongs by covering the distance in 1 minute 13 2-5 seconds. The best previous record was 1 minute 18 3-5 seconds, held jointly by Jane Holly and Ancestor.

SPRINGFIELD CONVENTION.

Populists Name Watson and Tribbles as Their Candidates.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 6.—When the Populist convention was called to order there was a long wrangle over the report of the committee on credentials.

The report of the committee on permanent organization brought forth a storm of protest from the fusion wing of the convention, as the report showed that the Middle of the Roaders had secured all the officers of the convention.

Thomas E. Watson of Georgia was unanimously nominated for president and Thomas H. Tribbles of Nebraska for vice president by the convention.

Senator Allen refused to permit his name to go before the convention for president.

RAISULI ON RAMPAGE.

Bandit Has Attacked Three Villages and Is Near Tangier.

LONDON, July 6.—A Tangier report says:

"French officials here admit that the crisis was never more critical. Fighting occurs daily in this vicinity.

"Raisuli is only two hours from Tangier and is collecting men. He has attacked three villages and looted cattle.

"The town guards are helpless. When the outbreak comes there will be an appalling sacrifice of European life to the fanaticism of the Moors.

"The sultan has cut down the soldiers' pay by one-half, and the disaffected soldiers are deserting and joining the freebooting bands."

Swallow Has Not Declined.

CHICAGO, July 6.—Oliver W. Stewart, chairman of the Prohibition national committee, has made a statement positively denying that Dr. Silas C. Swallow had declined the Prohibition nomination for president. Mr. Stewart said: "Dr. Swallow has not declined and will not decline. It is absolutely certain at this time that he will accept our nomination. Since there is no vacancy on our ticket there is no room for the nomination of General Miles."

Instructing Porto Rican Teachers.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6.—Lessons for the Porto Rican teachers at Harvard began with the opening of the summer school. Practically all the visitors gathered in the Fogg lecture room for the first daily lecture on historical and scientific subjects. The lecture was given in Spanish by Professor Frederick M. Noa, who reviewed the geography and history of Cuba and who will treat in five more lectures Cuba and the countries of South America.

Moyer Free at Last.

DENVER, July 6.—Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, has been released from custody by Sheriff Bell of Teller county in this city after furnishing bonds for $10,000 on the charges of murder and inciting riot. Moyer has been a prisoner 103 days and during the greater portion of that time was confined in the bull pen at Telluride on the plea of "military necessity."

CONVENTION OPENS.

Alton B. Parker's Position Remains Unshaken.

WILLIAMS REFERS TO ELIHU ROOT

Cohesion of the Anti-Parker Men Apparently Impossible—New Yorker May Be Nominated on First or Second Ballot.

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—With the opening of the Democratic national convention here Judge Alton B. Parker's strong position as a presidential candidate remains unshaken.

The convention was called to order in the Coliseum at noon by former United States Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the national committee. Bryan's disastrous campaigns were managed by Senator Jones, and the Hill element, it is said, will get rid of him as soon as the present convention is over.

Chairman Jones announced that he had been instructed by the national committee to invite Representative John Sharp Williams of Mississippi to serve as chairman of the temporary organization of the convention. Mr. Williams delivered a speech in reply to the address of Elihu Root in the Republican convention in Chicago and outlined the campaign as the "safe and sane" Democrats purpose to run it.

The opposition to the New Yorker's candidature has made many assaults, but has apparently made no impression. The solid and substantial phalanx of the New York jurist has withstood all efforts of the friends of other candidates and is apparently stronger than ever. Assurances of accessions from instructed delegations after the first ballot have been received from men who are now tied to other candidates, which the Parker adherents say insures a nomination on the second ballot.

All day long the anti-Parker men have tried to offer a candidate who would unite a third of the delegates so as to have a rallying point when complimentary ballots have been cast for favorite sons. The impossibility of uniting has been manifest, and the most zealous opponents of Parker concede his probable nomination not later than the second ballot.

The Parker opposition was disturbed, but not routed, by the action of Pennsylvania. The sixty-eight votes of that state have been for weeks placed in the Parker column and are a part of the 500 odd votes that have been claimed for him. They were not instructed, however, and if they could have been secured for any other candidate it would have been a serious blow to the Parker interests. Criticism of the action of Pennsylvania has been free and harsh among some of the anti-Parker men, but others say that a proposition made by one of the Pennsylvania leaders is quite fair. It is stated that after the action of the Pennsylvania delegation a member of the delegation held a conference with some of the anti-Parker leaders and said that Pennsylvania, notwithstanding the indorsement of Parker, would give sixty-eight votes to any eastern candidate—with the exception of Hearst—upon whom the opposition could concentrate with enough pledged votes, which, together with the sixty-eight votes of Pennsylvania, would make two votes more than one-third of the convention. Among the candidates named who would be satisfactory were Pattison of Pennsylvania, Gorman of Maryland, Gray of Delaware, Harmon of Ohio, Olney of Massachusetts and Coler of New York.

Upon this proposition some of the Parker men have been working, but they have not been meeting with much success.

Cohesion of the anti-Parker men is apparently impossible. Hearst cannot transfer his delegates, and his supporters cannot promise the instructed and pledged Hearst men for any man after Hearst is out of the running. Massachusetts will give no indication or pledge of her delegates beyond Olney. The same is true of Wall in Wisconsin, Harmon in Ohio and Cockrell in Missouri, although it is supposed that Missouri would go to Gorman should there be an opportunity. The Gorman men in West Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia prefer Parker to uncertainty and are chafing under the restraint imposed upon them by the venerable Henry G. Davis, who clings to the hope that something may turn up favorable to Gorman.

Upon slender threads of various kinds the Parker opposition has hung its hopes, while the Parker men have been moving forward with calm assurance to other matters connected with the convention. Former Senator Smith of New Jersey, who has been holding his delegation in the leash while it was anxious to go to Parker, said that Parker would be nominated unless the disagreement over the platform should drive some state delegations from New York's candidate.

A story was current that David B. Hill, flushed with the fruits of victory, would undertake to force upon the convention a platform so radical that some of the southern delegations would break away from New York's candidate. But the illusion was dispelled. It was learned that Hill would not be chairman of the resolutions committee, but that John A. McMahon of Ohio or Senator Bailey of Texas would be chairman of the resolutions committee and that Bailey had been selected to cross swords with William J. Bryan in the debate over the platform on the floor of the convention.

Tammany furnished a sensational incident by swiftly back tracking on a semiofficial announcement that it had dropped its opposition to Parker. The organization had allowed it to become known through some of its most prominent representatives that it had decided to join the Parker ranks. After a period of silence and apparent political idleness they have renewed their warfare against his candidacy, and Senator Victor Dowling, Charles A. Towne, Bird S. Coler and Bourke Cockran started to poll delegations and ask for votes against Judge Parker. But Senator Dowling said that Tammany was simply against Parker and added: "You'll see a very hard fight on the platform."

Senator Hill, Edward Murphy, Jr., and William F. Sheehan were extremely confident at the Parker headquarters. Senator Hill said:

"Judge Parker may not be nominated on the first ballot, as delegations like to pay tribute to favorite sons, but he will be on the second."

Mr. Sheehan said: "Judge Parker will be the nominee. Nothing can stop it now. We are gaining every hour in strength."

Former Senator Murphy said, "Parker will be nominated on the first ballot, for before we get to the end of the roll call all the states will want to jump into the band wagon."

The prospect is that Judge Parker, the candidate of the conservative forces, will win handily.

Where a week ago were doubt, uncertainty, sparring for position, parleying for time, factional scheming and manipulation to overthrow the favorite is now a foregone conclusion that the field will come in a poor second.

Not only does it appear that the control of the nomination for first place on the ticket will be in the hands of those Democrats who were in the minority in 1896 and again in 1900, but that they will select the nominee's running mate and dominate the platform on which the race will be made.

The forces which will adopt the platform and name the candidate for president will also name the vice president, and this element has allowed it to become known that no concession to the minority, no vote catching expedient, is to be adopted in choosing the nominee for second place.

So much attention has been given to the presidential nomination that no conclusion has been reached regarding the vice presidency. Several names have been mentioned, and one or two active candidates are in the field. The friends of former Senator Turner of Washington believe that he may be nominated. The suggestion has been made that David S. Rose of Wisconsin might be selected, but that state refuses to have him considered for fear that anything of the kind might be considered as disloyal to E. C. Wall as presidential candidate. Benjamin F. Shively and John W. Kern of Indiana and David R. Francis of Missouri have been mentioned in connection with the second place, but no effort has been made to secure consideration for any of them.

FIRE AT WORLD'S FAIR.

Destruction Threatened Holy Land Exhibit.

ST. LOUIS, July 6.—Fire which started in the kitchen of the American cafe, in the Jerusalem concession at the world's fair grounds, threatened Festival hall, the West pavilion and the whole Jerusalem exhibit.

When Chief Christy arrived with the first company the fire had a very dangerous look. Not 200 feet away was the great Machinery hall, and it looked as though that might burn.

Although the entire fire fighting force of the fair was on the scene, the chief deemed it advisable to turn in a second alarm, bringing the city department to the scene. The fire was safely confined to the structure in which it started. Loss about $20,000.

Young Lawyer Murdered.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., July 6.—While attempting to collect a bill of $5 for legal services Harry M. Shoff, a young attorney of Coalport, was murdered by a young man named Romey Loymeir. Shoff had defended Loymeir in an assault and battery case and on his way home at midnight stopped at Loymeir's and attempted to collect his bill. A fight followed, and Loymeir crushed Shoff's skull with a rock. The murderer gave himself up. Shoff belonged to one of the county's best known families.

Killed and Thrown From Track.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 6.—Miss Nettie Van Girder, aged seventy-five, has been killed on the Lackawanna tracks at Willawana, west of this city. She was walking on the track and did not hear the warning of the crew of a work train which backed down on her, killing her by the blow that threw her from the track.

Two Yale Men Drowned.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., July 6.—Two Yale students, R. L. Goodwin of Brunside, Conn., and Ralph Armstrong of Akyesville, O., have been drowned in the Connecticut river. They were in bathing, and neither could swim. Goodwin got beyond his depth, and Armstrong attempted his rescue.

Charlotte Went Dry.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 6.—By a majority of 400 votes Charlotte has gone dry. Three questions were submitted—viz., prohibition, dispensary and saloons. Less than fifty votes were cast for dispensary. There are now sixteen saloons in Charlotte, paying $1,000 city tax annually.

Negro Shot to Pieces by Mob.

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 6.—John Taylor, a negro laborer on the Seaboard Air line work train, was taken from the train at Middendorf, S. C., by a mob and carried about a half mile away, where he was literally shot to pieces. Taylor attempted an assault upon a woman and child.

BOSTON DOCKS BURN

Great Railway Elevator and Many Piers Destroyed.

TWO SAILORS LOSE THEIR LIVES

Allan Line Seamen Jump Into the Water to Escape Flames—Scotch Whisky Burns—Loss of a Million Dollars.

BOSTON, July 6.—The immense grain elevator of the Boston and Maine Railroad company, one of the largest in the world, together with the company's freighthouses, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, on piers 1 and 2, Mystic wharf, Charlestown, were burned last night, entailing a loss that will exceed $1,000,000.

During the fire two lives are known to have been lost. Eleven sailors of the Allan line steamer Austrian, which was lying at pier 1, jumped overboard to save themselves from the flames, which had communicated to the vessel, and Fred McKenzie and James Gallagher were drowned. The other men were picked up by tugboats and removed to the Marine hospital at Chelsea. None of them suffered seriously. One of the wharf employees was reported as missing.

Before the fire on board the Austrian could be got under control by the fleet of tugboats that had hauled her out into the stream all her upper works had been burned to her decks. The steamer had discharged a part of her cargo, which included $30,000 worth of Scotch whisky, which was burned in the freighthouse.

The fire started after 5 o'clock during a heavy thunderstorm, when a bolt of lightning struck the northeast end of freighthouse No. 2, in which was stored a quantity of hay. In an instant the flames shot in either direction, quickly communicating to houses Nos. 1 and 3 and from the latter to the big elevator building farther west.

The larger part of the fire apparatus of the city was summoned and efforts directed to saving adjoining property. The elevator and freight shed were in close proximity to the bridge connecting Chelsea and this city, and so intense was the heat that for several hundred feet along the side nearer the burning buildings the bridge was badly burned and its piers charred. Fortunately it was a dead calm, and the great shower of sparks and smoke arose almost perpendicularly, thus failing to reach the other freight houses of the company on the adjacent piers.

The elevator, which was built about ten years ago, was said to be the largest in existence at that time, having a capacity of 2,000,000 bushels, but as near as can be figured it held not over 100,000 bushels of grain, chiefly wheat. The buildings on the pier, with their contents, are a total loss, and the wharf itself is practically ruined. The loss on the elevator will be at least $400,000 and on the contents $100,000 more. Losses on the freight houses, their contents, their pier and to the steamer Austrian will easily swell the total to more than $1,000,000.

Among the steamship companies who will suffer losses on freight destroyed are the Allan line, Scandinavian-American line and the Wilson line, the Scandinavian-American company losing 104 bales of goat skins, valued at $20,000.

MAN HUNT IN NEW JERSEY.

Negroes Suspected of Assault May Be Lynched.

BURLINGTON, N. J., July 6.—With her one-year-old babe by her side and her husband away delivering milk, Mrs. Elsie T. Biddle, the young wife of Charles Biddle, a farmer living along the Rancocas road, near here, was the victim of criminal assault and robbery by three negroes, and a man hunt is in progress throughout the surrounding country. The outrage is one of the worst that has ever occurred in this section, and hundreds of men armed with all sorts of weapons are in pursuit of the perpetrators.

Mrs. Biddle recognized one of the men as Aaron Timbers, who was recently released from the Jamesburg Reform school. The second man is said to be a well known negro character and the third an unknown farm hand. Pursuers caught up twice to the negroes, and two of them are believed to have been wounded.

Two negro suspects have been brought to the Burlington jail. At the lockup a large crowd had assembled and threatened to lynch them. It was with much difficulty that they were got into the building safely. Both men declare they are innocent.

A headline in a morning paper reads: "Bryan in the last ditch." For the sake of the Democratic party the convention delegates should get their shovels to work.

THE FORUM.

Communications from readers of The Daily Press on all subjects of local interest are invited. All such communications must be stripped of personalities, and must be signed by the writer. His name will not necessarily be published. The editor is not responsible for views expressed in this column.

Editor, The Daily Press:

If space will permit will you kindly call the attention of your readers to the needs of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp.

We often hear of rummage sales, why not ransack our attics and closets and have a rummage gift. It would be greatly appreciated by Mother Curry and be helping God's work along. Last year the Camp gave about 1,200 children and 300 mothers a fine vacation.

The articles needed most are: Baby carriages; children's clothing; household articles of every description; bedsteads, cots and cribs; mattresses; reading and toys.

A card sent to 1080 Arlington avenue will bring a wagon, or leave the articles at 431 West Fifth street, or better still take the articles to the Camp on Leland avenue, Netherwood, which will give you a chance to visit the Camp and see how the work is carried on.

PLAINFIELDERS IN ILLINOIS

MR. AND MRS. FRANK W. JONES VISIT SETTLEMENT OF MANY JERSEYMEN.

During a trip which Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Jones, of Plainfield, are now making in the West, they have met quite a number of Jerseymen in Jerseyville, Ill., some of whom are relatives There was quite an exodus from Plainfield and vicinity to Illinois half a century ago, and not a few of the old residents of North Plainfield have relatives there. The name Jerseyville was adopted by a colony which went from Plainfield. Traveling in those days was not so comfortable as now, and perhaps the most memorable trip that any of the Jerseyites took from there was the one made by Mr. and Mrs. Furman Campbell. It was sixty-six years ago that they started in a colony overland for the West. They located in Jacksonville, Ill., before the Jerseyville colony was formed. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and the latter's brother, William L. Smalley, now of Plainfield, made the thousand-mile trip in a lumber wagon. Mrs. Campbell drove the team and carried her infant son in her arms, while her husband and brothers walked most of the way. Walking was more comfortable than riding, and the men often went faster on foot than the team. They were forty-two days en route, and experienced many dangers from pantery, wild cats and wolves, which they were often compelled to shoot. The party camped in the wagon when they could not reach farmhouses, and carried provisions for the forty-two days' trip, getting milk from farmers when they could. In the colony was but one spring wagon. That belonged to the VanGlassen family, who were accounted rich in their day, as all were who had spring wagons. They used to come upon Indian tribes, who were always looking for "firewater," and would offer their pappooses for a drink. Mr. Campbell started the hatter business in Jacksonville, but some years later he returned to New Jersey and built the line of railroad from Bound Brook to Somerville.—Newark Evening News.

Mad Dog Scare.

With a wildly excited crowd outside, Patrolman Overbaugh engaged in a mad-dog hunt, this morning about 10:30, in the basement of Schleif's bakery on Park avenue. The dog was a fox terrier belonging to E. H. Clevely, of North avenue. After a couple of ineffectual shots at the dog, which was running wildly about the shop, the game was cornered under a stairway where one well directed shot from the officer's gun put a quietus to his yapping for good.

JOLLY TIME IN HUNTERDON

PLAINFIELDERS ARE THE GUESTS AT GRANDINMERE OVER THE FOURTH.

Following her annual custom, Mrs. J. F. Grandin, of Hamden, Hunterdon county, entertained two Plainfield families at her beautiful country place, "Grandinmere," over the Fourth, and the reception accorded her guests was even more delightful than ever. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Force and daughter, Miss Lillian Force, of Duer street, composed the party, which found "Grandinmere" so attractive and its hostess so hospitable. Mrs. Grandin's two daughters, Miss Sara Todd and Miss Elizabeth Grandin, likewise did everything to make this year's visit eclipse those of former times.

The exterior of Mrs. Grandin's charming home was tastefully decorated with the flags of various nations, bunting and Chinese lanterns while the interior was also lavishly decorated. Across the reception hall were stretched the words WELCOME, catching the guests' eyes as they entered. In the dining room flags and roping of red, white and blue were arranged most artistically and the dining table itself was made effective with the National colors and big and little fire crackers as well as by other devices emblematic of the occasion. To each guest was presented a buttoniere backed with a small silk flag.

In the afternoon, the youngest daughter, Miss Elizabeth Grandin, sprang a surprise on her guest by extending an invitation for them to join her in her Colonial quarters. This attractive apartment consist of two large rooms set apart for the safe keeping of very old china and antique silverware and furniture, which has come into her possession through the will of an aunt, recently deceased.

After tea was served in the Colonial apartment, the guests participated in a enjoyable game of pit, prizes being awarded to the men and women winners, a booby prize not being overlooked. In the evening, a regular Fourth of July demonstration was arranged to interest the Plainfielders. A fine display of fireworks, including sending skyward nearly a dozen fire balloons, took place on the handsome lawns surrounding the homestead. It was about midnight when the guests were sent to bed "full" of ice cream and refreshments and with the further satisfaction of having had a most delightful Fourth.

WANT MOTIEN PASS

Russians Attacked Kuroki's Forces and Were Repulsed.

COMMANDER WOUNDED, 200 DEAD

Czar's Troops Charged the Position Three Times With the Bayonet. When Beaten, Japs Pursued Them Three Miles.

LONDON, July 6.—General Kuroki has reported to Tokyo that two battalions of Russians attacked the Japanese outposts in Motien pass at dawn under cover of a dense fog and were repulsed.

They returned to the assault and charged three times with the bayonet before they were finally driven off. The Japanese pursued them for three miles to the westward of Motien pass.

The Russians retired before overwhelming numbers after ascertaining the strength of the Japanese forces. The Russian losses are officially stated to be 200.

The general staff at St. Petersburg has received the following dispatch from Lieutenant General Sacharoff, the chief of staff of General Kuropatkin:

"The advance guard of the Russian force operating east of Liaoyang occupied a position at Langtse pass. Toward evening the same day our scouts ascertained that a detachment of the enemy's advance guard, 1,500 strong, had occupied the villages of Ekhavuan and Tchakumenza, on our front, the main force having remained in Fenshui and Motien passes.

"At this moment we discovered the movement of a Japanese detachment, consisting of a battalion of infantry, to turn our left flank position in the Langtse pass in the direction of Liandiansian.

"In order to learn the strength of the enemy's position in front of Langtse pass the commander of the detachment ordered out was re-enforced, and a reconnoitering party of ten companies was sent in the direction of Ekhavuan under the command of Colonel Letschitsky. With the view of making a demonstration insuring the return of Letschitsky's detachment three companies under Lieutenant Colonel Garnitsky marched to Mahoumizza, about a mile and a half south of Ekhavuan, to the crossing of the roads leading to Sinkhi and the Lok river passes.

"Garnitsky's column reached the crossroads and dislodged a company of the enemy's advance guard, which was almost annihilated. Simultaneously Letschitsky's column dislodged the enemy's advance posts without firing a shot and approached the foot of the heights, surmounted by a temple. The temple is less than a mile east of Ekhavuan, where, although exposed to a heavy frontal and flank fire, our troops dashed forward and dislodged the Japanese from their intrenchments and occupied the pass. As the enemy was preparing to deliver a frontal and flank attack our column then retired, as previously instructed. Three companies of Garnitsky's force occupied the position which they had been ordered to secure.

"When Letschitsky's force began to withdraw the enemy opened a heavy fire from the heights. In spite of this the column retired in perfect order. Brave Letschitsky remained continuously on the fighting line and directed the column with remarkable ability and coolness. He was the last to retire, with his chief of staff and adjutant.

"Our casualties were Letschitsky wounded, Colonel Poapelow, Lieutenant Colonel Trakhemovsky, Captain Sololieff, Lieutenants Markoff, Latkine, Bobroslavesky and Kozine, Second Captain Paly and several other officers wounded and 200 soldiers killed or wounded.

"I observed the fighting with my staff from the Tkbacouan tower, and I can personally testify to the conduct of the troops. Our re-enforcements have occupied Liandiansian.

"The enemy's principal forces are at present concentrated at Vandiapudze, in the direction of Haicheng, and at Schiskouyo, about ten miles west of Siuyen, on the road to Kaichou."

The fact that Lieutenant General Sacharoff witnessed the fighting near Motien pass is taken here to indicate that he is in command of the forces east of Liaoyang, which include the army corps under Lieutenant General Count Keller.

The desperate character of the fighting is shown by the repeated bayonet charges, the Russians ousting the Japanese from the trenches.

The fighting around Senuchen shows that the Japanese are determined to hold the ground to the south as well as Dalin pass until a favorable opportunity presents itself for an advance on Yinkow, the port of Newchwang.

WARM WEATHER DRESS.

Plain and Elaborate Linen Dresses. Many Shirrings on Gowns.

Serges and linens this year require a certain amount of strapping embroidery or trimming of some kind to look their best. The muslins for smarter occasions are also very elaborate, boasting insertions and frills of valenciennes, with many ruchings.

Shirrings are more in vogue than ever, and no gown is complete without a touch of some of this. Skirts are shirred in tiers, and even the edges of boleros are laid in fine shirrings.

Fashion dictates that we shall wear airy and beautiful fabrics this summer, such as satin messaline, chiffon voile, chiffon cloth, mousseline de sole and painted silk muslins and gauzes, as well as the real old fashioned muslins trimmed with valenciennes of the finest quality.

The combination of muslin and Irish lace is a favorite one this year, and among smart people the lace is real, and the muslin is embroidered in big dots.

Many ultra smart people are wearing gowns of white taffeta. It is said to wear well. Very many frills and tassels are a feature of this rather plain and stiff sort of a gown.

SMART MODES.

The Season's Coats of Lace Are Elaborate—Gray Is Fashionable.

The season's coats are ultra smart, particularly those of all over Russian and Cluny lace. Of course the prettiest are in black, white, champagne or lavender. But these linen laces are also dyed in pale colors, such as blue and lavender, and when they are set over a lining of deeper silk they present a most dainty appearance. One dainty model was in tinted gray lace inlet with medallions of violet silk and made up over a lining of violet chiffon. It was worn with a costume of lavender crepe de chine, trimmed with heavy lace to match.

The loose coat of heavy black lace is charming over white silk worn with a smart black and white gown. Accordion plaited slips are especially fetching worn with bolero or fichu arrangements.

All the paler shades of gray are very fashionable; also reseda, dull green and lavender. The latter shade is the old fashioned tint which goes equally well with pink or pale blue.

Silver braid and tissue is largely used both on gowns and millinery, and it plays an important part in those costumes designed especially for evening wear. Indeed gowns of expensive silver tissue are veiled with chiffon or lace, and silver embroideries appear on black and colors. Ruchings of silver or gold gauze ribbon are much used in Paris on white mull gowns.

Speaking of gowns of mull, they will be among the smartest summer costumes, particularly in white and in pale blue.

The picture shows a gray voile dress trimmed with bands of shirred ribbon. It has a skirt made in the prevailing mode with three ruffles, and it is worn with a black chip hat trimmed with a white plume. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SPANISH PEGGY

A STORY OF YOUNG ILLINOIS

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

"It is that woman that make a squaw of me," said Antywine. "Since my father marry her she has been worse than a loup-garou. I not mind the fist or the stick—bah!—but her evil eye, and the beard on her chin—saints! I am crawl all over! It is not healt'y to be scare all the time! I wear a charm against her. When she take Shickshack I think I will go to my father's peop' in Canada. But if I do she will have nobody but you when she is enrage. And see what is done to you when we are but out of the house, sweetheart!"

Peggy busied herself in silence and threw an object from her which bounded among the chimney ruins.

"I am not going to be a peg-leg any more," she announced. "I'll not strap that wooden leg to my knee again."

"But you not able to walk," said Antywine. "I carry you," he added, in afterthought.

"Shickshack will take me on the horse when he comes. It's so ugly. Don't you think a peg-leg is ugly, Antywine?"

"I have not consider," he responded; adding, with French grace, "not anything that belong to you is ugly."

"My mouth," suggested Peggy. "It will not shut."

"It is like the wild plum," said Antywine, "when the white buds just break through."

Though they had been housemates almost a year, Peggy and Antywine felt that they were just discovering each other. The tall, silent lad had once in a while ventured on some kindness to the girl. There was between them the whimsical sympathy of companions in misery.

"And I am so little," continued Peggy, after a silence. "People think I am only ten years old. Ann Rutledge is large and beautiful."

"Mam'selle Ann Rutledge," responded Antywine, "is too large to be carry. You are not too large to be carry."

"But I want to be," insisted Peggy.

"Me, I think you will grow," conceded Antywine, indulgently.

"Do you think I will always be lame?"

"I not know. The doctor in Belleville cannot say."

"The doctor in Belleville put that peg-leg on my knee. Sometimes I think if I try to use my leg, Antywine, it will grow stronger. But I have to hop yet when Sally takes my crutch from me."

"Shickshack think, and me, I think too, she have bring that lameness on you."

"I never contradicted her when she told him it was a fall; but she knows when she struck me and how it hurt. Don't tell him, Antywine. Shickshack is so good."

"She not fool me," said Antywine. "I think now I will give you my charm to keep off evil."

"What is it?"

He took her hand in the darkness and laid a small image on the palm. She knew it was something which their religion taught them to venerate.

"No, Antywine, I will not take it from you."

"Keep it," he insisted. "I feel better when I am out hunting if you have that around your neck. She bring evil into the house. She is worse than Chasse Galerie."

"What is the Chasse Galerie?"

"Have you never heard of the Chasse Galerie that fly across the sky at night?"

"How could I hear about such things in the Sac village or at Belleville?"

Antywine proceeded at once to tell the story of the wild huntsman and his dogs, and their chase above the clouds. This led on to feux follets, or balls of fire, into which bad spirits turned themselves to lure sinners into quagmires. Then loup-garous, or man-wolves made darkness flame with their eyes, to Peggy's imagination.

"Are your feet or hands cold?" Antywine inquired once in a while. Peggy answered "No;" forgetting she had hands and feet, her large, excited gaze fixed on the wonder-world of folk-story. His voice abounded in sympathetic tones. It was full and golden, reaching into distance or sinking to monotones as he half told and half sung his people's legends.

So hour after hour passed; rain continued to pour down the shingles and visit them in gusts of spray through the broken chimney.

It was a delicious experience to remember a lifetime. But as Peggy's responses became few, Antywine stretched out his legs and made a pillow of his lap with a corner of the blanket, to which her drowsy head came readily down. He watched and she slept until darkness faded to the pallor of dawn.

The noise of horses' feet in the heavy road, for which he had waited so long, could at last be heard approaching. He withdrew carefully from the head of the sleeper, and went out to intercept the riders.

They were splashed with mud and jaded, moving side by side, their tired horses snorting flakes of foam. Thus more than once the men of New Salem had come back from chasing horse-thieves, less ready, perhaps, to give the details of the exploit than were Shickshack and his companion. Both drew rein when they saw Antywine, and he told them directly where Peggy was.

Shickshack asked where he found her. He pointed to the road beyond the cabin, and in his brief Canadian-English repeated what had happened.

"Your squaw boy doesn't put up many fizzlegigs and fireworks, but he seems to be worth two men," observed Lincoln.

His lank hair dripped moisture. He was haggard with hard riding.

"You catch the man?" inquired Antywine.

"No," Shickshack answered in disgust.

"You know him?"

"No. Me not care now."

"He winked out," said Lincoln. "We lost him this side of Beardstown. The closest view we had was when we nearly ran him down back here. We intended to raise a party and hunt. I reckon you better bring the little girl now, so we can get home to breakfast."

Shickshack's red face revealed itself through growing daylight polished like copper. He gave a strong grunt of satisfaction when Antywine set Peggy behind him on the horse. The Canadian boy mounted lightly to a seat behind Lincoln, and as they rode toward New Salem a clear whiteness like the promise of fair weather appeared in the east. Water hung beaded on the stems of trees, but a great commotion of robins came out of the woods.

It was the general opinion in the village that Don Pedro Lorimer had "done it." Why he should put himself to the inconvenience of trying to carry off such a poor little thing many declared they could not understand. All day Lincoln was visited at the store by inquiring friends, who sat on counters and salt barrels and interrogated him about his night's ride. He joked, as any man among them would have done about the hard service taken out of borrowed horses, instead of dwelling on the Indian's affairs and the labors of the night. Lincoln had the strength of three ordinary men.

"I allow," said one of the Carolina settlers, "that it was an ornary trick of one of them Grove boys."

"I guess you are wrong there," put in a Massachusetts man. "The Grove boys know better than to pick the runt out of a litter. If one of them wanted to steal a girl he wouldn't go so nigh the tavern and stop on the outside."

The outrage was resented as a municipal indignity, whoever had attempted it; but it stirred less resentment than it would have stirred had any other young maid in New Salem been the sufferer. It was talked about a fortnight with zest and much repetition. By the end of a month it was still good material, when women took their knitting and visited one another of afternoons. But by muster day other slow happenings had covered it.

If Sally knew more about it than any one else, she kept the secret. The Sac brave often fixed his eyes on her with speculation in them.

"In my tribe," he said once to Lincoln, "a warrior can take a tent-pole and beat his squaw, or he can give her plenty goods and drive her out of his wigwam. But me marry white woman; me have to stand her like white man."

He was at first concerned, and questioned Peggy about the loss of her wooden leg.

"I will not wear it," she repeated stubbornly. "It hurt, and I threw it away."

She hopped about the street on her crutch, which Ann Rutledge had found by the hand-mill the night the alarm was given, her injured leg hanging straight beneath the deerskin garment. Some change in her was noticed, even by her schoolmates.

"Who cut Peggy Shickshack's hair, Viane Rutledge?" inquired Nancy Green, when the girls sat outdoors with their dinner reticules the first warm day. The budding woods were then alive with bees.

"Ann," responded Ann's younger sister, with asperity. "We have her tagging to our house all the time, now. I allow the Indians might as well move in with us."

"Shickshack's wife doesn't visit the neighbors, does she?"

"No. She stays at home and heats water to scald the boys with."

"Peggy looks nicer with her hair cut straight around below the ears and combed smooth. And I am glad she lost her wooden leg when Satan or something tried to carry her off."

"My brother Red," exclaimed Martha Bell Clary, "told me the horse blanket that was throwed over Peggy Shickshack that night smelt of brimstone!"

"Your brother Red," retorted Nancy Green with impatience, "gets threatened with brimstone so much in meeting that he smells it on everything!"

"Well, how do you suppose the boat Antywine La Chance went down the river in, got back to the mill by morning, when he rode home on horseback?"

"Antywine brought it back himself. Part of the way he pulled the boat, and part of the way he rode horseback. You get such stories in the Grove!" said Mahala Cameron.

Martha Bell wagged her head and looked at Peggy, sitting apart, eating corn bread in solitude. She was glad to be Martha Bell Clary instead of Peggy Shickshack. None of the girls meant to be cruel. They wished Peggy well, but made her understand she was not as other daughters of New Salem.

"We all thought she was queer before we found out she was a Spaniard," said Martha Bell.

"You'd be queer, too," exclaimed Nancy Green, "if you'd been born a Spaniard and raised among the Sacs, and dressed always like a squaw."

"But I wasn't."

"Peggy can talk the Sac language just like Shickshack," remarked Mahala. "Let's get her do it for us."

"Shickshack won't let her," objected Ann Rutledge's sister. "He wants her to learn English. He says she learned to speak English in a year."

"Humph!" commented another of the group, resentfully; "the master shows partiality to Peggy Shickshack, so he does; but I wouldn't be her, if she is the best reader in school."

The first really warm noon of the budding year, while Peggy's schoolmates were looking at and talking about her, Antywine stood at the open tavern door waiting to speak to Ann Rutledge. Too bashful to knock, he shifted from one moccasin to the other, hoping that some kind saint would send Ann to the door to inquire what he wanted. He had a parcel in his left hand, and sometimes held it before him and sometimes hid it behind his back, keeping his right hand ready to uncap himself if she appeared. There was not anything in the woods or on the prairie which Antywine feared. But Ann Rutledge represented to his mind the power of society; and he was coming to sue that power. She entered, singing, from an inner room, and paused, throwing her long braids behind her back when she saw the Canadian at the door.

He snatched off his cap, standing erect, narrow of hips and shoulders and full in chest, an elegant lightness of make and grace of carriage setting him apart from English-Americans, and fixed his wistful blue eyes upon her.

"Come in, Antywine La Chance."

"No, mam'selle. I will stand here."

"Did you want to see any one?"

"I want to see you."

"Here I am." The girl dimpled at his embarrassment.

"Mam'selle, I have to ask of you a favor. Will you do me the kindness to look at what I bring in my hand?"

CHAPTER IV.

From the back yard of more than one New Salem home, where soap-making and gardening were going forward, azure smoke rose over pink coals of wood and old vines. The whole world was getting ready to be new. Ann's own winter linsey was laid aside. She wore something which made her look like a blossom to the eyes of the boy.

Antywine gave her the parcel and stood abashed while it was unrolled, revealing yards of dark red and yellow calico, the colors alternating in tiny flecks which globed themselves to pomegranates. Ann had noticed it in the store as a most daring attempt in cotton printing. Some balls of thread fell out and Antywine picked them up.

"It's for Peggy, isn't it?"

"Yes, mam'selle."

"Did you buy it yourself, Antywine?"

"I have some money that I make in Belleville," he apologized. "Shickshack and the woman have not got some tas'e in clothes for young girls. You, mam'selle, have that tas'e."

"If you think I really have, Antywine, you must let me help Peggy make this dress."

"Oh, mam'selle! It is what I would ask, but dare not!"

"I would love to do it, and Peggy will be so glad to have a new dress."

Peggy was glad when Ann waylaid her in the evening. Her face quivered and she said, "Goody!" She talked the great event quite out with Antywine, standing beside their cabin, because they seldom spoke to each other in the presence of Shickshack's wife. Then there was the joy of going to the tavern and learning neat stitches while Ann cut and basted and fitted. The slow process of hand sewing went on a part of every day, as the two girls had time, until Peggy, by accident of Antywine's choice, stood at last unconsciously arrayed in the colors of Spain. The garment was gathered to her slim figure under the bust, whence escaping fullness hung as low as her ankles. This short-waisted look, and the gorgeous setting of colors for her pale olive skin, and her hair cut in the fashion of the middle ages, suddenly developed in her a charm. People noticed her, and said that she was not exactly growing pretty, but there was something to her. The confidence of knowing how to do things appeared in her face. For, having begun with the needle, Ann Rutledge went on to knitting and spinning.

Ann had pretty clothes, for her father never rode to Springfield without bringing her a gift, and her mother even indulged her with a cassimere pelisse modeled after one worn by the doctor's wife, who came a bride to New Salem. Viane saw with some resentment her elder sister take things which had usually fallen to her and cut them over for the Indian's adopted daughter. Thus Peggy became transformed in every garment except her moccasins. To these heelless, quill-embroidered shoes she clung with the instinct of a wilderness lover. They were light and soft and small, hampering her no more than her own muscles. Antywine made them for her when he made his own. In return she knitted woolen stockings to keep him and her foster father warm in winter.

When Peggy first learned to knit she pulled the yarn so tight that the stocking leg stood above the needles as stiff as a board triangle and had to be raveled and done over.

"You're not building stake-and-ridered fences for your men folks," laughed Ann.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

NORGE WRECK.

Danish Government and Steamship Company Search For Survivors.

LONDON, July 6.—The passing of another day with no news of the missing boats of the ill fated Danish steamship Norge lessens the hope that a few more out of the long list of victims might have been counted among the survivors. The search of the neighboring waters will, however, be prosecuted until the last hope has gone.

The Danish government and the steamship company have sent out a steamship to search the seas for the boats, and the vessel will visit all the islands within a possible radius, but the rescued at Grimsby and Stornoway, who have gone through a terrible experience, believe that there is now little ground for hope unless an outgoing vessel should have picked up one or more of the boats or unless the survivors have landed at St. Kilda and Flannan islands.

While the stories of the survivors naturally differ in some details, in the main they all agree that in the supreme moment there were many exhibitions of marvelous heroism.

Touching scenes were witnessed in the offices of the United Steamship company.

The wives of two of the emigrants lost on the Norge attempted to commit suicide by drowning, but they were saved at the last moment.

Seventeen survivors of the wrecked Norge were landed at Aberdeen last night by the steam trawler Largo Bay. They were picked up from one of the boats of the Norge. Six hundred and twenty-seven souls are still missing.

The contingent now being cared for at Aberdeen consists of twelve passengers, the third mate of the Norge, the quartermaster, a steward, a lamp trimmer and one of the crew.

They drifted at the mercy of the Atlantic for six days. When both water and food were gone and when the occupants were almost too exhausted even to hope, the trawler hove in sight, when the boat was about thirty miles off St. Kilda.

Those rescued had eked out an existence on two biscuits per day. When they started from the ill fated ship there was only one small cask of fresh water in the boat. Before the Largo Bay fell in with them this and the biscuits had been finished, and the pangs of thirst and hunger had set in. They weathered a gale and continued as best they might, striving to reach the coast of Scotland against the heavy seas. From strips of life belts they constructed a crude sail. The men had scarcely strength enough to hold the oars.

When the survivors were dragged on board the trawler the fishermen were obliged to forcibly prevent them from eating and drinking too much.

The third mate states that three other boats started with that rescued by the Largo Bay. One of those contained thirty-two persons, including several women and children. Another boat had fifteen men, with the second mate in charge. The third boat had ten men on board. The survivors parted company with the three boats on July 3.

Two Dead In Head-on Wreck.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—A head-on collision has occurred on the Philadelphia and Reading railroad at Frankford, a suburb of this city, and resulted in the killing of two passengers and the injuring of a score of others. Two of the injured are in a serious condition. The accident occurred on a single track road and was due to a misunderstanding of orders.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Denman will take his aggregation of ball players to Trenton on Saturday for the third contest in the series with the Y. M. C. A. nine. Westfield won the first two games.

When it is considered that Hoboken has defeated many National League teams, it was no disgrace for Alis to meet defeat on Monday by a score of 6 to 5. The Hudson County aggregation is probably the best in the State.

Without doubt the game of baseball on Saturday between Alis and Aeolian was the fastest contest ever seen in this city. Badgley, the Lehigh University slab artist, about whom there was a question as to his making good, gave his finest exhibition, and he was stronger than his National League colleague, Doescher, having two extra strikeouts to his credit. It would be well for Manager Johnston to hold fast to Badgley for he is too valuable a man to let go.

TENNIS.

The Y. M. C. A. doubles tennis tournament on Monday was won by Long and Collier, who defeated Case and Hinchcliffe by a score of 6-4. The semi-finals were finished as follows: Case and Hinchcliffe defeated Miner and Koons, 6-2, and Long and Collier defeated Rogers brothers, 6-2. The winners each get a silver fob medal and the team securing second place get the official clasp pin in silver.

C. A. Marsh, Esq, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Searles in their action against the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company, has secured a settlement for his clients. The action was brought as a result of an accident on the Fourth street trolley some time ago when Mrs. Searles receive severe injuries. In the original trial a verdict of $15,000 was given the plaintiffs.

Argument in Copyright Case.

The case brought some time ago against the Rogers Corporation by the International Silver Company for the alleged infringement of a copyright name was argued yesterday before the Court of Appeals at Trenton. PUPILS' RECITAL.

Miss Irene Day's Classes Give Annual Entertainment in Monroe Avenue Church.

A large and highly satisfied audience listened to the recital given last night at Monroe Avenue M. E. church, by the pupils of Miss Irene Day, of New Market. While all the selections were from the works of standard composers, many of them being classics, the feature of the programme was the playing of Ethel Coffee, a six-year-old tot who played without her music, as did Clarence and Arthur Hoffman, two of the youngest pupils on the programme.

The piano solo "Return of the Heroes," by Keller, was finely rendered by three sisters, the Misses Edith, Nellie and Grace Squier. Miss Maud Rupell, in Eaton's "Raindrops" and the duett, "Two Juveniles," played by Miss Irene Day and William Huff, also came in for generous applause, while Miss Nellie Brown, of Dunellen, received a bouquet of roses at the close of her rendition of the "Fantaisie" from Smith's "Faust."

Among those whose names figured on the programme were Miss Ida Wheeler, Miss Susie Lowrie, Miss Alice Apgar, Miss Edith Wheeler, Miss Harriet Messersmith, Miss Florence Gedney, Miss May Ardern, Miss Louise Ardern, Miss Edna Coriell, Miss Ethel Garretson and Paul Busby.

GUN CLUB'S CONTEST.

Trap Shooting and Rifle Range Work on Maple Avenue.

Trap shooting and rifle range contests were the principal features of the regular holiday shoot of the Independent Gun Club on Monday. The scores go on the tournament record that decides the championship of the club at the end of the year.

The winners of the trap shoot were as follows: Dr. C. M. Luckey, first class, 56 points; Dr. C. W. Leonard, second class, 53 points; John Wirth, third class, 13 points.

On the rifle range the winners were: Dr. Leonard, first class, 1218 points; C. W. Krausse, second class, 972 points; Edward Sebring, third class, 752 points.

Close shooting marked the contest for the bulls eye prize. Henry Hanrand won in the shoot-off after a tie with W. E. Stewart and John Wirth. He had only one point to spare at the finish.

The tournament will be continued on Labor Day.

Murphy Got One Year.

Charles Lester Murphy, alias James B. Murphy, of Berkely Heights, who was arrested recently on a charge of misusing the mails, pleaded guilty in the United States District Court yesterday. He was sentenced by Judge Lanning to one year in the Essex County Jail and to a fine of $100. Murphy was implicated in promoting a fake concern known as the Lemar Oil Company.

Paying Up Back Taxes.

Stirred by the vigorous warning issued yesterday by Collector Brown, the delinquent taxpayers of the borough have begun to liquidate their 1903 bills in a hurry. Collector Brown said this morning that collections yesterday and this morning had been brisk, and more were expected.

Church in Trouble Again.

Contractor Aleck Kane, who recently bought the Filmore Avenue Baptist church from the Scheidecker estate, has served notice on the congregation that they must pay him $80 within five days or give up the premises. This sum represents the amount alleged to be due for rent.

Killed in Railroad Wreck.

Among those killed in the wreck on the Wabash on Sunday night, was Rev. N. M. Mills, of Bridgeton, pastor of the Marlboro Seventh-Day Baptist church. He was well-known here among the members of his denomination.

Dr. W. H. Murray, of Watchung avenue, returned home yesterday from a few days' visit out of town.

POLICE CAPTURE SNUDER

MAN CHARGED WITH STEALING BRASS CASTINGS IS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY.

Captured at a shanty in the woods along the Lehigh Valley Railroad, near West Dunellen, about midnight, Fred Snuder, of Dunellen, the fireman accused of taking valuable brass castings from the Pond Machine Tool Co.'s plant, was brought to this city last night and lodged in a cell at the police station. It was known that he waited until the police made their appearance at the shop on the night of his detection, before he gave leg bail by scaling the fence at the south end of the enclosed yard and took his way toward home. A careful search revealed the fact that Snuder's "hangout" was a shack near the scene of the West Dunellen train wreck and after giving him time to get over his first scare, a descent was made on the place last night by Roundsman Flynn and Detective McCarthy and the culprit secured without difficulty.

NOVEL WAY TO STOP LEAK.

Ingenious Invention of a Sea Captain Whose Bark Was Taking Water.

Capt. Iver Mattson, of the Norwegian bark Flora who has just brought his vessel to South Africa, has invented a novel and ingenious method of stopping a leak at sea, writes the Cape Town correspondent of the London Sketch.

Bound from Norway to Cape Town, the Flora experienced terrific weather in the Bay of Biscay and was compelled to lie to for six days. In the buffeting that she received she sprang a leak, which let in the water at the rate of six inches an hour.

All hands were kept at the pumps day and night without intermission. As the gale abated the vessel drove before it into calmer seas.

Capt. Mattson found that the leak was getting worse, and he had a windmill rigged up to help the men. Even this was found insufficient, so he had recourse to his ingenuity.

He constructed a great waterproof canvas bag, 16 feet long, 6 feet in circumference and 2 feet in diameter. This he kept extended by means of hoops. A window of glass was let into the side, five feet from the bottom.

Then the captain stepped into the bag and by means of tackle he was drawn under water, so that he could see the leak. The other end of the bag being open and above water he had plenty of air and also an opportunity of communication with his men.

Two sleeves had been made and tightly bound at his wrists, so that he could work freely.

In this way, looking at the leak through the window in the bag, he worked steadily while the ship was hove to. The vessel rolled in a heavy swell, and sometimes Capt. Mattson found himself from seven to ten feet below the waves.

At one time it seemed that the work would cost the captain his life, as the chafing of his feet against the vessel's side wore a hole in the bag and the water entered and covered him.

But he was drawn up in good time, the bag was repaired and the leak stopped.

A Kindly Heart.

The tenderest heart may exist in spite of the roughest exterior. A little fox terrier had been left outside a Boston store by its owner. Evidently the dog had not been long in the city, for it trembled with fright at being out of the protecting presence of its master. As it lay crouching in the doorway a huge laborer came along. Reaching down pityingly he stroked the wee animal, speaking a few soothing words at the same time. The result was that the fear in the dog's heart subsided. It wagged its tail knowingly and licked the kind-hearted man's hand. When it was left alone it sat up bravely, as though feeling assured that human beings would do it no harm.—Golden Days.

CO. K BOYS READY FOR SEA GIRT TRIP

Final Drill is Held and Preparations Are Made to Leave on Saturday Afternoon.

ONE WEEK AT THE CAMP

MEN TO BE CLAD IN KHAKI, WITH BLUE SHIRTS AND CAMPAIGN HATS.

Depart on 1:18 Train—Seventy of the Seventy-two Members of the Company to Go—Pay of Privates and Officers.

Final arrangements for the trip to camp at Sea Girt were made by Company K at a special "drill" last night. No actual drilling was done, the time being taken up with the distribution of haversacks and the instruction of the men in sentry duties.

The company will leave for camp Saturday afternoon. The men will assemble in the armory at 12:30 o'clock, in heavy marching order. They will be clad in khaki, with blue shirts, campaign hats leggins, black shoes and haversacks. They will leave on the 1:18 train, marching in regular ranks from the armory to the station.

Everything will be found in readiness for the command at camp, although it opens the encampment. The men carry nothing with them but their wearing apparel, the haversacks being distributed merely to give them the heavy marching outfit appropriate to a week of "practical military instruction," which is the official explanation of the order directing the regiment to proceed to Sea Girt.

The company will be at camp just one week, from July 9 to July 16. On the latter date the men will arrive home at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Officers and men will go away in the best of military shape. The command has developed a noteworthy degree of snap and esprit de corps, and it is finely officered. Capt. Martin expects to take practically the entire company to the camp, seventy of the seventy-two members having promised to take the trip.

It is expected that the company will make a good impression on the regimental and State officers who may see them at Sea Girt. Last night, after the haversacks had been distributed, the non-commissioned officers took their squads aside and gave them final and complete instruction in the main and fine points of guard duty, and general hints on camp soldiering.

The company will do no shooting at the camp next week. The week of August 8 to August 15 has been set aside for the company's rifle practice.

All the men and officers are paid for their week at camp. Privates and corporals receive $1.50 a day; sergeants, $1.75; first sergeant, $2; lieutenants, $2.50, captain, $3. The commissioned officers have to share in the cost of their mess, but the privates have no expenses at all—except on the outside.

BOROUGH'S PETITION HELD UP.

Application for License Fee Reduction May be Decided in the Fall.

The North Plainfield higher license matter, which has been held up in the Somerset County Courts at Somerville ever since the opening of the April term, is still undecided and is sure to be until Friday, July 29, at least, as Judge Schenck, who has the matter under advisement with Justice Garretson, has announced there will be no more Court until that date. It is the usual summer vacation.

The Court may not decide the question until the opening of the September term, as it seems he cannot get Justice Garretson's definite views on the subject, and he will not render his decision until he does.

RICHARD J. PERKINS DROWNED

FORMER PLAINFIELDER LOST HIS LIFE OFF EAST SUFFOLK, L. I.

Richard J. Perkins, of Elizabeth, was drowned off East Suffolk, Long Island, Tuesday afternoon. He was at one time a resident of this city.

It was reported that Perkins had been in bathing when he was seized with a cramp in the water. Another story had it that he fell out of a boat.

Richard Perkins was about 50 years old. He went to Elizabeth about fifteen years ago and previous to that had been the head cutter in the tailoring establishment of Christian Schepflin & Company, in this city.

Perkins is a widower, and is survived by five daughters, two of whom, the Misses May and Margaret Perkins, are teachers in the public schools.

There is one son, Edward Perkins, who went to East Suffolk yesterday to bring home the body of his father.

Mr. Perkins conducted a clothing store on Park avenue where Mrs. Carrie Carbone's place is now, and, later, one where the Sebring clothing store is located. He had a host of friends here as well as in Elizabeth.

ROBT. A. MEEKER ON STATE'S FINE ROADS

Plainfielder Discusses the Influence of Good Roads in New Jersey.

INCREASES POPULATION

ANSWERS TO QUERY AS TO HOW TO KEEP BOY ON THE FARM.

First Agitation Begun by Bicyclist—Though Forty-second in Area, the State Has Twice the Miles of Good Roads as Any Other State.

The July number of The Suburbanite, the Central Jersey Railroad's monthy magazine, which is issued today, contains an article by Robert A. Meeker, of this city, State supervisor of roads. It is entitled "The Influence of Good Roads in New Jersey." Incidently Mr. Meeker says:

"The growth of New Jersey is due in a great measure to her good roads. These induced occasional visitors from New York, Pennsylvania, New England and other sections of our country to become permanent residents among us. These first comers persuaded their friends and relatives to follow them; thus New Jersey drew the brains, energy and capital of other States within her borders to such an extent that in some towns we find the largest taxpayers are natives of some other State.

"It is true our train service is good and our railroads have done much to build up and improve our suburban towns, but how limited these benefits were and how small the local business was until the era of goods roads came. Towns that now have forty trains a day each way were thankful for ten, and the railroad officials often discussed the advisability of reducing the number still lower. No one who commuted dared to live more than a mile from the station. Now some enjoy country life five miles away from the railroad, and, barring an occasional blizzard, feel perfectly sure of reaching the station every day in time for their trains.

"Good air, good water, good churches, good schools and good roads, to bring the people to these blessings, will develop any neighborhood. The first two you may have without good roads; the others cannot attain their full degree of usefulness without improved highways.

"The statistics compiled by our State Board of Education bear most striking evidence to the benefits conferred upon the schools of our State by the good roads which traverse the districts in which they are located. The increase and regularity of attendance is followed by an awakened interest on the part of both parents and pupils in all educational subjects. New topics for discussion arouse and quicken the minds of the people, and, from a state of almost mental stagnation, they are raised to one of lively interest in the subjects that tend to mental and moral advancement.

"How to keep the boy on the farm is a subject that has caused many a parent anxious thought, but with good roads anxiety is changed to complacency, because they have learned and if the boy does go away to the city and is successful, he will come back to the farm to live, at first for the summer, and at last for all the year. If, on the other hand, he is not successful, he is only too happy to return to the parental roof and take up the burden of farm life where he laid it down, finding in driving a good horse over a good road a keener pleasure than he ever experienced in all his city life.

"The influence of good roads is like the ripples made by casting a pebble into a lake of still water—it goes on increasing and spreading, awakening all the dormant life into action, until it reaches the uttermost bound, quickening in its course everything animate and inanimate.

"Every new mode of locomotion designed for use on our highways arouses public interest in the condition of our roads. The first great general agitation of recent times for good roads was begun by the bicyclist.

"When a man had to furnish his own motive power he quickly learned how much greater an expenditure of power was required to propel his wheel over rough, soft and uneven roads and up steep hills than over smooth, hard and even ones, with moderate grades. That patient, long-suffering servant of man, the horse, had tugged and wallowed through mud and panted and pulled up long,

SATURDAY EVENTS AT HILLSIDE CLUB

Semi-final Round for the Three Golf Championship Cups of Chief Importance.

SURPRISES PROBABLE

LIST OF THOSE WHO WILL BATTLE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Finals May Take Place the Same Day—In Addition There Will be Play for Golf Committee Cup.

The play-off, semi-final round, for the golf championship cups, started on Fourth of July, will be the attraction at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club on Saturday. There are three cups to be contested for, one for the first eight; one for the second eight and another for the third eight. In the opening play on Monday there were many surprises, those being picked as probable winners being defeated by those considered not quite so likely. In this respect the calculations of those who follow the game closely went wrong.

For the championship W. L. Glenney will play Walter Peterson, and Leighton Calkins will play H. D. Hibbard. For the consolation cup, (second eight) H. R. Stockton will play George Cathcart and Roger F. Murray will play Howard Huntington. For the cup offered for the third eight, E. E. Iremonger will play H. L. Hall and E. B. Shoemaker will play Evarts Tracy.

In this semi-final play there may be more surprises. It is likely that the winners in each of the three eights may play off in the finals on Saturday, if there is time. If not, it will be postponed until next week.

In addition to the above competition there will be the regular play on Saturday for points on the Golf Committee cup.

ANOTHER NINE HERE, MAYBE

FORMER CITY LEAGUE PLAYERS TALK OF ORGANIZING TEAM.

There continues to be a feeling of unrest among the local ball tossers, many of whom composed the recent Scotch Plains nine, and rumors of efforts to place another team in this city are heard frequently. It is said that some of these who went to New Brunswick on Monday to join Cox's aggregation, afterward learned that their services were only wanted for that day and it was not a steady job.

In view of this these players are now talking of organizing a local nine and making up a schedule for the balance of the season that will give the town two Saturday contests. Jimmie Montrose, Allen, David Smith, Rutherford Dally and Enright are among those interesting themselves in the project. They seem to think that it will be possible to get good grounds and to put up a fine article of ball, one that will attract a large crowd. The only thing now lacking is a capable manager. The players do not wish to undertake the management of the team, preferring that some one not on the nine should be chosen.

The five persons mentioned are all good players and well able to give a good exhibition of the National game, and they think it would be easy to secure four more players to complete the team. Several sites for a diamond have been looked at along the trolley between this city and Scotch Plains, within easy reach either walking or by trolley. The expense of fixing the grounds and putting up seats would not be heavy and the expenses of the team would be light. There is no doubt but what something along this line will be doing before long, unless some of these players find a berth with some other organization soon.

To Speak on Industrial Education.

Rev. Dr. R. D. Stinson, commissioner, Morris-Brown College, Atlanta, Georgia, will make an address in the Mt. Olive Baptist church on Thursday night, July 14, telling of the industrial department at the college. All the trades are taught there and he will tell of the progress made by the colored race. Morris-Brown College is twenty-two years old and it has an excellent reputation. It is supported quite liberally by people of the North and South.

RAGING STORM DID BUT LITTLE DAMAGE

Record Breaking Rainfall Accompanied by Very Sharp Lightning Flashes.

SEVERE IN THE SUBURBS

HOUSES STRUCK AT DUNELLEN AND NEW MARKET.

Trolley Pole Hit and Car Was Aflame—Part of the Fire Alarm Service Put Out of Commission.

The severest electrical storm of the season visited this city during the fore part of last night. Rain fell in torrents, flooding streets throughout the town and testing storm sewers to their limit. In some parts where there are no sewers water rushed through the streets like rivers, making them almost impassable for a time. Accompanying the rain, which began falling between 7:40 and 8:30 o'clock, was a strong wind from the southwest, and a display of lightning that has seldom been seen here. Vivid flashes followed one another in quick succession, while the thunder sounded like the roar of cannonading.

As far as can be learned no houses in this city were struck, but two in the suburbs were hit and slightly damaged. One of the Fourth street trolley cars was struck and put out of business for a time.

Dunellen and New Market received the full force of the storm. Reports from there state that it seemed like the combination of three storms in one. While the lightning was at its worst, a bolt struck the house of William Brokaw, in Dunellen, and another hit the home of States Titsworth, of New Market. The brickwork of the Brokaw chimney was damaged, and a large hole was burned in the roof of the Titsworth house. A screen door of the latter place was demolished by the same bolt, but no one was hurt.

While a car on the Fourth street line was running between Grant and Plainfield avenues, lightning struck the pole. When the conductor pulled the pole down fire broke out in the bottom of the car. The flames were extinguished before much damage had been done.

Except for that incident, the cars were not interfered with, and ran nearly on schedule time. Passengers on open cars had an unhappy time, the curtains affording little or no protection against the driving sheets of water.

Despite the heavy floods that taxed them, all the storm sewers took care of the rushing water. While the unsewered thoroughfares were deeply flooded, the other streets were cleared rapidly by the conduits.

The west side of the city fire alarm system was put out of commission by the lightning at 7:40 o'clock. At 1:30 o'clock the trouble was located and remedied by the telephone linemen, two of whom spent several hours on the task.

Official figures on the downfall, given out this morning by John Neagle, the weather man, put the total amount of rain at 1.85. In the heaviest half hour of the storm one and a half inches of water came down.

MRS. BELLIS BURIED.

Funeral Services Held in the Congregational Church Yesterday.

The funeral services of Mrs. Gabriel H. Bellis, of 123 Elmwood place, were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Congregational church, there being a large attendance of friends, including representatives from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the church, officiated, reading appropriate Scripture selections and making a few remarks. The interment took place in the Methodist cemetery.

Benner Gets Suspended Sentence.

In the Union County Court at Elizabeth yesterday, John H. Benner, of Fanwood, who pleaded guilty to selling liquor without a license, had sentenced suspended on him by Judge Vail.

—Fruit must be good to be worth having in the house. There is no doubt about its goodness—its notable quality—if it is purchased at Neuman Bros. Fine fancy California Rocky Ford muskmelons; fresh figs; juicy plums; fancy Georgia peaches; blackberries, raspberries, huckleberries.

BAPTISTS OFF FOR ASBURY

A LARGE PARTY OF PLAINFIELDERS SPENDING DAY AT THE SHORE.

Despite the fact that the morning looking threatening, the members of the First Baptist church Sunday-school and their friends turned out in fairly large numbers to join in the annual excursion to Asbury Park. Accompanying the First Baptist church were the members of Faith chapel and the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel, and excursionists sufficient in numbers to fill about eleven coaches left the city shortly after 8 o'clock, with prospects for having a good day at the shore. About eight coaches on the first section were filled and about three on the second section.

The slight decrease in numbers was attributed to the fact that heretofore the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church and Sunday-school have accompanied the First Baptist church. This year the colored people went by themselves to South Beach.

SUIT OVER AUTO ACCIDENT

WM. H. ADDIS BRINGS ACTION AGAINST SAMUEL W. RUSHMORE.

William H. Addis, of East Second street, has sued Samuel W. Rushmore in the Supreme Court for $1,000 damages, in compensation for injuries received in an automobile accident.

Addis was knocked down by the Rushmore auto on Richmond street, near South avenue, on May 28. He was injured about the head and arms and back, and was picked up for dead. It took Dr. Endicott a long time to bring him around, and it is claimed that he is still in a serious condition. It is alleged that Rushmore's machine was running at a high rate of speed when the accident occurred.

It is claimed that Rushmore acknowledged his liability, and offered to settle for the injuries inflicted on the victim, but that he has failed to follow his offer with action. The case will probably be tried in the October term of court.

W. A. Coddington, Esq., of the law firm of Reed & Coddington, is conducting the plaintiff's case. Craig A. Marsh, Esq., is the defendant's representative.

PHYSICIANS AT A BANQUET

PLAINFIELD MEDICAL SOCIETY HOLDS ITS QUARTERLY MEETING.

The treatment of catarrh of the stomach was the subject of a paper of unusual interest presented by Dr. William VanV. Hayes, of New York, at the quarterly meeting and banquet of the Plainfield Medical Society held at the Hotel Kensington, last night. After the reading of the paper there was an informal discussion in which many salient points were touched upon. The dinner as served by Proprietor Staats proved very enjoyable.

These physicians were present: Drs. P. J. Zeglio, P. B. Oregar, J. B. Probasco, N. W. Carrie, A. H. Dunden, J. H. Carman, J. Hervey Buchanan, J. T. Fritts, Marcus L. Clawson, Fred Hughes, Albert Pittis, W. Kempton Browning, of this city, and Dr. William VanV. Hayes, of New York.

Queen City Lodge Active.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., met last night and worked the initiatory on six candidates. It was expected that there would be eight, but the severe storm kept two away. At the next meeting it is being planned to work two degrees, and on Wednesday night, July 20, there will be a joint installation of officers from Queen City and Plainfield Lodge, followed by a banquet.

Girls Tennis Contest Planned.

A junior doubles tennis tournament for girls is being arranged by the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club. The girls' singles tournament, just closed, aroused considerable interest and a large entry list is looked for in the proposed doubles contest. Play will probably begin some time next week.

Pictures of Hunt Club.

Two views of the Plainfield Hunt Club riding to hounds are shown in this month's number of The Burr McIntosh Monthly. The plates are remarkably good, which is characteristic of the magazine.

Lost His Bicycle.

Horace Vail, of Orchard place, left his bicycle in front of Tier's for a time yesterday afternoon. When he came out the wheel was gone. The police have been asked to look for it.

MOVING PICTURES AT BAND CONCERT

New Features to be Introduced at the Free Musical Feast Tomorrow Night.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

SOCAL AND PICCOLO SOLOS AMONG THE NUMBERS.

Mayor Smalley Plans to Have Male Quartette as an Attraction at the Next Concert—Public Wants Popular Tunes.

There will be a special feature of entertainment at the band concert tomorrow night. After the final number a set of illustrated views and moving pictures will be shown on a screen set up on the band stand.

The musical programme itself will be an unusually good one. A piccolo solo is number four, and two numbers further on George Offerman will render a vocal solo. In full the programme will be as follows:

March, "The Masterstroke," Lampe; overture, "Raymond," Thomas; concert waltz, "Truthful Eyes," Clauder; piccolo solo, "Thro the Air," Dam, Louis Atz; medley, "At a Concert in the Park," Chattaway; vocal solo, "Please Come and Play in My Yard," Morse; "Isn't it Nice to Have Some One to Love You," Morse, George Offerman; selection, "The Runaways," Hubbell; intermezzo, "Ah-Wa-Ne-Da," Hartz; flower song, "Hearts and Flowers," Tobani; finale, "A Bit of Blarney," Helf; illustrated views and moving pictures.

The moving pictures and stereopticon views are to be striking in character. They may best be seen from the grandstand, which faces the screen directly. Mayor Smalley, who takes a great interest in the concert series, is trying to arrange the formation of a male quartette for the next concert. He believes that the programmes cannot be made too "popular" and is bending every energy to making the concerts as light and interesting as possible.

In company with a good many other people, the Mayor is stoutly standing for the tuneful, full-volumed popular airs as against the technical, anaemic classical compositions. It has been suggested that Bandmaster LaVere submit his list of pieces to a committee of representative citizens, like Mayor Smalley, City Judge William N. Runyon, M. C. VanArsdale and others of that type interested in the concerts, who will decide what is to be played.

IN LOCAL COURTS.

Cases Pending and Decided by Justices of the Peace.

In Justice Hand's court, the contract case of the Rising Sun Brewing Co., against Morris Farbman has resulted in a decision in favor of the plaintiff who gets judgment for $50 and costs.

Landlord and tenant proceedings have been instituted against J. T. Scott, by Harry G. Baker in Justice Hand's court. Papers making the case returnable July 13, have been issued.

The trial of Daniel F. Dugan's landlord and tenant suit against John D. McAleer, has been set down for July 11.

Change in Ticket Agents.

Harry M. Cooke, of the borough, who has been night ticket agent for the New Jersey Central at Liberty street, New York, has been transferred to the eastbound station of the road in this city, succeeding Edward Tomlinson, who resigned.

Child's Birthday Party.

Elizabeth Sheridan, of South Second street, observed the seventh anniversary of her birthday on the Fourth, and in honor of the occasion a party, attended by a host of little people, was held with the usual pleasant features.

Cop to Speak at Y. M. C. A.

Ex-Policeman J. E. Brown, of New York, will address the Y. M. C. A. meeting, at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. There will be good music, fans and iced lemonade.

Musical Service Arranged.

The choir of the First Baptist church will give a musical service Sunday evening. Barnby's Rebekah and other selections will be sung.

You may think this a poor time of the year to talk about coal and furnace fires, but when the snows begins to fly you will find that John Johnston, the South avenue coal dealer, was right when he recommended you to stock up in the warm weather.

Lamb is the favorite meat of many people, especially in the summer season, when other meats are almost too heavy and heating. Fred Endress as the pick of the flock, nothing less will suit him, because he buys with the intention of suiting his customers.

AMUSEMENTS.

Fourth of July at Dreamland, Coney Island, was marked by the opening to the public, of the submarine Boat "Moccasin." Vice president of Dreamland, Eddard O. Boyce, the inventor, has at last completed the construction of the boat which has taken six months. The machinists and ship carpenters worked night and day to finish it. The "Moccasin" is an exact model of the boat of the same name built by the Holland Boat Company for the United States Navy and cost $60,000. Below decks everything is finished in burnished copper and as the boat speeds beneath the waves, visitors can observe through the port-holes, the awful denizens of the deep. This week Dreamland will have a peculiar feature in the exhibition of catalepsy given by M. Papuss, professor of therapeutics and auto-suggestion. Papuss, in full view of the public will mummify himself in four hundred yards of flannel; will throw himself into a trance; will be placed in a glass coffin, submerged in water, where he will remain 175 hours without eating or drinking. The feat which astonished physicians in the principal cities of Europe, is most sensational and has few parallels.

—Capt. James Daly, of the fire department, has started on his annual vacation.

—Charles Fisher and family, of Bound Brook, have moved to North Plainfield.

—Edward Grannatt, of this city, one of the guards chosen by the Government to take a United States payment of gold to Panama, has returned home.

—Calls have been issued for the New Jersey convention and the National convention of the Federation of Catholic Societies, the former gathering to be held in Institute Hall, Newark, Sunday, July 17, and the latter in Detroit, August 2, 3 and 4.

—The Fourth of July crowd which thronged Asbury Park Monday broke all records of previous "Fourths," and it is doubtful if there were ever so many people in town before. The influx for the three days' holiday began early on Saturday, and it is estimated that between Saturday morning and Saturday night 20,000 people were added to the summer visitors.

HAPPY RESULTS.

Have Made Many Plainfield Residents Enthusiastic.

No wonder scores of Plainfield citizens grow enthusiastic. It is enough to make anyone happy to find relief after years of suffering. Public statements like the following are but truthful representations of the daily work done in Plainfield by Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. W. W. Mills, of No. 86 Summit avenue, says: "I suffered at times with a severe pain across the small of my back and in my hips. If I did any lifting or stooping my back became lame and sore, and though I used plasters, they only helped me for the time being. I was feeling very badly when I had my attention called to Doan's Kidney Pills. They were so highly recommended for troubles like mine that I got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I felt their good effects in a few days. When I had finished the treatment my back was better and stronger and I had much more energy to attend to household duties."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

GREAT IS HERMIS.

Test Handicap Won by the Favorite at Brighton Beach.

NEW YORK, July 7.—Fresh from his trip to St. Louis, where he ran second in the $50,000 World's Fair handicap, Hermis, with 133 pounds up, won the Test handicap at the opening of the Brighton Beach Racing association's summer meeting and in doing so equaled the track record for one mile by covering the distance in 1 minute 38 seconds flat. The best previous record was made by Voter, a six-year-old, in 1900, with 122 pounds up. The victory of Hermis was perhaps the most popular victory ever scored on an eastern track. As he turned into the stretch, leading by a length, the great crowd began to cheer, and when victory looked certain a sixteenth of a mile from the wire the cheering became deafening, continued fully five minutes and was renewed when Redfern and Hermis returned to the scales. Hermis pulled up lame in his near fore leg.

Beldame and Hermis opened equal favorites at 6 to 5, but the public was loyal to the Suburban winner and sent him to the post favorite at 13 to 10, while 7 to 5 was laid against Beldame. The start was fair, and Hermis beat the barrier and rushed into the lead, followed by Dick Bernard and Beldame. This order was maintained around the first turn and into the backstretch. Rounding the far turn Hermis was leading by a length and a half. Dick Bernard dropped back beaten, and Beldame moved up into second place and closed a little on Hermis, but was not able to catch the flying leader, who won in a mild drive by one length. Beldame was second, four lengths in front of Dainty.

Tongorder, favorite, won the Montauk stakes by a head.

Waterboy in preparation for the Brighton handicap, to be run Saturday worked a mile and a quarter in 2 minutes 7 seconds.

Seabird Was Last In.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., July 7.—The Lipton cup ocean race has been completed, the Seabird, the last of the fleet, crossing the finish line at 8:24 o'clock last night, having completed the course in 105 hours and 24 minutes, 46 hours and 36 minutes behind the leading boat, the Little Rhody. Captain Thomas Fleming Day of the Seabird, the originator of the race, said that his long sail was due to his failure to carry the northwest breeze out to the Nantucket lightship, as was the case with the other boats.

SEARCH FOR NEGRO

Burlington (N. J.) Mob of Two Thousand Has Rope Ready.

TO AVENGE ASSAULT ON MRS. BIDDLE

William Austin, Arrested at Philadelphia, Confessed Share In the Crime—Lynch Crowd Wants the Leader, Aaron Timber.

BURLINGTON, N. J., July 7.—Excited by a report that Aaron Timber, the negro who, with a companion, is charged with brutally attacking Mrs. Elsie T. Biddle in her home, a mob of more than 2,000 persons surrounded the house of Joseph Timber, a brother of the negro, who lives in the factory woods, near here. The house was thoroughly searched by the mob, but was empty.

While the place was being ransacked Frederick Tallman, a brother of Mrs. Biddle, stood in the backyard with a loaded revolver in each hand. It was his intention to shoot the negro had he been found and attempted to escape by way of the back yard.

Two of the negroes implicated in the assault and robbery of Mrs. Elsie T. Biddle, wife of Charles Biddle, a farmer living on the Rancocas road near Burlington, N. J., are now under arrest, and the authorities of Philadelphia and Burlington county, N. J., hope to have the others within a few hours. William Jones of Philadelphia, one of the two negroes who were arrested in Burlington, was identified by Mrs. Biddle as one of her assailants, but he says that he is innocent. The second arrest was made by Philadelphia detectives. This prisoner is William Austin. He confessed to his part in the outrage and claims there were four men in the affair. Mrs. Biddle says there were only three. Aaron Timber of Burlington, the leader of the gang, is still at large.

The excitement following the outrage is increasing in Burlington, and the county officials are on the alert to nip any attempt at violence. Hundreds of men and boys continue to search the woods surrounding Burlington for Timber, but no trace of him has been found.

Mrs. Biddle came to Burlington and had no difficulty in identifying Jones. A large crowd was assembled outside the lockup, and cries of "Lynch him!" were heard when it was announced that Jones had been identified. Later in the day he was rushed out of the building and taken to the Burlington county jail at Mount Holly.

Mrs. Biddle's brother was with her when she identified Jones, and he made a rush at the negro. The police, however, were on the lookout for such a move and prevented the brother from reaching Jones. The action of the police in quickly taking Jones to Mount Holly was prompted by the information that 200 farmers had been invited to assemble in the City park, Burlington, for the purpose of taking some action. In the crowd that gathered about the lockup was one farmer who carried a sixty foot manila rope.

French Cruiser at St. John's.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 7. — The cruiser Lavoisier, flagship of the French squadron, has arrived here. Her commander will confer with Vice Admiral Sir Archibald Douglas on the flagship Ariadne of the British squadron regarding the revival of serious friction along the French shore owing to misunderstandings between French and Newfoundland fishermen respecting their altered status under the new French shore treaty, which has not yet been ratified. The authorities of both countries regard the situation as very serious.

Quorum to Pass Soldiers' Bill.

HAVANA, July 7.—The house of representatives had a quorum last night for the first time since congress convened on April 4. The Radical soldier members joined their comrades of the Moderate party in bringing about this result. The house approved the credentials of thirteen new soldier congressmen. The Moderates will control the organization of the house. Unless a compromise be effected, however, the deadlock will be resumed after the passing of the soldiers' pay bill and other urgent legislation.

Filipino Students Barred.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 7. — The school board has instructed the high school committee to inform four Filipino students who applied for admission to the Dupont Manual Training High school that their color debars them from the privileges of the public schools. Professor Mark said he had investigated the law as to the separation of races in the schools and found that the word "colored" applied to all except white children—negroes, Indians and those of the brown races.

President Dissatisfied With Chamber

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, July 7.—The chamber of the communes has voted unanimously to censure Minister of Finance Bijou for mismanagement of public finances. The minister was ordered to appear before a commission of inquiry. After the session of the chamber Minister Bijou offered his resignation, but President Nord refused to accept it, declaring that the minister still had his confidence. The president expressed his dissatisfaction with the action of the chamber.

Fishing Steamer a Total Loss.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., July 7.—The fishing steamer Mabel Bird, one of the fleet of the Fisheries Company of New York, ran on Sandy Cove ledge, claimed by her captain to be incorrectly charted, off Salisbury beach, and will be a total loss.

A RIOT OF CHEERING

Democratic Convention Went Wild Over Cleveland.

TIM MURPHY OF ST. LOUIS ARRESTED

Chairman Williams Lost All Control and Could Only Watch the Wild Disorder of Delegates—Nominations May Come Today.

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—Mention of the name of Grover Cleveland in the Democratic national convention, which is expected positively to nominate Judge Parker, caused such a riot of cheering that one delegate was arrested, and Temporary Chairman John Sharp Williams had to sit down in the middle of his speech and wait for order.

Mr. Williams had declared that it was brazen effrontery for the Republican party to attempt to seize the laurels of Grover Cleveland. A genuine outburst of applause followed. Cheer after cheer rolled through the hall, and, although the chairman used the gavel vigorously, the convention was soon beyond his control.

New Hampshire delegates climbed upon their seats and yelled vigorously. One Iowa man of the Hearst instructed delegation from that commonwealth stood up and waved his hat frantically, and a wild chorus answered him.

"Three cheers for Grover Cleveland," shouted an Alabama delegate, and they came with genuine power and enthusiasm.

No cry came from Nebraska, where Mr. Bryan and his friends sat quietly, without taking part in the noise. Again and again the cheering came in dense volume despite numerous cries of "Order."

Then Mr. Williams sat back and watched the scene he had created. As the cheers and cries fell there would be a renewed outbreak, and the demonstration lasted eight minutes.

Tim Murphy of St. Louis, standing in the center aisle and encouraging the demonstration, was first requested to take his seat and then ejected from the hall by John I. Martin, sergeant at arms. Murphy was rushed toward the platform by Martin, through a railing and down a narrow stairway leading under the stage.

Another encounter between Murphy and Martin took place in the passageway under the stage. Murphy then permitted himself to be taken from the hall by two officers.

Murphy said that he tried to assist in securing quiet, but his efforts were misunderstood, and at the direction of Sergeant at Arms Martin he was forcibly ejected from the floor by a police officer and landed among the newspaper men. He was finally taken from the building by the police in charge of Captain Schroeder.

For several minutes after the Murphy incident the demonstration continued. Finally, in desperation, Mr. Williams threatened to discontinue his speech.

"You have placed me here. I am your servant. If you don't want me to continue it is your pleasure," he cried.

This announcement was effective, and Mr. Williams secured control, the demonstration that his mention of Cleveland had caused dying slowly out.

The committee on permanent organization selected Joseph W. Bailey of Texas for permanent chairman, defeating Champ Clark of Missouri.

James K. Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the national committee, went on the platform and took his seat unnoticed. Practically no greeting was given him when he faced the convention with gavel in hand.

There were other stalwart lieutenants of the Nebraskan who entered the hall unacclaimed, and lastly Mr. Bryan himself, who, for the first time during two national campaigns, was greeted with silence. Eight minutes after the gavel fell the twice named candidate of his party passed in the main entrance and sought his seat unheralded and unheeded. A few moments later he arose and pushed his way to a seat nearer the aisle, where, standing a moment to give greetings to friends, he was caught sight of and applauded. But the measure of applause was but a ripple when compared to the storm called forth by Cleveland's name.

Listening attentively to the Democratic doctrine laid down by Mr. Williams, the conservatives found occasion for the first demonstration when reference was made to the record of former President Cleveland. All the shackled party interest which had lain dormant through two national campaigns was released as by the touch of a trigger.

The name of Cleveland was echoed from a thousand throats. Hats, handkerchiefs, fans and arms were waved, delegates and spectators stood on their chairs, and the last semblance of order was turned into confusion, which convention officials were powerless to subdue.

While the outburst was at its height Mr. Bryan's following attempted to convert the demonstration into applause for their leader. The name of Bryan was yelled lustily, but in vain. Shouting of "Grover" and "Cleveland" was renewed, and the Bryan following was hissed. The greatest significance was attached to the showing made by the conservatives. Their absolute control of the convention is no longer doubted even by those who have heretofore declined to be convinced. The nomination of Judge Parker for president is assured beyond any possibility of defeat.

When the committee on rules met the Illinois member, F. P. Morris, proposed that a simple majority only be required to nominate candidates and not a two-thirds majority, as has been the practice since 1832.

"We ought not to expose ourselves," said G. F. Milton of Tennessee, "to the charge that we desire to nominate Judge Parker by a device contrary to the usual course. I am from a state whose people want Parker, the delegation wants him, and I want him, but we would injure him and ourselves were we to change the time honored rules."

Colonel Thomas F. Grady of New York, who had been chosen chairman, said:

"The two-thirds rule was first adopted to prevent the control of the party by a section of the country. It was not then dreamed that the west would develop as a counterweight to the east. After the sectional danger was passed the rule was continued so that delegates from Republican portions of the country should not be able to nominate the candidates."

The committee applauded Mr. Handy's remark that Democrats hoped to see the Filipinos soon electing their own president, while Porto Rico was indissolubly bound to the United States.

Dr. Mary Walker asked the committee to recommend the admission of women delegates. Colonel Grady said that question was not within the purview of the committee.

It is reported that Senator Bailey has declined to serve as permanent chairman and has asked the committee to reconsider its decision.

The Maryland delegation at a meeting decided to vote for Parker.

Tammany men announced that directly after the adjournment of the convention yesterday they would hold a meeting and withdraw their objections to Judge Parker. They concede his nomination.

It is understood that in view of Bailey's refusal to serve as permanent chairman the place has been offered to Champ Clark of Missouri.

The vice presidential situation was tersely stated by Major G. V. Menzier of Indiana, himself a vice presidential possibility, when he said:

"We will finish the nomination of a presidential candidate before we go to warring about the second place on the ticket. Like the lamented father of the immortal Huckleberry Finn, our motto is, 'Meat first and spoon vittles afterwards.'"

It is said today that if the platform and the credentials committee reports are not contested at length the convention may proceed to nominate a candidate. It is the general impression among the Parker people that there will not be much of a fight. William F. Sheehan said:

"It is quite possible that we will proceed to nominate this afternoon or tonight." Senator Hill said:

"If our work is cleared up to that point, I do not know why we should not go on and nominate."

Judge Parker on His Farm.

KINGSTON, N. Y., July 7.—To see Judge Alton B. Parker at his beautiful home, Rosemont, on the bank of the Hudson, a mile east of Esopus station, one would little imagine him personally interested in the outcome of the national convention of a great political party which within twenty-four hours will in all probability nominate him for the presidency of the United States. In the coolest and most spotless of white flannels he sat upon the wide veranda and chatted with his usual freedom and cordiality upon any subject save that of his own candidacy. To that subject he never even remotely refers, and by no verbal strategy can he be entrapped into the slightest allusion to it. He has rather pointedly intimated, indeed, that his silence on the subject would be broken only upon the occasion of the formal and official notification of his nomination.

MAHAN AT LONDON.

Said World Would Be a Gainer From Imperial Federation.

LONDON, July 7.—Captain A. T. Mahan, U. S. N., retired, was the guest of honor at the dinner of the Imperial Federation league last night. Sir John Colomb, M. P., presided, and many prominent persons were present.

Captain Mahan, who was given a rousing reception, said he saw no reason why all communities under the British flag should not be combined for one great policy. All Americans, he said, were greatly interested in the federation movement, which in its inception and its future was so closely analogous to that of the United States, which had an interest therein greater than that of mere sympathy—it was that of self interest.

It was very largely to the interest of the United States, Captain Mahan said, that the various communities of English speaking peoples should become so far capable of coincident action, so far united, as to be able to exert their power as one great nation. It was not only to the interest of the United States, but to that of the world at large, that the movement for the imperial federation of the British empire should succeed.

BIRTH OF REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Secretary Hay at Jackson the Orator of the Anniversary.

JACKSON, Mich., July 7. — Nearly 10,000 people assembled in a picturesque oak grove in the outskirts of this city to celebrate the semicentennial anniversary of the birth of the Republican party. It was a smaller oak grove at the opposite end of Jackson that fifty years ago the first state convention was held under the name of "Republican" took place. Here the initial Republican state ticket was then placed in nomination.

Secretary of State John Hay was the orator of the day, and United States Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, Republican candidate for vice president, and Speaker Joseph G. Cannon of the national house of representatives were also present and delivered addresses. On the platform was seated a representative delegation of the Republican leaders of this state, headed by United States Senators R. A. Alger and J. C. Burrows.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 7.—Frank O. Lambert of Worcester, Mass., who has been in the employ of the law department of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad as a secret service agent, is under arrest at police headquarters charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. It is alleged that he offered to give information regarding thieves who had obtained tickets from the railroad and who were selling them at cut rates and that after he was employed by the road as a secret agent he failed to make good his promise.

TOGO MEETS DEFEAT

Destroyers Attempt to Torpedo Russian Ships.

TWO JAPANESE SHIPS DESTROYED

Four Torpedo Boats Entered the Harbor—Only One Escaped Heavy Fire of Czar's Gunners—More Fighting In Motien Pass.

LONDON, July 7.—Advices from St. Petersburg say that Admiral Togo has made a bold attempt to repeat the Japanese exploit with torpedo boats at Weihaiwei during the Chino-Japanese war by sending torpedo boat destroyers into the harbor of Port Arthur to sink the Russian warships at their anchorage, but the attempt ended in disastrous failure.

Four torpedo boat destroyers succeeded during the night in creeping into the harbor, which was not protected by booms, but only one escaped. Two were sunk by the shore batteries and one crippled.

The reckless bravery of the Japanese in going to almost certain destruction excites nothing but admiration here. The channel at Port Arthur is so tortuous and strewn with wrecks without that evidently it was regarded as unnecessary to use a boom.

On account of the difficulty of getting into the harbor the feat is considered in naval circles to be fully as daring as that at Weihaiwei, where Japanese torpedo boats in a storm and covered with ice were jumped over the booms protecting that harbor and destroyed Chinese warships.

So far as known the Japanese torpedo boat destroyers did not even succeed in launching torpedoes.

Though it is believed other destroyers participated in the attack, only four succeeded in getting in.

The admiralty has no confirmation of the report from Liaoyang of an engagement between the Vladivostok squadron and Japanese warships off Gensan.

A Fusan report says that two battalions of Russians attempted to break through the Japanese outposts at the northern entrance of Motien pass. Before daylight they surrounded an outpost of eighty men at the foot of a hill and charged the trench above. A bloody encounter with bayonets lasting a quarter of an hour ensued. The Russians attacked the trench three times, but were driven up the valley by a Japanese re-enforcement, leaving many dead and wounded. An observer saw fifty lying in front of the trench.

Military experts at St. Petersburg say that the siege of Port Arthur, the holding and fortifying of the mountain passes, a juncture of the forces of Generals Kuroki and Oku and possibly an extension of the line to the west coast of Liautong in order to force out the Russians from Newchwang so that they may secure a new base there is conservatively regarded as the Japanese programme for the next two months.

How General Kuropatkin intends to oppose this plan is largely guesswork, though his advance posts are extremely active.

A current rumor is to the effect that General Kuropatkin telegraphed Emperor Nicholas that he would not accept a general engagement. Whether or not this is true, it is the view of the general staff that the postponement of a decisive battle until the end of the rainy season will by giving the commander in chief time to bring up many thousands of re-enforcements be almost as good as victory.

Nothing official has been given out here regarding the torpedo attack at Port Arthur. Additional details are awaited from Rear Admiral Withoft, commanding the naval forces at Port Arthur.

A Tientsin report says that the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Lieutenant Burukoff, which successfully ran the blockade at Port Arthur and reached Newchwang June 29 with advices for St. Petersburg from the beleaguered fortress, has returned safely to Port Arthur.

Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky has succeeded Rear Admiral Withoft at Port Arthur.

Supplemental dispatches from Tokyo indicate that the fight at Motienlien pass was a desperate hand to hand affair. A majority of the Japanese injured were wounded by bayonets. The Russians surrounded the outposts of the Japanese, who fought until relief came.

Tokyo advices say that Field Marshal Oyama, commander in chief of the Japanese field forces, accompanied by Generals Kodama and Fukushima and a numerous staff, has departed for the front, embarking at Simonoseki. There was a remarkable farewell demonstration. The three generals were cheered all along the route at Tokyo. Troops lined the platform at the station, and when the train started there was tremendous cheering, while the band played "Auld Lang Syne." A short stop was made at Yokohama.

Young Mother and Child's Fate.

UNION HILL, N. J., July 7.—A young woman about twenty-five years of age, well dressed and carrying a fourteen-month-old baby in her arms, committed suicide here by jumping into the Hackensack river. When the woman jumped she still held the child in her arms. Both bodies were recovered, but there was nothing on the clothing to aid the police in identifying them.

Plainfield, N. J., July 7, 1904.

Reports from St. Louis indicate that the Democratic convention delegates are suffering from the heat. Later advices state that the Tammany crowd finds it very chilly.

Fairbanks is called the "Tall Sycamore of the Wabash." If all the "tall sycamores" were gathered together they would make quite a respectable sized quantity of political timber.

Plainfield is having a lot of trouble in planning the erection of that $125,000 high school, but when the building is a reality the people will congratulate themselves that no undue haste was used.

The silence of Judge Parker is a refreshing incident of current political happenings. Had Bryan talked less when in the heigh-day of his glory he might have fared better. It's the wise man that talks little and thinks much, especially in politics.

The Chicago Tribune's Fourth of July statistics show that a whole pile of money was wasted throughout the country in firecrackers and fireworks. But nobody seems to be sorry except 1,384 who were seriously injured. The opinion of twenty-five persons can not be obtained, however, they having passed to the great beyond as a result of a too strenuous celebration.

Mayor Smalley's suggestion that the programme at the free band concerts be confined to popular airs will meet with the hearty approval of the public. It's the masses who attend these open-air concerts and what they want is the tuneful and catchy music, such as is heard at the roof gardens and similar attractions in summer time. Classical music is all right for the parlor or an elaborate recital, in a public hall where it is appreciated by those who enjoy the productions of the masters, but that's not what the general run of people want—especially in summer time. Give us the popular airs every time, Mr. LaVere!

The Republican party as a political organization reached its fiftieth year of existence—and prosperity—yesterday. On July 6, 1854, the first convention of the party took place. The meeting was held at Jackson, Michigan, and it is safe to say that few among those who assembled there that day had any idea of what a powerful organization it would become. Its history has filled a bright page in American politics. At its birth, the slave question was paramount among the problems of government. The first President elected by the vote of the Republican party solved that problem. Since that time the party has been continued in power, except for a period of eight years, down to the present. Great issues have confronted the country from time to time, and through them great names have been added to American history. The party starts in its present campaign with practically one issue—"stand pat,"—believing that its history is a sufficient warrant that it will administer the affairs of the Nation to the best interests of the whole people.

In another column is published some interesting extracts from an article on the "Influence of good roads in New Jersey." Mr. Meeker, the author, whose experience, at least, as State Supervisor of Roads entitles him to be considered an authority on the subject, points out the fact that although New Jersey is forty-second in size among the States it has today twice as many miles of good roads as any sister State. New York, Pennsylvania and other States may be much wealthier but do not spend their funds so wisely. In this State it was recognized long ago that the public schools and the public highways should be of the highest standard and the policy of developing them has been adhered to from year to year. Vast sums have been appropriated by the State for these two purposes and as a result New Jersey stands today without a superior in public educational facilities and without a peer in good roads.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A meeting of the New Market Y. M. A. was held on Tuesday evening and the question was discussed as to whether the series with Dunellen should be resumed or not. Several disputes during the game last Saturday made it advisable to consider the discontinuance of the series. After considerable heated discussion it was decided that it would be for the best interests of the sport to play the rest of the games. According to the schedule the next contest will take place on July 16, at Dunellen. It is needless to say that both sides will be out for blood on that occasion.

Rev. L. E. Livermore has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church to take effect in September. This action has been taken by Mr. Livermore in order to gain a much needed rest and to afford better opportunity for his wife to recover her health. In September Mr. Livermore will remove to his wife's old home in Connecticut.

The young daughter of Mr. Walters, of Front street, sustained a bad cut in her forehead yesterday afternoon, by falling against a stone while playing. Dr. Brakeley was called and was obliged to use a couple of stitches to close the wound.

The Dunellen A. C. will cross bats with the Reform A. A. on Saturday on the local grounds. Dunelein won, 10 to 9, in the former contest, which lasted for ten innings and Saturday's game should be a corker.

The running catch "Shorty" Alberts made in Monday's game with Garwood was the best seen on the Madison avenue grounds this season. "Shorty" is about the best in the fielding line.

Colonel "Jack" McMahon has recovered from a slight attack of indigestion, brought on by the excitement prior too and during last Saturday's ball game.

Last night's hard storm did little damage in town and a vast amount of good as all the gardens and lawns were badly in need of water.

Miss Eva Bodine, of Westfield, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Bodine, of Dunellen avenue.

Mrs. Joseph Kissam, of New York, has returned home after a visit at the home of James Craig.

Alvah Gray has been improving the looks of his property by making extensive repairs.

Mrs. Edward Lewis is confined to her home by an attack of nervous prostration.

The Aluminum Press Company sent away a large press yesterday afternoon.

Henry Garretson spent yesterday afternoon in New Brunswick on business

Miss Mary Opdyke has been entertaining a friend from out-of-town.

Prayer meeting was held in the Presbyterian church last evening.

Charles Kelley spent yesterday afternoon in Plainfield on business.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

George Stillger, who has been spending two months with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stillger, has returned to his home in San Francisco, Cal. On his way across the continent Mr. Stillger stopped over for several days at the St. Louis Fair.

steep hills, never protesting until his strength was exhausted. But as man has never been endowed with the patience of the horse, he protested as soon as he was called upon to display the same uncomplaining endurance. Protest after protest was made through the public prints and in the halls of our Legislature, until the matter was taken up by our lawmakers, with the result that New Jersey, though forty-second in area, has today twice as many miles of good roads as any State in the Union.

"For years it was charged that New Jersey was out of the Union. If it is the bad road union that pervades the United States that is meant, we are only to glad of the opportunity to plead guilty to the charge, for we are not only out of the bad road union, but mean to keep out as long as we can."

LIBERTY CORNER CELEBRATION.

People of the Village Have a Rousing Fourth.

The Fourth was observed at Liberty Corner by the raising of a flag pole and flag in the morning under the auspices of the Improvement Society and by a festival on the church grounds in the evening. The flag pole, which was the gift of E. H. Schley, proprietor of the Somerset Inn, was erected at the intersection of the roads from which the village derives part of its name and probably on the very spot where a liberty pole stood during the War of the Revolution. After the pole had been put in place patriotic exercises were held in the open air. The exercises consisted of the singing of National airs and an address by Rev. C. B. Condit, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Liberty Corner.

During the course of his remarks, Mr. Condit said that in his opinion as every village had a church with its spire pointing men to the world above, so every village should have a flag floating over it to remind the people of their duties as American citizens, but especially should Liberty Corner have a pole and a flag because her name and her historic connection. Not far from the village Washington passed with a part of his army and through it General Lee was taken after his capture by the British.

The speaker then went on to say that the flag represents the Nation and stands for the Nation. We think of the flag of Russia as standing for tyranny and oppression, but the American flag stands for something better. It stands for Independence, which our fathers won during the Revolutionary war; it stands for liberty, both civil and religious, which was purchased with our independence; it stands for progress, for the life of the Nation has ever been one of development and growth; it stands for righteousness for whatever may have been the Nation's mistakes and wrongs she has ever stood for honest and fair play. The speaker closed with an appeal for greater devotion to the flag and our country.

ON A COUNTRY ROAD

IT FURNISHES MANY BITS OF INTEREST TO THE STUDENT.

What It Pays to Look For on Our Rambles — The Little Things That Make the World Brighter.

Yesterday I tramped for many miles along a country road. The morning was cloudy, but fresh and cool for the time of year, and one could stride out in comfort. In passing along the main street of the village where I had spent the night, I noticed a number of birds, busy with domestic duties. Three pairs of orioles were building their gray, sack-like nests in the pendant branches of the elms which arched the road, and a bluebird, with a yellow grub in his bill, hovered near a bird box nailed in an apple tree close to a first floor window. In one neatly-kept garden, with a lawn on both sides of the path, there were two white poles set up, one in either lawn. From one fluttered the American flag, while upon the other was perched a well-made martin house, around which six or eight stately martins sailed in circles, some of them singing their soft liquid songs, and at times alighting on what might be termed the piazzas of the miniature dwelling itself. At one of the upper windows of their home, two bright-faced children were eagerly watching the birds, and nudging one another to notice each movement of the handsome swallows.

In a few minutes I reached the open country, where, for a mile or two, the fragrant daisy fields stretched on either side of the road. From these fields the meadow larks were calling, and the bobolinks, rising and falling, fairly trembled with the energy of their song. By the sides of the roads great masses of buttercups were abloom, taking the place of the dandelions, whose seeds were flying in clouds before every gust of wind.

Crossing a stone bridge I noticed a phoebe sitting on a telegraph wire nearby, and taking the hint I leaned over the side to look down upon the back of another little flycatcher, as she sat upon her nest, built upon a projecting bit of masonry. She could see me, too, and after fidgeting for a moment, she joined her mate on the telegraph wire, where both birds were soon busy pressing their feathers. In the nest were five pure white eggs, lying in a little bowl of gray felt, which, in turn was surrounded by mud and moss. I was still looking over the side of the bridge, when the rattle of a kingfisher attracted my attention, and up the river came a streak of blue, which ended at a willow branch stretching far out over the water. The bird had a good-sized fish in his bill, and perhaps because my presence disconcerted him, he seemed as though he didn't know what to do with it. But rattling angrily, as a dog might growl on being interrupted at a meal, he dropped from his perch and passed upstream to a more secluded landing place.

For a time the road ran between high, steeps banks, gay with Robin's plantain, and then it dipped down into a hollow, where, in the wet land on either side, grew myriads of purple iris. Now and then in some spot more wet than the rest, a little pond would appear, its stagnant water made interesting by the reflection of a beautifully clouded sky and a dotting of yellow water lilies.

Suddenly, the stillness of the morning was broken by the yelp of a dog, and, looking over the fence, I saw a big gray woodchuck tearing through the grass toward a stone wall, with a fox terrier in hot pursuit. The woodchuck won the race, and with one terrific whistle, disappeared among the friendly stones. The terrier, an instant too late, was greatly excited, sniffing at the hole where the 'chuck had vanished, and dancing about and yapping in his eagerness. Once or twice he looked at me and wagged his tail, perhaps with an impression that I might pull out a stone or two and let him settle his difficulties with his foe. But I didn't take the hint, and left him to enjoy the odor of woodchuck at a safe distance.

Birds were everywhere, and in good variety. About a little cottage near the roadside, a pair of yellow warblers were flitting, and from their actions I suspect that they had a nest in a clump of elderberry bushes in a corner of the garden. Several times I saw chimney swifts drop down the chimneys of deserted houses, and in and out of the belfry of an old church, a troop of barn swallows flew, crying "Kitty, Kitty," as they came and went. And once as I passed a well-appointed cottage I saw a newly-made barn swallow's nest, plastered to a slight projection of the woodwork on the under side of the piazza. Never did I hear so many song sparrows singing in so short a time, and every few minutes I heard the call of cedar waxwings, as small flocks passed overhead. Chipping sparrows, too, sang with an earestness worthy of a better performance, and the vigorous "preaching" of the red-eyed vireo was almost incessant.

Toward evening I came to some woodland where I heard the black-throated green warbler, the ovenbird and the warbling vireo, and where I saw the flicker go bounding off through the trees. And as the night fell, and I sat upon a high bank overlooking a valley, the voice of a whip-poor-will burst from the gathering mists beneath me, and for a long time I sat and listened to the weird call as it rose and fell, as the mysterious bird passed from point to point on business of his own.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 10.

Topic.—Some modern idols and how to overthrow them.—Luke xii, 15-21; Phil. iii, 17-19.

Idolatry is a very ancient institution and was practiced by practically all the ancient peoples. The people of God were many times led into this sin, and it was not until after the Babylonish captivity that they were entirely cured of this great sin. The word "idol" in its original form meant "that which is seen," and idolatry, therefore, was the worshiping of God by visible representations. Sometimes these were visible parts of the universe, such as the sun or moon or the images that were made by the idolaters themselves. But, while technically an idol is a visible object worshiped in place of God, yet practically anything that takes the place of God in our hearts and lives is an idol. It is true that "the modern objects of idolatry are less gross than the ancient, but are none the less idols. Whatever of wealth or honor or pleasure is loved and sought before God and righteousness becomes an object of idolatry." Though modern idols are invisible, they are none the less idols, and those who worship them are none the less idolaters.

Some modern idols are suggested in the topical references for our special study. (1) Wealth. The expression "Money is king" is a common one today, and it does have a wide supremacy. But money is not only king, but an idol. It occupies the supreme place in many lives. God has been set aside and in His place the golden calf has been set up, and it is doubtful if gold ever had so many devotees as today. The man who asked Christ to compel his brother to divide the inheritance with him may have had a legal right to all he asked, and yet how truly money must have been his god, when, standing before the Son of God, his uppermost thought was about money instead of about Christ! If he could use Christ to obtain money for himself, well and good, but there is no record of his having followed Christ after He refused to act as judge between him and his brother. And many today, like this man, have made money so supreme in their lives that they follow Christ if it increases their fortune, and leave Him if it does not. (2) Worldliness. What a striking illustration of worldliness we have in the foolish rich man in the parable of Christ following the preceding incident! With enlarged barns, bursting with grain, the rich man said, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease—eat, drink, be merry." What a foolish man! How could he feed his "soul" with material things? It feeds upon other things. What assurance had he that he had many years before him? None, for he did not have them. God said, "Thou fool, this night shalt thy soul be required of thee." But how many today still worship the idol of epicureanism! But in the light of its absolute failure to satisfy the soul it is a wonder how they can do so. (3) Appetite. Paul thus characterized a certain class of people in his letter to the Philippians. Physical appetites are the gods of many people, and they waste and wreck their lives in overeating or in fostering appetites for other things that ruin and destroy them.

How may these modern idols be overthrown? It depends upon the idol. (1) If money be your god, overthrow it by giving in the name of Jesus. Christian liberality is the best safeguard against miserliness and the best antidote for the worship of money. (2) If worldliness be your god, look at the supreme folly of worshiping the trifling, transient, uncertain toys of life while neglecting God and eternal things. (3) If appetite be your god, look at the ruin and destruction it causes. By the grace of God overcome these baser powers of your nature.

Committee Pointers.

No chairman of any committee ought to do any work in the name of the committee without consulting the whole committee.

If the prayer meeting leader is not on time, let some one be prepared to promptly open the service. Begin on time if only the leader is present, or, the leader failing, the one who is there begin.

Every society that is troubled with people who don't know how to act in church should have a "whatsoever" committee to teach manners.

God Everywhere.

To the true Christian every school will be a school of Christ. On the ample leaf of knowledge, whether it be rich with the secrets of nature or with the spoils of time, he will read no name save the name of God. The great stone pages of the world will have it carved upon them legibly, as on the granite tables of Sinai, and stars will sing of it in their courses. Each science, each history, each literature, will be to him but a fresh volume of divine revelation. We were not meant to leave these volumes clasped, or to suffer the book of life to drop out of our hands unread.

Like Him.

It is the spirit of that life to which we should attain. It is not by saying Christ's words or by doing Christ's acts, but it is by breathing His Spirit that we become like Him.—F. W. Robertson.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

July 10: "Modern Idols and Their Overthrow."—Luke xii, 15-21; Phil. iii, 17-19.

Mammon led them on;
Mammon, the least erected spirit that fell
From heaven, or e'en in heaven his looks and thoughts
Were always downward bent, admiring more
The riches of heaven's pavement, trodden gold,
Than aught, divine or holy, else enjoyed
In vision beatific.

Milton also represents him as the teacher of men in their search of the earth for riches hidden in its depths.

Modern idols are but the same powers worshiped by men in former ages. They may have been regilded and new robed, placed on new pedestal and renamed, but in nature they remain unchanged and their worship feeds the same lusts of human nature as of old.

We need daily food. The earth yields the things which satisfy hunger, but we obtain them with toil and at expense of sweat and weariness. A surplus above present needs brings the test to the spirit of moral choosing. The grain is of value for food and for seed of future harvests—only this, and nothing more. When our harvest exceeds the requirements of our hunger and the seed for future sowing, what shall we do with the rest? Our decision not only reveals our nature, but determines our character and place. By it we choose our God and fix our worship and make our own world to be.

Distribution of surplus above our present needs, to feed the hunger of others and as seed for their planting, because the harvest is Jehovah's and we are his stewards, is a course capable of clear understanding, which can be worked practically. It is reasonable and can be made highly successful. It secures the highest good of the many in body and spirit and brings supreme satisfaction to the doer.

The one who distributes recognizes himself and is recognized by his fellows as God's representative in these things and is honored of God as such. God is glorified so far as men are benefited. Men are made more manly and hence more godly, and the heavenly elements of right moral being are established more firmly in individuals and in the life of the community. The aim is the building of manhood on God's pattern and for God.

But the holder of surplus stock may decide to become a barn builder merely. He cannot eat more than he has done. We will not be able to use all for seed, for his acreage has limits, and labor cannot be commanded for the cultivating of more. He can hoard his stock and cease planting and eat in coming years from his accumulation or he can keep on planting and hoarding and building barns. It resolves itself into the question at last, Which is of more value—men or barns? Which would you rather be—a barn builder and manager or a helper of men into higher and broader living?

Barns may burn; must rot with time. Old grain gets musty and harbors vermin. All you get you shall soon leave, and others will use it as they please. He who builds manliness in self and others for God feeds self and them on ever fresh harvests and build habitations for God's Spirit, which shall abide eternally in increasing strength and beauty. Better worship God than Mammon.

So of every other idol, ancient and modern.

Gratification of bodily lusts at the expense of soul purity is poor business. It bankrupts the man in both health and soul and cheats him of heaven finally.

Better build heavenly mansions than earth barns and fleshly booths.

The Evil of Sin.

To none is Christ precious who has not some adequate sense of the evil of sin. Only he who has felt the burden of his sins knows the relief experienced when that burden fell off as he saw Jesus as his Saviour. As years roll on this sense of relief does not lessen. Doubt and uncertainty may be long past, but the enlightened Christian has attained to a more perfect conception of the spirituality of God's law. More and more he recognizes his constant failures, his omissions, his ignorance and his coldness; more and more he recognizes the necessity of the hourly application of Christ's blood to remove the stains of his daily walk, and as he looks at the sufferings of Christ, though he may confidently rest in their sufficiency, he is ever more and more humbled at the knowledge that they were in part caused by himself.—Episcopal Recorder.

Genius and Love.

Genius may require an interpreter, but love speaks a language which all can understand.—Presbyterian Messenger.

One of These Days.

One of these days it will all be over,
Sorrow and parting, and loss and gain,
Meetings and partings of friends and lover,
Joy that was ever so edged with pain.
One of these days will our hands be folded,
One of these days will the work be done,
Finished the pattern our lives have molded,
Ended our labor beneath the sun.

One of these days will the heartache leave us,
One of these days will the burden drop;
Never again shall a hope deceive us,
Never again will our progress stop.
Freed from the blight of vain endeavor,
Winged with the health of immortal life,
One of these days we shall quit forever
All that is vexing in earthly strife.

One of these days we shall know the reason,
Haply, of much that perplexes now;
One of these days in the Lord's good season
Light of His peace shall adorn the brow,
Blest, though out of tribulation,
Lifted to dwell in His sun bright smile,
Happy to share in the great salvation,
Well may we tarry a little while.
—Songs in the Night Watches.

Care of The Baby

Things All Mothers Should Know

"IT is perfectly wonderful, considering the ignorance of most parents, that so many children survive the vicissitudes of the first two years they spend on this earth," remarked the doctor as he administered a dose of medicine to small Tommy, who was laid up as a result of sucking a piece of steak given to him because "he looked so cunning when he begged for it."

Tommy's mother looked properly meek and humble.

"My dear child," resumed the doctor, "please remember that a small specimen of humanity is much better without meat during the first two years of its life, and even during the second two years it needs mighty little of it."

A CHILD OF TWO SHOULD BE ABLE TO WALK WELL.

"But he seems to want variety, doctor, and I can't keep him always on"—

"Certainly not," interrupted the doctor. "Porridge and milk is all very fine for breakfast and tea in the nursery, but it should be varied occasionally with bread and butter, or dripping, with an egg or fried bacon. Breadcrumbs and bacon fat make a capital breakfast, after a small saucer of porridge, for a child of two. They help to obviate the need of aperients. So do also ripe and well stewed fruit and well cooked vegetables. Uncooked vegetables, such as radishes, lettuce and cucumbers, should never be given to young children, especially in this hot weather. Remember that diarrhea is more dangerour for young children than for adults. When the former suffer from it, it is usually the fault of those who have charge of them. And, by the way, the flannel abdominal band should not be left off until all the teeth are set, and even then not until the really warm days have begun."

"I was so worried, doctor, because Tommy didn't walk until he was nearly two years old."

"Well, children do develop differently, some more rapidly than others, but nevertheless when the second year is ended there are certain things every child ought to be able to do. For instance, a child of two should be able to walk well. If it cannot do this there is undoubtedly something wrong, very probably rickets, and a doctor should be consulted. By walking well it is not meant that the child should be allowed to stand on its feet much. At two it still toddles and it should on no account be taken walking by its nurse. The spine in childhood is different from what it is in later years. In the child the spine is composed of separate bones. In the adult some of these have become united so that the spine is stronger and less readily injured by jolts or jars. Curvature is always started in early youth when the bones are not properly hardened. The position of a young child propped up in an erect cart is very injurious to its spinal column."

"How about teething, doctor?"

"At two teething should be almost if not quite completed. All the first set of twenty teeth should be cut by then, but sometimes there is a delay of two or three months in the coming of the four back teeth at the extreme end of the jaw. This need cause no uneasiness, but if the child has only cut half a dozen teeth at the end of two years then something is the trouble. At the end of the second year also the fontanelle should be closed. This is the space between the two sections of the skull. It remains open after birth to allow of the growth of the brain. The fontanelle is a good index of the baby's condition in illness. If it becomes depressed—that is to say, falls in—it is a serious symptom."

"And when should a baby be able to talk?"

"At two it should have mastered the first difficulties of speech, for every normal child should be able to pronounce some words when it has completed its twenty-fourth month. Many indeed by that time can chatter pretty freely."

"Is crying always harmful?"

"Not a bit of it, my dear madam! A good healthy cry with plenty of tears is actually good for the child."

SPANISH PEGGY

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

Shickshack's wife gave Peggy many tasks to do, but in a house where there was no home-making, strewn with the appointments of a dirty camp, the tasks were sordid and often useless. Sally let pots and kettles litter the hearth, her cob pipe dropped ashes into a dinner hanging on the crane; joists were grimy, and dust stood thick on the pewter she got with her first husband and was too stingy to use. But her splint-bottomed chairs had to be scoured with soap and sand every week, and she made the lame girl, in deerskin dress, creep inch by inch over the luncheon floor, cleaning it by the same hard process. When the weather was bad Peggy's tasks were doubled, and her struggle with marks of New Salem clay became hopeless.

Shickshack's wife never seemed to look up; plodding along the street, her stolen eyes fixed on the ground, she exchanged no word with a neighbor. Shickshack's disgust was extreme with sordid housekeeping he had nowhere encountered in an Indian village.

The changes in Peggy Shickshack were not without influence on her schoolmates, but the Spaniard, with pride of her own, held aloof from them. They swung their feet from tall benches and whispered behind their books while Peggy fiercely studied. When the Testament class stood up she was at the head. Her progress through the simple course was so rapid that Minter Grayham calculated she would know in a year all that he was able to teach her.

Antywine, whose stepmother had never sent him to school, was nineteen years old, and could not read. Peggy began to teach him long spring twilights. There was a large stone halfway across the valley, sheltered as the sun slipped north of afternoons, under which Peggy hid her outgrown lesson book for Antywine. Whatever direction his day's hunt led him, he made a detour to arrive at the stone, and if he arrived first, sat down to study. If Peggy, carrying her dinner reticule home from school, reached it first, she waited.

They sat and held their book together. English spelling provoked Canadian exclamations; but he had to spur him not only Peggy, but the powerful example of Sieur Abe Lincoln, studying every spare minute.

Antywine knew where the best swimming places were in the Sangamon. Sometimes he came to his lesson, his blond hair separated into dark clinging tendrils, which, as they dried, became a powder of gold-dust curls around his face and temples. If Peggy could not keep her fingers from touching this fleece, Antywine pretended he did not know it. His hands and shoulders worked, as hard as his mind. With shrugs and gesticulating fingers he flung English spelling all around. When he encountered a terrific word he would throw down his book and jump on it. But Antywine's moccasins were light; he did not damage the learning under his feet. His rages were rages of laughter. Whatever he did so delighted Peggy that she said:

"It makes me almost laugh out in school to think how you dance on your speller!"

As month followed month and Pedro Lorimer neither showed himself again in New Salem nor made any other attempt to kidnap the Indian's adopted daughter, her guardian's anxiety relaxed to ease. He thought: "These white men in this vilalge are my friends; they will take my part. The young chief Abe is as strong as three Pedro Lorimers, and his hand is with me."

Every Sunday Mahala Cameron's father preached in the schoolhouse, and nearly all the people, whether they accepted the Cumberland Presbyterian creed or not, went to the service. Wild-plum groves made bouquets of snow on the prairies. The woods were full of flowers, having such fragrance as breaks only from old loam. All the trees, from the rich green of the pecan to the delicate and slowly deepening maple gave out their foliage to the sun. The Judas tree burst out like flame in the forest.

Happy boys were seen coming home from the river of evenings with strings of croppies, bass, and pike. Half-yearly muster day came, when the local militia stepped out in awkward squads and practiced such military tactics as the leader knew to the squeak of a fife and the thump of a drum. Antywine put himself among the boys. He liked life and movement. But Shickshack stood and looked gloomily on. He knew that his own people, the Sacs, were being crowded in their reservation, and this play of war might sometime become reality. Whisky was plentiful of muster days. Antywine noticed that Lincoln did not touch it. Having considered the height and strength of Sieur Abe, he also spat out of his mouth a taste of fiery stuff pushed between his lips by a Grove boy, and decided that he would fight rather than be forced to drink.

Slicky Green and Ann Rutledge's brother were home, working in their fathers' fields. Young Yates was seen at intervals during the summer. The boys and girls of New Salem found a world of material for their own happiness. There were quiltings, where the older women labored in the afternoon and young men and women came to evening games.

Peggy Shickshack stood outside of such festivities, and so did Antywine, because the singular mother of their household had no fellowship with the mother of any other household. For all the villagers began to look kindly at the unfolding womanliness of the lame Spaniard, the blond head of Antywine, and the good old Indian who loved white men.

But the festival that Peggy liked best and was not left out of, was blackberrying. The girls rose at dawn and put on their worst clothes, meeting by appointment at the tavern with baskets on their arms. They did not speak loud. The dust in the road took the prints of their feet like ashes. The whole sweet-smelling world was drenched in dew, and as they brushed down the ravine across the woods beyond, they were baptized by every bush. Then their tongues were loosened, and they sang and told stories. Sometimes they pretended to see wolves sneaking to cover, but this merely for the pleasure of frightening themselves. It was the loveliest pilgrimage ever invented. There was peril in it too, for in the wooded field of wild brambles the thick-mottled rattlesnake, or objects resembling him, caused many a start and shriek.

Once little Jane Rutledge got a fat grasshopper down her back, and yelled for deliverance from—"a snake! a snake!"

"Oh, run home, Jane! Run home, quick!" cried Mahala Cameron.

But Ann tore the child's clothing open and freed the grasshopper, clinging with all his feet to the tender white back; and they all laughed at Mahala, who would have sent her three miles for help.

Sometimes the girls swam grass to their waists, as in a sea of dew, Peggy dividing her way with her crutch. The rising sun showed glittering in the brambles, blackberries and luscious dewberries half as long as one's thumb, melting ripe to keep that very morning's appointment. To go blackberrying late in the day was not to go blackberrying at all, but to a hot and weary search of rifled fields.

When the party trailed homeward with heaped baskets they could see along the ridge of the Sangamon tents and camps of farmers who had come long distances to mill. Each man was obliged to wait his turn to have his grain ground. It was like a fair. Quoit pitching, wrestling matches, races and trading filled up the idle time.

Insensibly the season changed. Sumac leaves began to burn around scarlet fruit veiled in white, the oaks were faintly tinted, and the first September days had come.

Antywine's reading lessons at the stone ended, for Lincoln was taking up surveying and going out to distant parts of the country, and Antywine was to go with him as his chain-bearer.

"I put the book in my bundle," said the Canadian while he and Peggy were bidding each other farewell at the stone. "Sieur Abe will help me."

Peggy's hand and feet became cold. She felt as if autumn were driving the the blood back upon her heart.

"Viane Rutledge told at school the other day that you are the best-looking young man in New Salem."

Antywine expanded with satisfaction. He always carried his chin up, so that people called him high-headed.

"I am tall."

"Don't you think Viane Rutledge is a pretty girl, Antywine?"

"Yes."

"She's the prettiest girl that goes to school, isn't she?"

"Yes."

Tears sprang into Peggy's eyes; she winked them back, ashamed of being grieved.

"But Viane Rutledge is not a good reader," she honestly declared.

"Me, I am not a good reader, either," observed Antywine.

"You don't want to put yourself alongside of Viane Rutledge as a poor reader," spoke Peggy, sharply—"do you?"

"I don't know," returned Antywine, with a teasing winsomeness specially his own. He smiled on the landscape and lifted his chin higher, a look of concern replacing the smile.

"Why you cry, sweetheart?"

"My foot's tired," said Peggy, drying her tears.

"You been trying to walk without the crutch?"

"A little."

"Then I carry you up to the house."

"I don't want you to. If Mahala Cameron's brother was here he could help you make a saddle and carry me. He takes hold of hands with one of the Clary boys, and they lift me up on the saddle and run with me when we play Indian."

"He have no business!" exclaimed Antywine, full of indignation. "They will fall and hurt you!"

"O, no, they won't. He is a nice boy, and has such red cheeks."

"Me, if I have those red cheeks I strip the skin off my face!" said Antywine, disgusted. "You like those red cheeks, eh?"

"Well, I think they are about as pretty as Viane Rutledge."

"Viane Rutledge," spoke Antywine, sincerely, "she not have that charm like you, and those manners."

"Do you think I am learning manners?"

"You have improve every day."

"Antywine, I've got the best apple in my pocket! Don't you want a bite of it?"

"Did those Cameron boy give you that apple?"

"No."

"You have it, then, from that Grove feller, who is behaved so bad the master whip him?"

"No. Mahala gave it to me."

"Then I will take some bite."

Peggy drew forth the apple and they ate it together, feeling that their differences were reconciled. It was their parting meal, for food eaten at Sally's board had no such taste as this.

Shickshack said nothing about Antywine's first serious undertaking of civilized work. The boy until that time had been nothing but a hunter. Perhaps the Indian pondered on the white man's influence. He set himself to bring in plenty of venison to dry for winter, and an abundance of buckskin to tan. His cabin was as good as any in New Salem.

Shickshack held land in his reservation, as all his tribe held it, without cultivating or improving an acre except patches of maize and pumpkins. He could not understand the white man's greed for real estate when the prairies were so free to all. The product of his labor consisted of peltries. These he exchanged for the necessaries of simple living.

Shickshack was not unmindful of the change in his adopted child. He used to watch her silently. When she brought him the first pair of stockings made by her hand he sat and smoothed them across his buckskin knee. They were useless to him as a covering, for he could not enjoy the freedom of his ankles in anything but hunter's 'neips.

Before the weather grew cold he gave Peggy a roll of heavy dark red linsey cloth instead of the usual tanned deerskins. Ann Rutledge helped her cut and make the dress. He had the satisfaction of seeing her warmly clad, in short-waisted gown with bag sleeves and a thick cape and hood lined with dull yellow flannel which Ann had saved among her stores.

As autumn days drew close to the margin of winter, the big boys, relieved of labor that they owed to their parents every working season until they were 21 years old, came to Minter Grayham's school. Though willing to make themselves useful carrying in logs for the fireplace, they were full of frolic as colts. They stirred up the school until Minter Grayham in despair made a new law and announced that he would listen to no more complaints of wad-throwing, fistcuffing, and fighting, unless the complainant could show that blood had been drawn. Then the boys were gloriously happy. The sallow young schoolmaster, writing copies at his desk, would suddenly hear through the drone of study:

"Master, Viane Rutledge looked at me and drew blood!"

"Master, Nancy Green's eyes are drawing blood on me this minute!"

In November there was a haze over the landscape like bloom on grapes. Indian summer lingered. Settlers had not then learned the Mississippi valley's sudden and bitter changes of climate.

Lincoln and Antywine were still absent early in December, when Shickshack waited one evening behind Minter Grayham's schoolhouse for Peggy to come out. A jet of boys and girls seemed to spout forth, racing down to Rock Creek. They could almost smell their supper johnny cakes across the ravine. Peggy was hopping briskly in the joyful midst of her schoolmates, when she saw her foster father beckoning her at the foot of the bluff. She followed him.

Shickshack led her where there was no path through ascending woods, parting naked bushes for her, and helping her over fallen logs which had become almost a powder of flakes covered with moss.

"Where are we going?" she inquired more than once.

But Shickshack made no reply until he had put a loop of deerskin around him over his blanket, and lifted Peggy on his back in this portable hammock. She was learning to use her lame leg with a stoical determination which the New Salem doctor encouraged. Though never without her crutch, she oftener carried than leaned on it. Shickshack was evidently undertaking a journey, and she looked anxiously through the woods as some flakes of snow melted on her face, and up at the void peopled as by winged white insects.

"Father," said Peggy in the Sac language, "where are you taking me?"

"To the young chief Yates," he answered in English, trudging across the ridge, sure-footed and muscular.

"But he lives far away and I won't go! What will Antywine and Mr. Lincoln say when they come home?"

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

HIS LIFE IN PERIL.

FISHERMAN SUCKED INTO A MOUNTAIN WHIRLPOOL.

Drawn in Swift Stream Toward Subterranean River — Saved by Catching on Jagged Edge of Rocks.

H. F. Kent, who has something of a reputation on the coast as a fisherman, tells in the Portland Oregonian of an experience which the average disciple of Ike Walton would find difficulty in duplicating. He says he was caught in the swirl of Lost River basin, and his story compares favorably with Poe's famous "Descent Into the Maelstrom." Lost river is a peculiar stream in the eastern part of Lane county, Ore. Out from beneath the base of a mighty glacier it rushes and goes singing down the mountain side. At times it is very narrow and shallow. Again it is broad and deep, dashing with tremendous force through tangled forests, growling and brawling over its bowldery channel. In places it is a quiet, harmless stream, in places a raging, furious torrent.

After fishing down the river for some distance and catching a good string, Kent entered the basin. It was in the forenoon, and the water was very low, but Kent was so engrossed in his effort to and some big Dolly Vardens to his catch that he did not notice how time passed, and how rapidly the stream was rising. That forenoon had proved very hot and the ice and snow had melted unusually early in the day. Kent soon realized the peril of his position, for when he made his way toward the natural basin he found a cataract three feet deep rushing down its slope like a millrace.

Just as he turned to get out of the swift water the big string of trout that he had left in a pool above the sink came floating over the falls. They floated past and were caught in a whirlpool and carried over toward the arched escape vent. When the fish seemed about to be drawn into the seething, roaring hole, they were swirled by the swift current toward the rocks in the center of the basin.

GAINED SAFETY AT LAST.

Around and around they were swept, but finally were sucked into the escape and carried underground.

In an instant he was in the whirlpool and at its mercies. He was borne around as helpless as a feather. He still had his fishing rod in his hand when he fell, but dropped it, and the heavy reel sank it to the bottom. The current swept him around as it had his belongings a few moments before. He shuddered as he approached the dark, cave-like hole, but fortunately was swept safely past.

Once again the waters bore him toward the horrible vortex, and this time Kent was carried a little closer. His progress was almost stopped, and the waters seemed undetermined as to his awful fate. He could feel the two currents separate—one to sweep underground and the other to swing around the rocks again. By sheer, desperate strength he managed to pull himself back into the friendly current again, and once more floated back toward the rocks. As he swung by, he reached under the water and clutched a slender bush. It broke and his heart sank as the increasing current drew him nearer the yawning hole. There was no doubt but that Kent was to be engulfed this time. Straight toward the fearful point he was borne. It was only ten feet away—five feet—a foot. With every second the current gathered a horrible energy. Just as it pulled Kent downward he closed his eyes in despair and threw up his hands. Luckily they caught on the overhanging ledge above. In a second the waters had whisked off his rubber boots. The bones of his arms cracked as the subterranean river struggled to draw him down to a fearful death. The two trout which he had caught last still swung over his shoulder and seemed to weigh a ton, the jagged edge of the rocks cut his fingers until he thought they would break, yet he clung with the clutch of desperation.

Then he made frantic efforts to draw himself up on that ledge. It was a great struggle. His joints stretched at the strain. Soon his eyes were even with the ledge; one more mighty effort and Kent pulled his body up on the narrow rock shelf—the surface of the rolling flood only a few inches belw.

Hatless, bootless and coatless, Kent managed to make his way slowly to the nearest ranch. When fully recovered he made an inventory of stock. He had lost hat, coat, boots, basket and fishing rod. He had his life left, and two of the finest Dolly Varden trout ever seen.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Andeberg and Wall, formerly of Hoboken, are now playing for the Irvington A. C.

Speer and Westlake compose the battery for the Chatham A. C. team, which will meet Alis on Saturday. Badgley may pitch for the locals.

According to the present plan the first contest in the resumption of play between Alis and Westfield will be played on Crescent Oval on Saturday, July 16.

Smith, the Plainfield High School pitcher, who is now with the Dunellen A. C., is destined to become one of the major league twirlers if he continues as at present.

Enright, formerly of the Scotch Plains team, has signed to play with Cox's New Brunswick aggregation. Daily, Montross, Allen and David Smith, of this city, are also on the team.

There are many local admirers of the New York National League team who were sorry to see them lose that contest to Philadelphia on Tuesday. It was their first defeat in eighteen games.

Compare the crowds attending the ball games on Crescent Oval on Saturday and Monday with those at Westfield on the same days and one need not wonder why Manager Denman wants to resume the series with Alis.

A question which is interesting many baseball fans concerning the Alis-Westfield contest here on Saturday, July 16, is whether "Red" Waller will pitch for Westfield. They would like to see this popular twister of curves face the local nine

For the benefit of the patrons of the baseball contests on Crescent Oval the Alis Club should see that Randolph road is well sprinkled with water on Saturday. It will result in attracting persons to the oval. This season the dust has been almost unbearable.

The New Market and Dunellen teams will meet again on Saturday, July 16, at Dunellen, when the boys from New Market hope to wipe out their first defeat of the season, thereby losing the prize of $50 offered by "Mayor" Bill Smith, if they failed to lose a contest.

ON THE TRACK.

According to the present outlook the show of horses at St. Louis, in August, will be one of the largest on record in the United States, or elsewhere. The exhibition is scheduled to begin on Tuesday, August 23, continuing until Saturday, September 3. The Live Stock Department of the World's Fair has allotted $93,640 for horses. With the many special prizes offered by States and associations, the total will far exceed $100,000, which is probably the largest sum ever distributed for a show ring competition among horses. The prize list now in preparation will embrace twenty-four divisions.

TENNIS.

The winners of the tournament held by the Elms Tennis Club on the Fourth of July were as follows: Women's singles, Mrs. Arthur Hinchcliffe; men's singles, Walter Rogers; men's doubles, W. Rogers and Samuel Craig.

Williams Holds His Record.

Charlie Williams was in the city jail on the same old charge, drunk again. This morning he received a suspension of sentence. Miles Furey, an engineer, of Philadelphia, and Patrick Wearren, of Rock avenue, were arrested on the charge of drunkenness. Sentence was suspended in each of these cases also.

Testing Fire Alarms.

Another test call will be turned in from fire alarm box No. 45 tomorrow morning about 10 o'clock.

NOMINATIONS ARE DELAYED

Fight on Floor of Democratic Convention, Bryan Leading Radical Element.

PARKER HAS 689 VOTES

(Special to The Daily Press.)

St. Louis, Mo., July 7, 2:30 p. m.—The Democratic National Convention reassembled at 2 o'clock this afternoon, after doing nothing of importance this morning. It was announced just before the noon recess that William Jennings Bryan would take the floor this afternoon to champion the cause of the Harrison-Hearst delegation from Illinois, which was turned down by the committee on credentials, and the hall is packed to suffocation with a crowd eager to hear the fight which will take place between the radical and conservative element.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

The conservative element has control of the convention.

DAVID B. HILL.

David B. Hill is sanguine that Parker will be nominated on the first ballot. The New York state leader is in ogarge of the conservative forces.

Parker's friends claim he now has assured to him 689 votes. Senator McCarren looks to see the nomination made on the first ballot, even though some of the delegations now pledged to Parker should not vote for him, as he figures when the roll is finished there will be States ready to change, having discharged their obligation to the candidate to whom they were pledged.

Former U. S. Senator Smith says: "It is no use of my holding out any longer, and the New Jersey delegation will declare for Parker."

Plainfielder Seeing the World.

Capt. William Townley, of the fire department, has received a letter from his brother, John Townley, who joined the navy last year as an apprentice. Young Townley is on the gunboat Castine, stationed at Mercoco, where Ion Perdicaris and Raisuli, the bandit king, recently stirred up so much trouble for three or four state departments in various sections of the world. Townley is now a second class apprentice. He writes that he does not expect to get back to America until his term of service is up, a little less than two years ahead.

Endurance Run.

About sixteen members of the National Federation of American Motor Cyclists passed through this city on Tuesday in one of the six-days' endurance runs held under the auspices of the federation. The riders did not exceed fifteen miles an hour, the limit placed on them.

Two Brutes Captured.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Philadelphia, Jule 7—Aaron Timbers and Jonas Sims, the negroes wanted on a charge of assault alleged to have been committed on Mrs. Biddle at Burlington, were arrested at Columbia, Pa., today.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and initiate several candidates.

Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., will install their newly elected officers at its regular meeting tomorrow night.

A general meeting of the Saengerbund is called for this evening at the headquarters in the Marsh building, corner of Second street and Park avenue.

Members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen in this State have been advised that only four members died during the month of June. As the papers in two of these cases had not been received up to June 25, the deaths were not reported during that month. The two deaths that were proved will call for the payment of $3,000, and as a regular assessment will be called during the present month there will be quite a surplus to help take care of death claims filed during July. One assessment on the entire membership in this State nets $16,000. During the month of June death claims amounting to $21,000 were paid. The receipts for that month and the balance left over from May amounted to $22,789.13. There are now 6,861 members in this State. The entire order has a membership of 899,041, and since it was started the death claims paid have amounted to $128,026,146.39. During April these payments reached a total of $964,012.82, and during the same month 8,825 candidates were initiated into the order. When the grand lodge books were audited, June 25, it was found that the balance in the general fund amounted to $4,107.59.

BOOK NEWS.

It is planned to issue on Thursday of each week items of library news. This will frequently take the form of book lists, such as lists of books recently added, lists on special subjects and like topics. Frequently the lists will be annotated, the aim being to make these annotations of real service to the reader, by giving him the opinion of a trustworthy critic as to the value of the books or a few words as to their scope. Borrowers should keep these lists. The Plainfield Public Library will furnish to anyone making application a list of its books on a given subject.

SEA GIRT PLANS.

Second Regiment Shoot to be in August.

Although the honor of winning the Governor's match is coveted by many of the marksmen in the New Jersey National Guard, little interest has as yet been manifested in the contest, and there have been but few entries. The rifle range will be open Thursday for "own expense" shooting and every Saturday in July and August.

The Second Regiment will come to the range from August 8 to 16, the Third Regiment from August 17 to August 24, Battery B August 25.

Funeral services over the body of James Burke, of Elizabeth, a brother-in-law of Maurice Kennedy, of Monroe avenue, were held at St. Mary's church this morning at 9 o'clock, after services at the home of his brother-in-law. Father Egan officiated. A number of floral tributes sent by relatives and friends, were grouped about the casket.

A large wreath, inscribed "Our Shopmate," was sent by the dead man's friends in the Singer factory at Elizabethport. The pall-bearers were all fellow workmen with the dead man, coming from Elizabeth to pay this last service to their friend. The pall-bearers were Frank Dingee, John Flaherty, Michael McConnoell, W. J. Bryant, Robert Murray and Cornelius Hickey. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

PAID FOR THEIR FUN.

Practical Jokers Made to Settle for a Free Ride.

Neatly turning the joke on its authors, George Connover squelched two practical jokers Tuesday night, incidentally making the operation distinctly profitable.

The jesters found Connover's horse and carriage back of his place of business on East Fourth street, and decided that it would be a fine joke to drive around with it. The joke worked in that it stirred the wrath of Connover to the boiling over point. When the jesters returned they found him with his jaws set and hand outstretched.

"Two dollars," said Connover.

The jokers gasped and protested. Mr. Connover was firm. "Two dollars for the use of that carraige, or I'll have you pinched for horse stealing," was his ultimatum.

And the jokers had to pay up.

He was suppressed without much trouble, and sobered up in the calaboose. He pleaded guilty and paid $10 to win freedom.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Senator Dryden says: "New Jersey will probably give 40,000 to 50,000 Republican majority if they put up a strong ticket. We have a good platform, a good candidate and a good record and Senator Fairbanks adds strength to the ticket because of his conservative views on financial matters."

Senator Kean was presented with one of the six eagles which the Alaskan delegation to the Republican National Convention brought with them to Chicago, and it has been placed on exhibition in the Electric Light Company's window in Elizabeth. There were six splendid specimens of the American eagle, stuffed and mounted, each on its own totem pole, and they were among the attractions at the convention. United States Marshal W. D. Grant, who headed the Alaskan delegation, selected the eagle trophies.

The campaign ball has been started, and plans are under way for the largest convention the New Jersey Republican State League has ever assembled, which will occur at Asbury Park the latter part of August or first part of September. The State Republican League is sparing no pains to make the meeting one of pleasure and profit, and enthusiasm will be in its zenith. The New Jersey State League is an organization of the active and representative Republicans of the State of New Jersey. One of its fundamental principles is unity of action. It is active and aggressive, putting its strong effort for the advancement of the Republican party throughout the State and country, and leaving no stone unturned for the furtherance of its principles.

The Voting Machine Commission held a meeting Tuesday afternoon in the office of the secretary of State at Trenton to consider bids for the 190 voting machines which the commission will purchase with the $100,000 which the last Legislature appropriated for that purpose. Three bids were received. The United States Standard Voting Machine Company offered to furnish the thirty-key machines for $500, and loan the State as many of the forty key machines as may be required at the next election by the larger voting places designated by the Secretary of State. The Columbia Voting Machine Company offered the thirty key machines only at $450 each. The Dial Voting Machine Company offered 100 machines of either the thirty or forty key types, as may be required, at $750 each. The commission took the bids under advisement and made no awards Tuesday.

TOMORROW'S EVENTS IN FIELD OF SPORTS

Schedule of Attractions on the Golf Course, Race Track, Diamond and Tennis Court.

NEW BRUNSWICK RACES

ALIS TO PLAY CHATHAM ON CRESCENT OVAL.

The Hillside and Park Golf Clubs Will Draw Many to Their Links—Tennis to be a Feature at Roselle.

The programme of sports for tomorrow is attractive enough to interest the followers of baseball, golf and tennis and if the weather be fine no doubt the diamond and golf courses will be crowded with people. In the way of baseball Alis will meet the strong Chatham Field Club on Crescent Oval. The Morris county boys have a great reputation for playing fast ball and on this, their first visit here, will come determined to win. Thus far this season they have met some of the strongest aggregations in the State, including Trenton Y. M. C. A., and in each instance the scores have been very close, the winning side having an advantage of not more than one or two runs. Speer and Westlake will be their battery.

Alis played three fast games on Saturday and Monday and although they lost two, they gave good exhibitions. The players are in fine condition to meet Chatham and will give a good account of themselves in their preparatory work before going up against Westfield. It is likely that Badgley will pitch for Alis and a few changes may be seen in the field.

The teams will lineup in this way:

Alis—Farmer, c; Davis or Badgley, p; Gauven, 1b; Patience, 2b; Walton, ss; Heckman, 3b; Cregan, lf; Mc Goey, cf; Badgley or Davis, rf.

Chatham—Adams, 1b; Lippincott, 3b; Westlake, c; Curley, 2b; Rinacher, ss; Warren, cf; W. Speer, lf; Wagner, rf; C. Speer, p; Duskey, substitute.

Other games scheduled for tomorrow include Clinton Avenue against New Market and Reform A. A. against Dunellen. These contests should be well worth seeing as the teams are putting up a fine article.

There will be several events of interest in golf. At Hillside there will be the semi-final play for the club championship among the first, second and third eights, in addition to the weekly play for the Golf Committee cup. There will be unusual interset at the Park Golf Club, as the qualifying round for the club championship will be the chief event. This is scratch, medal play, the first eight to qualify. Succeeding rounds, match play, to follow weekly. There will be the usual weekly play for the President's and Club cups.

An important competition is scheduled for the Westfield Golf Club in the Governors' competition. This play will continue weekly concluding on Election Day, November 8, and is sure to attract many of the club's best players.

There will be no local tennis tournaments, but many players will be attracted to the tournament to be held on the courts of the Roselle Casino.

Besides the events mentioned there will be the horse show and racing at New Brunswick under the auspices of the Raritan Driving Association Plainfield horses are expected to make a good showing.

An encouraging feature of the sports this season is that persons interested have not been obliged to go elsewhere to witness them. Promoters of various games have arranged many attractions and have thus induced followers of the sport to stay at home on Saturday.

W. R. Millar is Graduated.

Among the graduates at Yale on Wednesday was William Robert Millar, son of Alexander Millar, of Madison avenue. G. WHARTON EDWARDS' WORK

George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place, a noted artist, has illustrated Maravene Kennedy's story, "The Enlightenment of Ridgeville," appearing in this month's issue of the Cosmopolitan, and in the same magazine he is the designer of the head for the story "Memorable Letters." His work is of a high character as usual.

"The World of Today," a monthly magazine, contains a fine picture and sketch of Bishop John Heyl Vincent, well-known to so many Plainfielders. The subject of the story is "The Bishop of the Democracy of Culture," and among other things says that although he has been retired as as bishop, he will still remain as a "Bishop of the People"

"The Merry Anne," a story of the Great Lakes, the work of Samuel Merwin, of Netherwood, has just made its appearance and there is every indication that it will be well received.

NO CANTEEN AT SEA GIRT

PRIVILEGES ABUSED LAST YEAR, SO GEN. GILMORE ABOLISHED IT.

Pursuant to an order issued by Brigadier General Gilmore there will be no canteen at Sea Girt this year. General Gilmore decided to abolish the canteen because of the abuse of the privilege in former years and the interference with discipline.

The order, which is as follows, will be strictly enforced: "During the coming encampment of the organizations of this brigade the establishment of the "canteen" or places devoted solely to the issuing of liquor, beer, wines, or other intoxicating drinks, is prohibited."

Arrangements are under way for a trolley trip by the Circle to Midland Beach next Thursday. If a sufficient number express themselves in favor of the plan, it is probable that a special car will be chartered for the trip from Plainfield to Elizabethport and another from the Staten Island Ferry to Midland Beach.

There was to have been a meeting of the conference last Wednesday, but the rain prevented it.

FAMILIES AT WAR OVER A CHERRY TREE

Feud at Scotch Plains Brings Combatants Into Court Three Times in Five Days.

VILLAGE STIRRED UP

FINES ARE IMPOSED ON GUERRIERS AND SOUTHARDS.

Henry Guerrier Must Await the Action of the Grand Jury on a Charge of Assault—Hearing Last Night.

Trouble over a cherry tree has brought the families of Elias Southard and Henry Guerrier, of Scotch Plains, into Justice Clark's court in the village, three times within five days. Both sides have been fined, and Henry Guerrier rests under bonds to appear before the Grand Jury under a charge of assault.

The tree has its roots on the Southard place, but its fruitful branches overhang the Guerrier homestead and this unhappy state of affairs had led to a terrible feud in which it appears, Mrs. Guerrier and Mrs. Southard are ready to call one another names at the drop of a hat and Mr. Guerrier and Mr. Southard are prepared at a minute's notice to punch one another's head until separated by an excited populace.

Saturday night the first of the trio of trials took place, Mrs. Guerrier being brought up on a charge of abusing the Southard children, threatening to scald them and to do them other painful injury. She was fined $2 and costs.

Less than an hour afterwards Guerrier and Southard met and talked at one another freely. This conflict, it is alleged, was brought to a termination by a blow delivered by Guerrier, with painful force, against the person of Southard. Tuesday Guerrier was arraigned under a charge of assault, and Judge Clark held him to await the action of the Grand Jury under $300 bail.

While the Southards were swearing him before the Grand Jury, Guerrier took out a counter complaint against both Mr. and Mrs. Southard, charging them with disorderly conduct. Mrs. Southard was accused of throwing stones of distressing size and of pinching Guerrier's daughter.

This case was heard last night. Practically the entire village turned out to hear it. V. W. Nash, Jr., Esq., of this city, was present to act for the defense. In summing up the case, Mr. Nash asked the Judge to dismiss the complaint, because the weight of evidence was in favor of his clients. The court couldn't see it that way, explaining that he knew both families personally and did not believe that the Guerriers could stir up so much trouble unless the Southards were willing to help the excitement along. He fined husband and wife $2 and costs apiece.

The fines were paid under protest. Lawyer Nash gave notice that he intended to sue for a writ of certiorari.

APPOINTED A PROFESSOR.

Dr. A. B. Crane to Become Member of Georgetown University Faculty.

Arthur Barton Crane, formerly of this city, but now of Washington, D. C., has accepted a call to a professorship at the Georgetown University. He is to occupy the chair of extracting and anesthetics, a new subject of the four years' course.

Dr. Crane is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and is a specialist in pathology and oral surgery. He is the son of U. B. Crane, of this city.

Volunteer Firemen Resign.

Because of the new law which deprives them of the customary $500 exemption from taxes, several members of the Dunellen fire department have resigned. They contend that it is foolish for them to pay dues and fines and receive no benefit for their service. If the exodus continues it will be necessary for the borough to establish a paid department, even though it be a small one.

HER DEATH CAME SUDDENLY

MRS. JENNIE RANDOLPH SUCCUMBS AFTER A VERY BRIEF ILLNESS.

Mrs. Jennie Randolph, wife of Vermont F. Randolph, of 502 West Front street, died very suddenly at her home about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Randolph had been at Westfield on business and on the way home she stopped at the home of Charles Randolph, 442 West Front street. She talked for some minutes with Mrs. Charles Randolph and seemed in good spirits, but just as she left the home, complained of the heat. She was urged to sit on the porch and rest, but left saying that she had something to attend to at home. Shortly after reaching her house she was taken ill and a physician was summoned. He found that Mrs. Randolph was suffering from an acute attack of kidney trouble. In spite of all that could be done for her she expired in about an hour after the attack.

Mrs. Randolph is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Grace D. Harris, whose husband died recently, and Mrs. Nancy D. Brown, of Brooklyn. Mrs. John Stevens, with whom she lived, and Harry F. Randolph, of this city, were her children. Mrs. Stevens has been suffering from hysteria since the death of her mother. Mrs. Randolph was a daughter of the late Barzilla J. Randolph, of this city. She is survived by her husband, Vermont F. Randolph.

CHERRY PIT MADE HIM DEAF

HAROLD FIRSTBROOK'S HEARING AFFECTED BY A PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

One day last week Harold Firstbrook, the six-year-old son of G. E. Firstbrook, of West Fifth street, complained of deafness in his left ear. The cause of his complains could not be discovered until yesterday, when a big cherry pit was fished from the ear.

Harold knew nothing of the pit's presence and was as much surprised as the rest of the family when his aunt, Miss Mabel Firstbrook, fished it out with a hairpin.

The boy was eating cherries with a number of small companions in a hammock a week ago, and it is supposed that on the pits lodged in his ear at that time when he tumbled around in the swing. Yesterday he awoke from a sleep in the same hammock to complain that something was bouncing around in his deaf ear. Miss Firstbrook looked into the orifice and saw the pit. The ever-ready feminine instrument of general utility was called into action, and after several minutes of careful angling the bent hairpin pulled the pit out.

MANY AT CAMP WOOLFE

WESTFIELD FRESH AIR INSTITUTION CARING FOR 103 CHILDREN.

One hundred and three children and twenty-five women comprise the first contingent of summer visitors at Camp Woolfe, the fresh air camp conducted at Westfield during the past nine years by the Union Fresh Air Mission Association. These "dwellers in the East Side" arrived at Westfield on Friday last and most of them will remain for two weeks, when another company will arrive.

Next Sunday Rev. O. E. Herring, of this city, will be the speaker at the weekly service. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings of each week services will be held at 8 o'clock. Visitors are always gladly welcome either during the day or at these services. Monday evening next an illustrated talk will be given at the Second Presbyterian church, Rahway, showing the life of these children in the city, together with some views of camp life.

Taxes Coming in Fast.

More than $1,800 has been added to the borough treasury as a result of Collector George Brown's campaign against the 1903 delinquents. His last warning before advertising the debtors in the county papers stirred nearly half of those on the long list into action. There were seventy delinquents on the original list. Thirty of these had paid up by yesterday, when the time of grace, before the names went to the printers, expired. Last night the forty names left on the list were given to the county papers for publication.

BRYAN DEFEATS THE GOLD PLANK

Committee on Resolutions Rejects Money Clause by a Vote of 35 to 15.

NOMINATIONS TONIGHT

FIVE CANDIDATES TO BE SUBMITTED TO THE CONVENTION.

Martin Littleton, of Brooklyn, to Present Name of Alton B. Parker—Olney, Cockrell, Hearst and Wall to be Named.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

St. Louis, Mo., July 8, 2:30 p. m.—After transacting but little business the Democratic National Convention has adjourned until tonight, when the committee on resolutions will present the platform. The platform is essentially the same as that published in the morning papers with the exception of what is known as the gold plank. William J. Bryan fought the introduction of this plank bitterly and succeeded in defeating it. The vote in committee was 35 to 15 in favor of the rejection of the article which stated that the money question is not an issue, the conditions having changed by the great increase in the volume of money.

The platform will be adopted tonight and then the convention will get down to work nominating candidates. As it looks there will be five candidates presented to the consideration of the delegates: Parker, of New York; Hearst, of New York, California, Massachusetts and Illinois; Cockrell, of Missouri; Wall, of Wisconsin, and Olney, of Massachusetts. Parker will be the first candidate nominated. On the roll call of States Alabama will yield her place to New York, and Martin W. Littleton, the eloquent young Brooklynite, will place the name of Judge Parker before the convention. After the experience the convention management had yesterday with the disorderly mob that attempted to run the body, there is every chance that the audience tonight will be convention broken. That the sergeant-at-arms and the police authorities will allow another assemblage such as that which openly defied their authority to get into the convention hall is not to be supposed.

With an attentive and respectful crowd Mr. Littleton is going to make a great hit. He has prepared a splendid speech, he is in good voice, and out in the audience there will be seated a handsome, fresh-faced little woman whose presence alone will be an inspiration—Mrs. Littleton.

Search Warrant for Dog.

Charging that two valuable dogs belonging to him were being held unlawfully by John Benner, Truman Strait had a search warrant issued against Benner in Justice Clark's court, Scotch Plains, yesterday. Constable Walpole found the dogs on the Benner place, but they were running at large. The suit was settled in court by the payment of all costs on the part of the complainant.

Pleasant Day at the Shore.

The First Baptist church excursionists arrived home last night soon after 8:30, having spent a pleasant day at the shore. Only for a short time in the afternoon did the rain interfere with the pleasures of young and old, otherwise the day was an ideal one. There was a strong sea breeze that was invigorating. Not an accident happened to mar the day's outing.

Tennis Semi-Finals Postponed.

On account of last night's heavy rain, the semi-finals in the boys' singles scratch tennis tournament at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club were not played this morning, but will be played this afternoon, immediately preceding the finals, which are scheduled for 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Dufford and daughters, of this city, have returned from a visit of several days with relatives at Middle Valley, Hunterdon county.

SANITARY INSPECTION NOW

BOARD OF HEALTH HAS ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTY-NINE HOUSES EXAMINED.

During the past two weeks there has been 139 houses in the city inspected under the direction of the Board of Health. Many nuisances were found and have been corrected. It is the purpose of the Board to inspect every house in the city during the summer. These facts were presented at the July meeting of the Board of Health held on Wednesday.

It was also stated that the ice supply here is of excellent quality. Both the natural and hygeia ice is sold. Permits for selling the hygeia ice were granted to Frank T. Ostrom, John Morton and the Natural Ice Company.

Health Officer Thurlow inspected twenty-seven dairies during the month of June and samples of milk were analyzed. Herman Weber, J. I. Brokaw, Williams Brothers and L. G. Henry received permits to sell milk. There are very few cases of contagious disease in the city.

BABY CAMP NOT OPENED

RAIN AGAIN FRUSTRATES THE PLANS OF THE KING'S DAUGHTERS.

Owing to the disagreeable weather yesterday it was impossible to have the formal opening of the King's Daughters baby camp on the mountains, although there are eleven children and two mothers at the camp, besides the matron and her assistants. This is the second time that the opening has been postponed on account of the weather.

The improvements at the camp are completed and those now stopping there are very comfortable Those in charge of the camp still feel the need of more money to properly conduct the same, and any contributions, no matter how small or large, will be gratefully received. Mrs. Howard J. Runyon, chairman, and other members of the camp committee, were the only outsiders at the camp yesterday.

BOYS' TENNIS.

Singles Scratch Play on Hillside Tennis and Golf Club's Courts.

The boys' singles scratch tennis tournament at the Hillside Golf and Tennis Club was opened yesterday, the first, second and a part of the third round being successfully run off. The following scores were made: T. M. Day, 3d., defeated Ogden Rogers, 6-2, 6-4; J. C. Martin defeated J. O. Murray, 6 0, 6-1; G. C. Burke was defeated by T. M. Day, 3d., 6-0, 6-0; L. C. Hibbard defeated K. Brown, 6 0, 6-2; J. L. Fleming defeated R. D. Mellick, 6-1, 6-4, J. L. Fleming defeated L. C. Hibbard, 6 0, 6-2. Play was continued this morning.

NON-SUPPORT CASE.

Winslow Carson Released on Promise to Provide for family.

On his promise to support his wife and children, Winslow Carson, of Richmond street, was this morning released by Judge Runyon, in order that might go to Chicago where he is under contract to work in a machine shop.

Carson said that his failure to support his family was due altogether to the fact that he was without work and said that he would send his wife $4 each week from the Windy City. The Judge at first held him in $200 bonds to do his duty towards his family, but relented as Mrs. Carson's appeal and gave the prisoner the chance he asked for.

Rain Fall Record.

During the five days of rain this month the water fall amounted to 3.91 inches, while during the entire month of June it was 2.67 inches. Yesterday the fall was .66 of an inch and from 8 o'clock last night until 7:30 o'clock this morning there was a fall of 1.12 inches.

Going to Europe.

CITY AND BOROUGH OFFICIALS TO BATTLE

Talk of Baseball Game Between Teams Representing the Officeholders.

MAC MURRAY READY

MAYOR SMALLEY ISSUES A DEFI TO PLAINFIELD.

No Line on Makeup of the Teams—Sure to Attract a Big Crowd—Will Relieve Dulness.

Delirious excitement on the diamond is being prepared by Fate for the fanatics of the two Plainfields. A defi has been tossed across the line by Mayor Smalley, and City Clerk J. T. MacMurray has snatched it up. The heavens are trembling in anticipation of further developments, and the fans are holding their breaths in fear that something will block the lovely time looming up.

Mayor Smalley loosed his baseball war song Wednesday afternoon. "I am ready to hold my end up against anything the city officials may do," he said. Which, interpreted by later and technical remarks, means that he is ready to put a championship nine of borough officials in the diamond against a combination made up of the lithe and sinewy athletes that hold down city jobs.

The challenge was carefully borne to City Clerk MacMurray Wednesday night. He took it up so swiftly that the chasing of the silver platter in which it was delivered was destroyed by friction.

"We are ready for them," said Mr. MacMurray. "We have a lot of fine baseball material over here. The borough will bump into a new kind of annexation if it plays ball with us."

Neither side has given out any line on the make-up of its team, except that the flinger of the challenge and the flingee will surely be all there when the sanguinary struggle commences. If the matter gets any further—and 25,000 people, more or less will do their level best to see that it goes the limit—line-ups, batting orders, and the discovery of veteran stars and unsuspected phenoms will flood the columns of the newspapers, in accordance with tradition and baseball lore, soon enough to knock all the dulness out of the dog days.

PLAINFIELDERS ON BALTIC.

Charles W. McCutchen and family, of Rockview avenue, who have been abroad during the past eight months, during which time they travelled through many of the principal countries of Europe, arrived in New York yesterday on the new White Star Liner "Baltic," the largest passenger steamer afloat. Unusual interest is manifested in the Baltic by reason of the fact that it represents a somewhat new type of ocean steamers and is equipped with the most approved appliances known to modern times.

Orders have been issued to the beach police by Mayor Ten Broeck, at Asbury Park, directing that in the future bathers wearing insufficient bath robes be ordered from the beach. The police enforced the orders Wednesday morning by rounding up two college athletes, whose bathing suits were somewhat abbreviated.

Storm's Little Damage.

The only reported damage during the storm which passed over the city yesterday afternoon, was that to a large tree at the home of R. H. McCutchen on Plainfield avenue. Lightning hit this tree, causing it to tear up a good portion of the sidewalk.

A BRYAN OVATION.

Convention Greets Nebraskan With Wild Cheers.

DELEGATES FOUGHT ON HALL FLOOR

Majority Report Showed a Vote of 647 to 299, a Fair Test of Parker Party's Strength, and Foreshadows His Nomination.

ST. LOUIS, July 8.—William J. Bryan was given a great ovation at the convention, which was an extraordinarily exciting one.

When he entered the hall a demonstration was started by his admirers that continued for eighteen minutes and finally wound up as a wild Parker hurrah.

Bryan presented the minority report of the committee on credentials. It was a protest against the seating of the Hopkins delegation, and the silver champion's assaults on the Hopkins element and the bitter reply of the Hopkins spokesman kept the convention in a tumult. Bryan asserted that the Hopkins policy was like to that of "ordinary train robbers." He held the attention of the convention for the fifteen minutes allotted to him and as he finished speaking received the greatest demonstration that has occurred since the first gathering of delegates here.

ALTON B. PARKER.

Pitted against Bryan was Menzies of Indiana, who spoke in behalf of the majority report. He declared that Mr. Bryan was absent from the committee meeting when the Illinois case was heard. Mr. Menzies was hissed vigorously several times, and so was Frank Quinn, who had been chairman of the Illinois convention, when he arose to defend himself against Bryan's attack. At the conclusion of the allotted time, in response to a general demand, the chair granted Mr. Bryan ten minutes additional in which to answer. There were several rows in the gallery and some tusseling on the convention floor during Mr. Quinn's attack on Bryan.

On a viva voce vote Bryan seemed to have won. Chairman Champ Clark thereupon ordered a roll call.

Alabama and Kentucky caused great surprise by voting for the Bryan minority report.

The majority report was adopted by a vote of 647 to 299.

This is a fair test of Parker's strength.

The Nebraskan was given an ovation when he entered the hall just prior to the opening of the afternoon session of the convention. There came a terrific yell from a group of delegates in the rear of the hall, and instantly it was caught up by the crowd, and the cheers rolled up in a roar.

Mr. Bryan passed slowly down the aisle, picking his way through the delegates, who were massed in the aisles. He paid no attention at first to the demonstration, but quietly sought his seat.

The galleries joined in the cheering with terrific enthusiasm, hundreds in the crowds standing up in their chairs and waving hats and handkerchiefs frantically. The band struck up, and the friends of Mr. Bryan, believing this to be an effort to smother their shouts, at once yelled louder than before.

A man climbed to the chairman's table and began to wave his arms up and down, shouting unintelligibly. In a moment Mr. Williams caught sight of him and, grabbing the enthusiast's trousers, hauled him down.

A wild frenzy of yells followed the act of a Nebraska delegate who seized the Nebraska state sign and waved it high in the air. Delegates from Kentucky, North Dakota, Iowa, Missouri and Montana took up the cue and, catching up their state signs, hastened with them to the Nebraska delegation, where they waved them in a circle around the Nebraska sign.

Daniel J. Campau of Michigan, a gold Democrat, did his best to lead the enthusiasm by rushing up the steps leading to the chairman's platform and waving his hat wildly.

The Parker men at once sought to offset the Bryan demonstration by cheers on their side. The men of the south came to the front in this effort, and the Georgia delegation, who carry a blue silk banner inscribed "Georgia Parker Delegation" every time they march into the hall, at once waved it high and started toward the platform.

An enthusiastic delegate from South Carolina caught the sign of his state from its staff, tore up the strips and, after brandishing the red and white disk wildly, shook it at the Bryan and Hearst men and then placed it flat against the blue banner, as though he were nailing the flag of his country to a masthead.

The Parker men came up swiftly now, and before the South Carolina man had lowered his hand the men from Arkansas, Alabama and Pennsylvania were turning over chairs and pushing through the aisles on their way to his side. After Pennsylvania came Mississippi, New Jersey, Tennessee, Indiana, Louisiana, Texas, Connecticut and Virginia. The demonstration had resolved itself into a Parker outbreak more than a testimonial to Bryan, and it so remained to the finish, which was eighteen minutes after Mr. Bryan entered the hall.

The Parker men claimed that they had information before entering the hall that the Bryan demonstration had been arranged between the Hearst men and Tammany, and they were prepared to meet it by a Parker counter outburst of their own.

The subcommittee of the committee on resolutions spent its entire session in perfecting the details of the Democratic platform, concluding with the adoption of a gold standard plank. The plank was voted on during the absence of Mr. Bryan and Congressman Williams, and the ballot stood 7 to 3, the affirmative votes being cast by Messrs. Daniel, Hill, Pattison, Hamlin, Cable, Poe and Davis and the negative votes by Messrs. Dubois, Shively and Newlands. The understanding was that if Messrs. Bryan and Williams had been present they would have cast their votes in the negative, thus bringing the opposition vote to five.

The platform as declared is in part as follows:

"We the delegates of the Democratic party of the United States, in national convention assembled, declare our devotion to the essential principles of the Democratic faith which bring us together in party communion.

"Under them local self government and national unity and prosperity were alike established. They underlaid our independence, the structure of our free republic and every Democratic extension from Louisiana to California and Texas to Oregon which preserves faithfully in all the states the tie between taxation and representation. They yet inspirit the masses of our people, guarding jealously their rights and liberties and cherishing their fraternity, peace and orderly development. They remind us of our duties and responsibilities as citizens and impress upon us, particularly at this time, the necessity of reform and the rescue of the administration of government from the headstrong, arbitrary and spasmodic methods which distract business by uncertainty and pervade the public mind with dread, distrust and perturbation.

"The application of these fundamental principles to the living issues of the day constitutes the first step toward the assured peace, safety and progress of our nation. Freedom of the press, of conscience and of speech; equality before the law of all citizens, the right of trial by jury, freedom of the person defended by the writ of habeas corpus, liberty of personal contract untrammeled by sumptuary laws, the supremacy of the civil over military authority, a well disciplined militia, the separation of church and state, economy in expenditures, low taxes, that labor may be lightly burdened; the prompt and sacred fulfillment of public and private obligations, fidelity to treaties, peace and friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none; absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority, the vital principle of republics—these are doctrines which Democracy has established as proverbs of the nation, and they should be constantly invoked, preached, resorted to and enforced.

"Large reductions can readily be made in the annual expenditures of the government without impairing the efficiency of any branch of the public service, and we shall insist upon the strictest economy and frugality compatible with vigorous and efficient civil, military and naval administration as a right of the people too clear to be denied or withheld.

"The enforcement of honesty in the public service and to that end a thorough legislative investigation of those executive departments of the government already known to teem with corruption, as well as other departments suspected of harboring corruption, and the punishment of ascertained corruptionists without fear or favor or regard to persons. The persistent and deliberate refusal of both the senate and house of representatives to permit such investigation to be made by either branch of congress demonstrates that only by a change in the executive and in the house of representatives can complete exposure, punishment and correction come.

"We should bear in mind, in short, these two things: First, the general principle that the sole derivation of the power of taxation is the support of the federal government, economically, effectively and constitutionally administered, and, second, the equal truth that in the assertion of any general principle and in reaching any ultimate end, however sacred and logically unavoidable, due regard, but only due regard, must and should be paid to actually existing conditions.

"We favor the reduction of tariff taxation upon trust produced articles to the point where foreign competition may enter the American market whenever trusts and combines, seeking monopoly, raise their prices to the American consumer above a reasonable and just profit, by such reduction depriving trusts and monopolies of the power to extort from the American people under shelter of American law prices higher than those charged foreigners for identical articles."

Will Bryan Come?

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 8.—Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow, the Prohibition nominee for president, last night sent the following telegram to William J. Bryan at St. Louis: "My Dear Bryan—Read Numbers, tenth chapter, twenty-ninth verse. Come." Following is the verse, "And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Raguel, the Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, we are journeying unto the place of which the Lord said I will give it you: come thou with us, and we will do thee good, for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel."

THE DIAMOND SCULLS.

L. F. Scholes of Toronto Wins Great Race at Henley.

HENLEY, England, July 8.—L. F. Scholes of the Don Rowing club of Toronto beat A. H. Cloutte of the London Rowing club in their final heat of the race for the Diamond sculls.

Scholes' victory over Kelly, the amateur champion of the Thames and twice winner of the Diamond sculls, made the capture of the diamond trophy by Scholes a practical certainty. The Canadian sculler in the result not only justified the prediction of his friends, but created a new time record, 8 minutes 23 seconds, beating the record of B. H. Howell of New York in 1898 by six seconds.

The wind was upstream, and the conditions were favorable for fast traveling. Under the prevailing conditions there was little advantage in the choice of stations.

Scholes, who was on the Bucks side, got away first and led by half a length at a quarter of a mile from the start. The Canadian continued to travel so fast that he had two lengths the advantage at Fawley court.

Clouette there put in a series of fine spurts and once got within three-quarters of a length of his adversary, but Scholes again drew away and won by a length and a quarter amid a scene of great excitement.

In the final for the Stewards' cup Third Trinity, Cambridge, beat the Winnipeg crew.

Phenomenal Golf at Clyde Park.

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 8.—Phenomenal golf was shown at the opening meeting of the Greater Boston Interscholastic Golf association at Clyde park, many of the scores being worthy of older and more experienced players. Richard Kimball of Brookline High school, seventeen years old, made the eighteen holes in 75, or three strokes under the bogey and but little higher than the amateur record. Brice S. Evans, Jr., of Volkmann school took 79 for the course. Sixteen other players finished in less than 90 and ten of them in 85 or less.

Carrie Jones Won at Brighton.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The races at Brighton Beach were run over a heavy track, and only two favorites won, the other four events going to long shots. The Atlantic selling stakes, six furlongs, was won easily by Carrie Jones.

Racing at Harlem Track.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Racing conditions were none too pleasant at Harlem, the weather being chilly and threatening and the track slow and lumpy. Clifton Forge and Fonsoluca were the only favorites that won.

Fire In Chautauqua.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 8.—Fire started in the business portion of the village of Chautauqua, where the Chautauqua assembly is located, last night. The Chautauqua Supply company's store, the postoffice and Kellogg hall were in danger for some time. A fire engine was sent from Jamestown by special train. The fire burned for three hours and destroyed a block of old wooden buildings. The Chautauqua institution owns all the buildings, which are leased for business purposes. They will be replaced with more substantial structures. The loss probably does not exceed $15,000.

Floods at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, July 8.—The water in Kansas avenue, in the low lying portion of the outskirts of Kansas City, Kan., is three feet deep. The water has not touched the wholesale district on the Missouri side, and it is not believed that it will reach that portion. Armourdale is practically deserted, 5,000 persons having left their homes.

ALL NEGROES TAKEN

Burlington Citizens May Exact Summary Vengeance.

VICTIM OF ATTACK IS VERY LOW

Leader of the Gang Was Arrested In Columbia and Confessed to the Outrage—The Prisoners Fear Mob Law.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—Through the good work of the New Jersey and Pennsylvania authorities, coupled with fortunate circumstances, all the negroes implicated in the assault on Mrs. Charles Biddle at her home near Burlington, N. J., are now under arrest. Aaron Timbers, the leader of the attacking party, and Jonas Sims are in the Lancaster county (Pa.) jail, having been captured in Columbia, near Lancaster; William Austin is in Moyamensing prison here, and Thomas Jones is in the Burlington county jail at Mount Holly. The machinery of the law for the transfer of the three men in Pennsylvania jails to New Jersey has already been set in motion. For fear that the citizens of Burlington might take the law into their own hands the authorities of that county have promised a speedy trial for the accused men.

Public clamor for vengeance increased when it became known that Mrs. Biddle had collapsed under the strain. She lapsed into semiconsciousness, coming to her senses only to go into a series of spasms. The family physician was in attendance most of the day. At one time her condition was so serious that it was deemed best to send for all the relatives of the family.

There is no denying the fact that there is still danger of trouble if Timbers and his companions are soon taken to Burlington. Expressions are heard on all sides that the farmers of the county and citizens of Burlington should not wait for the slow moving of the law. The county authorities, however, are taking every precaution and feel confident they will be able to meet any overt act that might be attempted. It is possible that the three prisoners in this state will not be taken to New Jersey until the feeling against the men has calmed down.

Timbers and Sims were arrested in Columbia, and after confessing to their part in the outrage they were taken to the county jail at Lancaster. Timbers says there were only three in the party—Austin, Sims and himself. Sims disclaims all knowledge of anything that transpired upstairs and says he never went beyond the first floor, where he had been placed on guard.

Timbers, Sims and Austin are almost crazed from fear. They begged the officers not to take them to Burlington county, because they feel sure that they will be roughly handled.

Austin was given a hearing before a local magistrate and committed to await the action of the New Jersey authorities.

Plainfield, N. J., July 8, 1904.

The Democratic platform declares that the money question is "removed from the field of political contention." This will not effect the man who stands around on Election Day until a dollar or two is placed in his hand.

A well-written, well-arranged and well-displayed advertisement attracts to the advertiser's place of business large numbers of people, who invariably become purchasers. Clear, concise and direct statements impress the minds of the readers of advertisements.—Ex.

The good people of Burlington need have no fear. The justice to be meted out to the colored fiends who assaulted Mrs. Biddle will be of the usual Jersey brand. In another State there might be some excuse for resorting to lynching, but in Jersey never. The law will take its customary course and the punishment of the brutes will be swift and severe.

All along the line Democrats are asking themselves whether Bryan will bolt the party should the ticket and platform be distasteful to him. Despite the fact that he has completely lost the firm grip which he had on the party a few years ago, some are in fear and trembling lest the Nebraskan desert the ranks. The refusal of Cleveland and other high minded Democrats to support the nominee during the last two Presidential campaigns was disastrous to the party or rather to that faction which was labelled as the party. Bryan raged and stormed against the sage of Princeton and his distinguished friends because of their desertion. Today the conditions are just the reverse of what they were during the last two National campaigns. The conservative and substantial element is in control and Bryan is in bad odor. But Bryan will not bolt, at least he will not if he has the political sagacity for which he is generally credited. Politics has been a profitable business with him. Had he been elected President of these United States he would be much poorer in the world's goods than he is. His "First Battle," published after the campaign of 1896, brought him a handsome sum and the volume he issued after the second campaign added to his bank account considerably. There is reason to suppose that he will contribute further to political literature along the same lines and must depend upon his friends in the Democratic party to make his undertakings a success financially. In addition to this he is the editor and proprietor of The Commoner, which is circulated from the Atlantic to the Pacific and counts among its subscribers at least 100,000 radical Democrats. Should the stamp of regularity in party politics be taken from him, as it would in case of his bolting the ticket, his paper could no longer claim to be a Democratic organ and he would undoubtedly suffer seriously. Again as a Democratic orator he has made no small amount from his lectures and public addresses generally. Once let him bolt the party, and he would sink into "innocuous desuetude," never to appear again. It would mean a great loss to him—far greater than to his party. A little thought on the subject will bring conviction that "The Boy Orator of the Platte," as he was called in 1896, has too much gumption to jump over the traces. He will stay in harness while his strength will continue to grow less and less. The end of this disturber is not far distant, but depend upon it that to the last he will be a "regular" for pecuniary purposes if for no other object.

IN THE CHRISTIAN FIELD

WORK IN THE CHURCHES OF THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

The offering at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday will be for the Plainfield Relief Association.

It is said that Rev. James A. Francis, formerly of Boston, who recently occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church, has been secured to preach at the same church two Sundays in August.

Eight new pastors, including Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist church, and Rev. A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, have joined the East New Jersey Baptist Association, during the past year.

Rev. Dr. E. M. Rodman will preside at the meeting to be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday night in the interest of the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home. There will be several addresses and special music.

The choir of the First Baptist church will give a special musicale service at the church on Sunday night. Howard Case, organist, will be in charge. The choir will soon take its vacation for the summer months.

The National Convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America, is being held at Detroit. The first session was held yesterday and the concluding one will be held Sunday night. There are no representatives from this city.

Rev. Robert T. Craig, of the Union Avenue Baptist church, Paterson, who has many friends here, has been chosen pastor of the Summit Avenue Baptist church, Jersey City. He succeeds Rev. W. J. Swaffield, who was called to New York some months ago.

Since taking charge of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church as pastor, three months ago, Rev. Mr. Ashley, has been instrumental in adding over ten new members to the roll and $500 has been raised. The church is in a prosperous condition, financially and spiritually.

The New Jersey Baptist Bulletin for July has this to say: "We regret to report that Pastor J. A. Chambliss has been ordered by his physicians to relinquish work for a period of three months at least. An unusual strain of service on a stormy day led to an attack of laryngitis, which has proved quite stubborn. The lungs are not involved, but a period of absolute rest is demanded. He will go to Lookout Mountain, Tenn., a region with which he is familiar and where he will be near to his sons. Pulpit supplies have been secured until September when Dr. Chambliss hopes to again resume pastoral work."

RUSSIANS FALL BACK

Japanese Brigade Advances Close to Kaichow.

PORT ARTHUR IS NOW HEMMED IN

Admiral Bezobrazoff Reports That Two Torpedo Boats of the Enemy Were Sunk by Vladivostok Fleet.

LONDON, July 8.—A Tatchekiao dispatch says that the Japanese in force have swarmed over the mountain crests and advanced on Kaichow, compelling General Chirikoff, with the center of the Russian vanguard, to fall back.

A whole brigade of Japanese, with masses of cavalry, followed and occupied the village of Nantay, driving out two companies of Russian infantry and two companies of Cossacks who were intrenched there. The Japanese have arrived within five miles of Kaichow and both hold a strong position.

General Samsonoff made a heroic attempt to check the Japanese, galloping out with guns to shell the Japanese left and inflicting great loss on them. But, fearing his retreat would be cut off, he fell back and is now holding Kaichow. General Chirikoff's force is stationed southeast of Kaichow. The plans of the Japanese remain a mystery to the Russian commanders.

There is no doubt that the appearance of the Japanese so close to Kaichow is one of the most crucial features of the present situation. This leaves an opportunity either for a vigorous defense of Kaichow, bringing south for this purpose General Kuropatkin, who is still at Tatchekiao, or for the Russians to evacuate Kaichow without serious resistance, probably concentrating at Tatchekiao, at which is the end of the branch railroad connecting Newchwang with the main line and apparently the last place where a stand could be successfully made to prevent the Japanese from pushing across the peninsula, seizing Newchwang and Yinkow and establishing a new base on the west coast of the peninsula.

The fact that the Japanese outposts are gradually being pushed out along the whole front, even to the north of Liaoyang, makes fighting a possibility almost anywhere along the railroad.

A Tokyo dispatch says that to the Japanese people the war is like the enactment of a great tragedy in a thronged theater upon which the curtain is never lifted.

Much concerning the siege of Port Arthur could be published without injury to the Japanese cause, but the general staff, resolved to avoid aiding St. Petersburg or General Kuropatkin with a single shred of information, has placed an absolute embargo on the transmission of news. Geographical and local conditions, both in Japan and at the seat of war, make it possible to enforce this embargo with almost complete effect. No foreigner accompanies either the Japanese forces which are besieging Port Arthur, the army under General Oku or the army which was landed at Takushan, and the newspaper correspondents and foreign attaches with General Kuroki are made to remain within a circle having a radius of a little over half a mile.

The Russians are forced to travel afield along the Japanese front, which extends for 250 miles, in order to determine in actual scouting the positions and strength of their enemy, and, added to this, they must discount a series of clever feints and ruses designed to deceive them.

The curtain down over the theater of war will, however, soon be raised, and it is confidently expected that the lifting will reveal the Japanese to be in possession of splendid strategical advantages, with men and guns enough to carry the present campaign to a successful conclusion.

A Chefu dispatch says that in the fighting which occurred for the possession of one of the hills northeast of Port Arthur the Russians lost, according to Chinese reports, 100 men killed and fifty wounded. Fifty Chinese were sent out to bring in the Russian dead and wounded.

The Japanese have occupied the second range of hills around Port Arthur and are now massing men to march upon the Russian marine camp that commands the principal pass through the hills, which is directly back of Port Arthur. This camp is considered vital to the safety of the fortress, and it is guarded, according to the Chinese, by 20,000 marines and sailors. In the Chinese-Japanese war the Japanese occupied this camp for several days before they took possession of Port Arthur.

Chinese say the entrance to the harbor to Port Arthur is unsafe for the passage of vessels. One Russian warship was slightly damaged while coming out recently as a result of striking a sunken wreck, and two other warships collided in the entrance and had to undergo repairs.

Vice Admiral Skrydloff has reported to St. Petersburg that the Russian cruisers from Vladivostok, commanded by Vice Admiral Bezobrazoff, met a Japanese squadron, consisting of three battleships, four protected cruisers and torpedo boats, in the Korean gulf and turned back. The Japanese pursued the Russians, the battleships and cruisers firing on them without result. Japanese torpedo boats then attacked the Russians, which returned the attack, and Admiral Bezobrazoff believes that two of the enemy's torpedo boats were sunk by the Russian fire. The Russians sustained no damage.

A Chefu dispatch says that Chinese who have arrived there from Port Arthur say the Japanese forces have formed a complete cordon around the land side of the town and that they are occupying all the commanding hills, including Wolf mountain, within a radius of seven miles of the fortifications.

The Chinese say also that two large warships are missing from the squadron which went out from Port Arthur and that the Russian battleship Sevastopol has been damaged.

The Japanese bombarded Port Arthur from the sea on June 30, but did no damage to the town.

Cholera Threatens Both Armies.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A cable report from Minister Allen at Seoul points to the existence of a great danger to both belligerent armies in Manchuria. He says that he has learned from a missionary surgeon that cholera has crossed Manchuria and appeared at Antung.

THE LOOMIS MYSTERY.

Acting Secretary of State Has Still No Word of His Brother.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—When Acting Secretary Loomis returned here from New York, where he had been to consult the officers of the Kaiser Wilhelm II. regarding the disappearance of his brother, F. Kent Loomis, on her eastward trip, he found on his desk at the state department the expected report on the same subject by W. H. Ellis, Kent Loomis' traveling companion.

The report is voluminous, entering with great detail into every incident of the trip from New York to Plymouth. Acting Secretary Loomis as yet has not had an opportunity to peruse the report carefully, but from a hasty glance gained an idea of its contents and has found that Mr. Ellis is unable to throw any new light on the tragedy. His statements made to the American embassy at Paris and set out at length in the cable press dispatches appear to cover the ground.

Mr. Ellis reports that Mr. Loomis had not been drinking to excess; that when he last saw him was on the ship's deck about 11 o'clock, and that there was nothing in his appearance to indicate that he was not in full control of himself and in possession of all his faculties. Employees on the steamship who knew Mr. Loomis best corroborate the statements of Mr. Ellis.

Consul General Gowdy, in commenting on Mr. Ellis' letter, says, "I think it will be realized from his statement that he has told the facts."

ROBBED MRS. POTTER.

Wife of New York Bishop Loses Gems Valued at $50,000.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., July 8.—Fifty thousand dollars' worth of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Potter, wife of Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York, was stolen from a safe in the office of the Clark estate here. It is thought that the robbery occurred at noon, although the absence of the jewelry was not discovered until 6 o'clock in the evening. The boxes in which the jewels had been kept were later found in the cellar of the building empty and with blood stains on them. The thief overlooked a number of valuable papers that were in the safe and carried away several insurance policies. It is believed that he entered the office in the morning and remained secreted there until the office force went out for luncheon.

A reward of $1,000 has been offered for the thief's arrest.

Coroner Will Hold Goldsborough.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 8.—Coroner Mix, who has been investigating the shooting of Alfred Ten Eyck in Wallingford on the morning of the Fourth of July by Robert Goldsborough, returned a finding this afternoon that the death was the result of Goldsborough's criminal act. While the two were fooling in an open lot Ten Eyck, according to the coroner, took off Goldsborough's cap and put it on his own head. Goldsborough told him to bring it back, and when Ten Eyck started to run away Goldsborough threw up the gun and shot him.

Rockefeller at Esopus.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 8.—Something of a sensation was created in Kingston last night by the arrival of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Mrs. Rockefeller at the Eagle hotel. The rumor got abroad that he had come to see Judge Parker, but there was nothing to indicate any such intention on his part, and Judge Parker's secretary pronounced the story preposterous. Mr. Rockefeller declined to see callers, and it is believed he is going into the Catskills by an early train.

Bank President Acquitted.

TRENTON, N. J., July 8.—George F. Kroehl, president of the First National bank of Asbury Park, which some time ago was put into the hands of a receiver, has been acquitted in the United States district court of the charge of making false entries in the books of the bank. The verdict was rendered by the jury under direction of the court.

Waterspout at Clinton, Okla.

OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., July 8.—A waterspout, accompanied by terrific wind, passed through Clinton, Okla., and vicinity at midnight in which six persons were killed and several injured. Reports from Araphie, Wetherford, Geary, Cordell, Anadarko and other points in western Oklahoma tell of great damage by flood.

COW NURSES ORPHAN COLT

Another Catches Catfish and Eats Them with a Relish, Thereby Causing Big Sensation.

John Hefferan has a small farm a mile away from Danbury, Conn., on which he keeps live stock, including a small herd of cows and several horses. Several days ago Hefferan's brood mare fell and broke its leg. There was no chance of mending the break and the horse was shot. A colt only a few days old was left when the mare died. The colt was too young to shift for itself, so it was fed with milk from a bottle.

Although it drank enough milk to keep it alive, it did not take well to the diet. The other day when Hefferan went out to look at the cows in the pasture he was surprised to see the colt following close at the heels of one of the cows, while a small calf about the same age as the colt followed too. The motherly animal fed the two with the greatest impartiality. The colt will be allowed to grow up with its adoptive mother until it gets large enough to eat grass.

Three miles south of Danbury, Alexander Geary has a farm. Geary's cows graze in a pasture through which runs a good-sized brook. Recently Geary's small son saw a cow acting peculiarly as it stood at the edge of the brook and he ran to the house to tell his father that the cow was catching fish and eating them.

The skeptical Mr. Geary laughed, but went to the pasture and watched the cow. It was still standing with its front legs in the water. The cow thrust its nose into the water and brought something out. This something proved to be a large catfish, and the cow munched it with evident relish. The cow caught several more fish while its owner watched it. Mr. Geary told some friends in Danbury about the occurrence and, as they appeared skeptical, he drove them to his farm to prove the truth of the story. They saw the farm and the brook and the cow.

MAGNETIC GIRL A WONDER.

Stones Leap in Air, Dishes Dance and Bottles Jump from Table at Her Approach.

An account of a phenomenon observed in a girl of 12 residing at Vladikavkas, in the Caucasus, has been communicated to the St. Petersburg Novoe Vremya.

The girl is the daughter of a workman named Luba. It is stated that every object which she approaches begins to move. If she goes near a dresser with plates upon it they begin to dance, washing hung on a line flies off it, a bottle standing on a table is raised in the air, and, falling down, is broken in pieces, and stones lying on the ground leap in the air and fall again.

The girl is perfectly healthy and laughs at the occurrences called forth on her appearance. No one can explain them, although many doctors and professors of physical science have been consulted.

The child's parents are poor and wish to send her out to domestic service, but she always loses her places owing to the assertion of ignorant people that she is possessed of a devil and that she should be sent to Father John, of Cronstadt, in St. Petersburg, to have the demon exorcised.

At present the means are being collected to send the child to St. Petersburg for her marvelous magnetic powers to be examined by medical authorities.

Sealskin Shoes for Dogs.

Sealskin shoes, for dogs, are made in Labrador. The dogs attached to sledges travel at great speed over the rough ice, and some protection for the feet is necessary.

The weight of a full-grown whale is about 100 tons; that is, about as much as 80 elephants.

WHAT IS WORN.

The Growing Fancy For Taffeta. Pretty Dresses For Debutantes.

Soft taffeta of the palest green makes a very pretty opera coat lined with shot green and white chiffon. Chiffon linings are characteristic of the summer wrap and are blended with lovely laces.

A dainty gown now being made for a debutante is of white silk muslin gauged in at the waist and finished down the front with quaint little ruches of white taffeta. A thicker ruching also appears at the feet, headed by a narrow border of pearl trimming. The baby waist is trimmed with ruchings of silk, and the decolletage is edged with the pearl trimming which rests on the neck. The sleeves are dainty little puffs, and the girdle is of blue silk.

There is a growing fancy for green in beautiful soft shades; consequently emeralds are growing in favor, and we also see other curious green stones.

Some beautiful toilets for debutantes are made of brussels tulle or fine chiffon sprinkled with gold or silver sequins. These are almost invariably worn with pearl ornaments, which are the only ones permissible for young girls.

Enamel work is much used on parasol handles. These tints are usually combined with a touch of silver or gold.

The wash silk glove still continues to be the only glove for warm weather tailor mades. This should be pure white in preference to black or tan, although quite a few grays are worn with costumes of this shade.

Champagne shades are all the vogue in linen, silk and woolens. The picture shows a black chiffon hat having a straw edge and trimmed with ostrich tips.

WHITE GOWNS.

They Divide the Honors With Black This Season—Outing Frocks.

Panne cloth in ivory, mastic and all the paler leather tints is much used in summer wraps, and wee bits of oriental embroidery are used with excellent effect. Very dainty passementeries can be bought ready to put on coats and bodices, and some of coarse lace have so many tabs and pendants that the surface of the coat is fairly covered.

The ideal summer frock is the white one in chiffon, mousseline or such fabrics. White mousseline de soie is almost as pretty as chiffon and possesses better wearing qualities. These ethereal materials are very effective when trimmed with Irish crochet, and not only will they do duty during the summer, but they come in admirably for house wear during the winter months and even for dinner wear.

A satin messaline seen recently was cut princess, and it showed a guimpe and undersleeves of the palest pink embroidered soft Italian muslin. A dead white linen is very smart worn with a burnt straw hat relieved with a touch of black or a wreath of scarlet poppies, the color of which is duplicated in a crimson tie and belt.

A pretty little gown seen recently was of pink linen, the skirt made with large box plaits, which were also used on the waist and combined with a square collar and deep cuffs of English embroidery.

White serge and navy blue serge are mostly trimmed with flat silk braid, except where heavy embroideries of wool are used to embellish the material. These wool embroideries are the latest thing.

A dress of scarlet linen seen recently was embroidered in white and worn with a white kid belt and a silk tie.

The picture shows a bolero of jet having long points and loose sleeves with wide edges.

SPANISH PEGGY

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

"Antywine and the chief Abe on the survey trail. They not here to stop Pedro Lorimer. He get you this time."

"Has he come back again?"

Shickshack grunted. "At the Grove—two, four days. He tell the young braves Black Hawk is on the war path. Drive out old Indian! Burn his wigwam! Old Indian help Black Hawk. Me not need totem signs to find out what he want. He say old Indian have no business to keep white girl."

"But, father, you cannot carry me so far!" Peggy strongly revolted. She wept, shivering against his back. He descended toward a darkened plain without heeding her arguments against his course, except to assure her he intended to hire a horse at the first cabin.

The sloughs were frozen, and frost-blackened grass crisped under his feet. Nowhere could any farmhouse light be seen, and the gentle flicker-like insect wings had become a driving storm of snow. Shickshack found the road stretching southwest toward Jacksonville, and plodded steadily along. Jogging through an immensity of night and cold and drifting whiteness, Peggy ceased to beg that he would let her walk, and lapsed into such drowsiness that he was obliged to shake her when he set her down. By this time the chill windrows were nearly to his knees. Unsheltered by his body, she felt the dry spume spinning in her face.

"Me have to put you in the log to-night," said Shickshack. "Snow too bad to go farther."

Every new Salemite had heard of or seen the huge hollow log strangely left upon the prairie beside that road. Once Slicky Green and another boy, belated on a bitter night while searching for lost cattle, had driven wild hogs out of it, and saved their own lives in its roomy hollow. It loomed a white ridge, higher than Peggy's head, its black opening already banked with drift. Shickshack crawled in with his knife unsheathed. A yelping, snarling struggle was muffled by the log, until something dark leaped past Peggy, and ran across the snow.

"Wolf," observed the Sac. "Him not like to leave him good bed."

Reluctantly, in spite of the cold, Peggy crawled past him into the deep shelter, dragging her crutch. Her hand touched something furry, and green eyes shot flame at her. Shickshack hauled a cub from its cushion of rotten wood and threw it out after its mother.

Peggy was so drowsy that she remembered nothing further of the night, except some noises at the open end of the log.

When she awoke it was light enough to see overhead the ridged vault of her wooden cavern. The snow cast in a pallid illumination. She sat up and called Shickshack. He remained in a rigid attitude, with his back to her, and his legs extending out under a white lapful. His arm was hard as marble in her hand when she touched him, and he did not turn his head.

"Father!" she screamed. "Father!"

CHAPTER V.

The old Sac, who had guarded her rooftree, whether cabin or wigwam, every night of her remembrance, sat upright, holding his knife, on which frozen blood was crystallized. Two or three dead wolves lay outside the log on the snow. But not one of them was frozen stiffer than the Indian, who, after his own fashion, had given life itself for the safety of his adopted child.

Peggy would not believe he was dead. She clung to his old shoulders, and screamed to rouse him. The Sac, who loved white men, and had never failed to answer the appeal of his white child, silently blocked the entrance of the log. His eyebrows were hoar frost, and the dark ruddiness of his face and neck seemed crusted with rough silver.

Peggy's wild crying might have resounded long in the hollow log, and brought no person to help her. For all around was the vast prairie stretching from horizon to horizon, a glare of whiteness unpierced by the smoke of a single fire. But two figures toiled toward New Salem through the early cold, wading with effort, and finally making for the hummock in which they recognized the submerged log. Lincoln and his chain-bearer encountered the frozen Indian and the crying girl as they stooped to enter and warm themselves.

High as drifts were piled in New Salem streets, for this was the winter known long afterward as "the winter of the deep snow," people gathered hastily through the unabated storm when word went around that Shickshack had been brought in frozen to death. Lincoln and Antywine, in silent agreement, stopped the ox sled they had borrowed, at the door of Rutledge's tavern. Neither said, "Let us take him to his own cabin." In death, at least, he should escape from the environment which Sally made, and be publicly honored.

Antywine went directly to carry the news to the widow, and Sally heard it, making a clicking sound of disapproval with her tongue.

She knocked the ashes out of her cob pipe, partly on the hearth and partly in the dinner pot, which hung from the crane.

"Now don't that beat ye! Gone and froze hisself to death the first big snow and New Salem seven miles from a buryin' ground! He always was the most ill-convenient old In'jan! Took him to the tavern, did ye?"

"Yes," replied Antywine, without apology.

"Well, keep him there. I'll come to the funeral. Funerals is no novelty to me, buryin' men as often as I have."

Neighbors talked in whispers around the dignified figure stretched on a white-covered board under a canopy of sheets. But Antywine and Lincoln had themselves washed it, and dressed it in the Sac's best buckskins. They found girded around the waist a heavy belt of rattlesnake skin.

"This is the snakeskin of money belonging to Peggy that he told me about," Lincoln said to Antywine. "He must have taken it out of its hiding-place before he started to find Dick Yates. What shall we do with it?"

"Put it on, Sieur Abe, to wear for ser, as Shickshack did."

"They say snakeskin in the hat is good for the headache; but I don't think I could bear it rubbing against my naked hide. This belt is nearer your size, Antywine."

"Me, I am a boy, Sieur Abe. Shickshack put his trust in you. He tell you I am a squaw!"

"I reckon he changed his opinion. He only struck out to find Dick because we were away. But you're a little nearer than nearest of kin to Peggy, so if you say I'm to undertake the thing, I'll try it. And if Mother Eve is too strong in me to stand the snake next to me I'll manage it some other way."

Lincoln and Antywine also helped the cooper make Shickshack's coffin, for neighbor was then obliged to depend upon neighbor for such a service. No fee was ever charged, though if one was offered it had to be accepted.

Religion did little to soften the grimness of death in those early days. The unpainted coffin stood on two chairs in the largest room of the tavern, and Mahala Cameron's father, hymn book in hand, placed himself behind it as behind an intrenchment, whence he could launch warnings on the uncertainty of life. His father, called old Daddy Cameron, a tremulous and toothless creature, who encountered age as a disease rather than a transition, sat by, sighing, as if to illustrate the unpleasantness of life's certainty.

Such funeral rites as New Salem afforded were held in the early forenoon, because snow continued to fall, and seven miles of drift had to be cut through to Concord burying ground. The entire population, as well as men from Clary's Grove, crowded the tavern. People stared when Don Pedro Lorimer came in with Redmond Clary, richly and warmly dressed, as if he had not found it unprofitable to plead the annexation of Cuba. His shining black hair and olive face had a placid, worldly look. One hard-working woman whispered to another that you would not think butter could melt in his mouth, and he appeared the last man to rob an orphan or to run her off with him against her will.

Peggy saw him through her tears with indignation. She sat beside Antywine on one of three chairs which Ann Rutledge had placed at the head of the coffin for Shickshack's family. But the third chair remained vacant until the preacher stood in embarrassment, undecided whether or not to raise a hymn while all the mourners gathered.

Shickshack's widow finally entered the tavern muffled from the snow in a blanket, carrying a basket on her arm. The crowded assembly opened to let her pass. She set her basket down, and with a vicious pounce took Antywine and Peggy by the ear. Antywine visibly restrained himself and walked unresisting with Peggy to the foot of the coffin. Sally shoved the chairs after them, and returned to her own place as chief mourner.

"This isn't your funeral!" the bereaved woman explained sourly to them. "He wasn't no kin to either of ye!"

Solemn-featured neighbors relaxed in countenance and looked sidelong at one another. They watched Sally lay off the blanket and take from her basket a rusty mourning shawl, a black bonnet and crape veil. In this regalia, kept for her husband's funerals, she dressed herself publicly, and, having completed her preparations, sat down, heaving a deep sigh. The sight of her beard under widow's weeds so affected one of the Grove boys that he disgraced himself by an audible snort. He did not mind disturbing meeting, but a funeral was different; and he whispered apologetically to the man beside him: "I bet God laughed when He made that woman!"

Candles were lighted in the tavern before the masculine population of New Salem—for only those went who could shovel snow and help dig a grave—returned from burying Shickshack. A river of icy air flowing out of the northwest had by that time cleared the storm away. Peggy and Antywine were to spend the second night of their peculiar orphanage at the Rutledges', in order to settle the business of Peggy's own inheritance, which Shickshack had silently passed on to his successors.

They sat down with Lincoln and Ann Rutledge in the best room, and he put the rattlesnake skin before them on a table. Peggy looked at it curiously, having never before seen her fortune, or the case which held it. The spots described by scales made her shudder. Ann also saw it with aversion, and wondered why Shickshack preferred that to a strong piece of buckskin.

"A rattlesnake," said Lincoln, "when you get over the first shock of introduction to him, is a mighty pretty fellow. See his combine of colors! He has lost his first freshness and his rattles, trying to bruise the tough hide of mankind. But I doubt if he ever stung anybody; he wouldn't unless he was crowded."

Through an open door the tavern kitchen displayed a roaring hearth, where the Dutch oven, with coals on its head and beneath its feet, held a joint of venison. A coffee pot, standing on a trivet over embers, sent perfume abroad. Johnnycakes of parched corn ground in the hand-mill were browning on boards slanted toward the fire—"the best bread that ever was e't!" testifies a surviving New Salemite. Hominy hissing in pork fat sent its song through the room, while the younger Rutledge girls helped their mother bring to the table cold turkey, cream and butter, fruits preserved in maple syrup, and honey found in the wild-bee tree.

Plenty of food, an abundance of candle-light, and the heartening warmth of the Franklin stove near her, may have suggested visions to Peggy as she inquired of her friends, "What must I do with this money?"

"Sieur Abe has kept it safe," suggested Antywine.

"There is no one trustier!" spoke Ann.

"Will you keep it for me, Mr. Lincoln?"

"I am not a good money-getter," he laughed, "and I doubt if I am a good money-keeper. The only thing I could do would be to carry it around for you and guarantee it shouldn't fall into worse hands."

REMARKABLY BRAVE JAPS.

Matchless Courage Displayed by the Little Soldiers in the Battle of Kinchow.

Devoid of all rhetoric, thoroughly characteristic of the man and his achievements, is the official report of Gen. Oku, commander of the second Japanese army in the battle of Kinchow, which included the storming of Nanshan hill, but the bare facts chronicle one of the most remarkable feats of arms in history, the magnitude of the undertaking, the matchless display of courage on the part of the Japanese troops, becoming more and more impressive as one reads between the lines, says the Detroit Free Press. In the face of a prospect that to less determined men would have meant certain defeat, the Japanese infantry at nine o'clock in the morning began charging up the face of Nanshan hill, 2,000 feet in height, upon the peak of which the Russians had erected permanent fortifications, equipped with rapid fire guns and 70 heavy cannon, and defended by more than 12,000 men. The carnage that followed was indescribable, entire companies falling in their tracks, while those behind, exposed to the pitiless hail of lead from the heights above, infuriated rather than daunted by the frightful spectacle, swept forward like avenging fiends, blind to danger, bent only on attaining the desired ends regardless of cost. Detachment after detachment stormed up the hill, their ranks thinned by the storm of shot and shell, but never wavering. The thought of failure was unknown to them. Late in the afternoon part of the Japanese forces managed to penetrate the first Russian line of defense on the hill, and by an irresistible rush of the rest the Russians were put to flight.

Beside an achievement such as this the heroism of the patriots at Bunker Hill, the charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava, our own Lookout Mountain and Gettysburg and other bloody engagements lose a portion of their luster. To attempt to detract from their glory would be treasonable. But modern warfare knows no such record as that made by the Japs at Nanshan hill. Had anyone suggested 20 years ago that the orient would bring forth such fighters he would have encountered the ridicule of American and European military men. Yet when put to the test they developed a degree of courage, of stability, of absolute indifference to danger and devotion to duty that caused the entire world to express its admiration. History recounts few such exhibitions as that furnished by the Japanese, against whom the boasted defensive resources of civilization appear pitifully inadequate, and the utter extermination of whom appears to be the only salvation of their opponents. With the memory of Nanshan hill still fresh in mind, it is little wonder the world stands in breathless expectancy, wondering where it will all end.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

THE SAHARA DESERT

OF ITS VAST INTERIOR WE KNOW BUT LITTLE.

Its Ruler a Despotic Sheik Known as the "Veiled Prophet"—It Is Not All a Great Barren Waste.

The region of Sahara, which has come so prominently before the public, owing to the claim of M. Jacques Lebaudy to be emperor of it, is a practically unknown land. Very few Europeans have visited its interior, and the few attempts that have been made to trade with the inhabitants from the coast have resulted in failure, sometimes with disastrous results to the people engaged.

Capt. Rider Noble, an officer in the English army, who was lent some four years ago to his majesty, the sultan of Morocco, has had an exceptional opportunity of penetrating into the country, under the protection of his sherifian majesty. He found the country rich in minerals, and in many places capable of agricultural developments, inhabited by a large number of nomadic tribes, avaging about 500 members each. The whole were ruled in a despotic manner by a religious chief, or shiek, known as the "veiled prophet," whose actual name is Sheik Malain. So great is his power that the sultan of Morocco has an arrangement with him to keep his ferocious subjects in order and prevent them attacking the country under the sultan's rule. This he does for a fixed tribute. Periodically he issues from the interior to pay a flying visit to the sultan, and it happened during Capt. Noble's stay in Morocco the time had arrived to pay this visit. Contrary to his usual custom of coming only to the borders of Morocco, he had accepted the sultan's invitation to come as far as the city of Fez, and Capt. Noble had the opportunity offered by his friend, the sultan, of meeting this illustrious personage. He came accompanied by his sons and relations, and a retinue of a hundred or more of his tribe, for the most part mounted on the slight camel of the southern desert. There is no doubt that Sheik Malam has profited by his religious renown to add to his prosperity. Not only has he obtained temporal as well as spiritual ascendancy in his own country, but he has played up to his reputation further afield, and in his manner and costume, he does all he can to obtain notoriety, in which he is backed up by the Moorish government. He is treated by them as no other subject of the sultan is treated, and on his arrival some 6,000 infantry were turned out to line the road outside the city gate, while the great officers of state, with retinues of cavalry met him some miles away on the road.

He was a little bit shocked at first at the idea of a dog of a Christian being allowed to come near him, but on the representations of the sultan's officers, he agreed to meet Capt. Noble. This gentleman was extremely fortunate in having a camera with him, and without loss of time proceeded to snapshot the prophet. He at once betrayed nervousness at the black box as he called it, and promptly demanded his umbrella, the usual appenage of an eastern potentate. This was handed to him, as seen in the photograph, and to Capt. Noble's intense amusement, instead of being the cumbersome affair, was a thin-rolling, latest pattern Bond street production. Where and how this had got into the interior of the Sahara, however, no one was able to explain. Capt. Noble said he found the shiek an extremely intelligent, well-read man. He was utterly unable to form any conclusion as to what nationality he was, as he kept the green veil over his face all the time he was in public. The language he used in conversing was classical Arabic.

Capt. Noble feels sure that should M. Lebaudy actually carry out his idea of endeavoring to locate himself in the Saharra, he will find the existing ruler an extremely difficult person to oust from his present position.

Not Well Informed.

Kinglake, the historian of the Crimean war, was approached by a spiritualist one day, who told him that the speaker had had a command from the recently deceased Mrs. Kinglake to convert "William Alexander Kinglake" to his doctrines. "Well," said Kinglake, "even in Heaven one has a right to expect accuracy. My name is Alexander William Kinglake." The commissioner left at once.—Chicago Daily News.

Hard on the Oldest Son.

A strange law prevails in China. If a native dies while being tried for murder, the very fact of his dying is taken as evidence of his guilt. He has departed, but somebody must suffer; and his eldest son, if he has one, is sent to prison for a year.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Reform Club nine will play the Dunellens tomorrow afternoon at Dunellen.

The New Markets will have another try at the Clinton Avenues tomorrow afternoon at New Market.

It is now about decided that the first contest between Alis and Westfield will be played on Crescent Oval on Saturday, July 16.

George Dupee, of the borough, will pitch for East Millstone on Saturday. He was unable to occupy the box on the Fourth, being called away by another engagement.

When it is remembered that the Hobokens defeated the Boston Americans early in the season by a score of 5 to 0, the showing made by Alis on Monday was most creditable, 6 to 5, ten innings.

Cullum, who formerly officiated as umpire at the Westfield games, has been performing similar duties for other teams in the vicinity of New York. He came to town with the Murray Hills on Monday.

The showing made by Patience, of Kingston, in the three last contests he played for Alis, indicates that he would make a good man on third base. He is built just right for that position and is too valuable a man to lose.

Badgley, the new head twistmeister of the Alis, the returned to his home in Hackettstown after a stay with John McLaughlin, of Somerset street, last year's manager of the nine. Badgley and Warry McLaughlin, the twirler brother of John McLaughlin, have become chummy.

One of the best outfielders seen in this vicinity this year is Cregan. In several contests he has had the credit of throwing a base-runner out at the home plate from his position in left field. McGoey in center field is also hard to beat as a fielder and both players are hitting the ball hard.

It is said that the work of the committee in settling the Alis-Westfield disputed contest will not interfere with the resumption of the series. However, the ball fans would like to know the names of the committee and the decision. The less "star chamber" work about the affair the better it will be for the coming series.

ON THE TRACK.

Many New Jersey entries have been received for the race meet to be held at Narragansett Park next week. The events will begin on Tuesday, and the meet will wind up on Friday.

Indications are that the Monmouth County open-air horse show will this year be more attractive than ever. The eleventh annual exhibition will be held in the picturesque Hollywood Park on July 27, 28, 29 and 30, closing with a show by electric light. Entries close on July 16. Prizes aggregating nearly $6,000 will be distributed.

ROD AND GUN.

Eugene O'Reilly reports that weakfish are biting good at Boynton Beach.

Edward Laing and Elmer D. Cutting have planned a fishing trip to Perth Amboy next week.

New Brunswick Races.

This is the programme for the Raritan Driving Park Association races at New Brunswick tomorrow afternoon:

LITERARY.

The last issue of The Outlook contains a special article on the National Republican Convention at Chicago, written by Francis E. Leupp, perhaps the best known and certainly one of the ablest—if not the ablest—of the Washington correspondents for New York papers. The article is accompanied by portraits of the Republican candidates for the Presidency and Vice Presidency, and in the same issue an elaborate editorial discusses the policy and platform of the Republican party. Among other features of special note in this number may be mentioned a singular collection of pictures by Japanese artists, relating to the war, sent to The Outlook by its correspondent in the Far East, George Kennan, whose letters are now almost weekly appearing in The Outlook, and an interesting instalment of Stewart Edward White's "The Mountains," illustrated by Fernand Lungren.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Johnstown Flood at Coney Island—Have you seen the most popular, most successful and greatest scenic production the world ever knew? If not, why not? The show is really a revelation of electrical wonders of modern times. You have a delightful visit in store for you. At the Pan American over one million saw it, and at Coney Island over two million people have already witnessed this grand spectacle, and all were unanimous in pronouncing it to be a gigantic success. The now famed flood terrified many thousands of people all over the world, and cast a gloom wherever English speaking people were found. As the slow measured tones of the lecturer rise and fall, the calm city is to be seen; then the bursting of the dam, his voice crescendo, and in an outburst the calamity has befallen. One listens fascinated by the recital of the horrible events ensuing, when man and beast met death alike. The music pulsates through the brain, enthusiasm sways the individual, and alas! when the city of Johnstown is once more to be seen, it is as nothing—the streets are deserted; the houses empty, and an air of solitude prevails, for the cruel waters have swallowed the peaceful people of a peaceful town.

F. Hopkinson Smith, author of Col. Carter of Cartersville, visited Beautiful Venice in Madison Square Garden the other evening and between the acts talked with Conductor Duss in the green room. The creator of Col. Carter and Caleb West in the authority on Venetian art in this country and in speaking with Mr. Duss, Mr. Smith said: "As I got in one of your gondolas while it drifted lazily down towards the home of Desdemona, with St. Mark's Cathedral and the Campanile in the distance, I was back in Venice by the Adriatic for it all seemed so real. In the most minute detail you have preserved the very atmosphere of Venice, Mr. Duss, and such an achievement were it done in Paris, would simply pack the largest building there every night for a year." That Venice has "caught on" with the public is shown by the great crowds that fill the Garden each evening. The eighth big week is on and not a sign yet of the ebb tide of favor.

"Paris by Night," the new and elaborate musical production of Messrs. Weber & Rush, had its initial performance in New York atop the famous Madison Square Garden Saturday night, July 2, and scored one of the most emphatic successes in the records of metropolitan amusements. The roof was crowded with a critical audience which included all the well known first nighters of the metropolis, and during the evening such prominent players as Lew M. Fields, Lillian Russell, Fay Templeton, William Collier, Alice Fisher, Marie Cahill, Nella Bergen, DeWolf Hopper, Isadore Rush, Corinne, Eddie Foy, Peter F. Dailey, Raymond Hitchcock, Joseph Miron and scores of others dropped in to witness the new spectacle. Although the performance lasted until midnight, not a handful of the two thousand persons comprising the audience, left until the entertainment was concluded—the best test, it is generally admitted, as to the merits of a production.

At Bostock's, Coney Island, is now to be seen the famous show which for seven months packed the Paris Hippodrome and broke all records for wild animal exhibits. Mme. Morelli, who is soon to wed a member of the French nobility, and her famous performing leopards, have been furnishing sensations all the week. Prince, the largest animal in the group, has repeatedly attempted to attack his mistress and on Sunday evening rent her dress in an effort to pull her to the floor of the arena. This is the same animal which nearly killed her at Sea Beach Palace last season and which twice attacked her in Paris and caused her to spend weeks at the hospital.

BIG POTATO CROP.

Farmers in This Section Much Elated Over Prospects.

That 1904 is to be a record breaker in potato production is the opinion of leading farmers of Northern New Jersey. The season has been one especially adapted to the growth of the tuber. Farmers in Sussex, Warren and Hunterdon counties all report unusually large potatoes, and many more to the hill, than for several years past.

Peach growers are also elated at the prospect of a good crop. The trees throughout this county are heavily laden, many of them having the lower limbs sustained by props to keep them from breaking under the strain.

Sailed for Europe.

Miss Katie Harrison, sister of Mrs. H. Briske, of 409 Watchung avenue, left for Ireland on the White Star Line today.

—The traffic on the through trolley cars running between Jersey City and Trenton is more than justifying the action in introducing this service. Nearly every car carries its limit in passengers.

TRIENNIAL CONCLAVE OF KNIGHTS' TEMPLAR

Dr. D. C. Adams, Chairman of Committee, Arranges for the Special Train to 'Francisco.

SEPTEMBER 5 TO 10

SEVERAL DAYS TO BE SPENT AT ST. LOUIS.

J. Kirkner, of This City, a Member of the New Jersey Committee on Arrangements—Great Ovation to be Given Jerseymen.

When San Francisco was decided upon as the next Knights Templars' Triennial city at the conclave held in Louisville in 1901, preparation was immediately begun by the Templar hosts of California to make the coming event the most successful in the history of the order. The conclave will be held from September 5 to 10, and several members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, will attend the sessions.

A committee consisting of Dr. D. C. Adams, grand commander, of this city; John J. Henry, deputy grand commander; J. Kirkner, grand generalissimo, of this city; William Carman, grand captain-general, and Warren Dobbs, P. G. C., have just completed arrangements for a special train of high grade Pullman cars, leaving Newark over the Pennsylvania Railroad system, that will make this pilgrimage to the Pacific coast and return in twenty-eight days and include on the way many sight-seeing features of a most attractive character, such as the Grand Canyon of Arizona, the Yosemite Valley, Del Monte, Los Angeles, Great Salt Lake, Denver and many other places.

Several days will be spent at St. Louis, giving the pilgrims an opportunity to attend the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. The train will be made up of the highest type of Pullman cars, with a sumptuous dining car equipment, all to be kept together from start to finish and to be under the supervision of the Pennsylvania Railroad's personally conducted tourist system.

California enterprise, generosity and hospitality are surpassed nowhere on the face of the globe and when once enjoyed are never to be forgotten. During the Templar week on the Pacific coast there will be representatives from every State and Territory in the Union, from Hawaii and the Philippines, as well as from Canada, Cuba and Porto Rico. Pilgrimages are being arranged for in greater numbers and on a more extensive scale than ever before and it will not be surprising if the numbers attending should aggregate 50,000 members of the order, and to these must be added fully twice as many accompanying friends. To entertain so large a number of guests will be no small task, but the big-souled Sir Knights of San Francisco will be equal to the emergency.

WELCOME MISS CURRY.

Special Services to be Held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church Tomorrow Night.

A special service to welcome Miss Curry to her summer's work at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home will be held in the Crescent Avenue church tomorrow evening. Rev. J. Sheridan Zelie, of that church, and Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace church, will be among the speakers, and there will be special music by the church choir. Miss Curry herself will make an address and several children from the camp will speak and sing.

At the close of the service, the executive committee of the home will hold an important meeting.

First Baptist Services.

Rev. Mr. Stifler, pastor of the First Baptist church, Roselle, will occupy the pulpit at the First Baptist church, tomorrow morning and evening. In the evening the choir, under the direction of E. J. Fitzhugh, of New York, will render Barnaby's "Rebecca," and other selections. It is expected that Charles W. McCutchen, who has been abroad several months, will be present in the choir.

Lightning Strikes in Two Places.

PAVE ORDINANCE NOT LEGALLY PASSED

Measure Went Through Common Council by a Vote of 5 to 4 Only.

6 TO 5 IS REQUIRED

A DAILY PRESS REPORTER OBTAINS COUNCILMAN'S OPINION.

Mr. Murphy Says That Another Vote Will Have to be Taken by the Council — The Charter's Provision.

There are good reasons for believing that the wooden pavement ordinance introduced at the July meeting of the Common Council was not passed on its first and second readings, as supposed at the time. It is the opinion of many that the 5 to 4 vote was not according to the city ordinance. If so, the ordinance will have to be introduced again.

The portion of the city charter referring especially to such action, says: "provided, that no ordinance or by-law shall be at any time enacted or passed, altered or repealed, except by a concurrence of at least six members of said Common Council, and unless the same shall have been introduced before the said Common Council at a previous meeting."

A representative for The Daily Press noting this provision in the charter, interviewed Councilman Murphy today, and he said that in his opinion the ordinance was not legally adopted. He interpreted the provisions of the charter to mean that six votes must be cast in favor of an act or ordinance to insure its adoption.

"JIM" MARTINE IS PLEASED

FARMER ORATOR, BRYAN'S FRIEND, WILL SHOUT FOR THE TICKET.

Once more James E. Martine has rallied around the flag. Prompt, with the announcement of the platform and the nominee of the St. Louis convention, the Farmer Orator came out this morning with a flat-footed declaration of support for the ticket. He will go on the stump this fall, as usual. He is very much pleased that the gold plank was killed, and believes with his old idol, W. J. Bryan, that the platform, pleasing nobody in particular, is one that everybody in the party can rally around without fracturing any vital principal to a serious extent.

Mr. Martine submitted to a characteristic interview this morning. When he got through talking, the interviewer had no doubt whatever as to where the old partisan warrior stood.

"What do you think of the St. Louis platform and candidate?" asked the reporter insinuatingly.

"I am satisfied with both," replied Mr. Martine unhesitatingly.

"Then you will support the ticket?"

"Yes, of course!" emphatically; "Who said or thought I would not? I am pleased that the gold plank was knocked out," continued Mr. Martine earnestly. "There is no more reason at this time for that than for a 'bloody shirt' plank. I feel that the action of this convention unites our party."

Then the Farmer Orator went into his barn to polish up his buckler and shield and study up the 1904 campaign book.

WOODEN PAVEMENT LAYING IS DELAYED

Trolley Co. Must Deposit Sum With Treasurer Before Watchung Avenue Work Begins.

NEW TRACKS FIRST

REPORT THAT WORK WILL BEGIN THIS MONTH IS DENIED BY MR. GAVETT.

The Street Commission Will Hurry Matters Along—Provisions of the Ordinance Must First be Complied With.

Published statements to the effect that work upon the laying of the wooden pavement on Watchung avenue will begin at once have been declared to be very premature at the street commissioner's office. A reporter for The Daily Press learned at the commissioner's office this morning that the city has made no arrangements to begin the work, and can make none until the trolley company shall have met certain provisions of the ordinance governing the laying of the pavement.

For one thing, the work cannot be started even in the smallest degree until the company turns over the sum required of it in the ordinance with the city treasurer. This sum has not yet been paid, and none of the city officials know, or have any hint as to, when it will be.

Even with the money of the company in hand, actual work on the pavement cannot be started until the company has laid its new track on the avenue. No evidence that the company has taken any steps toward the completion of this work has been seen here, although the street committee has been given to understand that the new rails are ready for shipment to this city at Elizabeth.

As a matter of fact, the whole thing resolves itself into a wait upon the trolley company. Until the corporation pays the requisite sum to the city, the latter can do nothing, and it is very unlikely that the company will even think of paying the money until its new trackage is disposed of.

As far as possible, however, the city officials will hurry matters along. They are extremely anxious to have the pavement experiment started and done with, and the trolley company will not be permitted to dawdle unnecessarily without a prod or two.

CITY PROTECTED FROM SUIT

SEPTIC TANK PATENT EXPIRES BEFORE GUARANTEE FROM IMMUNITY ENDS.

In effecting the compromise with the Cameron Septic Tank Company of Chicago, the city has protected itself from any other suit for infringment of the company's patent forever. By the time the license granted to the city for $4,000 shall have expired the patent under which the Cameron people were enabled to bring their claim will have run its full term.

Under the agreement entered into, the Cameron Company guarantees the city immunity from other suits or payments for seven years. The faithful performance of its agreement is made certain by insurance in a surety company, which protects the city absolutely. The Cameron patent was taken out in 1894, so that by the time the compromise agreement runs out the patent will be dead.

CORPORATION TAXES.

List of Amounts Assessed Against Domestic Concerns.

The State Board of Assessors has filed with the State Comptroller schedules showing the amount of tax levied against miscellaneous domestic corporations for the year 1904.

These companies are taxed on the basis of their issued capital stock and the lists admitted up to this date include only such companies as have made voluntary returns showing the amount of their outstanding capital stock. The preliminary schedules include 5,755 companies, the total tax levy upon which amounts to $2,486,919.14. Among the 5,755 companies which have made their report there are 125 that are taxed on an issued capital stock of $10,000,000 or upward.

PARKER IS NOMINATED

New York Jurist Receives 667 Votes and His Nomination is Made Unanimous.

ADJOURN AT 5 A. M.

William R. Hearst Gets 204 Votes—Martin Littleton Names Parker—Cockrell, Wall, Miles, McClellan, Towne, Grey and Olney Among Those Before Convention.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

St. Louis, Mo., July 8—Judge Alton Brooks Parker, of New York, was nominated for President by the Democratic National convention here at 5 o'clock this morning. His total vote was 667. After the roll call, the sage of Esopus had 658 votes and then West Virginia added eight and Idaho six. Then Governor Dockery, of Missouri, jumped to his feet, catching the eye of Chairman Champ Clark, and shouted "I move to make the nomination unanimous." Amidst deafening cheers the motion was seconded and carried, the convention by that time being tumultuous. Immediately after the nomination, the convention adjourned until this afternoon, when the nomination for Vice President will be made.

ALTON B. PARKER.

The vote cast for the other candidates was as follows: William R. Hearst, of New York, 204; Richard Olney, of Massachusetts, 38; Senator Cockrell, of Missouri, 42; Nelson A. Miles, of Washington, 3; Governor Wall, of Wisconsin, 27; George B. McClellan, of New York, 8; Charles A. Towne, of New York, 2; George Gray, of Delaware, 8; Arthur P. Gorman, of Maryland, 2; Robert E. Patterson, of Pennsylvania, 4. Martin W. Littleton, of Brooklyn, placed Judge Parker's name before the convention. Hearst was named by D. M. Delmas, of California, and Judge Gray by I. Irving Handy, of Delaware.

The platform with the gold plank omitted was adopted before nominations were made.

"The platform is a creation that satisfies none, yet it is one that we all can stand upon," is the way Mr. Bryan described the work of the Resolutions Committee when he emerged from the committee room yesterday. After an entire night of almost continuous wrangling, which began at 8 o'clock at night and did not end until 11:25 yesterday morning, a unanimous agreement was reached by what is termed a compromise, but which, in fact, may be called a surrender by both sides.

PARKER IS NOT SATISFIED?

INTIMATES THAT HE MAY ANNOUNCE DISAGREEMENT WITH PLATFORM.

The Public Ledger, of Philadelphia, today publishes the following dispatch under an Esopus (N. Y.) date:

In conversation with a visitor today Judge Parker intimated that in certain contingencies he might announce

BAND GRANDSTAND WITH THE "LID" OFF

Roof of Stand at Concert Park is Removed by Bandmaster LaVere.

GREAT CROWD THERE

MOVING PICTURES NOT THE SUCCESS ANTICIPATED.

Seven Hundred and Fifty in the Grandstand—Picture Feature to be Removed—The Concert a Good One.

There was no top on the musicians' stand at Concert Park last night. As a direct result one of the chief causes of complaint against the concerts was removed, and the crowd came as near to perfect enjoyment of the music as at any time since the concerts have been heard here.

Until Bandmaster LaVere awoke to the cause of the trouble and remedied it, the volume of sound from the bandstand was very much muffled. The musical effect was sadly marred, and many complaints of the faintness and dull character of the music were heard. The trouble lay in the fact that the sound rose to the roof of the stand and was beaten straight down again, destroying the orchestral effect and giving only the people very near to the stand anything like the proper volume of music.

Last night, with the lid off, the musicans played a splendid programme with splendid effect. The largest crowd of the series was in attendance, all band concert records being broken. There were fully 750 in the grand stand, and the receipts were so large as practically to guarantee an additional concert.

As announced, there was a special feature after the concert in the form of stereopticon and moving picture views. The less said of them the better for the feelings of the man who originated the "feature." A lot of advertisements were interspersed among the views, and these, and the views themselves, found no admirers in the audience. Bandmaster LaVere, after the concert, hastened to disavow any connection with the pictures, and said he would chase the man with the machine away if he came back again.

CO. K OFF FOR CAMP

UNDER COMMAND OF LIEUT. KITCHELL PLAINFIELDERS LEAVE FOR SEA GIRT.

Company K started for camp at Sea Girt this afternoon in good order. About forty-five men were in line at the station, the rest of the complement waiting to join the ranks at three stations along the road. The command left on the 1:18 train.

The men assembled in heavy marching order at the armory at 12:30 o'clock. They started for the station under command of Lieutenant Kitchell at 1:10. There was little demonstration on the way, but the usual feminine smiles and tears, from sweethearts and wives, gave the proper campaign touch to the departure at the station.

Of the seventy-four men in the company only five will not spend the week at camp. Private Goldsack can't get away from his duties at the postoffice, Private Edward and William Mosher are sick; Corporal Stover is on a furlough; and Quartermaster Sergeant Littell is in the hospital. Fifteen men joined the command at Westfield, one at Elizabeth and another at Spring Lake.

They will arrive at Sea Girt at about 4 o'clock. Capt. Martin went down to the camp this morning in his auto, and will be on hand to welcome his men. On the trip down he was accompanied by D. W. Littell, Jr., brother of Sergeant Littell.

During the week at camp Sergeant Pope will act as quartermaster in place of Sergeant Littell, confined at Muhlenberg.

FALLS FROM WINDOW AND DEATH RESULTS

Girl Visiting in Fanwood Takes a Fatal Plunge While Asleep.

ONLY 17 YEARS OLD

MARGARET EATON'S SAD END AT AUNT'S HOME.

Three Doctors Work Over Her All Night, But She Passed Away at Noon Today — Came From Pittsfield.

Miss Margaret Eaton, aged seventeen years, of Pittsfield, Mass., fell out of a sleeping-room window at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Warren, of Fanwood, last night, and she died at noon today as a result of the injuries she sustained. The young woman is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Warren and she arrived at Fanwood yesterday for a visit.

Last night she retired as usual, but some time before midnight she left her bed and walking in her sleep went out of the window. She was found lying on the ground about 11:30 presumably in a critical condition, suffering from shock and hemorrhages. It was this that caused death.

Dr. W. H. Murray, the family physician, was called and he together with Dr. F. W. Westcott, remained with Miss Eaton all night. The severity of the hemorrhages foretold the end and at no time was there much hope for recovery.

CUT FROM TIN CAN FATAL

CHARLES MEHLENBECK, FORMERLY OF THIS CITY, DIED OF BLOOD POISON.

Charles Mehlenbeck, of Somerville, the well-known restaurant man, died at his home about 3 o'clock, yesterday morning, the result of blood poisoning. Several days ago he was opening a tin can and his finger was cut. From this blood poisoning set in.

Mr. Mehlenbeck was a former resident of this city, being employed for ten years by John H. Tier, of Bank place. He was a son-in-law of Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsay, of 424 West Front street, and was fifty-one years of age. The funeral services will be held from the Second Reformed church, Somerville, at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Relatives and friends are invited without further notice.

He leaves a wife and a son, who was associated with him in business and he will continue the same.

Trolleymen's Outing.

The Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company Employees' Benevolent Association met in Odd Fellow's hall, Thursday, and decided to hold its annual picnic at Riverside Park, instead of Midway Park, as first arranged. Tuesday, August 2. There will be a drawing for three prizes. The first will be $5 in gold, the second $2.50, and the third a badge. There will also be a drawing for a ticket to the St. Louis Exposition.

Petty Thieving.

During the past few days petty thieving has been a source of annoyance to Morris C. VanArsdale and Thomas H. Stafford, of East Front street. It has been their custom to store their bicycles during the day in the hallway, next to Mr. VanArsdale's shoe store, and the theft of a bicycle lantern and tool bag has caused the owners of the wheels to be more careful about their property.

New York Children Here.

About 150 children of the German man Lutheran Church Sunday-school, of New York, arrived at Miss Currie's fresh air camp here yesterday. These children belong to the Sunday-school that gave the excursion on the ill-fated General Slocum on the day of the East river disaster.

Holy Cross Excursion.

The annual excursion of the Holy Cross Sunday-school to Asbury Park will take place on Thursday, July 14. The members of the school are requested to meet at the parish house tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock when they will receive their tickets for the excursion.

Won With Counter-Claim.

The suit of Frank Rice against Frank Stoffel, on contract, in Justice VanMinden's court, went all against the plaintiff yesterday. Francis J. Blatz, Esq., for the defendant, put in a set-off claim that resulted in a verdict for his client of $40.90.

CHILDREN'S HOME NOW TO BE ENLARGED

Contracts Are Made for Additions and Improvements to Building.

TO COST ABOUT $10,000

THE WHOLE STRUCTURE IS TO BE REMODELED.

Work to be Rushed—During Progress of Improvements Children to Occupy Nurses' Old Home on Muhlenberg Place.

Actual work on the remodelling of the Children's Home has been begun. Using the $10,000 given and bequeathed to the home by the late James Clark the managers of the Home have given contracts to enlarge and improve the institution to an extent that will result practically in a new house of refuge for the city's homeless tots.

An addition is to be built on the present structure. The old building will be turned around from Jackson avenue, to face upon Westervelt avenue, the addition going up on the side left open by the change of frontage. All the plans for the improvements are out, but there was no copy of them at the Home this morning, and the exact size of the addition could not be learned. It was stated that the remodelled home will have room for from forty to fifty children, almost a doubling of the capacity. At present the home is able to house properly only twenty-eight children.

In addition to enlarging, the managers will remodel the entire structure outside and in. The exterior is to be improved in design and appearance to a very material extent.

Inside, the remodelled home is to bear an entirely different appearance. A spacious open stairway will be erected, and, more notable than that, the little ones are to have a splendidly equipped new playroom. The old laundry is also to be replaced by a new room of wholly modern appointments.

All possible speed will be put into the work by the contractors. It is hoped that the children will be able to hold their Christmas celebration in the new and brighter home.

During the progress of the work the children will be housed in the nurses' old home.

JR. O. U. A. M. INSTALLATION

BENEVOLENT COUNCIL, NO. 256, HOLDS A SEMI-ANNUAL CEREMONY.

One of the bustling organizations of the city is Benevolent Council, No. 256, Jr. O. U. A. M., although the youngest of that order. Since its inception, the Council has steadily grown in numbers, until today it has a large membership. Scarcely a meeting passes but that new members are not initiated and the interest in the principals of the order is increasing. The Council met last night to witness the installation of the new officers. Past Councillor Arthur G. Adams was the installing officer.

These are the various persons who will have charge during the coming term:

Councillor, Edward C. Searing; vice councilor, Harry C. Runyon; recording secretary, Horace G. Adams; assistant secretary, John V. Beekman; financial secretary, Theodore A. Kurshals, Jr.; treasurer, Jacob M. Higgins; conductor, Donald Bechtel; warden, John VanHorn; inside sentinel, Clarence Pope; outside sentinel, Gilbert S. Martin; trustee for eighteen months, Alfred Tranchand.

After Stray Dogs.

Complaint of the excessive number of dogs there was filed with Chief Weiss, of the borough police, yesterday by residents of Mercer avenue. In response to the complaint the Chief has ordered the borough dog catchers to shift the scene of their activities from the center of the borough to the district complained of.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

READY REFERENCES FOR THE LOCAL BARGAIN SEEKERS.

TenEyck & Harris would like to get your order for coal, believing that the quality and price will give entire satisfaction.

Still the smokers call for the C. O. D. cigar. H. Eggerding's store, Park avenue, has a full stock of them and they are just as good as ever.

No other shade but the Holophane, sold by W. H. Pope, North avenue, will do what you want it most to do—increase your light without increasing the bill.

There is no chance for dissatisfaction if you buy your cameras and camera supplies at F. W. VanWinkle's store on North avenue. He is the leader in his line.

If you place your money in the Dime Saving Bank you know it is safe and at the same time it is earning a good interest. This institution is conducted along the best lines.

Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, would like a share of your patronage. He can compound prescriptions quickly and accurately and he also sells the best drugs and medicines.

Here is a warm weather hint of great value: Use Powers' witch hazel soap—fine results. Powers' tooth wash and Powers' cream dentifrice are splendid. Sold by J. P. Powers, Somerset street.

For a variety of goods in the jewelry line, go to Charles E. Vail's store on Park avenue. His stock is large and very complete. Mr. Vail guarantees the goods to be just as represented.

The flour that goes into John Wirth's bakery is not distinguished for its variety so much as its quality, but the output of this popular establishment is as varied as it is good. Try it and see.

It costs a dollar to get from your room to the street, in some hotels, but at the Kensington you get really good service in every respect, whether you tip or not, without having the attendants look at you as if they wondered why you were so close-fisted.

Anyone that enjoys fish better than they do fishing, can get the fresh article at Fred Ivamy's seafood market, merely by calling up on the 'phone. The season's changes are indicated here sooner than in any other place. Just now the best weak fish are to be had here.

S. Schener & Co., of West Front street, will always be found up-to-date, the firm's stock of goods being exceptionally large. You can do no better than by buying your groceries, meats and vegetables at this modern store. You will not only get the best goods, but the price will please you as well.

It is foolishness to dress in last year's clothes, or in clothes that are worn and slipshod, when the People's Credit Clothing Company, East Front street, is doing business. Newly designed clothing for both sexes at prices and on terms that distance all competition. Call at the establishment. Courteous treatment, whether you buy or not.

None of the other stores have quite the same sort of bargains that I. H. Boehm, of Front street, offers. They are always of the most up-to-date character, and mean just as much in the way of appearance and wear as goods bought at regular prices elsewhere. It is the Boehm system that enables the buyer to get regular lines at end-of-the-season prices while the goods are new.

Today will close a week of the greatest interest to people who appreciate bargains. The offerings at the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company's store will amply repay anyone for looking them up before doing the marketing for the coming week. Canned tomatoes, crab meat, fine Scotch peas, A. and P. baked beans, corned beef, potted ham, or tongue, also the "Belle of Boston" beans, dried lima beans, Marshall's celebrated kippered herring and Malta Vita at special prices. A. and P. butter is the best. Extra stamps with 1 lb. can extra fine Saigon cinnamon.

Old Fine * * * Climax Brandy.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

HER HUSBAND'S REVENGE.

Made a Startling Proposition, But There Was Method in His Madness.

He was determined. It was a desperate step, but his mind was made up, relates the New York Press.

"I shall stay at home to-day and attend to the household affairs," he said.

Naturally she was startled. "What shall I do?" she asked.

"You may go down to the office," he replied, "and hold down my desk for a day. You have told me so much about my own business at various times that there can be no doubt as to your ability to do it."

"But you—what do you know about household matters?" she persisted.

"Everything," he replied promptly. "You don't think that I know anything about them, while you have all the details of my business at your tongue's end, but I want to convince you that the reverse is true. You go to the office, open my desk and go to work. If you are in doubt about anything, one of the clerks will explain it to you, but, of course, you won't need any help."

She felt that he was sarcastic, but she was convinced that she could do his work better than he could hers, anyway. So she started.

He laughed softly to himself after she had gone, and then went to the window and looked anxiously up and down the street.

"It seems hardly possible that I can fail now," he said to himself. "Some time during the day the chance surely will come to me."

Then he rang for the cook and told her to order whatever she wished for lunch and dinner, and not to bother him with any questions about it.

"But if a peddler of any description calls," he added, "be sure to let me know. I want to see him."

Then he settled himself by a window with a morning paper and waited, ever and anon anxiously glancing out of the window. He grew nervous as the day wore on, but shortly after lunch the glad summons came. The cook informed him that there was a peddler at the back door.

"What kind of a peddler?" he asked.

"One of the kind that wants to trade all sorts of things for old clothes, but will pay cash for them if he has to," was the reply.

"Bring him in."

They were closeted together for nearly an hour, after which the peddler went away with a large bundle, while the man remained and chuckled and laughed until it seemed as if he had gone crazy.

"Revenged at last!" he cried aloud. "The tables are turned and now she will know how it seems herself."

For he had traded off two of her old gowns for two jars of jam and a potato parer, even as she had been in the habit of trading off anything in the line of masculine apparel that he neglected to wear for a week.

FOR REDNESS OF THE NOSE

Few Words of Advice and Some Simple Lotions Which May Prove Efficacious.

The three most common causes of redness of the nose are indigestion, imperfect circulation and insipid erysipelatous inflammation. Unless indigestion has become chronic you will observe that the nose is almost of normal color before breakfast, but after that meal and especially after a heavy dinner the rubicund color will begin to manifest itself most clearly, says the Indianapolis Journal. If this corresponds to your condition be more careful of your diet and especially avoid all wines and alcoholic drinks. Obtain a reliable remedy from your physician to correct the acidity of the stomach and any disposition toward constipation. Be sure that your clothing is comfortably loose and indulge in plenty of outdoor exercise. To further excite the circulation give the entire body a brisk rubbing with a Turkish bath mitten before retiring and on getting out of bed in the morning, and by all means continue the cold water sponge baths in the morning. After a few weeks you may venture to use quite cold water. Keep the body exquisitely clean from frequent warm water baths and avoid anything which may excite the undesirable color, such as the harsh use of a handkerchief or the thoughtless rubbing of the nose when talking. By restoring to internal and external remedies the trouble can, probably, be readily corrected. To assist in allaying the redness have the following lotion prepared by a druggist: Two ounces of glycerine, three ounces elderflower water, one drachm of muriate of ammonia, one-half drachm of tannic acid. Saturate a piece of absorbent cotton with the lotion and bind on the nose before retiring. You may also bathe the nose several times a day with this lotion.

Lemon Snowballs.

Beat the yolks of three eggs until very light; add gradually one cup of granulated sugar, three tablespoons of water, the grated yellow rind of one lemon, two tablespoons of lemon juice and one cup of flour in which has been sifted one level teaspoon of baking powder. Then fold in the stiffly whipped whites of the eggs, and pour the batter into 15 little buttered cups. Steam for half an hour, then turn out, roll in powdered sugar and serve with lemon or almond sauce.—Good Housekeeping.

Lamentable Ignorance.

Archie—Yes, I can trace my pedigree back nearly 300 years, to the nobles of King Charles' time.

Miss Snappeigh—How sorry that makes one feel for them! They could not possibly have foreseen that you would be among their descendants.—Chicago Tribune.

THE KANSAS FLOODS

Hundreds of Homes Are Under Water.

WORST OF TROUBLE IS NOW OVER

Armourdale Is Practically Abandoned—Streets Are Running Rivers—The Loss Will Be Very Heavy.

KANSAS CITY, July 9.—The Kaw river was falling here and west of Topeka last night, and it is confidently believed that the worst of the flood is over. Not for many days, however, will normal conditions prevail at Armourdale, Argentine and the low lying portion of eastern Kansas City, Kan., where hundreds of houses of the working class are under water and many plants are inundated. In the lowest portion of Armourdale, which is located in the most unfavorable portion of the flood district, the water is from three to six feet deep, while surrounding the Nelson-Morris packing houses, northeast of Armourdale and close to the mouth of the Kaw, the water is twelve feet deep.

Armourdale is practically abandoned, and the streets are running rivers. Most families owned their homes, and the aggregate loss will be very heavy.

After flooding a portion of the west bottoms on the Missouri side to a depth of four feet the water in the jobbing district and in the railroad yards became stationary and began to fall when within three blocks of the Union depot. The flood in the west bottoms was caused by back water, which receded quickly when the Kaw began to go down.

Flood conditions in Kansas off the Kaw watershed are still serious, the streams at Abilene, Emporia, Ottawa and Wichita still being high and continuing to rise at some points.

Water is running several feet deep through Riverside. This district is suffering quite as much as it did last year.

Americans at Edward's Ball.

LONDON, July 9.—The state ball at Buckingham palace last night was attended by over 2,000 persons and was one of the most brilliant events of the season. King Edward and Queen Alexandra both took part in the quadrille. There were many Americans present, including Ambassador and Mrs. Choate, Henry White, first secretary of the embassy, and Miss White, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. Frank Morris Avery of Chicago, General William F. Draper, former ambassador to Italy, and Mrs. Draper and Lawrence Townsend, minister to Belgium.

Infantry Officer In Disgrace.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—First Lieutenant William B. Aiken, Twenty-eighth infantry, stationed at San Francisco, who was convicted by court martial of various violations of the army regulations, including breach of arrest, and was sentenced to be dismissed, has been granted two months' leave of absence with the understanding that his resignation shall take effect on the expiration of the leave. He is a native of Tennessee and entered the army during the Spanish war as a private.

NO GOLD PLANK IN IT

Democratic Convention Ignors Money Question.

VICTORY FOR BRYAN OVER HILL

St. Louis Assembly Agrees Upon the Most Remarkable Platform Ever Adopted by Any Political Party on Eve of Campaign.

ST. LOUIS, June 9.—The crush of visitors around the doors and inside the convention hall was greater than at any previous session. It was something rarely paralleled at any national convention.

Extras had spread the news over the town that a nomination was to be expected, and the crowd was greater than at any previous session.

The first genuine reception was given to Senator Hill of New York, who made his first appearance in the hall.

General Nelson A. Miles was also present for the first time.

Hundreds passed through the doors who had no right to enter, and that served to work the throng into a frenzy. Long after the hall was filled the crowd pressed against the entrances, loath to give up the hope of getting in.

Frequently half a dozen people would be allowed to enter on a single ticket.

A series of energetic thumps on the presiding officer's table were given by Chairman Clark in an endeavor to call the convention to order. The reading clerk ordered the floor officers to clear the aisles.

As Mr. Clark stood at the desk Senator Daniel of Virginia, chairman of the resolutions committee, made his way to his side with a copy of the platform in his hand and from that position read it to the convention. Senator Daniel than moved its adoption and upon this moved the previous question.

The platform was then adopted without debate.

The convention has agreed upon what is probably the most remarkable platform ever adopted by a political party on the eve of a national campaign.

The platform contains no reference to the money question one way or the other. It was agreed by the members of the committee who were in control of the situation that there should be no reference to either gold or silver, and after hours of wind jamming and fervid oratory it was decided to ignore the money plank entirely.

The members of the committee as they emerged from the meeting room said that while they were not entirely satisfied with the document it was the best they could do.

Mr. Bryan said, "The platform is not such as we all want, but one that we all agreed to."

"Will you support the platform and the candidate?" he was asked.

"I will support the platform, but you know the candidate has not been named as yet," was the reply.

John Sharp Williams of Mississippi said, "I am delighted with it."

Senator Daniel, the chairman of the committee, said, "It is reasonably satisfactory, and we all agreed to it."

The last effort to get in a money plank was made just before the committee adjourned. It was in the shape of a proviso that the volume of standard money be undiminished.

A resolution by Senator Carmack providing for the subsidiary coinage of silver dollars had been dropped before this. In explaining the action of the silver men former Governor Thomas of Colorado said:

"We agreed that we should have no mention of silver or gold. We considered the resolution providing that the standard money be undiminished an unfair piece of business. So we voted it down by a vote of 2 to 1."

The platform summarized is as follows:

It has a preamble, in which there is no reference to the Chicago and Kansas City platforms.

The declaration of principles includes large reductions in governmental expenditures, the enforcement of honesty in the public service and a thorough investigation of the executive departments, the enforcement of the anti-trust laws and severer restrictions on the trusts, tariff reduction, reduction of the tariff on trust produced articles, approval of the Panama canal project and disapproval of the measures that made the building of the canal a reality, the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine, reciprocity with Canada, no increase in the army, but consistent upbuilding of the navy.

It urges impartial legal treatment of capital and labor, insistence upon proper treatment of American citizens abroad, approval of pension laws, but disapproval of giving pensions by executive order, denunciation of the ship subsidy bill and approval of the upbuilding of the merchant marine without taking money from the treasury, approval of the civil service reform, condemnation of polygamy, an imperialistic plank which insists that the Filipinos shall get the same treatment as the Cubans, a plank favoring the admission of Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Indian Territory as three separate states and a declaration in favor of electing senators by a direct vote of the people.

In spite of all the preliminary talk when it came down to the point there was no discussion of the negro question by the committee on resolutions.

Senator Daniel said:

"I am unanimously instructed by your committee on platform to move the previous question on its adoption, and I now make that motion."

It was adopted by a viva voce vote, two or three delegations voting in the negative, and they apparently in a spirit of fun.

Chairman Clark then put the motion to adopt the report, and another viva voce vote carried it.

Temporary Chairman Williams mounted the steps leading up to the platform, swung his hat round his head, and the delegates, following his lead, roared their applause again and again, while the band played "Hail, Columbia."

"The clerk will now call the roll of states for the nomination of a candidate for president," shouted the chairman.

A wild cry of delight came from the galleries, who seemed to think the whole thing a show run for their entertainment.

"Alabama!" shrieked the clerk.

"Alabama yields to the Empire State of New York," called Delegate Russell of Alabama, standing on his chair, one arm grasping the standard of his state marker.

Martin W. Littleton of New York, of medium height and sturdy figure, with a full, clean shaven face, with a heavy mass of dark brown hair tossed back from his brow and ears, took the stand amid ringing applause to place Judge Parker of New York in nomination.

Mr. Littleton's manner of speaking was calm and deliberate, and he used but few gestures. His voice was full, resonant and of decidedly pleasing quality and could be heard farther than that of any speaker who had preceded him.

A terrific outburst of cheering followed Mr. Littleton's remark about Judge Parker, "If you ask me why he has been silent I answer because he has not attempted to be the master of his party, but is content to be its servant."

All that had happened in the convention up to the time Mr. Littleton concluded his address, multiplied many times, was almost as nothing compared to the hurricane that broke out when he mentioned the name Alton B. Parker. On the part of the Parker delegates it was a revelation in the passion of politics. Like one man they sprang up in their chairs, with everything that could be waved tossed high in the air.

The greatest demonstration was on the floor of the convention and confined largely to delegates.

New York began waving a great mass of flags, and state standards began to be moved up alongside that of the Empire State.

After the excitement had continued about twelve minutes there was a perceptible abatement, and the band struck up "America," thousands of voices joining in the song. The lull speedily passed away, for the band struck up "Dixie," and this was oil on a fire already fiercely blazing. With a spasmodic yell the applause started all over again.

Rising and falling in a huge overwhelming wave sound, the outpouring of thousands of throats, the demonstration again and again broke out in greater volume when a picture of Judge Parker was carried down the main aisle and two beautiful young girls advanced to the front of the stage waving national emblems.

The Parker picture was carried from the platform and placed near New York's position in the hall. It was soon taken down, but just the instant it was lowered the California delegation displayed a Hearst picture only for an instant, but it was long enough for his following among the delegates to catch sight of it, and a ringing shout went up.

Senator Carmack then appeared to second the nomination of Alton B. Parker.

Carmack had spoken but a few words when "Hurrah for Hearst!" was hurled at him from the balcony, the remark being greeted with cheers and some hisses. A few other calls of a like character were made by people in the galleries, but the great body of the convention disapproved with energy.

Senator Carmack's voice did not fill the hall to the satisfaction of the galleries, and he was interrupted repeatedly by cries of "Louder!" It became apparent that much of the disturbance was caused by partisan enthusiasts in the galleries. One shouter who had started a disturbance was escorted from the hall by an officer. But little of the senator's speech was heard because of his not strong voice and the noise that prevailed.

When Senator Carmack concluded his speech the galleries seized the opportunity to shout, and disturbance reigned for some minutes, while Chairman Clark pounded with his gavel for order.

"California," called the clerk.

"Mr. Chairman," responded Delegate Tarpey, "California recognizes as her spokesman E. M. Delmas."

Mr. Delmas' address, which closed with the name William Randolph Hearst, was [illegible] cheers, which, while enthusiastic, were much less in volume than those that followed the mention of Parker's name. A six foot portrait of Hearst was taken to the platform, and another of similar size was raised in the gallery.

There still hovered around the New York delegation many enthusiastic shouters, with their state banners. At the expiration of twenty-two minutes efforts were made to still the demonstration. A megaphone shout near the platform was begun for "Parker, Parker, Alton B. Parker," however, and things again broke loose.

The demonstration lasted twenty-five minutes.

Throughout the enthusiasm the Nebraska delegation, Bryan at its head, sat, the members craning their heads to see what was going on, but without rising. When the demonstration was at its height Mr. Bryan sent a message to some one in the other part of the hall, and soon he was in conference with several anti-Parker men.

Commanding the highest view of any one on the floor of the hall were five boys in the New York delegation who were lifted on their fathers' shoulders and from that height led the cheering of the delegation, keeping time with waving flags.

RIVAL CAR BANDITS.

Chicago Police Have Perpetrators of Northern Pacific Holdup.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Three men whose crimes are said to rival those of the car bandits Van Dine, Neidermeier and Marx are being held by the police here while an investigation is being made of assaults, holdups and train robberies of which the prisoners are accused.

The existence of the band, whose members say they are "the original automatic trio," became known through the confession of one of them, Truman H. Wilkinson, who is at the point of death from a bullet wound received after he and his companions had held up and shot J. C. Meiler, secretary of a labor union. Suffering from the mortal wound, Wilkinson made a confession implicating his two companions, Charles Pheloyn and William Erwing, who were surprised and captured in a room. Later the two men also confessed.

The prisoners admitted committing the robbery of a Northern Pacific train at Bearmouth, Mont., recently, but said nothing of a shooting which took place in connection with the robbery. In his confession Pheloyn spoke of having committed numerous robberies, one of which was in a jewelry store at Waukegan, Ill., $3,000 worth of jewelry having been secured. Pheloyn boasts of having lived in style at Chicago hotels. All three prisoners told of an alleged fortune of $26,000 buried by them in Indiana.

More Norge Survivors Land.

LONDON, July 9.—A cable message has been received by Albert E. Johnson, passenger agent of the Scandinavian-American Steamship line in this city, to the effect that nineteen more survivors of the steamship Norge had been landed at the Faroe islands. This accounts for seven of the ship's boats, six having been previously reported. The total number of passengers now known to have been saved is 149. There are also eight survivors from among the crew. The Faroe islands are 170 miles north of the Shetland islands, the most northerly point of Scotland, and about 200 miles from the Hebrides, on a rock of which islands the Norge was wrecked.

Seven Killed by Premature Blast.

SUDBURY, Ont., July 9.—Seven men killed and two men injured is the result of a premature dynamite explosion upon the new Canadian Pacific Sudbury-Toronto line. The accident occurred near Romford. The bodies of the killed, except one, were literally blown to pieces. A foreigner named McIntyre and a laborer were badly injured, but will recover. The accident occurred through placing dynamite in a hole which had shortly before been blown with powder.

China Pays For Etzel's Death.

LONDON, July 9.—A Tientsin report says that the Chinese government has paid to the American consul 25,000 Mexican dollars as indemnity for the death of Lewis Etzel, an American citizen, whose home was at Butler, Pa., correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, who was killed by Chinese soldiers early in June while on a junk in company with Ernest Brindle, correspondent of the London Daily Mail, between Shwantaitse and Erdiko, off the Liautong peninsula.

Germany's Trade Overtures Rejected

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Minister Powell reports to the state department by cable from Port au Prince, Haiti, that the German charge, Dr. Zummerer, has been unsuccessful in attempting to negotiate a trade treaty with the Haitian government similar to that concluded between France and Haiti and is very indignant thereat. The German warship Panther has arrived at Port au Prince from Newport News, and her presence may cause Haiti at least to receive Germany's trade overtures.

Fatal Bolt Left No Sign.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 9.—A terrific rainstorm has visited this section. The lightning was intense, and just on the edge of Raleigh two negro boys named Temple, aged six and eight years, were killed. The bolt left no signs on them.

Big Strike at Havana.

HAVANA, July 9.—The strike of the Havana harbor workers, which has started here, involves 3,000 men and a dozen different unions. The contentions of the strikers are opposed by the importers. There is no disorder.

MAYOR STOPPED BOUT.

Fitzsimmons and O'Brien Threatened With Arrest at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—The six round boxing bout between Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack O'Brien, which was to have taken place at the Philadelphia National League park last night for the benefit of the Evening Telegraph free ice fund, was declared off by the management on account of the action of Mayor Weaver in issuing orders to the police to stop the contest. The mayor held that a contest such as was scheduled between Fitzsimmons and O'Brien would be a prize fight and therefore a violation of the law. He warned the management of the affair that he would order the police to arrest the fighters the moment they stepped into the ring.

The news of the mayor's decision created consternation in the camp of the fighters as well as among the management, as there had been no intimation that the fight would be interfered with. Sporting men from New York, Baltimore, Washington and other nearby cities, believing that nothing would occur to prevent the fight, arrived in the city in large numbers. The sporting fraternity is freely criticising the mayor's action. The patrons of the sport feel that if the mayor had any intention of stopping the contest he should have done so before the last moment, as 7,000 tickets had been sold and every arrangement had been made to handle a large crowd.

No one felt more disappointed than the principals. For weeks both of them have been in active training, working hard to put themselves in condition for the contest.

Racing at Brighton Beach.

NEW YORK, July 9.—James V. and De Reszke were the only winning favorites at Brighton Beach. Owing to the bad condition of the track the fields were greatly reduced. The track, however, has dried out and will be in good condition for the Brighton handicap. De Reszke, winner of the fifth race, was bid up to $2,700, an advance of $1,500 over his entered selling price. The stable bid the customary $5 and retained its horse. Hildebrand rode three winners.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 9.—"I am for the strongest man we can nominate," said Governor Odell after a three hours' conference with President Roosevelt. He was speaking of the choice of a Republican candidate for governor of New York. "I have no other choice. Just now it is too early to discuss individuals. Before the convention is held some Warwick may rise and sweep the state. A good many things may happen in politics in two months, you know. No; I have no candidate."

TO FORCE A BATTLE

Japanese Have a Great Army East of Liaoyang.

KUROKI NOW THREATENS RAILWAY

Count Keller's Corps at Fengwangcheng Is Being Constantly Attacked Near Dalin Pass.

LONDON, July 9.—Reports from the front received at St. Petersburg indicate that the continued and increasing activity of the Japanese is all important. The advance posts of Lieutenant General Count Keller's force, holding the Fengwangcheng roads converging on Liaoyang, are faced by a heavy Japanese force, and there is constant skirmishing in the region of Dalin pass. At neither point has there yet been developed an unmistakable forward movement, so that General Kuroki's blow at the railway, which every one at the front is expecting, may fall anywhere between Kaichow and Liaoyang.

It is believed that the Japanese are planning an immediate attack of some sort before the rains begin again.

A Liaoyang dispatch says that there have been repeated skirmishes during the past few days at Dalin pass, some of them being hand to hand encounters.

The Japanese have a tremendous force east of Liaoyang, and they evidently want to force a big battle before the rains set in.

The Russian soldiers are anxious for a fight. Whatever may be the strategical plans of the generals, nothing, it is evident, would please the soldiers better than to be allowed to close with the Japanese.

A Tientsin report says that three Frenchmen who have arrived at Taku from Port Arthur state that 30,000 soldiers and 10,000 marines compose the garrison of the Russian stronghold and that the Russians have mounted 700 guns on the heights of Port Arthur.

They say also that the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Lieutenant Burukoff has made in all four trips from Port Arthur to Newchwang.

CLASH WITH RUSSIANS.

British Fleet Has Departed From Weihaiwei.

TIENTSIN, July 9.—A telegram received here from Chinwangtao says the British gunboat Espiegle has reached there on her return from Newchwang. It was originally intended to prevent the Espiegle from leaving Chinwangtao for Newchwang, but the message to this end was received too late. The Russians did not allow her to enter the harbor of Newchwang. This evidently was prearranged, for the British consul at Newchwang, Mr. C. Gross, boarded the gunboat outside the harbor and was in communication with her officers.

The British fleet has left Weihaiwei hurriedly under sealed orders.

The Espiegle has been unable to enter the mouth of the Liao river on account of the mines placed there. A message from Tientsin said the British gunboat had left Newchwang and returned to Chinwangtao because the Russian authorities objected to her remaining and that a Russian gunboat was anchored at the mouth of the river to dispute her passage should she attempt to return.

The British government ordered the Espiegle to go to Newchwang and watch over the interests of British subjects there.

Parker's Quiet Day.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 9.—Judge Parker's day has been more than ordinarily uneventful. Speaking of the letters which he has received, the judge appeared greatly amused at the importance which has been attached to some of them. He said that he had one rather unusual letter, whose writer had views on the land question. He said he would have been perfectly willing to let the reporters see the letter but for the fact that its writer was a woman, and he would have no part in making fun of her. The incident of John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s, visit to Kingston blew over without leaving a ripple.

Hibernian Refloated.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 9.—The Allan line steamer Hibernian, which went ashore at midnight May 17 during a dense fog at Stormy point, a shoal near Codroy, thirty miles north of Cape Ray, at the entrance to the gulf of St. Lawrence, has been successfully refloated by the Merritt & Chapman Wrecking company. The vessel proceeded to Codroy harbor, where she will be sufficiently repaired to enable her to be brought to the nearest port having a drydock, which will probably be the port of St. John's.

Mahan Sounded Keynote.

LONDON, July 9.—Mr. Chamberlain at London last night referred to the speech on federation delivered by Captain A. T. Mahan, U. S. N., retired, before the Imperial Federation league. "If the empire is not drawn closer together," Mr. Chamberlain said, "disaster is inevitable. Let us unite sentiment with organization. That is the only way, following the example of the United States, we can make a united empire out of what are now distant and somewhat scattered sister states."

Plainfield, N. J., July 9, 1904.

Now, can the Democratic party work the "benevolent assimilation" operation to the extent of bringing the Bryan people into the fold?

Jupiter Pluvius took charge of the street sprinkling contract this week, but on the whole the result was not as satisfactory as when under the supervision of Mr. Keely.

At this late day comes the report that some few years ago former United States Senator James Smith proposed Parker for President. Additions to the list of "I told you so" are now in order.

"Constant reader" will please take notice that the little fuss between Russia and Japan is of no moment from a newspaper standpoint while the fight is on at St. Louis. The war news from the East will be given respectable space sometime next week.

I am convinced that the country is on the verge of a great catastrophe and calamity.—Senator Daniel.

Considering the fact that the distinguished West Virginian is a Democrat of the most pronounced type, it might not be unfair to assume that he looks for Republican victory at the polls in November.

Don't neglect to boom Plainfield when away on your vacation. A little free advertising won't do the city any harm and you can laud it to the skies as a desirable place to live in without telling any lies. Compare the improvements here to those of other cities of a like population. It's a good argument.

To a merchant who professed to be making money without advertising a periodical devoted to the interests of merchants says: "If you are really making money without advertising you must have a pretty good sort of business, the putting of which before the public in the proper manner, through the newspapers, would surely make money faster for you."—Ex.

The Populists—those people who want everything for nothing and whose chief object seems to be to make riches a crime—have nominated Tom Watson, of Georgia, for President, and Tom Tribbles, of Nebraska, for Vice President. There's no mistake as to "who's who" when it comes to Watson, but wont someone please tell us where this Tribbles sprang from?

—According to last year's custom, the employes of the First National Bank will each receive ten days vacation this summer.

—Excellent progress is being made on the new Nurses' Home being constructed near Muhlenberg Hospital. It is expected the building will be ready for occupancy before fall.

WASHINGTON LETTER

INTERESTING GOSSIP FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITOL.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

The Old and New Methods of Nominating Them—Cortelyou Always a Republican—Alaskan Judiciary to Be Investigated.

Washington.—At no city in America is the interest in the great political conventions so great as it is here This is natural, as one or the other of the nominees of these conventions must become the official head of Washington, and his home and family become the social center.

Practically all of the large cities from the Missouri river east to the Atlantic have at some time entertained one or more of these national gatherings, with the exception of the national capitol, and yet this is the political center of the country. It is almost an indefinable sentiment that keeps the conventions away from Washington, and probably always will do so.

Presidents have been nominated in Washington, however, but it was before the days of conventions. Previous to 1830 national conventions were unknown, and candidates were named by congressional caucuses. This method of naming candidates lost favor after the race made by Jackson, Adams and Clay in 1824, none of whom were named by the caucuses.

Philadelphia entertained the first national convention in 1830, when delegates selected by the anti-Masonic party met in that city to adopt a platform and name candidates. Since that time every candidate for president has been named by one of these national gatherings.

Chicago is preeminently the convention city. Since 1860 more conventions have been held there than in any other city in the country, and as many presidents nominated there as in all other cities put together.

Of the many "first citizens" of the country nominated by these national political conventions, three were assassinated—Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. William Henry Harrison died 31 days after beginning his term of office.

Five vice presidents have died while holding office—Elbridge Gerry, 1814; William R. King, 1853; Henry Wilson, 1785; Thomas A. Hendricks, 1885, and Garret A. Hobart, 1899.

Always a Republican.

Much of the opposition that manifested itself against Cortelyou as chairman of the national republican committee was in all probability traceable to the general belief that he was at one time a democrat. This belief is widespread throughout the country, and has been believed even by the leaders of the party. It is said here that an authoritative denial from a high official in the government was telegraphed to Chicago during the convention so as to set at rest those of the national committee who were uneasy over the prospect of a democrat presiding over the republican campaign.

A friend of Mr. Cortelyou, and a man who has known the family for many years, gives me the following as his political record:

"Secretary George B. Cortelyou's father and grandfather were republicans of the stanchest kind. His grandfather, Peter Crolius Cortelyou, Sr., was the intimate friend and associate of Horace Greeley, Thurlow Weed and other great leaders of the party's early history. Both his brothers are republicans, and the members of his family have been known as republicans since the foundation of the party. All the teachings of his early years were in that political faith, and when he took up the study of public questions on his own account he became a firm believer in republican doctrines. His first vote was cast for a republican candidate, and from that day to this he has voted the republican ticket.

"Mr. Cortelyou was one of the founders of the Young Men's Republican club of Hempstead, N. Y. He was an active member of the Plumed Knights, and did hard and effective service in the Blaine campaign. He was secretary of the Harrison managers at the Minneapolis convention. Upon the advent of the democratic administration in 1885 he tendered his resignation and left the federal service. Again, in 1893, upon the advent of Mr. Cleveland's second administration, he tendered his resignation and remained only at the earnest request of his new superior. He has gone regularly each year to his home and voted for republican candidates, and while he loyally served a democratic president, he accepted the position then tendered him only after a frank statement of his political beliefs. He has been secretary of two republican presidents and has been a cabinet officer in a republican administration."

Miles' Political Aspirations.

The political aspirations of Gen. Miles are not viewed favorably among his comrades in the army. The fact is that while Miles has been a popular favorite and hero to the majority of the American people, he has not been particularly so with the army. Some charge his unpopularity to jealousy, and while that may, and undoubtedly does, account for a part of it, a portion of it at least is traceable to the general's opposition to the post canteen, which is favored by 90 per cent. of the army officers.

As a subordinate general officer Miles has a wonderful record for ability and bravery. His campaign against Geronimo was a brilliant one and won for him the plaudits of the country, and especially of the settlers of the southwest.

Miles was at that time popular both in and out of the army, and remained so until after his assignment to Chicago, where he was feted and petted by the public until either he was spoiled or the jealousies of the officers of the service were aroused. In either case, it was while on duty there that his prestige with the officers of the army began to wane.

Miles, as the commanding general, had influential enemies at court, and they did much to discredit his services. He has at times talked more freely than the regulations warrant, and while not more so than many others, his enemies were always ready to make the most of every opportunity thus offered them, and greatly magnified his offenses in this line.

Investigations in Alaska.

The rumors of scandals in connection with the Alaskan judiciary are to be investigated, and for this purpose Judge Day, as assistant to the attorney general, will make a long trip through the wilds of that district this summer.

He will sail for Alaska early in July, and will visit Ketchikan, Wrangell, Sitka, Juneau and Skagway, in the southeastern part of the territory. It is in this part of the territory that the charges have been made against the conduct in office of Judge Melville Brown, who was appointed from Wyoming four years ago.

From Skagway Judge Day will go to Dawson by the White pass, and thence 1,800 miles down the Yukon river to St. Michael, stopping at Eagle, Rampart, Fairbanks and other places on the way. From St. Michael, which is near the mouth of the Yukon, Judge Day will go north to Nome, which is the largest mining town in Alaska, and where some of the worst scandals in the history of the territory have occurred. A visit will probably be made later on to Valdez, which is a prosperous town at the head of the gulf of Alaska, and where many of the important mining cases have been tried by Judge Wickersham of the third district.

American Dollars in Panama.

Good American dollars are to pass for legal tender in the republic of Panama. It has been left to this country, virtually, to make the coinage laws of that little nation, and it may be that it will never attempt to coin money of its own, but will use our currency entirely.

The task of solving the problem of Panama's currency was left to Secretary Taft, who acted with a Panama commission, and they have raeched an agreement for the adoption of a currency system for the republic.

This provides, in effect, that the gold currency of the United States shall be the standard of value on the isthmus and be legal tender, and that the Panamans may, if they choose, coin gold money of their own equivalent in value to the American dollar; that they may coin fractional currency out of Colombian silver now in circulation in Panama to the extent of one and one-half million dollars gold, and at the request of the canal commission one and one-half millions more if the commission needs it.

Further, it is provided that the Panamans will maintain parity of the fractional silver currency by the deposit of 15 per cent. of the normal value of the fractional silver currency coin in an American bank in the currency of this government; added to that is the seigniorage as an additional reserve. The fractional currency will consist of 3,000,000 Panaman silver half dollars.

Panama will be the only one of the South or Central American republics that has adopted the gold standard and in which American money will be worth only its face value. In Mexico and almost every other republic in either continent the American dollar is prized far above the local currency.

CHICAGO CAT GETS DRUNK.

Disappearing Feline Likewise Risks Roasting in the Oven of the Family Gas Stove.

C. H. Fullerton, a clerk in the railway mail service at Chicago, owns what he calls a "disappearing" cat. At least, the feline has an unusual habit of shutting herself up, of going into a hole and pulling the hole after her. The result of these tricks was that on one occasion she came out of her hiding place in a beastly state of intoxication, and on another she narrowly escaped being roasted alive.

The Chicago Tribune says that on the sideboard of the Fullerton home is a spring door. The cat found out that all she had to do was pull this door open, step inside, and she'd be in delightful seclusion. When she desired to appear on the world again, all she need do was to push the door with her delicately tinted nose and then step out.

Now, it happened that this was the mince pie season, and when Mrs. Fullerton had a tablespoonful or more of brandy left she put it into a saucer and set it in the sideboard.

One Sunday evening Tab was missed and the house was ransacked for the pet. Suddenly during the hunt the little sideboard door opened and out came the cat, with the worst jag that has ever been seen on the square. Mr. Fullerton claims that it required a whole day to sober the animal up.

That Tab was not cooked to a crisp on a recent occasion was owing entirely to the kindly instinct of Mrs. Fullerton. On all of the gas ranges in use in Chicago the doors are lowered and a spring closes them. When one of the doors on the Fullerton range was left open one afternoon the cat took it into her head to hide herself in the oven. Of course, the door went up with a bang. When it came time to light the gas for preparation of dinner, Tab's mistress was about to touch the match when instinctively she was led to open the door. The good lady says that if she should live to be fourscore and ten the black streak that came out of the oven will always remain indelibly impressed on her mind, and, as much as the family love their pet, they have made up their minds to give her away, if any one will have her.

EGGS EXTINGUISH FLAMES.

Brilliant Inspiration of a Long Island Father Saves the Lives of His Little Ones.

John Snedecor, of Bay Shore, L. I., discovered that eggs make a fine fire-extinguisher. He left his three little children in the dining-room while he went to the grocery before supper. There was a big lamp on the table.

When Snedecor got home the lamp lay on the floor in the midst of a pool of blazing oil. It was near the door. Huddled against the wall at the back of the room, unable to get past the blaze, were the three children.

In a paper bag Snedecor was carrying a dozen and a half of eggs he had just bought. Three at a time he hurled them on the floor along the edge of the flame, meantime yelling for other members of the family to souse a blanket in a pail of water and bring it to him quickly.

The albumen, phosphates, nitrates and water in the bursting eggs seemed to retard the flames. They were almost egged out when the wet blanket arrived, and Snedecor soon quenched the last of the blaze.

Social Equality in Japan.

Servants in Japanese families are deemed to be on the same social level as their employers. Visitors bow as low to servants as to their mistress; and if the mistress is away, the servants serve tea and entertain the visitors.

MIDSUMMER MODES.

Taffeta Gowns, Trimmings, Hats, Parasols and Sleeves.

Some of the very daintiest and prettiest of summer gowns are made of taffeta, mostly in the tiniest possible checks. The foundation of all these is white, with lilac, blue, red or brown, sometimes a mixture of all together, but done so very cleverly that one must unravel a bit of the silk to find just how many colors there are. But this mixture of colors gives the material some new quality which is very pleasing even if elusive. The ways of developing these pretty silks are various, but in keeping with the material and design. One really delightful dress was of grayish blue and white check. The skirt had the front breadth bound down its entire length each side with blue satin ribbon, and this was laid across the next breadth and stitched down. The rest of the skirt fitted snugly all around to the back, where it was laid in two deep reversed folds. There was a shaped flounce about fifteen inches deep. Around the bottom of this were five rows of blue satin ribbon sewed on flat, and above the joining were three more.

The blouse waist was cut down around the neck to show a white chemisette and a small arrangement of dark blue velvet edged with Persian braid to represent a bolero under the blouse. The collar was of white linen and stood high, with a tiny bow at the front like a man's batwing tie. Across the shoulders were short straps of the ribbon, and two long ones went from belt line in front to the middle of the back. The sleeves were bishop shape, with the cuffs bound and trimmed with the ribbon. This made an exceedingly pretty gown.

Another taffeta check gown, in brown and fawn over white, had the skirt made with clusters of narrow plaits, four in each bunch. They were graduated in length so they formed a shaped flounce. At the ends of the plaits there were set handsome castle braid ornaments in black silk. The waist was open on the shoulders and down the front. The open space was filled with rich white brocade. The waist was made all tucks, and at the top were two milliner's folds of the same, with straps to hold them, set with clusters of three pearl buttons each. The sleeves were puffed at the elbows and had folds like the shoulders, set with a good many pearl buttons a little larger than are used on men's shirts. There were deep cuffs made of the brocade, with fancy feather stitching. This dress I show in this letter, for it is such a very useful model, all kinds of goods being made after it. The narrow plaits down the skirt are as well adapted for the rich cloth gowns as the thin wash stuffs and the silks. The difference lies in the trimming. The plaits are considered in the light of trimming. They are certainly ornamental.

Ribbon will enter so largely into the garnishing of all sorts of gowns and outdoor wear that clever managers will seize the occasion now, while the summer sales at reduced prices are on, to buy enough for later requirements. If one has a dress which was new last spring, it is safe to say that it will need a little freshening up by fall, and several rows of flat ribbon sewed around the bottom will do just that. Velvet ribbon set in clusters of lines of the same or varying widths on all kinds of garments will be a vogue within a short time. Lace is on the wane, and there is less of it to be seen, even on the gowns now in use. Lace is pretty, light and ornamental and never will lose its vogue entirely, but some styles in dressmaking require more and others less, and the outlook is much against it and in favor of ribbon.

Parasols for this season are unusually dainty, bedecked as they are with lace and chiffon and buttons. Buttons would seem very much out of place on a parasol; but, curiously enough, they look all right.

One parasol was of pink taffeta, with V shaped insets, upside down, of course, and these V's were of superposed lace, the whole V being edged with a line of small pearl buttons. There were a narrow, upstanding ruffle of lace and one deep fall below. A bow of pink ribbon on the handle finished this. Another, also of pink silk, had four bias folds of the same kind of silk, the each fold was a trifle darker than the other above, so that there were four shades of pink. This had a crook wooden handle, with a pink bow at the curve.

HENRIETTE BOURSAULT.

SPANISH PEGGY

A STORY OF YOUNG ILLINOIS

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

"The sweetheart knows you are the strongest man in New Salem," said Antywine, resting his cheek upon his hand and lifting eyes of confidence to his elder.

"But I haven't measured with Clary's Grove yet."

"Antywine and I both know," said Peggy, "how everybody looks up to you. We could not keep it ourselves as well as you could do it for us, Mr. Lincoln."

Ann stretched out one slim, long-fingered hand to caress Peggy's cheek.

"Well, children, I'm of age, and Ann is 18. I reckon we'll have to father and mother you. Do you know how much money you have in this bank of Shickshack's, Peggy?"

"I don't."

"Do you know, Antywine?"

"Me? No. I have never inquire', and Shickshack have not sho' me."

"If the trust is to be put into my hands I must know the amount."

Lincoln untied the leather cord which bound the snake's neck, and shook it by the tail. Out gushed all the yellow pieces with the ring of gold upon the table; Spanish doubloons and French louis, which cost him some trouble to calculate. He set them in cylindrical piles, row after row. Wood snapped in the open Franklin stove, and no other sound could be heard in the room but the liquid clink of gold. Ann, Peggy and Antywine watched the counting.

Viane Rutledge, looking through the door at the silent company, beckoned little Jane to stare at such amazing wealth.

"Whose is it?" whispered Jane.

"Peggy Shickshack's, of course. Where would Antywine La Chance, or Mr. Abe Lincoln, or Ann get it? The old Indian must have been a miser. But I wouldn't be her—and a Spaniard—for all her money."

"Two thousand and fifty dollars," announced Lincoln. He began to return the gold to its pouch.

"Two thousand dollars is a large amount," said Ann.

"Am I very rich?" inquired Peggy.

"Well, one hundred dollars will buy eighty acres of land, or two horses. You are therefore worth sixteen hundred acres of land, and something over for calico and linsey; and, considering the times and the country, may call yourself fairly well off."

THE KNIFE SHOT PAST HIS HEAD AND STUCK QUIVERING IN THE OPPOSITE WALL.

"Must I buy sixteen hundred acres of land?"

Lincoln's eyes twinkled, losing for a moment their usual expression of dark blue wistfulness. He was not much older than the Canadian boy who venerated him as an oracle, but he had already begun to guide the destinies of others.

"You'd better let your husband decide that matter when you are older," he answered, and while the words were being spoken, Pedro Lorimer entered the tavern in a whirl of winter air. He closed the outer door, made his salutations with grace, and approached the table where the money counters sat. Lincoln deliberately filled the snake skin, tied its neck shut, and sat with it in his large hands, pleasantly returning the visitor's greeting. The tavern was free to all comers. Yet Antywine at once stood up in front of Peggy, his blond head towering above the swart arrival.

"What you do here, eh? You drive Shickshack around, so he die in the drift! When I see you to-day I think I will throw you in the street! Go off—get some states hannex' to Cuba!"

"My pretty fellow," returned Pedro Lorimer, "I rode here through very biting cold to see my young cousin. I shall now take charge of her."

"Tell him I won't go with him, Antywine," said Peggy.

"The gentleman must understand," spoke Lincoln, "that he cannot force guardianship on a girl of Peggy's age—except by kidnaping. We folks in New Salem have not measured ourselves with the great people in the world, but we rather reckon that a New Orleans gambler would make a mighty poor guardian."

The foreigner's olive skin, chilled by the cold from which he had just entered, took a swift greenish pallor. He stepped forward hissing, and snapped his fingers in Lincoln's face. Antywine was upon him like a tiger, dragging him to the door, throwing him out into the snow, and shooting the bolt behind him.

"Goody!" Peggy exclaimed with passionate approval.

Ann put her hands to her eyes and Lincoln laughed.

"Take care, Antywine."

The oiled paper of the window through which Peggy had watched Ann Rutledge from the hand-mill, was slashed by a knife. Antywine flattened himself against the door. The knife shot past his head and stuck quivering in the opposite wall.

If New Salem folks had distrested this erratic and intermittent visitor from the first, they quite made up their minds about him when he disappeared once more after Shickshack's funeral. It became generally known how he had followed that poor Indian to rob a girl. The winter of the deep snow gave shut-in householders plenty of time to talk. The fact that Pedro Lorimer had been harbored at Clary's Grove added no sweetness to his reputation. Some were afraid he would come back and organize the wild spirits there for any kind of local annexation which might strike his fancy. But the northern winter, from which a tropical nature shrank, went by without disturbance. If Black Hawk had stirred in the northwest, he settled down to await a better season. People no longer rode in sleds over buried stake-and-ridered fences. Vast white frosted loaves of prairies, and forests standing knee-deep in snow, returned to their natural aspect. Streams ran brimful, and Rock Creek covered half the valley during the spring thaw.

Peggy had plenty of chances to loan her money at a high rate of interest to impecunious people, with little prospect of getting it back. Lincoln said he was not a good adviser, for he had failed at storekeeping, and made debts which must cost him years of hard work. But it appeared to him that her gold was safer in the snakeskin coiled around his waist than it would be turned into anything else, until she could buy and hold land.

Antywine and Peggy had gone back to Sally's cabin. But as the season advanced and it was time to take up the work of surveying again, Antywine consulted Lincoln.

"I have made up my mind," he declared, "not to live with that woman some more at all. She have my father's goods, and her first man's goods, and Shickshack's cabin. She is well off. There is that Onslow house at the west end of the road. I can buy it myself for some trade. We will keep house."

"Peggy and you?"

"Yes," replied Antywine, with innocent enthusiasm. "I will take care of her. Me, I can make moccasins; I can kill plenty deer and cure venison. When I am away with you to carry the chain, she can bar the door and keep Sally out, and I sleep easy. I not sleep easy, Sieur Abe, to go away and leave her alone with that Sally, who may cast an evil eye or a stick of wood at her the minute my back is turn'!"

"You better put off the housekeeping until we come home," suggested Lincoln, smiling, "and let Peggy board at the tavern while we are away. She has plenty of money."

Antywine's blue eyes flashed joy at the unfolding of this brilliant plan. He had never thought of Peggy's money as currency which might be put to use. It was simply a valuable possession, hoarded for her.

Peggy was directly received into the Rutledge family, where she had an abundance of good food and Ann's teaching and companionship for a stipulated sum in shillings and fips amounting to less than two dollars a week. To her it was a season of joy and rapid development. Viane Rutledge, herself budding into girlhood, watched the Spaniard with surprise and reluctant approval. Peggy's angles disappeared. She shot up taller. Her lissome limbs were round, and her halting step without a crutch had an appealing charm. Her little face gathered a sweetness which provoked kisses; it had the clean polish of a flower petal. She was so good and so happy, so busy learning how to manage the affairs of daily living, and so glad to draw her breath, that everybody said, "She is growing pretty! Whoever imagined that little weazened Spaniard would turn out like this?"

Antywine and Lincoln were away until early in June. They came driving an ox-wagon from the west into New Salem one evening at sunset, and drew up at the vacant cabin which Antywine intended to make his own. It stood waiting for him in primitive security. The ox-wagon carried a squat, low chest of drawers, evidently bought at second-hand, but bright and rosy through its old mahogany surface, and Antywine's first housekeeping investment. Lincoln helped him unload it, and they set it on the sward before the cabin door.

"I lift him into the house myself," said Antywine. So Lincoln drove the borrowed cattle on, knowing he was welcome to put them into anybody's pasture until he and his chain bearer returned them.

Antywine opened the door of the playhouse he was intending to make for Peggy. Though the sensitive part of him, which Peggy said was like a woman, quivered with delight, he had a free, bold spirit, ready to dare anything. On long tramps and rides and through days of mechanical labor with a master mind he had been coming to his own as a man.

"There's a mighty difference," Lincoln once said to him, "between studying with the outside of your eyeballs and studying with your eyes open clear to the bottom of your brain."

Antywine saw that new oiled paper would have to be put into the weather-beaten windows, over which Peggy would hang short white curtains, perhaps like those that could be shoved apart on strings at the tavern. He selected the corner for his chest of drawers, and was silently calculating how long it would take to turn out chairs and tables at the cooper's shop, when the smell of a cob pipe made him shut the door to keep Sally from looking into his house. Sally had come up behind him and was examining the chest of drawers. In earlier days, before beard grew upon her face, or avarice and vindictiveness hewed it, her piercing black eyes may have been admired. She fixed them on Antywine.

He touched his cap with the courtesy his father had taught him to show all women, and said, "Good day, Sally." He heard Lincoln's gee-hawing to the oxen turn to "W'oa, Buck!" and saw that Slicky Green and young Yates had come down the road to meet the surveyor.

"Have you heard about Peggy's death?" inquired Sally.

"Her death?" Antywine repeated.

"Yes. She was buried a week ago."

CHAPTER VI.

"I not believe you!" said Antywine.

"You ask them Rutledges, then, that was hired to take such fine care of her! Why don't you go and ask them?"

"I not believe you!' trembled Antywine. He sat down on the doorstep holding his blinded head between his hands.

"You and Peggy thought you would go to yourselves, didn't you? But she lays in Concord buryin'-ground now, right alongside of Shickshack; and you know where he lays. The new grave's there."

"I not believe you! I not believe you! I not believe you!"

Antywine leaped from the doorsill and ran like a deer to the tavern, passing the young men and the oxen without noticing or hearing them. Ann Rutledge was sewing by an open window with her back toward him. The two young girls were in the garden with their mother. He did not see Peggy anywhere. A hush was upon the house, and as Ann turned and saw him with a frightened look on her face, he could not ask any question, but took the path down to Rock creek, and ran to the stone where Peggy used to hide her book for him. The sun was down and a ribbon of mist wavered in front of the closed schoolhouse.

Nobody would ever wait for him at that rock again. He ran along the ravine below the gardens and returned to his house, barring the door and drawing the latch-string in. Lying on the floor in the darkest corner, he hid his weeping, and made no answer to the young men, who called his name through the window.

Sally was asleep in her own cabin long before Antywine crept out of his and took the road to Concord burying-ground. It was a long walk under blurred stars, for the wind changed after midnight, belying the promise of a fair sunset.

Antywine tried to bring Peggy's face before him, with its many flitting expressions. Her eyes were hazel, or black, or gray, by changeable turns, swarming with points of light. He remembered drinking from the gourd after her, on the very side where she had drank, and the pleased trembling of her lips when she noticed it. All the ways and traits which went to the making of the companion he called sweetheart were present to his mind, when groping among saplings in the thinly peopled burying-ground he came to Shickshack's sunken grave which he had himself helped to make, and found a fresh clay hillock beside it.

WALKED RATHER THAN BEG.

Honeymoon Trip of a Virginia Couple Has an Ending Which Neither of Them Anticipated.

With their feet covered with blisters by the dust of 105 miles of country roads, S. A. Holsenberger and his pretty wife, each about 22 years old, a refined though tired-out looking couple, arrived in Harrisburg, Pa., on foot from Philadelphia, on their way to their home in Richmond, Va. The long tramp of the man and woman is due to the southern pride of the young couple, who were left penniless through a robbery in Philadelphia, and would not depend on charity as a means of reaching home.

Mr. and Mrs. Holsenberger had been visiting in Philadelphia for several days when he was held up in an ill-lighted street and $46 was taken from his pockets. Mrs. Holzenberger had some loose change, less than a dollar, and this was all the money the two had left after the robbery. With no friends in the city and with no means of getting money from Richmond they scorned proffered advice that pointed out charitable institutions as places where aid could be found. They left the City of Brotherly Love on their wearisome trip homeward. They spent the nights in barns and with the few cents the robbers had not got bought food.

The Holsenbergers averaged 25 miles a day. Here a friend of the young woman living in Shippensburg was thought of and they decided to stop off there a day or two before going on to Richmond. They asked the way to Shippensburg and were directed to the Market street bridge. Going out Market street they attracted a great deal of attention. Of evident refinement and well dressed, their dusty appearance created much wondering comment.

LOVER SHOWS HIS COURAGE

It Took Two Revolvers to Get the Girl He Wanted, But He Got Her, Sure Enough.

A pair of pistols, a girl in love, a daring lover, an irate father and two belligerent brothers are enough of a combination to make a tempestuous romance and they did.

F. M. Kiger, of Germanton, N. C., loved and was beloved by Miss Lulu Covington, daughter of Mr. Charles Covington, of the same place. On April 1 the young couple eloped to Greensboro to wed, but a telegram from the obstinate dad to court officials stopped the event.

Then Kiger took his sweetheart to his home, where she visited the Kiger family two days, until she was forced by an officer to return to her father's home. But Kiger armed himself and appeared with two 44-caliber pistols at the Covington home. The father and two sons, armed with muskets, appeared and ordered Kiger to get away, but Kiger didn't, and the Covingtons fired over his head. Then Kiger and his pistols got into action. He covered the Covingtons with the two revolvers and they took to the woods. Then Kiger got Miss Lulu from the house, drove to Dennis station, Forsyth county, and went on the train to Martinsville, Va., where they were married.

Immense Cantaloupe Farm.

The largest cantaloupe farm in the world will be that which is to be planted near Greeley, Col., the present spring. It will embrace 2,000 acres. Hitherto cantaloupe raising in Colorado has been mostly confined to the famous Rocky Ford district, in the Arkansas valley.

Old Kitchen Brought to Light.

During some recent explorations at Pompeii an ancient kitchen was unearthed. In the fireplace there was a kettle on the grate, just as it was left 1825 years ago by some cook residing in that old city.

WITHOUT THE WIRES

HOW LONDON TIMES ESTABLISHED WAR NEWS STATION.

Its Efforts at Wei-Hai-Wei Raised a New Question in International Law—Problem at Establishing Wireless Telegraphy.

A correspondent in the far east sends an interesting account of the way in which wireless telegraphy has been employed in the war. It will be remembered that the Japanese admiral requested the London Times correspondent to keep south of a certain line, so that secrecy might be observed as to the Japanese fleet's operations; and previously the Russians had issued an order to the effect that if any wireless telegraphy operators could be caught they were to be treated as spies and dealt with out of hand without mercy. The correspondent writes:

The latest departure in war journalism is that made by the London Times, which, with an enterprise worthy of all its traditions, has called science to its aid in the shape of wireless telegraphy. The fact that wireless telegraphy exists and can be utilized by the expenditure of money is simple enough; but the installation of the system is a laborous and delicate matter, even when all the material is at hand and conditions are favorable. When the most trifling item required has to be obtained from a distance, the fixing of a wireless station becomes a serious undertaking. This, at any rate, has been the experience at Weihaiwei.

It was quite simple to leave Japan for Weihaiwei with telegraphic instructions to build a mast 180 feet high within 30 feet of the seashore, to be ready against the arrival of plant and operators by the next boat. But it was quite another matter to make the mast fit to withstand the gales and typhoons that periodically thrash the waters of the Gulf of Pechili. In Weihaiwei there was not a soul to undertake the erection of a pole. But for the good nature of the British navy and army, who nobly came to the rescue of the distressed correspondents, a mast could never have been raised.

Spars for the lofty stick were obtained by the payment of lavish prices to Chinese junk captains, who reluctantly parted with their masts. Wire rope by the mile was cabled for to Shanghai, and arrived after weeks of delay. Treble wages were paid to workmen, who during the period of the China new year, which lasts for three solid weeks, abhor labor.

At the foot the diameter of the mast is 24 inches, and it tapers away to three inches at the summit. The length of the stays employed totals over 4,000 feet, and the weight of the structure is about ten tons. The lower stays are made of wire rope three-fourths of an inch in diameter, and the top ones are telephone wire not much stouter than grocer's twine. During a gale the wind plays the weirdest tunes amongst the vibrating guys, and the operator who dwells in the house at the foot of the structure lives in fear and trembling of his life. But, wind or rain, sunshine or storm, the instruments give forth those little dots and scratches that signify news of the war transmitted from the Haimun sailing around Port Arthur or skirting the coast of Korea. The Haimun contains the alter ego of the establishment at Weihaiwei, in the shape of a lofy topgallantmast rigged to her mainmast. And when she pokes her wireless nose into Chemulpo or Chinnampo or Port Arthur, who can tell that she is talking to her landmate in 'China 'crost the bay'?"

The position of the wireless telegrapty ship in warfare has aroused considerable discussion among students of international law; for as yet it is not certain that messages cannot be intercepted, and that information sent to a land station for transmission to a newspaper may not be made use of by an enemy. There is always the danger that such messages will cease to be "private and confidential."

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

It now looks as though the St. Mary's Baseball Club will not put a team in the field this season. Last season's managers do not care to again take hold of a team as they are identified with the interests of the Alis team.

The Washington Star, of Warren county, has this to say of an Alis player: "Badgley, opposed by Doescher, of the Brooklyn National League, pitched a grand game for the Alis, of Plainfield, against the Aeolian team last Saturday. Each team made five hits. No scoring was done until the twelfth inning, when Badgley's team made one run and won the game." Badgley's home is at Hackettstown, where he is well though of by his fellow-townsmen.

MARTIN WINS AT TENNIS

RESULT OF BOYS' TOURNAMENT IN SINGLES AT HILLSIDE TODAY.

In the semi-finals of the boys' singles scratch tennis tournament at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, yesterday afternoon, the most exciting and skilful play of the season was witnessed. T. M. Day, 3d., one of the most promising candidates for championship honors, suffered defeat at the hands of J. C. Martin. After taking the first set, 2 6, Day lost by the score of 6-1, but in the third and deciding set, he put up the fight of the year in a deuce set which went twenty-two games, Martin taking the decision with a score of 12-10. Owing to the time consumed in this match, to say nothing of the weariness of the victor, it was decided to play the final match this morning instead of immediately after the semi-finals, as originally planned.

When J. C. Martin and J. L. Fleming came together in the last match of the tournament, Martin lived up to the mark set by him yesterday in his victory over Day, by beating Fleming two straight sets with scores of 6 3, 6-3.

"Warry's" Great Work.

Warry McLaughlin pitched a fourteen-inning winning game for New London, of the Connecticut State League, Thursday, against the Holyokes. He won his own game in the fourteenth by cracking out a clean home run, the score winding up 3 to 2.

himself as differing from the platform of his party.

This intimation assumes considerable importance in view of the action taken at St. Louis on the gold plank of the platform as first proposed. It possibly means that Parker, in his letter of acceptance, will seek to remedy the failure of the convention to venture a declaration on this important subject.

If Judge Parker's expression, though somewhat guarded, left no room for doubt that he had some particular matter in mind and that he fully feis the necessity of clearly defining before the people the cause which he is to represent as a candidate at the polls]

St. Louis, July 8—It is understood that as the convention has failed to declare on the money question in the platform, Judge Parker, if nominated, will make a specific declaration on the subject in his letter of acceptance.

STATE INSPECTION OF FOOD

COMMODITIES PURCHASED IN THE MARKET WILL BE SENT TO TRENTON.

The State Board of Health has sent out a special order to its food inspectors, directing them to purchase certain commodities during July and the purchased articles will be sent to the State laboratory, in Trenton, for a rigid analysis to determine which are adulterated, if any.

The work will form part of the pure food crusade being conducted by the Board and the purchases will be made by the inspectors while on their regular milk-inspecting tours throughout the State.

The articles to be purchased are cider, vinegar, cocoa, ground coffee, lard, honey, molasses, borax, olive oil, cream of tartar, tincture of opium, tincture of iodine, and ether. They will be purchased in the open market in the various communities in order to insure that the samples will fairly represent the commidities as sold to the customers.

New Trolley Express Cars.

Several new open trolley cars similar in style to those being operated between Jersey City and Trenton, are now being run on the line between Newark and Dunellen. They are large and can seat a greater number of passengers than any heretofore in the service. Cars are now run between Newark and Dunellen, without change every fifteen minutes.

Firemen's Ball Game.

Complete arrangements have been made for a game of ball between a team representing the local fire department and a nine from the Brooklyn department. The contest will take place next Thursday afternoon, in this city.

THE ALIS PLAYERS MAKE A FINE RECORD

FARMER LEADS AS THE BEST ALL-AROUND PLAYER.

He Makes But One Error—Cregan's Fine Work in the Field—Individual Averages and Scores.

The baseball fans will be interested in the individual batting and fielding averages and record of games of the Alis team to date. It will be seen that the record is an excellent one, despite the fact that some of the contests have been lost. In this case the scores have been close, the victorious team winning by a run or two. In all the team has played thirteen games, winning six, losing six, and one contest a tie. Now that the "hoodoo" thirteen is passed a string of victories may be looked for.

This is the complete record to date:

E. church, baptized Emily, Violet and Pauline Mowry, and Kenneth and Baby Florence Stahl. It was originally planned to hold the ceremony on the lawn, but the rain interferred.

After the baptism, tea was served, followed with a programme of music by William G. Mowry, Irice Railson, Archie Halland, Edward Townley and Harvard Hankerson.

These persons were present: Mr. and Mrs. W. Drake, Ernest and Harvey Drake, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stahl, Mrs. C. Stahl, Miss Annie Thain, Mrs. L. Bimble, Louis and Edward Bimble, R. SEA GIRT THE CAPITAL

SEAT OF STATE GOVERNMENT DURING THE ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT.

Governor Murphy will actively assume his duties as commander-in-chief of the military forces of the State today. He is at Sea Girt, where he is occupying the cottage on the State camp grounds, for the next two weeks, while the Second and Third regiments, the Second Cavalry Troop of Red Bank and Battery B, Field Artillery, of Camden, will be in camp. The Second Regiment and the Second Troop will be on the ground next week. The Governor will not be in Trenton during the next two weeks and the seat of government will be temporarily removed from the State House to the camp ground cottage.

Next Thursday will be "Governor's Day" in camp and the commander-in-chief will inspect and review the troops. He has asked General Charles Miller, commander of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, to assist him in that function, and it is expected the General and staff will be present. It is also expected that a number of the other officers of the National Guard of Pennsylvania, together with some from New York, will witness the review.

"Governor's Day" in camp has always been utilized by State officials, members of the Legislature and politicians, both real and imaginary, as an occasion for getting together and talking over the situation, and as this will be the first opportunity they will have for exchanging views since the National conventions, it is expected that a large gathering will congregate in and about the "Little White House," as the Governor's cottage on the camp ground is sometimes called.

Buffalo Chamber of Commerce indorses the Interchangeable Mileage Ticket.

At a recent meeting of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce the following resolution indorsing the interchangeable mileage ticket, used by the Pennsylvania Railroad and other lines, was adopted:

"The introduction of interchangeable one-thousand-mile mileage books, good for passage on various trunk lines entering Buffalo or in the territory tributary to Buffalo, largely through the efforts of the Trunk Line Passenger Committee, provided a decided advantage to our merchants, manufacturers, and commercial salesmen, which was long sought for; and

Whereas, After a practical use of such mileage book, in place of an individual book on each railroad, has demonstrated the usefulness and material saving of money invested on the part of our merchants, manufacturers, and commercial salesmen in transportation and is attested by the increasing use of such interchangeable books, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Transportation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce heartily commends the members of the Trunk Line Passenger Committee and similar committees for their efforts in securing the introduction of such interchangeable mileage books; and be it

Further Resolved, That the Transportation Committee respectfully urges the said Trunk Line Passenger Committee to take such action as may be necessary to secure the adoption of such mileage book by all railroads and their connections; and be it

Further Resolved, That the Transportation Commitee of the Chamber of Commerce respectfully solicits the co-operation of other commercial organizations to secure the objects of this resolution."

ALIS WHITEWASHED BY CHATHAM F. C.

The First Shut-Out This Season for the Local Baseball Team.

FANS DISAPPOINTED

BADGLEY RECEIVED RAGGED SUPPORT THROUGHOUT THE GAME.

Fine Work of Cregan and Walton—Manager Johnston Promises a General Shakeup Before Saturday.

The Alis team received its first whitewash of the season on Saturday. The fast aggregation from the Chatham Field Club visited Crescent Oval and applied the brush good and proper, the score being 7 to 0. It was a discouraging contest to witness, the work of the locals being no relation to that of a week ago when the Aeolians were defeated 1 to 0 in a twelve inning game. With a very few exceptions they played in listless fashion, and there were only two or three redeeming features. Badgley pitched good ball, but could scarcely hope to win with such ragged support. He allowed but eight hits, while Speer was touched for ten safeties.

The remarkable features were that Alis made ten hits, eight errors and had thirteen men left on base, yet were unable to score. Several times they had men on the cushions and once they were filled, yet no one was able to do the trick and bring the runners home.

Cregan and Walton were up to their usual form. Out of eleven chances, Walton accepted ten and made only one error. One chance was a most difficult hot line drive. By catching the sphere, the short-stop was able to make a double with Patience's assistance. Another pretty double was made by Davis and Heckman, the right fielder making a long throw to third, after catching a fly.

The majority of the team played like amateurs, and even Farmer, who has been putting up the finest article, was off color. While Alis made errors, Chatham made runs with little difficulty. As a result of this wretched exhibition, Manager Johnston has promised a change. He says that such kind of playing must come to an end and the fans can depend on him to keep his word.

When Alis goes on the field next Saturday, it is said a great improvement will be seen.

This is the detailed score:

SUNDAY SERVICES AT FRESH AIR HOME

Mr. Torrey Conducts the Meeting in the Morning and Mr. Parker in the Afternoon.

SOME HAPPY TOTS

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-FIVE LITTLE ONES ARE NOW AT THE CAMP.

New Play Houses and Swings on the Grounds—A Few Changes About the Place—Dormitory Accommodates About 100.

The first Sunday at the Mary Morgan Memorial Fresh Air Home proved far from being an unpleasant day for the little metropolitan visitors. Despite the unsettled weather, no effects of storm and rain were evident upon the dispositions of little ones within doors, and when, in the afternoon, the sun did strive to make an appearance, the little boys and girls thronged outside and romped about in swing and sand-pit with shrieks of delight.

D. M. Torry, Miss Curry's coworker, who brought the first batch of visitors from the city last week, conducted a morning meeting shortly after breakfast had been eaten at the camp. The services consisted of Scripture reading, the learning of a text, and a short address. In conclusion the children joined spiritedly in the singing of several hymns.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon, the little ones again assembled in the long west wing of the main building and the second service of the day was conducted by James F. Parker. After Scripture reading and the singing of some hymns selected by the children, Mr. Parker taught the assembled little ones the text, selected from I Timothy, 1-15 and gave a simple explanation and application of the thought.

There were 145 little ones at the camp yesterday, some score of whom were accompanied from the city by their mothers. Five children arrived Saturday afternoon with Miss Curry.

While no new buildings have been erected since last season, the grounds have been made more attractive to the children by the installation of several new play houses and a number of swings. The so-called dormitory in the rear of the main building has been more fully equipped and is now capable of offering sleeping quarters to about a hundred. The west wing of the main building is to be used this year as an assembly room and it is here also that the meals are served.

A delegation of ten little ones arrived this morning. Several of these little visitors are cripples and the hot, trying weather in their city homes will make this country outing of great benefit to them. The children come from the thickly populated tenement district of East Eighth street, New York.

ITALIANS ATTACK WOMEN

TWO NURSES NARROWLY ESCAPE ROUGH TREATMENT.

Frightened into hysterics by an attack made upon them by two Italians, two nurses attached to the Greesmann School located in the former Mountain Park Inn, are in a state of nervous collapse and under a physician's care. They were assailed by the men Friday night as they were ascending the mountain road and narrowly escaped rough treatment. Both screamed and the fellows, fearing their cries would attract some one from the school, ran away. The nurses made their way to the building and the borough police were at once notified by telephone, but the assailants had made good their escape.

It is the belief of Chief Weiss that the Italians belong to the colony which works in the quarries at the "Notch" and he is keeping a sharp lookout in that direction. The young women furnished a good description and are positive they could readily identify either one.

Death of Benjamin Monroe.

Benjamin Monroe, aged thirty-four years, died Friday afternoon at his home on West Second street, after a long illness with tuberculosis. Funeral services over the remains were held from the residence of his brother, W. S. Monroe, of Plainfield avenue, yesterday afternoon, and the remains were sent to Washington, D. C., for interment. Rev. Scott Wallace had charge of the funeral.

CO. K BOYS SETTLED AT SEA GIRT CAMP

First Letter From "General Hardtack" Tells of Pranks Which Relieve Hum-Drum.

FUN WITH "SLATS"

SERGEANT SEIDERS IS COMPELLED TO SLEEP IN THE OPEN.

Tears Are Shed Over Absence of George Apgar—Plenty to Eat at Camp—The Trip Was Uneventful.

Camp Franklin Murphy, Sea Girt.
Monday, July 11.

After two nights almost entirely devoid of sleep and one day of quiet rest, the boys of Company K found themselves fully settled in camp here this morning. Known throughout the State as a band of "rousing" good fellows, the Plainfield contingent found itself welcomed on all sides by the other companies and from the time the train was left behind the days and nights have been spent in renewing acquaintances and teaching the "rookies," as the new members are called, just what it means to pay the initial visit to Sea Girt. Saturday night, especially, was one of terror for the recruits and the majority of them are convinced that if bumps count for anything they are full-fledged militiamen and campers.

The trip down from Plainfield Saturday was devoid of interest so far as incident was concerned, but the boys made plenty of fun among themselves. The "rookies" were made to do guard duty up and down through the cars loaded with rifles and haversacks and also to do many other things that they wouldn't if choice was left to them. On arriving at Sea Girt, the Company placed itself with the remainder of the regiment and headed by the regimental band proceeded to camp.

Mess came immediately after dress parade and the Plainfielders thoroughly appreciated the bountiful supply of roast beef, stewed corn, boiled potatoes, bread and fresh butter. The band gave a concert in the evening and those who did not stay to listen went to the nearby towns, getting back before "taps" sounded at 11 o'clock.

The pranks practiced through the night ran all the way from treating victims to a "bath" beneath the street "pump" to making the unfortunates scramble up a tent and tell what they knew of politics and modern warfare while standing on the ridge pole. One of the "rookies" was "Slats" Morrison who accepted everything good naturedly and went through the paces like a major. Senior Sergeant Seiders, who caused a stampede in camp last year by getting bitten by a crab, had to sleep in the open air as the boys declared that was the only way to cure him of his indigestion.

Last night matters were almost as bad but today the company is settling down to routine and there will be plenty to keep everybody busy. We regret that Corporal Apgar is not with us and several of the other boys but we have accepted the inevitable.

"General Hardtack."

Camp Franklin Murphy,
Sea Girt, July 11, 1904.

On arriving here Saturday the command was in good shape with the exception of Private Morrison, who was quite fagged out owing to the punishment imposed by Dunn—head court martial presided over by Judge Advocate Private Richards. Morrison, who is one of the latest additions to the company, had heard of the terrible things done to the new members of the company thought that he would forstall the old men by organising the recruits for their own mutual protection, but in doing so he forgot to discriminate between the old and the new members and told his plans to one of the older men. For so doing he was brought before the Judge, after leaving Plainfield, and charges preferred against him of inciting to rebellion and conspiracy. Acting Quartermaster Sergeant Pope acted as prosecutor. He was defended by his bosom friend, Private McDonald.

After eloquent pleading on both sides, Judge Richards passed sentence upon him which was that he be made to march up and down the aisle of the car carrying six haversacks and his gun at a carry arms for thirty minutes.

The other men who were initiated on the trip down were as follows: Privates F. Pearsal, J. Pearsal, Brokaw, who turned out to be quite a kicker, French, McDonald, "Red

IMPERSONATED BAGGAGEMAN?

JUDGE RUNYON RESERVES DECISION IN CASE AGAINST WALTER THOMPSON.

Accused by Baggagemaster Garretson with impersonating a railway employe, Walter Thompson, an expressman at the North Avenue station, was placed on trial in the city court this morning. Technically he was charged with disorderly conduct and proceedings against him were conducted by Counsellor Perry Garvin, of the New Jersey Central. Thompson was represented by William G. DeMeza, Esq., and after an hour of testimony taking Judge Runyon announced that he would reserve decision in the matter until Wednesday morning.

The trouble occurred on July 1 when Garretson, he says, saw Thompson approach a woman who had alighted from a train and take her grip, giving her the impression that he was baggagemaster at the same time accepting a quarter for its delivery. He ordered Thompson from the platform and after an exchange of compliments, the expressman was placed under arrest by Special Officer Edward Martin. Thompson resisted and both struggled around until Patrolman Overbaugh took both to police headquarters.

WELL-KNOWN CARPENTER DEAD

JOHN BODINE PASSES AWAY AT AGE OF SEVENTY-THREE YEARS.

After an illness of several weeks, John Bodine, one of the oldest and best known residents of the borough, passed away at his home on Grandview avenue, Saturday evening. Death was due to a complication of troubles.

He was in his seventy-third year and came to the borough from Hunterdon county many years ago. He was a carpenter by trade and built many buildings in this vicinity. Surviving him are a widow and four children, William, Lambert and David Bodine, and Mrs. Smith, all of the borough.

Funeral services over the remains will be held from his late home this evening at 8 o'clock and the body will then be taken to Sandbrook, near Flemington, where further services will be held tomorrow morning. The interment will be made at Sandbrook.

HAND NEARLY BLOWN OFF

VICTOR COLE, OF SCOTCH PLAINS, RECEIVES SEVERE INJURIES.

While he was handling a shot gun this afternoon, the weapon was accidentally discharged, and as a result Victor Cole nearly lost his right hand. The man is the son of John Cole, and lives and Scotch Plains. A companion hastened for a physician. Dr. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, responded. Before the doctor arrived the man's arm was tied up and the flow of blood stopped. As soon as possible he was taken to his home. He is well known in this city. Later he was brought to his own physician, Dr. O. L. Jenkins.

Dougherty Captures Thieves.

Chief of Police Dougherty, of the New Jersey Central, arrested George Blume on a charge of robbery, at Hampton Junction Saturday. Blume, who was formerly employed by the company, has given the officials considerable trouble. A brakeman from Hampton was caught with the "goods on." Both are now locked up at Flemington. Cigars, jewelry, money and household goods were the principal articles taken.

Tom Muir Home Again.

Thomas M. Muir, formerly city editor of the Plainfield Courier-News, has accepted a position on the staff of The Daily Press and begins his new duties today. Mr. Muir was on The Daily Press for several years and his good work endeared him to the paper.

HIS RIBS BROKEN IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Sidney E. Frazee, of the Fire Department, Falls Beneath Wheels of Road Wagon.

TWO OTHERS ARE HURT

CHARLES KREGAR AND GEORGE VOEHL SUFFER INJURIES.

Kregar is Kicked in the Thigh and Voehl is Struck Several Times—The Wagon is Also Badly Damaged.

Sidney E. Frazee, driver of the chemical engine at fire headquarters, was severely injured, and George Voehl and his nephew, Charles Kregar, were badly hurt in a runaway accident which took place on Madison avenue Saturday afternoon. Three of Frazee's ribs were fractured and he suffered greatly from shock, having been off duty for the past few weeks on account of sickness and being in a weakened state.

The horse belongs to Voehl and is a recent importation from the West. It was attached to a road wagon in which the three started for the Alis baseball game, going down Madison avenue. They were just passing beneath the railroad bridge when the rumbling of a train frightened the animal and it started to run away. Voehl held it in and it started kicking. In the excitement Frazee rolled from his seat to the ground and the wheels passed over him. Kregar was kicked in the thigh and Voehl was also struck several times. The animal finally started on a mad run and was only brought to a standstill by Voehl pluckily guiding it into a pole near West Fifth street. By that time there wasn't much left of the wagon.

Patrolman Messler, who witnessed the accident, called the patrol wagon and had Frazee and Kregar removed to Mr. Voehl's home. Dr. Adams, who was summoned, placed the former in a plaster cast and ventured the opinion that he would be confined to the house for several weeks. He inserted several stitches in a bad gash on Kregar's thigh and found him suffering with bad bruises from the horse's hoofs. Voehl's injuries were the least of the three but he also sustained numerous abrasions.

The solo parts were taken by Miss Louela C. Harris, soprano; William Holmes, baritone and George Smith, tenor. Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto, rendered solo parts. During the service, Rev. Mr. Stifler, of Roselle, who occupied the pulpit for the day, gave a short talk.

COMMISSION REFUSED JUSTICE JACOB KRINEY

Failure of Election Officers to File Returns Properly Fatal in His Case.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN

SECRETARY OF STATE POWERLESS TO ISSUE CERTIFICATE.

'Squire Threatens to Get After the Election Board — Liability for Failure to Send Returns to Secretary Dickinson.

Because the members of the election board of the First district, Fourth ward, failed to file the returns at the last election with S. D. Dickinson, Secretary of State, Jacob Kriney, of West Front street, has not received his commission as a Justice of the Peace, to which office he was re-elected, and he proposes to take steps to secure the certificate. After the election, Mr. Kriney could not understand why he did not receive his commission and finally he communicated with Secretary Dickinson.

This morning he received a reply stating that inasmuch as the officers in the First district of the Fourth ward had failed to make proper returns to the State, the record was incomplete and therefore no commission could be given.

When seen by a reporter for The Daily Press this morning, Mr. Kriney said: "Yes, I have received a letter giving me the reason why my commission was not sent. The election officers will have to do something very quick or I'll get after them. I won't stand for this sort of thing one minute."

Failure to file the returns with the Secretary of State, makes the election officers liable to a fine of $100 each. A similar ommission occurred some time ago, and it was with difficulty that the matter was straightened out.

NEGRO ROBS A WOMAN

MRS. EDWARD FRENCH LOSES PURSE CONTAINING MONEY AND TRINKLETS.

While Mrs. Edward French, of First place, was on her way home shortly before 9 o'clock, Saturday evening, a negro sprang from behind a tree on that thoroughfare and snatched her purse from her hand. Before she could recover from her surprise and fright the fellow was half a block away. The police were hurriedly notified but as Mrs. French did not get a good view of his features and was unable to furnish much of a description, the chances of his being captured are considered very slim. The purse contained $2 and a few trinkets.

It is the opinion of Chief Kiely that the fellow was a stranger in the city and that he immediately left town.

ITALIAN CELEBRATION.

Fireworks at Concert Park on Feast of a Saint.

The fireworks display being planned for in connection with the celebration of the feast of "Our Lady of Mt. Carmel," will not be given on Martine Common, Concert Park having been leased for the purpose. It will take place July 19.

Our Lady of Mt. Carmel is one of the favorite saints of Italy. Years ago, when there were but few Italians in New York and they had no church, an artist of the race carved this statute of the Blessed Virgin and Her Divine Son, and it has been an object of veneration ever since.

Westfield-Camden Turnpike.

Chancellor Magie signed a rule at Trenton requiring all the bondholders, judgment creditors and stockholders of the Westfield and Camden Turnpike Company to show cause, July 19, why an offer of Camden County to purchase the assets of the company for $32,303 should not be accepted. The freeholders of the county have already authorized the purchase and are only awaiting the sanction of the court to complete the deal. Application to have the sale allowed was made by Heulings Lippincott and Clayton Conraw, receivers for the Turnpike company.

Warm weather is the time the butcher is tested. The careless ones—or worse—treat their customers very shabbily. Smalley Bros. conduct the sort of market that shows well in all seasons.

Just tobacco. That is all that goes in M. C. Dobbins' cigars, Park avenue. That, in turn, is why the famous Yara is such a splendid cigar. That is why smokers call for it in ever-increasing numbers.

William Hand & Sons, of East Second street, exercise the greatest care in moving furniture or goods of any kind. The firm has the best vans, employs experienced men and the charges are reasonable.

Ponce de Leon searched for the fountain of eternal youth, but Florida, the scene of his searching, has hardly shown us a single spring which can equal the Washington Rock Spring Water sold by the Plainfield Spring Water Co.

At Peck's the filmiest specimens of women's hosiery for the summer season are in stock in all the most popular exclusive designs. The silk ones are marvels of lightness and at the same time are the most comfortable and they wear exceedingly well.

The celebrated standard "Hicks" hammock is a great seller at A. M. Griffen's hardware store. It is the best hammock made. Other specialties include refrigerators, water coolers and the best oil stoves on the market. A full and complete line of window and door screens will be found at the store.

The newness of the Plainfield Trust Company as a banking concern in this locality, should not be held by anyone to constitute a handicap against it. This very fact argues in favor of the idea that the new banking house is bound to do everything possible to aid it to grow. It has all the desirable features of a metropolitan concern, including a savings department.

The dress goods department at Woodhull & Martin's store is just now the center of attraction for the women folks. Here you will find the very latest goods in the market of the proper weight, best manufacture and most reasonable in price. Seldom has such an array of white lawn waists and entire suits been offered. They are the proper thing for warm weather and there is a large stock to select from. The July clearing sales now well underway and there is no end to the bargains offered.

White vests at the Surprise Store are one of the leaders. The remarkable saving possible in this class of goods, all of them fine ones at that, is causing many who looked upon the white or fancy vest with disfavor, to come into line and put one on. Shoes, another of the indispensable requisites of summer outfits, are shown here in the greatest variety and at prices that make successful competition almost out of the question. The straw hat line is hardly broken enough for a clearing sale, but the prices are undergoing reductions even as early as this.

—There will be an auction sale of household furniture on Wednesday afternoon at 438 West Third street, at 1:30 o'clock sharp. The sale will offer persons an excellent opportunity to secure a great many bargains. P. H. Latourette will be auctioneer.

—The past few weeks have been very quiet at Muhlenberg Hospital, there being a small number of accident cases received, and a limited number of other cases. However, the patients at the institution keep the nurses busy. At present there are no critical cases under treatment.

FIRED BOMBSHELL

Alton B. Parker Nominated For President at Dawn.

H. G. DAVIS RUNNING MATE

Nominee Comes Out Straight For Gold Standard.

WIRES MESSAGE TO CONVENTION

Choice of the Democrats For Head of the Nation is One of New York's Eminent Jurists — For Vice President an Ex-Member of the Federal Senate From West Virginia.

ST. LOUIS, July 11.—"I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established and shall act accordingly if the action of the convention shall be ratified by the people. As the platform is silent on the subject, my views should be made known to the convention, and if it is proved to be unsatisfactory to the majority I request you to decline the nomination for me at once so that another may be nominated before adjournment."

The foregoing dispatch was sent to William F. Sheehan at St. Louis by Judge Parker and was read by him to the convention.

Many of the southern delegates denounced Parker in the strongest terms and demanded that he decline the nomination. The organization of a movement to force him off the ticket was immediately begun.

Ex-Senator Hill, with William F. Sheehan and Senators Daniel, Tillman and various other members of the committee on resolutions, went into conference to try to decide on what to do about Judge Parker's telegram.

The convention took a recess amid scenes of the wildest excitement pending the decision of the leaders.

Chief Judge Alton B. Parker of the New York state court of appeals was nominated at early dawn on Saturday morning for president of the United States by the Democratic national convention. There was only one roll call, and so decisive was the result of that one that contrary states began to call for recognition, and the ballot finally resulted in a unanimous vote for the New York state man.

The ballot for president gave Parker 658 votes of the 667 needed to nominate, and before the result could be announced Idaho, Nevada, Washington and others made changes to the Parker column.

Governor Dockery of Missouri moved to make the nomination unanimous, and the motion was carried amid increasing cheering. The result of the ballot was not announced officially, and it is not likely that it ever will be.

The scene was dramatic in the extreme. Darkness had witnessed the gathering of the Democratic hosts, while broad daylight, the sun paling the electric lights, witnessed the close. The convention was in session from 8 o'clock at night until nearly 6 o'clock in the morning. In that time eight names were presented, and nominating and seconding speeches innumerable were made. As dawn approached it became necessary to limit the seconding speeches to four minutes each.

An exception was made in the case of William Jennings Bryan, who in one of the most dramatic situations ever witnessed in a political gathering addressed the convention and concluded by seconding the nomination of Senator Francis M. Cockrell, the "favorite son" candidate from Missouri. Mr. Bryan received the third great ovation accorded during the convention. His speech was an impassioned appeal to the delegates to give the party a candidate who had voted the Democratic ticket in 1896 and 1900. He spoke in behalf of the Nebraska delegation, which he said had no candidate to present or favors to ask, but wanted a candidate whose nomination would not prove a triumph for one faction over another. He suggested Hearst, if the convention thought best, then ex-Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania and finally created a surprise by declaring for Senator Cockrell.

Bryan's control of the immense audience was absolute. A wave of his hand stilled the applause. His cleverness as an orator was illustrated in a dozen ways. At times the interested thousands hung breathless on his words, believing that he would declare for Parker.

In another moment he would manage to convey the impression that he was going to ask for the nomination himself. When he commended Hearst the hallful of Hearst boomers went wild. Many of the enthusiasts began to offer to bet money that Hearst would control enough votes on the first ballot to prevent the nomination of Parker.

Bryan spoke for forty minutes. His concluding declaration of faith in the ability of Democracy to win gave rise to another of the numerous hysterical spasms that have seized this convention. This one lasted close to ten minutes. Even after he had concluded there was no exodus from the hall. With broad daylight showing through the windows fully two-thirds of the crowd that had poured through the Coliseum entrances was hanging on.

His declaration that had he fought the fight he might have finished his course, but that nobody could deny that he had kept his faith, was greeted with cheers and cries, "You did!" and "That's so!"

No such tribute had been paid any man of all those who have spoken since the Democratic convention was called to order last Wednesday morning.

Mr. Bryan said:

"Eight years ago a Democratic convention placed in my hands the standard of the party and gave me the commission as its candidate. Four years later that commission was renewed. I come tonight to the Democratic convention to return the commission and to say that you may dispute whether I fought a good fight. You may dispute whether I finished my course, but you cannot deny that I have kept the faith.

"As your candidate I did all I could to bring success to the party. As a private citizen today I am more interested in Democratic success than I ever was when I was a candidate. The reasons that made the election of a Democrat desirable were stronger in 1900 than in 1896, and the reasons that make the election of the Democratic candidate desirable are stronger in 1904 than they were in 1900.

"The gentleman who presented New York's candidate dwelt upon the dangers of militarism, and he did not overstate the dangers. Let me quote the most remarkable passage that ever occurred or that was ever found in the speech of nomination of any candidate for president.

"Governor Black of New York in presenting the name of Theodore Roosevelt to the Republican convention used these words: 'The fate of nations is still decided by their wars. You may talk of orderly tribunals and learned referees. You may sing in your schools the gentle praises of quiet life. You may strike from your books the last note of every martial anthem, and yet out in the smoke and thunder will always be the tramp of horses and the silent, rigid, upturned faces. Men may prophesy and women pray, but peace will come here to abide forever in this earth only when the dreams of childhood are the accepted charts to guide the destinies of men. Events are numberless and mighty, and no man can tell which wire runs around the world. The nation basking today in the quiet of contentment and repose may still be on a deadly circuit and tomorrow writhing in the toils of war. This is the time when great figures must be kept in front. If the pressure is great the material to resist it must be granite and iron.'

"This is a eulogy of war. This is a declaration that the time hoped for, prayed for, of perpetual peace will never come, thus eulogizing the doctrine of brute force and giving denial to the hopes of the race. And this president, a candidate for re-election, is presented as the embodiment of that ideal, the granite and the iron, to represent the new idea of militarism. Do you say you want to defeat the military idea? Friends of the south, are you trying to defeat the military idea? Let me tell you that not one of you, north, east or south, more fears the triumph of that idea than I do. If this is the doctrine that our nation is to stand for, it is retrogression, not progression; it is the lowering of the ideals of the nation; it is the turning backward to the age of force. More than that, it is a challenge to the Christian civilization of the world and nothing less.

"Twenty-seven hundred years ago a prophet foretold the coming of one who was to be called the Prince of Peace. Two thousand years ago he came upon the earth, and the song that was sung at his birth was 'Peace on earth, good will toward men.'

"For two thousand years this doctrine of peace has been growing. It has been taking hold upon the hearts of men. For this doctrine of peace millions have given their lives. For this doctrine of peace thousands have crossed oceans and given their lives among savage tribes and among foreign nations. This doctrine of peace, the foundation of Christian civilization, has been the growing hope of the world.

"And now the ex-governor of the greatest state of the nation presents for the office of president of the greatest republic of all history a man who is granite and iron and who represents, not the doctrine of peace, but the doctrine that the destinies of nations are still settled by their wars.

"Will you of New York present a graver indictment against President Roosevelt than that? Will you of the south present a graver indictment against President Roosevelt than that? I do not ask what is the character of the man. He may have every virtue; he may be exemplary in every way, but if the president shares the idea of the man who nominated him; if the president believes with his sponsor at Chicago that wars must settle the destinies of nations; that peace is but a dream; that women pray for it; that men may prophesy about it; that all these talks of orderly tribunals and all this are but empty sounds; if he believes these things, he is a dangerous man for our country and the world.

"I believe he ought to be defeated. I believe he can be defeated, and if the Democratic party does what it ought to do I believe he will be defeated.

"How can you defeat him? I tried to defeat the Republican party as your candidate. I failed, you say? Yes, I did.

"I received a million more votes than any Democrat had ever received before, and yet I failed. Why did I fail? Because there were some who had affiliated with the Democratic party who thought my election dangerous to the country, and they left and helped to elect my opponent. That is why I failed. I have no word of criticism for them. I have always believed, I believe tonight, I shall always believe, that a man's duty to his country is higher than his duty to his party. I hope it will always be true that men of all parties will have the moral courage to leave their parties when they believe that to stay with their parties will be to injure their country. The success of your government depends on the independence and the moral courage of its citizens."

At the afternoon session while Senator Tillman was speaking in regard to the message from Judge Parker, Mr. Bryan, looking very pale and ill, came into the hall. He met with a mighty ovation, and in response to the shouts of the delegates and the galleries he mounted the platform to make a speech. Great applause followed his first assertion that lack of harmony in the party could not be laid at his door.

There were only two ways out of the difficulty into which the action of Judge Parker had plunged the party, said Mr. Bryan. One was to amend the message in the manner he had suggested (asking a specified declaration from Judge Parker on the money question), and the other was to amend the platform by the insertion of a gold plank. Leaning far over the rail in front of the platform, he shook his hand at the New York delegation and said: "I will agree to accept Senator Carmack's plank. Will that satisfy the friends of Judge Parker?"

It was ten minutes after midnight when Mr. Bryan concluded, and Representative John Sharp Williams rose. He plunged without preface into a scathing arraignment of Mr. Bryan. Turning from time to time, he faced Mr. Bryan, who sat with immobile countenance and fanned himself. His voice trembling, Mr. Williams declared that Mr. Bryan had presented the spectacle of a man pleading for harmony when in all this great convention his had been the only voice of discord. The amendments to the Parker telegram he characterized as "a lot of foolish questions." He spoke satirically, with humor and earnestness.

In explaining that the telegram from Judge Parker was simply an expression of the judge's own individual opinion Mr. Williams suddenly wheeled and, facing those on the platform, asked, "Suppose we had nominated Mr. Bryan on that platform?"

In closing Mr. Williams moved the previous question.

The previous question was withdrawn temporarily. Mr. Bryan again appeared and withdrew his proposed amendments to telegraph to Parker in the interest of harmony. The previous question (on the sending of the message to Judge Parker) was then ordered.

The official total of the roll call ordered on the Williams telegram to Parker was: Yeas, 774; nays, 191.

After the message to Judge Parker had been decided upon the convention proceeded to the nomination of a candidate for vice president. On the first ballot Henry G. Davis of West Virginia received 652 votes, fifteen less than necessary to a choice. He was then nominated for the office by acclamation.

The convention then adjourned sine die without waiting to hear from Judge Parker.

WRECK ON ERIE ROAD

Greenwood Lake Excursion In Rear End Smash.

FOURTEEN DEAD AND FIFTY INJURED

Tower Operator Failed to Set Block Signal Against Regular Train Following, Whose Engine Tore Into Coaches Ahead.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Fourteen persons were killed and fifty injured, some of them seriously, as a result of a regular passenger train on the Greenwood lake branch of the Erie railroad running into an excursion train which was taking water at Midvale, N. J., at noon yesterday.

D. W. Cooke, general passenger agent of the Erie railroad, has given out the following statement:

"An excursion train from Hoboken to Greenwood lake stopped at Midvale for water, and the operator in the tower failed to set the block signal against the train following. As a result there was a rear end collision in which fourteen persons were killed and fifty injured.

"A hospital train with doctors and surgeons on board was immediately sent to the scene of the accident and rendered all possible aid."

The dead: H. Beeker, Hoboken; William J. Lyne, Hoboken; H. Ottestag, Hoboken; William A. Rehnkuhl, New York; William Remi, New York; H. Rolsing, Hoboken; William Weidemeyer, Hoboken; William Winterknecht, Hoboken.

All of the dead and injured lived in Hoboken, Jersey City and New York. The train which was run into was a special carrying members of the First Plattdeutscher association of Hoboken on their annual outing and had 800 passengers.

The train consisted of twelve cars and two engines. The first engine had taken water and the train had moved up and stopped with the second engine beside the water tank when the flagman of the special signaled the engineer of the oncoming train, but, owing to a curve in the road, his flag was not seen until too late. It is claimed that the engineer of the regular train had slowed down to about ten miles an hour before he crashed into the special, but his engine tore through the rear car the greater part of its length and drove the forward end of that car into the car ahead. The killed and injured were in these two cars.

Fortunately the wreckage did not catch fire, and the work of taking out the dead and maimed was accomplished quickly.

The passengers from the uninjured coaches ran back and joined in the work, and the residents of Midvale, many of whom had heard the crash, assisted them.

An engine and cars were sent from Little Falls to the scene of the wreck, and as rapidly as possible the most seriously hurt were prepared for transmission by train to Little Falls and thence to Jersey City or Hoboken. The less severely hurt were continued under treatment in Midvale until later in the day.

As quickly as possible the officials of the road induced all who had no friends or relatives killed or injured to board the first train and proceed to Greenwood lake. Those who did not care for the trip to the lake after witnessing the scenes in the two wrecked coaches were provided later with return transportation.

The engineer and fireman of the regular train disappeared from the scene just after the accident. They both escaped injury by jumping just before the crash.

The operator in the tower was Walter Richards. He would make no statement and was relieved and left the scene soon after the accident.

A great crowd remained at the scene, many of whom were passengers seeking information regarding relatives and friends on the train.

During the excitement immediately after the accident a woman gave birth to a child in one of the cars, after she had learned that her husband and one of her children were among the injured.

Deserved Hanging Long Ago.

PITTSBURG, July 11.—John Johnson, colored, who with Frank Ousley, also colored, will hang next Thursday for the murder of grocer James Donnelly, has confessed to four other murders. Johnson says he was born in Georgia and when about eighteen years old started out as a tramp. Two of his victims were with him traveling in a box car on a Virginia railroad and after murdering them for the $5 in their possession he threw their bodies from the car while the train was going. His other two victims suffered a like fate on a Georgia railroad.

Each Took a Game.

CINCINNATI, O., July 11.—Cincinnati and Philadelphia each got a game in a double header. The first game went to the visitors through their opportune hitting, aided by bases on balls. In the second game McPherson was hit hard enough in the first inning to put the locals in an easy position from the start. First game.—Philadelphia, 4; Cincinnati, 1. Second game.—Philadelphia, 1; Cincinnati, 7.

OUR JULY FURNITURE SALE

Bona Fide Reductions throughout the Two Acres of Parlor and Chamber Suits, Library, Dining-room, Porch and Lawn Pieces, and everything else in High, Medium and Ordinary Grades.

The display is the most invitingly attractive of all the stores—we make no exception whatever. The articles were bought of the same manufacturers, and are the same grades as those sold in New York, but price distinction makes it profitable to buy here. Variety and choice are just as big. Other New Jersey exhibits and reductions cannot be considered, for they do not meet ours in any particular. This sale is a sensation with its high character and low prices. Our furniture was not put together to sell and then go to pieces: Every article in our two acres is splendidly made and sells at a great cut-bargain price—the price which we make twice a year. Everyone will remember the rich harvest gleaned at our last Semi-annual Furniture Sale. Note a few sample prices:

JAPS TAKE KAICHOW

Russians Cannot Stay Their Victorious Advance.

CZAR'S TROOPS OUT FROM KANCHANG

Mikado's Army Corps Pushing Forward With Large Extended Front Toward Kuropatkin's Headquarters at Mukden.

LONDON, July 11.—Lieutenant General Sacharoff in a dispatch to the general staff at St. Petersburg confirms the report that the Japanese have occupied Kaichow. He says that the Russian loss did not exceed 150 killed or wounded and that the Japanese are advancing on the Yinkow road. He adds:

"Our detachment remained during July 8 at Chou station, having its advance posts on the right bank of the Kantakhe river, the enemy occupying the heights on the left bank and fortifying themselves thereon.

"Our battery on the railroad bridge opened fire at the enemy's patrols, which appeared in Kantakhe village. Toward noon a fusillade occurred between a detachment of the enemy and our company which observed the enemy retiring.

"Toward the evening of July 8 the enemy's force, consisting of four divisions and a brigade, could be made out in front of Kaichau, extending along the seashore. At dawn of July 9 the enemy resumed the offensive upon the rear guard of our detachment, which retired about 6.30 in the morning from Kinchau two and a half miles northward toward the Shuanlunsa pass.

"At 10 o'clock, under heavy pressure, our rear guard retired on our position at Makhuntsguiga and Yaolintas, three miles north of the Shuanlunsa pass. The rear guard held this position under a heavy fire until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, when, in accordance with instructions, it retired slowly and in perfect order to the third position at Tch autzziandiandza, just as our main body was concentrating at Datchapu and on the position at Makhuntsguiga.

"The enemy kept up a very heavy cannonade for two hours uninterruptedly, but our battery carried on the struggle successfully, firing along the Shaunlunsa pass. It finally fell back with hardly any casualties.

"Our losses are not yet known, but according to the commander of our forces they do not exceed 150. Among the killed was Count Nyrodt, captain on the general staff, who abandoned the last position after brilliantly carrying out his duties as chief of staff with the rear guard."

A Tokyo dispatch says that General Kuroki reports that a detachment of Japanese troops attacked and drove off a force of 300 Russian cavalry and occupied Kanchang, the enemy retiring northward.

Later 1,300 Russian cavalry attacked a Japanese detachment near the north entrance to Fenshui pass. The Russians were repulsed and the Japanese retained possession of the entrance to the pass.

General Sacharoff also reported that the Japanese had begun to advance, but not in considerable force, toward Siaosyou, occupying Sianchan.

A dispatch from Tokyo says that Major General Koizumi received a bullet wound in the hip during the fighting which resulted in the capture of Kaichow.

A Newchwang report says that eight Japanese torpedo boat destroyers are sweeping the gulf of Liautong in order that a search of neutral ships may be carried on in a more thorough manner.

The Japanese are nightly bombarding Port Arthur, and a Japanese division from the northward is intrenching seven miles from the marine camp, while another division from the eastward is fighting continuously and, with the aid of the fleet, is endeavoring to gain a position commanding the town and naval basin.

The Japanese have occupied the summit of Takushan mountain, which is about three miles from Port Arthur, with a mounted battery of artillery.

The Russian cruiser Novik and four gunboats went out under protection of the guns on Golden hill and shelled a Japanese battery, which was surrounded and captured finally by Russian infantry.

The absence of Tokyo dispatches admitting the loss of the torpedo boats reported by Vice Admiral Skrydloff to have been sunk by the Vladivostok squadron is taken here to prove that the Japanese are concealing losses when it is possible to do so.

Should Have Studied Japan.

LONDON, July 11.—The Daily Express prints what it claims is General Kuropatkin's signed plan of invasion of British India which, it is stated, was filed in the Russian war office as the official method of procedure in case of a war between Russia and Great Britain. The document goes into minute details and is three columns in length.

Czar Expects an Heir.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 11.—The departure of the emperor for the Volga region to bid farewell to the reservists, many of whom are the fathers of families, occurring as it did when the arrival of an imperial heir is expected any day, is considered a mark of deep personal sympathy with the soldiers.

LAD ACCUSED OF STEALING

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD EDGAR WOODEN MUST ANSWER CHARGE.

Charged with stealing Jerry Martin's wheel from in front of Smith's grocery store on June 1, twelve-year-old Edgar Wooden, who lives on Cottage place, was arrested this noon. The wheel was found in his possession and was restored to its owner this morning.

Though the lad vehemently denied the charge, he was held until tomorrow. He was traced through his sale of a pair of handle bars to an employe of Laing's store.

Twilights Twice Victors.

Just like the New York National team, the Twilight ball team played a double header Saturday afternoon and won both games. The first game at 2:30 found the Pilot A. C. team, of Plainfield, ready to do battle. Johnston and Mooney were the battery put in to do the work. This game went to the locals by the score of 10 to 5. The second victim was the Potter A. C. team, of Mt. Pleasant. Alberts and Baldwin as a battery proved to be too much for the visitors and the locals won by a score of 16 to 3

Funeral of Mrs. Randolph.

WELCOME GIVEN MISS CURRY

SERVICE AT CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH IN AID OF FRESH AIR HOME.

In the Crescent Avenue church, last evening, Miss Sara Curry and fifteen of her children from the East Side Day Nursery, New York, were tendered a reception by a large congregation comprising members from churches throughout the city. It was given in aid of Miss Curry's work at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home at Netherwood and a collection taken at one period showed the interest manifested by the Plainfield people.

Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector emeritus of Grace church, declared the Netherwood camp to be a most worthy effort and said that it should be a permanent institution and not merely a place for fresh air work. Miss Curry was introduced and in her convincing way gave the congregation an idea of the extent of her work. It was not to give the children an outing, she said, but meant the care of 1,000 homes in New York's great East Side where there is room for great improvements in many ways. During the winter the children are taught many useful things and instruction in household duties is given mothers, helping them to make homes brighter and better.

Miss Curry was followed by Dr. Rodman who supplemented her remarks on the New York mission and he made an appeal for support during the coming summer to aid her in clearing the mission of a mortgage now upon it.

Central Boys Play Ball.

On Saturday afternoon the employes of the New York office of the New Jersey Central played the employes of the Philadelphia office a game of baseball, the contest taking place at Philadelphia. The company placed a private car, attached to the express service, at the disposal of the employes who wanted to take the trip and root for the New York end. What a difference between the present management and the Wentz reign when employes were denied even an occasional pass.

WINNERS OF MEN'S DOUBLES

EAST NEW JERSEY LEAGUE TENNIS TOURNAMENT AT ROSELLE.

By winning the title in the men's doubles at Roselle, Saturday, G. H. and E. McK. Miller, of the Roselle Casino, secured for their club five points in the tournament being held by the East New Jersey Lawn Tennis Association and Roselle now ties with the Bergen Point Lawn Tennis Club for first place.

The Miller brothers defeated A. L. and R. A. West, of the Bergen Point Lawn Tennis Club, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2. The courts were in excellent condition and the play was fast and tiring through all three sets. In the semi-finals, also played Saturday, A. L. and R. A. West won from M. S. Charlock and Clarkson Runyon, Jr., the team representing the Elizabeth Town and County Club.

The four clubs represented in the tournament have the points distributed as follows: The Roselle Casino and the Bergen Point Lawn Tennis Club have seven points each, the former having won the men's doubles and secured second place in the mixed doubles, while the latter holds the title in men's singles and second place in doubles. The Ilderan Outing Club, of Rahway, won five points by carrying off the honors in mixed doubles. The Elizabeth Town and County Club, winning second place in the singles, has two points.

The disposition of the large silver cup, offered by G. H. Miller, president of the association, thus rests on the outcome of the women's doubles, the fourth and last tournament of the season. Instead of holding this tournament at the Westfield Club, as was originally planned, the committee has decided to play the matches at the Bergen Point Lawn Tennis Club in the third week in September.

The opent tournament of the association will be held at the courts of the Elizabeth Town and County Club in the last week of August.

MET A BANDIT'S FATE.

Body of Supposed Montana Outlaw to Be Exhumed.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 11.—Lowell F. Spence, a detective employed by a Chicago agency, has returned to that city after securing local identifications of two pictures which he had in his possession, supposed to be photographs of the famous Montana bandit and train robber, Harvey Logan, alias Kid Curry. Early on the morning of June 9 a gang held up a Denver and Rio Grande train near Parachute, Colo., but after blowing two safes and shooting one railroad employee they secured only $10.

A posse of cowboys was at once organized and chase given. In the chase one of the bandits was shot from his horse by a cowboy and as soon as he fell was seen to shoot himself through the head. Pictures were taken of the dead man. Believing the photos to be those of Logan, Spence came here to identify the bandit through jail officials where Logan had been confined for more than a year. Sheriff Fox, from whom Logan escaped, positively identified the photos as those of Logan. So did Jailer Thomas Bell, whom Logan held up at the point of a pistol while escaping from jail.

The outstanding reward for the bandit is variously estimated at between $18,000 and $30,000. It is probable that the remains will be exhumed and further identification established, as Logan had many bullet marks on his body. When he escaped from the Knox county jail he was under sentence of some twenty years for bringing into the state and passing unsigned notes of the Bank of Montana, $40,000 worth of which he and his gang secured in a Great Northern express holdup near Wagner, Wyo. Before he was captured here he shot two policemen, but they recovered.

AMERICANS HONOR CERVERA.

Demonstrations of Gratitude to Spanish Admiral at Medina.

MEDINA-SIDONIA, Spain, July 11.—As a demonstration of gratitude regarding his conduct at Santiago and his care of American sailors, Admiral Cervera was presented here with an engrossed message bearing the signatures of a number of well known Americans, besides letters from the subscribers, bound in a volume. The presentation was made by Mr. Bird of Vienna in behalf of his fellow Americans.

The admiral in returning thanks for this manifestation of American good will said that his conduct toward Lieutenant Hobson and the American sailors after the sinking of the Merrimac had been inspired by superior orders.

Admiral Cervera had repeatedly refused to permit his American admirers to so honor him, but notwithstanding these refusals the plan to make the presentation was carried out.

Kaiser Puts His Foot In It.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 11.—A sensation has been caused by the publication in the Russian army organ of a telegram from Emperor William to the colonel of the Wiborg (Finland) regiment, of which the emperor is honorary colonel in chief. The emperor congratulates the regiment on the prospect of meeting the Japanese and adds that he is proud his Wiborg regiment will have the honor of fighting for its emperor, the fatherland and the fame of the Russian army. In concluding the emperor says: "My sincere wishes accompany the regiment. God bless its standards." The contents of the telegram have become widely known and form the general topic of conversation. A considerable section of the public even has deduced from the message that Germany intends before long to abandon her position as a mere onlooker with regard to events in the far east.

Colored Knights Templars.

PITTSBURG, July 11.—Representatives from the states of Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Arkansas, California, Colorado and Washington of colored Knights Templars met in this city and organized a general grand encampment of colored Knights Templars for North and South America and elected the following grand officers: John G. Jones, most eminent grand master, Chicago; B. J. Fleether, deputy grand master, California; Alex Payne, generalissimo, District of Columbia; J. H. Blunt, grand captain general, Arkansas.

British and French Ships to Meet.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 11.—The cruiser Ariadne, flagship of the British North American and West Indies squadron, with Vice Admiral Sir Archibald Douglas on board, has sailed for Bay of Islands, French Shore, where Admiral Douglas will probably inquire into the difficulties between the French and Newfoundland fishermen arising from misunderstandings over the French Shore treaty. Commodore de Kerillis, commander of the French squadron, has sailed on his flagship Lavoisier with the same object.

Chicago Downed Brooklyn.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Corridon blanked the visitors for eight innings, allowing only three scattered singles, the locals having scored three runs by hard hitting. In the ninth inning the Brooklyns, by bunching a double and three singles, tallied twice, the last man up popping a little fly, leaving two men on bases. Evers' work at second was a feature. Score—Chicago, 3; Brooklyn, 2.

General Huertas For Europe.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 11.—General Huertas, commander in chief of the troops of the republic of Panama, with his staff, has arrived here on the steamer La Plata. General Huertas is going to Europe to study the military systems of Great Britain, France and Germany.

FAMILY KEPT PET SNAKE.

Domesticated Reptile Crawled Out of Fireplace Every Night to Drink His Milk.

"Ever wake up in the morning and find a snake crawling down through the cracks of an old-fashioned country brick fireplace toward your bed?" asked the man who is fond of telling yarns, of a New Orleans Times-Democrat reporter. "Ever have the jim-jams? It's about the same thing. Once, a number of years ago, when I was living in Arkansas, I had just exactly this experience. I was stopping with a friend of mine over night, and as he had but two rooms to the house, we had to sleep on the floor in the room set aside for the men folks of the family. It was a dilapidated old place, and the house was rapidly crumbling away. There was a double fireplace between the two rooms. When I roused from the night's sleep I had my face turned to the fireplace. I did not pay much attention to the thing at first, and, in fact, was dozingly looking about the old brick mantle, not being thoroughly awake at the time. But very soon I was wide awake. A striped snake about 18 inches long was slowly making his way down through a crack in the old brick fireplace, and the crack reached the floor about six inches from my headrest. I was afraid of embarrassing my friend by calling out to him, but you know there are times when we cannot afford to be as considerate as we would like, and this was clearly one of the times. I poked my friend in the ribs, and told him there was a snake in the house. He merely grunted something at me, and was evidently not much disturbed by the thing. In the meantime the snake kept on coming down toward the floor. 'Hey, there!' I yelled at my friend, again 'this durn snake is right here on us, and will be in bed with us in a minute.' My friend yawned. ''S all right,' he said, 'he's jus' comin' down to git his milk, an' he'll go back d'rectly, so you needn't min' him.' The snake crawled on down, and I crawled on out. It was a little too close in there for me, anyhow. Besides, 'outdoors' had a kind of fascination for me, anyway. The snake crawled into the other room, drank some milk from a sancer, and then crawled back up the chimney. He was in the habit of doing this, being a sort of family pet, but I did not remain to see a second performance."

CAME DOWN TO GET HIS MILK.

POMMELS SON BY MISTAKE.

Long-Absent Father Finds Boy Kissing His Wife and Resents Supposed Familiarity.

According to the Kalamazoo (Mich.) correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean, William Fiske, an employe of the Pacific Coast Borax company, returned home the other day from a nine years' sojourn in California. His return was marked by a most unusual occurrence. As he was approaching his old home he glanced in one of the windows and saw a young man in the act of kissing his wife. He rushed into the house and began pommeling the supposed intruder.

THE OLD MAN WAS HOT.

Mrs. Fiske interfered, but not before the young man was severely beaten did the husband discover that his victim was James Fiske, his own son, whom he had not seen for nine years. James was a little chap when Fiske left for the west to seek his fortune, and, although he has kept in constant correspondence with his wife, he did not realize how his son had grown during his absence.

James is now nearly six feet tall and a member of the Kalamazoo college ball team.

The New Woman

What the Congress of Mothers Is Doing

IF this world is ever to be lifted out of darkness into light it will be accomplished only by such work as that done and attempted by the noble organization calling itself the Congress of Mothers. These women are not much talked of; they do not care to be. They wish to labor quietly, earnestly and wisely and let their deeds speak for them. Their aim is to reform mankind by making reform unnecessary. Of all the women working for the public good these are the ones whose task is sacred. They advocate, to begin, the scientific preparation of girls for family and motherly duties. How can a frivolous girl, ignorant of everything that goes to the proper rearing of a family, bring up her children to be healthy, honest, clean, wise and gentle, able to take care of themselves? It is time to stop the bringing up of the human race by the crazy rule of chance and ignorance. Then, too, this blessed body of women takes the ground that all children have the right to comfort, health, happiness and beauty in their young lives, the poorest equally with the richest. With this conviction the mothers have under their especial care the question of child labor; also the public schools of this country. That the public streets of American cities should be free from degrading and debasing spectacles, that abundant park and playground room under the supervision of responsible guardians be provided, that the poorest children should be rescued from becoming street thieves, hoodlums and desperadoes, are some of the demands these mothers ask law and public sentiment to help them enforce. Mothers know that children would not grow to be thieves and thugs if they were taught better; mothers know, too, that many a boy snatches an apple or a pear from a street stand because he is hungry. They are seeking to bring it about that children shall have nourishing school lunches.

Some women's idea of air and exercise is dressing up and leading a dog out on a string.

The other day I was coming downtown in an elevated train and sat near two pretty girls, who were talking about one of their friends who was always "nice." And one of them said, "It's always nice to be nice, isn't it?" Just so. It's always nice all round to be nice.

Cycling will never go out of fashion with those girls and women who like exhilaration with their exercise.

Here is something to make a note of: Any outburst of anger or even irritability is disgraceful and lowering to the one indulging in it. Besides that, it is ruinous to health and beauty.

In our time it is nothing short of a crime to bring girls up untrained to protect themselves either by muscular strength and skill or with a shotgun. Masculine chivalry does not exist in the burglar and the tramp or yet in the trousered creature who knocks a woman out of the way to get ahead of her and obtain a car seat while she is left to stand. Unfortunately in the present transitional stage of society's development all these classes are numerous and apparently increasing, particularly the car hog.

Whatever happens, let woman be loyal to her own sex. The good of all of us is for the good of each.

It is not enough to denounce public evils. We must suggest something better to take their place. The "don't" reformatory policy is a dead failure.

One of the wisest moves of the ladies who wield the destinies of the international council is their holding each quinquennial meeting in a different country, by preference the capital of the country. Thus the people of every land see how refined, intelligent and capable these strongminded women are, and favorable impression toward their cause will be made accordingly. So the war is carried into the enemy's camps one after another.

The final decision on the Venezuelan claims controversy has an important bearing on the status of women who marry men of other nations than their own. Heretofore when an American girl married, say, a European nobleman, by the law and usage of European nations she became as much a subject of her husband's country as he himself was. She lost absolutely all rights as an American citizen, even the meager citizen's rights an American woman enjoys. She, her property and her children were utterly at the mercy of laws made mostly in the dark ages. The suffering, the humiliation, the actual reduction to beggary, of many women who sold their lives for a title have been deplorable. Their country could do nothing for them because they had passed beyond its jurisdiction. Now, however, the Venezuelan decision, to which eleven nations bound themselves to agree, takes the stand that a woman does not lose her own nationality when she marries a citizen of any of the eleven countries.

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

The latter part of the night rain poured upon the chest of drawers which Antywine had left standing in front of the cabin and streamed down its polished sides. Rain beat upon Antywine through sapling boughs, saturating his linsey hunting-shirt and darkening his worn buckskins.

Drenched grass and a tangle of little trees he scarcely felt or saw when sodden and miserable daylight came. By the end of the afternoon some light crept out from sunset, and there was a clearing up in the west. Lincoln climbed the burying-ground fence, and found Antywine lying asleep across the new-made grave. He was so ghastly that Lincoln at once shook him, feeling relieved when he opened his eyes.

The boy looked up at the mole like a warm pulsing heart on his friend's cheek. But his friend's eyes twinkled.

"What are you doing here on old Daddy Cameron's grave, Antywine?"

Antywine sprang as from a rattlesnake. He was exhausted, so that Lincoln gave him both hands to help him rise.

"Daddy Cameron died last week and they buried him in the same row with Shickshack. He was a fine old man, but if I were you I wouldn't lie out all night and all day on his grave!"

"Sally have tell me this is where she is bury'!"

"Who? Peggy?"

"Yes, Sieur Abe. Where is she?"

"At the tavern."

"She is not dead?"

"Not a bit!"

"But Sally have tell me——"

"Haven't you summered and wintered Sally long enough to know when she is paying you a grudge?"

"But I run to the tavern myself—"

"And scare Ann, and run away again without asking any questions. I've had a long jaunt through the mud and searched the better part of a day for you."

Antywine threw his arms around Lincoln and sobbed and laughed like a woman. He swayed, and could scarcely stand.

"You've made yourself sick being so downhearted when you ought to have kept your wits. That Lorimer fellow is back at the Grove again, and he's making a bold stand now. If he had known I carry that snakeskin I reckon he would have followed our chain. But Dick Yates is here. We tried to find you last night, and couldn't."

"I tell Sally I not believe her!" shivered Antywine.

"And then you leg it out here and pass a sentimental night and a watery day on Daddy Cameron's grave! I'm surprised at you!"

The American way of joking over what had been tragedy seemed delicious to the Canadian boy as he tramped back the long seven miles. When he reached his house at the end of the village Lincoln did not think it advisable to take him any farther. Antywine was so ill that he lay down upon the floor, resisting any suggestion of food.

Through delirious eyes he saw the blaze, which Lincoln contrived to start in the chimney, interlace sticks piled there months before in readiness for a first house-warming.

Lincoln was on his knees blowing it when he heard Slicky Green part through the door:

"Are you here, Abe? You're wanted at the tavern."

"What's the matter at the tavern?"

The Grove boys are coming to throw everything out of doors if you don't give that Lorimer man the Spaniard and her money."

"How do you know?"

"Martha Bell Clary slipped off on her father's horse and brought word."

"Where's Dick?"

"He's looking somewhere else for you."

Lincoln stood up and glanced at Antywine, who had suffered, but was unable to fight, resting like a log at the hearth corner.

"Poor Antywine!" he whispered, and carefully shut the door as he went out to settle the unconscious boy's fate.

The self-appointed censors of the Grove had once wrecked a store in New Salem, and kicked the merchandise about the street. The population of the village was about 100 souls, few of whom could be mustered as fighting men; while the Grove males were all fighting men.

The night was starlit and cloudless, but there was no moon. Dull panes of oiled paper revealed candles in some houses, but a hush like expectation seemed to stretch along the unseen windings of the street. When the Grove boys mounted for a raid of any sort they usually rode at full gallop, yelling like Indians. Lincoln was ahead of Slicky Green in the race to the tavern, when both stopped, halted by a procession with lanters. There had been no noise of shouting and no crash of destruction. The quiet approach of the company seemed worse than its ordinary rioting.

"They didn't stop at the tavern!" whispered Slicky Green.

They had been to the tavern, for Dick Yates, bareheaded, was leading them peaceably away from it, walking in front of the cavalcade; and a girl's figure could be discerned sitting upon a led horse. The velvet dust of a village road muffled the tread of hoofs. But along house fronts on each side, where footpaths were marked by daily use, sounded the uneven patter of many feet. Men, women and children of New Salem, suffered to witness what they could not prevent, were hovering around Lincoln and the little Spaniard. He thought he saw Ann Rutledge, in her short-sleeved house dress, her face showing white and anxious through the dark; and Minter Grayham, whose haggardness and puny strength the Grove boys would have laughed at if opposed to them.

"Here is Abe Lincoln," announced Yates; and as if he had given a command to halt, the company halted.

"Here I am" said Lincoln. "Do you want me?" Dick and Slicky stood beside him in the middle of the road.

"My friends and I" spoke a voice with a foreign accent, "have an affair of two minutes with you. You have somewhere a snakeskin purse belonging to my cousin, Consuelo Lorimer. Bring it and you shall not be injured."

"But if I did she'd be injured!"

"Don't let them take me, Mr Lincoln!" besought Peggy from the midst of the riders. "I will not go! Where's Antywine?"

"Boys, you ought to be ashamed of yourselves!"

"We didn't come out for a speech, Abe," mocked Redmond Clary.

"And I'm not practicing polemics."

"You get the girl's money and hand it over."

"You let her out of that gang."

The gang growled.

"We have a crowd and you have just two backers. New Salem people can't do anything. We don't want to hurt you, Abe, unless we have to."

"String him up like a horsethief!" cried a man at the rear.

"Are you going to hand over the Spaniard's money?"

"No, I'm not," replied Lincoln.

"Ride him down!" cried another, and the horses were spurred forward. Some women and children shrieked in fright as the three young fellows were driven in retreat to Antywine's cabin and sprang upon the chest of drawers. Standing close together with that short rostrum under their feet, they faced about the ring of horsemen who drew up around them. The perforated tin lanterns showered drops of yellow light on trampled grass. Behind the men's heads and shoulders were a void of trees and the starlit sky, and the excited murmur of New Salem. Lincoln towered in the midst of the circle.

He could dimly see the Spanish girl, and he remembered for one instant how Antywine lay exhausted within the cabin. She was looking for the last time at what was to have been her home, and wondering, with an ache of grief worse than her terror of the ruffians, what had become of the gentle housemate who had never before failed to take her part.

"Now men, listen to me one minute," exclaimed Dick Yates.

"We're not here to listen," ruled the leader.

"These boys ought to be put out," one man insisted. "We don't want them."

"Let my cousin's property be restored to her," spoke Pedro Lorimer, "without delay."

"And who are you?" demanded Yates, the beauty of his rosy youth, which had been felt rather than seen, changing suddenly to the power of a man with irresistible magnetism. His voice rolled out across the wall of rough faces. His eyes had scathing lights. His unwilling listeners raised their lanterns to look at him. "I have been gathering facts about you for more than a year. You are a New Orleans gambler. You ply your trade under cover of some political scheme about Cuba, a place you never saw. All you want of the poor young girl sitting on the horse beside you, is the handful of money her father contrived to hide from you. You think it is a very large sum. It is about two thousand dollars. If it hadn't been for poor old Shickshack you would have robbed her long ago. You paid Shickshack's half crazy, avaricious wife to send you word where he could be found, every time he moved to get rid of you.

"These men wouldn't send a child as helpless as one of their own sisters with you, if they knew you. You play the grandee before them. And in the west we always have backed a man up in taking his own when his rights were denied. But the only right you have in this community is to be dipped in the Sangamon!"

Lincoln, who had seen a knife thrown at Antywine's head for fewer words, kept his eye guarding the indistinct movements of the Spaniard. An uneasy tremor ran around what had been a dead wall of antagonism. But unfortunately Mahala Cameron's father now lifted his voice from the background, and in the character of minister exhorted Redmond Clary to draw his followers homeward and cease abetting the ungodly. Redmond Clary turned on him and told him to go home himself, or he might be neatly laid beside his daddy in the Concord burying-ground.

One word had swiftly followed another while Lincoln gauged the force drawn around him. His hair was rumpled over the arch of his head. His strong nose and clean-cut neck and the outward curving of his lips showed by fitful light above his shorter companions. Some radiation from his personality made one of the men exclaim:

"Abe, we know you're honest. But if you're too stubborn to hand over that money we've got a barrel at the mill all ready to roll you into the river."

"Wait!" said Lincoln, stretching out a long fore finger.

Pedro Lorimer hissed at him: "I do not wait while boys practice speeches! I could myself in return call my enemies names. This is not what was promised me."

"What Red Clary promised you," stated Lincoln with intuition which amounted to knowledge, "was if you would cancel his gambling debts he would make me hand over the little Spaniard's money."

Redmond Clary flung himself off his horse and ran at his accuser. The time for words was past. If the figure towering above them all had stood with less assurance, the raging leader might have led his mob to a cruel murder. But Lincoln's humorous eye spread a contagion of smiles as he caught the bull-bodied champion of the Grove by the collar and flung that muscular bulk across the ring to cool.

There was to be a fight. The men drew deep inhalations of enjoyment. For ever since Abraham Lincoln appeared in New Salem they had wanted to see him matched with Red Clary. Lincoln knew he was about to succeed or fail with the only argument which could move those to whom might was right. Eloquent and convincing words had to be backed by a man who could master his listeners. He was tired and supperless. The Spanish girl leaned down on her horse's neck, unconsciously uttering prayers aloud for her champion. The struggle would be over in a few minutes, but if Red Clary whipped him her future lay in unknown and terrible places. That Antywine was missing seemed a token that the worst must be in store for her. She was in the grip of an evil force.

LINDEN, N. J.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

THIBETAN CAMPAIGN

STRUGGLE WITH NATURE THE TROOPS ARE HAVING.

Campaigning in an Unknown Land, Far Removed from Supplies, with All Obstacles Against Them—Reinforcements Needed.

None of the many small wars in which Britain's troops have been engaged during the past century have offered so many physical difficulties as the present expedition to Thibet. The advance to the Sikhim border before the mission entered Thibetan territory was a weary march of 80 miles in single file over a rough hill-path rising and falling sometimes as much as 1,000 feet in a mile and ending in a snow-pass nearly as high as Mont Blanc. Thence the road dipped steeply down to the Chumbi valley, at the head of which stands Phari Fort, where a long halt was made to bring up supplies. Life at Phari is described by one of the mission as a period of unutterable discomfort. The fort was filthy in the extreme, and the only fuel to be had was the droppings of cattle. The thermometer fell to zero at night; the bitter wind which swept the frozen valley caused the death of several men; and the intense cold and clouds of dust, with the choking smoke of the manure fires, brought on hacking coughs and sore throats. Early in January a further advance was made over the Tangla, a pass 15,700 feet high, to Tuna, where the country opens out into a desolate tract of barren rolling hills and flat sandy valleys, very trying to men and animals. Here the mission had to remain for nearly three months to collect supplies.

Transport difficulties at this period were enormous. Fifty per cent. of the yaks which had been collected died from anthrax and rinderpest; all the camels died; and of 200 buffaloes not one survived the first two months. Aconite and rhododendron poisoning, overwork, underfeeding and accidents made havoc among the ponies and bullocks, and the latter were also attacked by foot-and-mouth disease; while frostbite, sunstroke and pneumonia proved fatal to a number of the native followers and coolies, and even to some of the soldiers. Tuna, though not so windy, is colder than Phari, 55 degrees of frost having been registered there at night; and the village is, if possible, dirtier than Phari—so much so that in spite of the intense cold the officers preferred tents to the filth of the houses.

BRITISH OBSERVATION POST NEAR GYANTSE.

The advance from Tuna to Gyangtse, and the various fights which have taken place, are fresh in the mind of everyone, and the present situation of the mission is serious enough to cause some little anxiety. The attack on the camp has been repulsed, but the advance is checked; the camp is still partially invested, and the assailants are reported to be using rifles of "superior European make" and a number of guns which throw a one-pound solid shot, while their fire at 1,200 to 1,400 yards is said to be fairly accurate. A large army is believed to be massing in the Rong valley, beyond the Karo pass, and evidently they intend to offer a strenuous resistance to our further advance towards Lassa. Twenty thousand men are rumored to be under arms, and no doubt reinforcements are coming in daily. Already the Indian government has ordered some 800 more men and four mountain guns to proceed to Thibet, and it is possible that the expedition will have to be largely increased before it is strong enough to force a passage to Lassa, a distance of 114 miles across several mountain ranges and a large river. But in an expedition of this kind, every addition to the force means an immense increase in the difficulties of transport. Those whose experience of war has been gained in level countries, where broad roads and railways play their part, troops can move on a wide front, and wheeled vehicles can be used, have no idea of the difficulties attending the march of a column with its baggage and supplies on a front of 18 inches, and a road 18 inches wide is a good one in the higher Himalayas.

Where food has to be carried, not alone for the men, but for the animals; where extra blankets and tents are a necessary of life; where the road in places is nothing but a succession of broken rocks, and in other parts the ice gives no foothold to the weary and stumbling pack animals; where the slow progress of the straggling column is rendered slower by the strain on heart and lungs caused by the rarified air, and a fallen mule may block the road for ten minutes; while the bitter cold numbs the limbs, and the glare of the sun blinds the eyes, the task of moving any considerable force assumes gigantic proportions

Light" Lambert, and "Butinskey" Wilson. This somewhat subdued the ardor of the raw material and no further trouble is anticipated this week, as they all seem to be willing to do anything that is asked of them.

On the arrival of the command at camp the company was assigned tents and made themselves comfortable just like veterans. Co. K is easily again at the head of the regiment in discipline and soldierly qualities, with Co. L a close second.

Owing to the chilly weather overcoats were issued to the men, which was greatly appreciated. A. T.

ATLANTIC CITY OASIS FOR SHRINERS

Salaam Temple in the Host of the Ancient Arabic Order Assembling There.

SESSIONS TOMORROW

PLAINFIELDERS IN THE CARAVAN TRAVELING OVER THE SANDS.

Meeting of Imperial Council—Salaam's Men to Distribute Unique Souvenirs Among the Brethern.

Shriners from all sections of the United States and Canada are now on their way to the oasis of Atlantic City in the desert of New Jersey. They have abandoned their camels and are coming in special trains. The meeting will be the thirtieth annual session of the imperial council, and it will last three days, beginning tomorrow. Salaam Temple, of Newark, which counts among its membership forty Plainfielders, will take an active part in the proceedings.

While the imperial council is not a large body, its meetings are made the occasion of great gatherings of the ordinary nobles, who attend to enjoy the festivities and the hospitality of the temple in whose jurisdiction the session is held. Visitors in Atlantic City will be afforded the sight of thousands of men wearing the fez and badges of the design of the crescent and scimetar. The Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine depends upon the Free and Accepted Masons for its members. It is not a part of the fraternity, but its qualifications for membership read: "Every member must be a Mason of the thirty-second degree, or a Knight Templar." In this way it drafts its members from the highest branches of the Masonic fraternity and is regarded by the public as a part of that institution. It does not claim to supplant Masonary, but aims to still further carry out the ideas of all true fraternity advocates—that of demonstrating to the world the value and meaning of the term "brotherhood of man."

Every member of Salaam has received a copy of the announcement that the temple will run a special train to the convention city, which left the Market Street Station at Newark at 8:55 o'clock this morning. Stops were made at Elizabeth, New Brunswick and Trenton. The notice concludes with this paragraph:

"Pack your camel, put your glad clothes, fez and claws in your knapsack, saddle your steed and pray Allah for protection and fair weather."

When Salaam was talked of Mecca faced the fact that it would lose about 500 of its members in case the movement was successful, and some thought this would cause feeling between the mother temple of the order and those who were attempting to start one in this State. Instead of objecting to the plans of the New Jersey members, however, Mecca rendered valuable aid to the local organizers and its illustrious potentate, Charles A. Benedict, was appointed by the imperial potentate as a special deputy to supervise the work of organization. While the plans were under way Mecca held one of its monthly meetings in Newark, and when Salaam was ready for institution Mecca went over there one thousand strong, to help. It presented the new temple with a handsome set of officers' jewels, and when everything was in running order and the services of the special deputy were no longer needed, Salaam presented a handsome jewel to Noble Benedict.

Salaam Temple will distribute as souvenirs small bottles labeled: "Jersey Apple Jack. Presented by Salaam Temple, Newark, N. J., Imperial Temple Council Session, Atlantic City, N. J., July, 1904." The bottles are properly sealed and decorated with yellow ribbon. It is said that each bottle is filled with strictly first-class goods. A second souvenir is in the shape of an oxidized silver badge. The pendant represents an ark surmounted by the letters forming the word "New." Coming out of the ark are shriners mounted on camels. The pendant is suspended from a bar in the shape of a mosquito, with a shriner in full regalia seated on its back. The tiger's claws and scimetar emblems of the order are also displayed.

IN DANGEROUS STATE FROM A SNAKE'S BITE

Mrs. James Hurley's Death Prevented by Timely Act of Her Husband.

ARM BADLY SWOLLEN

COPPERHEAD PLANTS ITS FANGS IN WOMAN'S FINGER.

Mr. Hurley Binds Up Wife's Arm in a Tourniquet—Dr. A. H. Dundon Administers Powerful Antidotes.

Prompt action on the part of James Hurley, of Belmont avenue, yesterday morning, is probably all that saved the right arm if not the life of his wife. Bitten by a copperhead snake she was in a fair way to succumb to the deadly poison injected in her system when her husband adopted measures to prevent its spread and then hurried her in a wagon to the office of Dr. Dundon. The physician found her in a precarious state but by using the strongest antidotes placed her out of danger without amputating the affected member. Today it is still in bad shape but it is thought all danger has passed.

Mrs. Hurley had occasion to use a nail while doing some work about her home and went to the woodshed to get one. They are kept in a box in a corner and without looking into it she put her hand down to take one out. As she did she felt a stinging pain in the index finger and hastily withdrew it believing she had struck the sharp point of a wire nail. She was about to reach back a second time when the finger began to turn black and commence swelling. At the same time she experienced the most excruciating pain and becoming alarmed called Mr. Hurley. He at once declared the trouble to be a snake bite and hastily placing a tourniquet about her arm, which had also began to swell, ran to the barn to harness his horse. He placed the sufferer in the carriage and drove at top speed to the physician's office. By that time the arm was twice its normal size and black its entire length, but the greater part was soon reduced.

On returning home Mr. Hurley immediately proceeded to the woodshed and looking in the nailbox discovered a full grown copperhead coiled up in a peaceful sleep. The reptile was despatched and was found to be of the variety which infests the Watchung range, where it evidently came from as the Hurley home is at the foot of the mountain. Persons bitten by a snake of this kind have slight chance of surviving and the fact that Mrs. Hurley did is due to the celerity with which she was given medical attention.

GREAT WORK ON RANGE

CORPORAL PHILLIPS, OF CO. K, GIVES FINE EXHIBITION AT SEA GIRT.

Corporal Arthur Phillips, of Co. K, made one of the best performances of the present season, Saturday morning, on the State range at Sea Girt. He made the highest possible score at the 20 yards range, in the shooting under rapid fire conditions, scoring five successive bullseyes in seventeen seconds, or three seconds inside the time allowance. He followed this with a second string of five shots, the first three of which were bullseyes, giving him a run of forty points in eight shots, rapid fire.

In long range work Corporal Phillips showed up just as well, going on the 800 yards' range and making a maximum score of twenty-five points in five shots. Phillips' work on the range is also remarkable for steadiness, he being one of the most dependable men on the State team.

Birthday Surprise Party.

Mrs. J. B. Higgins, of West Front street, was tendered a pleasant surprise party by her friends, last evening, in honor of the anniversary of her birthday. There were thirty-six in the gathering and the affair was made highly enjoyable with vocal and instrumental music and dancing, the whole concluding with a supper. Mrs. Higgins received many pretty presents of an appropriate nature. The affair was arranged by Miss Alice Higgins and Mrs. Peter VanFleet.

C. W. Eoff and son, Charley, of Crescent avenue, have returned from a trip to St. Louis. They had a fine time at the Exposition, enjoying the various sights.

CO. K ENJOYING LIFE AT SEA GIRT CAMP

"Judge" Richards Being Kept Busy Passing Sentence on Serious Offenders.

MORRISON A TALKER

PRIVATE VAIL IS CHARGED WITH INSULTING THE COURT.

James Niles Gets a Ducking—The Corporals in Charge of the Tents—Lieut. Kitchell Happy.

Camp Franklin Murphy,
Sea Girt, N. J.,
July 12, 1904.

The boys have gotten down to the routine of camp life, which the following orders show:

"Gen. Orders No. 4—The following programme of military exercises is published for the information and guidance of the command: First call reveille, 5:10 a. m.; reveille by musician of guard, 5:25; assembly, 5:30; sick call, 5:40; fatigue call, 5:45; first call for drill battalion manual, 6; recall, 6:40; mess call, 7; preliminary guard mount, 8; school call by battalion, 8:10; recall from school, 9; first call guard mount, 9:05; assembly, 9:10; adjutant's call, 9:15; first call com. drill extended order, 10:30; assembly, 10:35; recall, 11:30; mess call, 12 m.; first call company drill extended order, 3:30 p. m.; assembly, 3:35; recall, 4:30; first call regimental parade, 5:15; assembly, 5:20; adjutant's call formation by battalion, 5:24; adjutant's call for formation of regiment, 5:30; mess call, 6; tattoo first call, 9; tattoo field music, 9:15; taps, 10.

The fun in camp still keeps up, there being brought before "Judge" Richards several privates whose worst offense was being rookies. The sentence passed upon them was that they should attend service at the Y. M. C. A. tent. They were escorted to the tent as prisoners of war and had to remain throughout the whole service. Peace and quietness prevails today on account of "Butinisky" Wilson being on guard duty all night, and Morrison, known as "O. K.," being made to go on guard today. These men are known as the noisiest men in the camp, especially "O. K" Morrison, who asks more questions a minute than could be answered by a Philadelphia lawyer. At the writing of this letter Private James Niles is going under the pump.

The programme for tonight is the judging of Private Vail, who is guilty of grossly insulting the court by handing the judge a clipping from a newspaper which read: "County jail a nest of sharks and grafters." The following corporals have charge of the following tents: Sergeant's Tent, Sergeant Gus Seiders; Hang-Out Inn, Corporal Whitney; O. K. Tent, Corporal Bilyeu; Saints' Retreat, Corporal Tranchand; W. C. T. U., Corporal Brennan; Rough House, Corporal Harsell; County Jail, Corporal Apgar.

The County Jail is also the Court House of the camp and it is here that all the prisoners arrested in the company street are tried and found guilty.

First Lieutenant W. Kempton Browning, the recently appointed assistant surgeon of the second battalion, had an opportunity yesterday to display his knowledge of the manual. He spent some time drilling the hospital corps, and for a time he had "troubles of his own."

Lieut. Kitchell is more than proud of a fine white belt he wears. It has a large "K" on a brass plate and he is "quite swell" when he walks down the street thus adorned.

Corporal Bilyeu has been highly complimented for his knowledge of the duties of a sentinel. He was complimented by a regular army officer, who told him he knew his business well.

Corporal Brennan entertained some of the members of the company at his quarters last night, and now he is "one of the best men" in camp.

Small Boy Released.

At the session of police court this morning, young Edgar Wooden, who was arrested yesterday on the charge of having taken Irving Martin's wheel from in front of Smith's grocery store, was released. Martin appeared at court, but refused to bring charges against the boy, as the wheel has been returned. Wooden was accordingly let go, affirming vehemently his innocence.

FRACTURED SKULL BY FALL

JOHN DILTS, A LINEMAN SERIOUSLY INJURED, NOW IN CRITICAL CONDITON.

John Dilts, aged thirty-four years, a lineman employed by the Public Service Corporation, fell off a repair car in front of Dr. J. B. Probasco's residence on East Front street, this morning at 10 o'clock, sustaining a fractured skull and a serious scalp wound. He was removed to the hospital, where he lies in a critical condition.

Dilts was doing some repair work on the line and it was while arranging a block and tackle he was thrown off the car, landing in the street on his head. At first he was removed to Dr. Probasco's office, where Dr. Norman H. Probasco gave temporary treatment and arranged for his removal to the hospital in the police patrol by Patrolman McCarty. Dilts is a single man and lives at Westfield Junction. His chances for recovery are slight.

WRECK VICTIM AT LODGE

WILSON FREDERICK TO ATTEND MASONIC SESSION TONIGHT.

For the first time since meeting with terrible injuries in the Westfield wreck eighteen months ago, Wilson Fredrick, of Dunellen, will attend a communication of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., this evening. To his Masonic brethren he owes a great deal for his recovery from what seemed certain death as it was they who watched by his bedside and gave up hundreds of pieces of cuticle to graft on the scalded portions of his body. The operations and ordeal he passed through are known to everyone and Mr. Fredrick has always been anxious to appear in his lodge and thank all those who suffered for him.

This is practically the first time Mr. Fredrick has gone anywhere since his discharge from the hospital and his visit will be made an auspicious occasion. So far as possible all who gave skin from their bodies to assist in the operation will be in attendance as will also Grand Master Wilkins and other members of the Masonic order.

MILITIA KICKS AT PAY

SOLDIER BOYS AT SEA GIRT GETTING FORTY-THREE CENTS A DAY.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Camp Franklin Murphy, Sea Girt, July 11—There were indications of trouble in camp today when the men were called to sign the pay roll for the week and found it called for pay only at the rate of 43 cents a day instead of $1.50 per day, the rate at former camps. It was explained to the men that the change was caused by the Dick law, which has brought the State military under United States army regulations, and the smaller pay is the government rate. This amount will be paid by the National government under the Dick law.

Nearly all the men refused to sign until it was given out on the authority of the camp commandants that the State would undoubtedly make up the difference. On the strength of this promise the matter was adjusted and the signatures were secured.

The decision was granted by Vice Chancellor Pitney, of Jersey City, upon testimony taken by J. H. VanWinkle, Sr., Special Master in Chancery. According to the decision, Mr. Beerman gets the two children.

DEMOCRATS ELATED OVER PARTY'S WORK

Favorable Expressions From Prominent Members in Plainfield.

ALL LIKE MR. PARKER

SOME BELIEVE THAT HE WILL CARRY NEW JERSEY.

Opinions of Swackhamer, Timpson, Carney, Martine, Marshall, Linbarger and Other Prominent Local Democrats.

Plainfield Democrats appear to be much pleased over the nomination of Judge Alton Brooks Parker according to expressions obtained at random by a reporter for The Daily Press. Generally speaking, Grover Cleveland seems to be the favorite, but notwithstanding that fact members of the party are elated over Parker's success.

Following are some of the opinions:

James E. Martine—The platform is all right. The silver question is not an issue as the quantitative theory of money has settled it. I say Parker will be elected without a doubt.

David J. Carney—It's all right. Parker is a good man and the platform is O. K.

Andrew J. Nolan—Parker will carry New Jersey and will sweep the country. There's nothing wrong with the platform.

Gen. Wm. H. Stirling—The ticket is strong and is very satisfactory with gold as the party's position on the money question.

Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer—It seems to me that the platform is a very strong document and is certainly statesmanlike. Mr. Parker is an honest and fearless man and I think the position he took was very commendable. I think he will carry New Jersey.

Walter Linbarger—Parker will carry New Jersey by a fair majority. I think he will be elected. Parker is stronger than Cleveland.

H. W. Marshall—I think Parker a very strong candidate. People seem to think he will carry New Jersey. I don't see any reason why he should not be elected. His declaration on the money question was very timely. Of course I preferred Cleveland, but am happy that Parker is the candidate.

Lewis G. Timpson—Cleveland is the strongest man with the Democrats in this section of the country. Too bad he wasn't nominated. I don't know whether Parker will be elected but he is a good man.

Assemblyman Charles L. Moffett—I think the convention made a mistake in not inserting the gold plank, but the party is on sound ground now that it has gotten back to its old position. Parker is the best sort of a man and should be elected.

Samuel Townsend—I think Parker is all right and I admire the way in which he declared himself regarding the money question. That he had the courage to state his opinions on this question will win many votes for him. I voted for McKinley twice because I could not support Bryan and I am very glad to be able to return to a reunited Democratic party.

Michael Flynn—There is no question in my mind but what Parker will be elected. He made thousands of votes by his declaration on the money question. I do not think that there are enough Republican or Democratic votes to elect Roosevelt.

JOHN BODINE BURIED.

Funeral Services Conducted by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck.

Funeral services over the remains of John Bodine were held from his late home on Grandview avenue, last evening, and were simple in character. They were in charge of Rev. Dr. Schenck and were largely attended. During the service a solo was rendered very impressively by Mrs. Newton Honeyman.

The floral tributes were numerous and comprised many set pieces. The body was taken to Sandbrook, near Flemington, today, where a further service will be held before interment.

St. Stephen's Sunday-School Picnic.

At the regular weekly meeting of the officers and teachers of the school, held last Saturday evening, it was decided that this year they go elsewhere for a change. The date and place will be announced shortly.

PLAINFIELD TEAM IS TO BE REORGANIZED

Mr. Johnston's Announcement Shows a General Shakeup in the Alis Aggregation.

FOUR NEW PLAYERS

MATERIAL IS DRAWN FROM THE MURRAY HILLS.

Smith to be Captain—Cusick, Courtney and Dietrick to Wear Alis Uniforms—The Games With Westfield.

A re-organization of the Plainfield team has been effected by Manager Johnston and the newly-constructed aggregation will play its first contest on Saturday. In the shake-up four of the best Murray Hill players will be seen wearing an Alis uniform. They are Smith, first base and captain; Cusick, second base; Courtney, third base and Dietrich, right field. They take the places of Gauven, Patience and Hickman. Dietrich will be the permanent right fielder.

Smith is a good coach and captain, being engaged as such by college teams. His work here with the Murray Hills was of the best. As for the other new men, they are well-known as fast fielders and heavy hitters. It is quite likely that Gauven may be retained as a utility man.

This will be the new lineup: Farmer, c; Davis, p; Smith, 1b; Cusick, 2b; Walton, ss; Courtney, 3b; Oregan, lf; McGoey, cf; Dietrich, rf.

There will be another pitcher to assist in the Alis-Westfield series of contests. The first contest with Westfield will be on Crescent Oval on Saturday, July 23 and the second one at Westfield on Saturday, July 30. Other probable dates are Saturday, August 13, September 3 and 24 here; August 27, September 10 and October 1 at Westfield.

In taking Gauven off first base, Manager Johnston has no fault to find with him, except that he wants to replace him with a stronger man and one able to captain and coach the team.

COLES MUST LOSE FINGER

ACCIDENT TO SCOTCH PLAINS MAN NOT SO SERIOUS AS ANTICIPATED.

Physicians at Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday found the injuries of Victor Coles, of Scotch Plains, shot in the hand by the accidental discharge of a gun, to be less serious than at first thought. The member was badly torn but it can be saved with only the loss of one finger. This was amputated and unless complications ensue the young man will be all right in a few days.

The accident was caused by Coles' careless handling of a gun which he had taken into a field with him to scare off crows. He held one hand over the muzzle and with the other began fingering the trigger until it discharged the load.

SEARCH LIGHT NUISANCE.

Wheelmen and Drivers Are Annoyed by Trolley Lights.

Wheelmen and drivers who have occasion to use the streets on which the through line cars are operated, at night, complain of the search lights used on the cars. They send a dazzling glare along the road for a great distance and those who are in front are partially blinded. In several known instances it has all but resulted in serious collisions and those affected believe the matter should be remedied. In many cities the railway officials have been instructed not to use this form of headlight.

To Exchange Pulpits.

Rev. Dr. L. E Livermore, of the New Market Seventh-Day Baptist church, will exchange pulpits with Rev. George B. Shaw, of the local Seventh-Day Baptist church, on Saturday. Dr. Livermore will sever his pastoral relations with his present charge September 1, when he and his family will go to Lebanon, Conn., to live.

Cruising on Raritan.

Hudson Burr, of West Fifth street, and Weston Gavett, of Third place, left yesterday for several days' cruising on the Raritan river. The young men will be on the water a great part of the time, making the trip in a small sailing canoes, their joint property.

COLLECTOR SMITH TO ENFORCE PAYMENTS

Instructed by Corporation Counsel Marsh to Proceed Against 1903 Delinquents.

CALLED FOR BY LAW

PROPERTIES WILL BE SOLD AFTER BEING ADVERTISED.

Legislative Amendment to Last Year's Tax Act Makes Action Compulsory—Lists Ready August 1.

Acting on instructions furnished him by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh prior to his departure for Europe, Tax Collector Frank H. Smith has taken steps to enforce the payment of overdue taxes for 1903. He is now preparing a list of the delinquents and it will be advertised once a week for four weeks, after which property on which the taxes have not been paid will be sold in a similar manner as was property which fell under the ban of the Martin Act.

In his notification, Mr. Marsh informed Collector Smith that the legislative amendment to last year's act made it apply to all taxing districts. Formerly it did not apply to cities. This act states: "When taxes on real property are unpaid on July 1, the collector MUST enforce the lien by advertising and selling the lands." Mr. Marsh called attention to the fact that the clause says "must" and that it is not a case of discrimination.

Heretofore property put up for sale for non-payment of taxes was disposed of for a term of years, that is the purchaser held it for a certain length of time securing the revenue the while and it then reverted to the original owner. By the new act the property will be sold outright, the cost of the sale being about $4. Under the Martin Act it is $3. If everything is paid prior to the advertising the expense will be saved.

The list which Collector Smith is preparing will be completed about August 1 and the provisions of the act will then be carried out. While it must be borne in mind that this only applies to 1903 taxes and nothing prior to that time, the number of delinquents is quite large and the action will result in a large revenue to the city which would otherwise remain outstanding for perhaps several years.

FIREMEN'S GAME THURSDAY

PLAINFIELD MEN TO MEET BROOKLYN LADDIES ON DIAMOND.

The baseball team from the local fire department, which is to meet that of the Brooklyn department on Alis field Thursday, has been doing some faithful practising in preparation for the game, and the line up was announced today. Keffee has been signed to do the twirling and his assistant behind the bat will be Will Jeager. Daly will be at the initial bag, Will Townley at second, and McCabe at third. Young has done good work at short in practise and will probably go in at that position. LaRue and Kesselring will be at centre, and left field, but the other position is open yet.

The Brooklyn team holds the championship in the municipal departments, having defeated teams from the police and fire departments of Brooklyn. The local team is anxious to prove their stumbling block and a good game may be expected.

At the conclusion of the contest, the visitors will be treated to a banquet at Henry Windham's and a social evening will follow at headquarters.

Those natty straw hats are going to be fashionable again for the women this season. They have a certain cool, crisp look which makes them popular for just such hot days as these. Bonn, the up-to-date West Front street milliner, has them to sell and his prices are right. Also a great display of trimmed and untrimmed bonnets.

The cut-price sale continues at Hill & Shupp's dry goods store with unabated success. It will close on Wednesday night, but there are plenty of bargains to be offered during the coming three days. Any itchiness of the skin is annoying.

Little danger in itching skin diseases,

But they make you miserable.

Doan's Ointment is a never-failing cure

For Piles, Eczema—all itching troubles.

New Jersey citizens endorse it.

A. H. Woodruff, of Vailsburg, N. J., says: "For the benefit of those similarly afflicted as I was with hemorrhoids or piles, I want every reader of this paper to know that I suffered with attacks of this tormenting nuisance for over fifteen years. During that time I spent a lot of money trying 'sure cures' and exhausted all my knowledge about salves and ointments and also the advice of my friends. One day while reading an advertisement about Doan's Ointment I concluded to make one more effort and I commenced the treatment. Greatly to my surprise the area of itching gradually contracted until it completely dried up. What is of considerable more importance to me, there is no indication of a recurrence."

Just such emphatic endorsement can be had here in Plainfield. Drop into L. W. Randolph's drug store and ask what his customers report.

CLIMB MOUNT WASHINGTON.

Record For Auto Uphill Racing Smashed Five Times.

MOUNT WASHINGTON, N. H., July 12.—Five times the record has been smashed in the hill climbing automobile competition. The contest was one of the series arranged by the White Mountain Good Roads Improvement association and was over a measured course of eight miles with a grade varying from 5 to 20 degrees. The record for the distance, 45 minutes 50 seconds, was made by Otto Westman three weeks ago. This time it was cut down repeatedly, but F. E. Stanley of Newton, Mass., with a six horsepower gasoline machine made the best run of the day, his time being 31 minutes 45 seconds.

His nearest competitor was James L. Dreese of New York, who covered the eight miles in a forty horsepower car in 34 minutes 9 4-5 seconds. Alexander Winton of Cleveland had bad luck. He stalled his motor between the fifth and sixth mile posts, but after a long delay finished the race. Webb Jay, also of Cleveland, punctured a tire and was allowed to try again.

Accidents on Harlem Track.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Creolin and Leo Planter, the well backed first and second choices, met with mishaps in the steeplechase, the feature at Harlem. Creolin was out in front running easily when he stumbled at the fifth fence, throwing his jockey. Leo Planter and Dr. Nowlin then took up the running, but at the final leap the former struck his forefoot and turned a complete somersault. Jockey Seaton escaped injury. Cardigan and Dr. Nowlin were the only real contenders left after Leo Planter fell. They turned into the stretch on even terms, but Cardigan easily drew away when called upon and won unextended by five lengths. Dr. Nowlin was second and Falella third.

The Canadians made 182 runs in their first inning, and when stumps were drawn the Americans had accumulated 132 runs for the loss of three wickets. For the visitors, T. C. S. Saunders and Captain Symons played excellent cricket, they making 61 and 51 runs, respectively. J. B. King, for the Americans, had a fine innings of 49.

NEW YORK, July 12.—Tradition, the even money favorite, easily won the Distaff stakes for two-year-olds at Brighton Beach. FROM BUZZARDS BAY

Ex-President Expresses Admiration For Parker.

COMMENDS HIS HONOR AND COURAGE

Democratic National Committeeman Mack Makes Clear Exact Status of New Committee In Regard to the Presidential Nominee.

ST. LOUIS, July 12.—A dispatch from Esopus, N. Y., says ex-President Cleveland has expressed his attitude toward Alton B. Parker in the following telegram from Buzzards Bay:

"You must permit me to express my gratitude and admiration for the splendid manifestation of honor and courage you have given to your countrymen and to the Democracy in your St. Louis dispatch."

National Democratic Committeeman Norman E. Mack of New York has sent the following message to William F. Sheehan, at New York, making clear the exact status of the new national committee and when it will hold its first regular meeting in order to dispel all rumors that have arisen regarding the organization of the new committee:

"Senator James K. Jones will, under the instructions given him by the resolution passed by the convention Saturday night, call a meeting of the national committee as soon as he confers with Judge Alton B. Parker, the nominee of the party for president, and his friends and learns from them the date fixed for notifying the nominees of their selection by the convention.

"He will then call a meeting of the national committee to be held in New York city, it being Judge Parker's wish to meet as many as possible of the national committeemen in attendance upon the meeting.

"It is for this purpose that Chairman Jones will first consult with Judge Parker in order to make the dates of the notification and the national committee meeting coincide, and thus afford the candidate an opportunity to meet the men who will lead his campaign in the various states.

"At this meeting the national committee will elect a chairman, secretary, treasurer and sergeant at arms. The committee will then take up such other matters as may properly come before it at that time. The national committee will, of course, consult Judge Parker and his friends before organizing.

"So many garbled reports have been sent out that I deem it necessary to make this statement, as made to me by Chairman James K. Jones, who has been chairman of the national committee for eight years."

NO FORMAL TOUR.

Parker Will Resign as Chief Judge at Once.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 12.—Judge Parker will resign as chief judge of the court of appeals either coincidentally with the delivery of his letter of acceptance or shortly thereafter. While there is nothing in the letter of the constitution or laws to compel his resignation, he thinks the spirit of the constitution is clearly against the retention of the judicial office while he is a candidate, and therefore he has determined to resign.

The judge has also been thinking of what part he will take in the campaign, and he has about decided that he will not make the traditional swing around the circle. He may visit a few of the principal cities of the country, but as he feels now will not arrange a formal tour. His personal preference is said to be to remain at his house at Rosemont during the greater part of the campaign and there receive visiting delegations as did McKinley at Canton during his candidacy. This programme, however, has not been definitely adopted and may be changed when the judge consults with the national committee and his political advisers.

Pastor's Condition Serious.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 12.—The condition of Rev. J. P. Barry, pastor of St. Ann's Roman Catholic church, who was stabbed Saturday morning, is still believed by the physicians in attendance to be dangerous. They were more hopeful last night, however, than at any time since the assault. The knife which John Berry, the assailant, used was thrust through the priest's left eye, completely destroying the sight. A second blow from the weapon cut into the priest's abdomen, severing the intestines.

ADVANCE ON YINKOW

Japanese Fleet In Touch With Oku's Operations.

BRITISH SHIP CONDEMSED AS PRIZE

German Sailors at Vladivostok Cheered Russian Prize Crew. Another Sea Fight Off Port Arthur.

LONDON, July 12.—Advices from Yinkow say that Japanese vessels have been seen off Kaichow. It is believed that they are keeping in touch with the advance of the land forces and that if the Japanese take Tatchekiao, which is understood to be their objective, it is thought that a landing will be made simultaneously at Yinkow.

The fighting at Kaichow consisted of a series of fights, ending with the occupation of the town by General Oku's troops.

The Japanese began to push their advance at dawn, and since then they have proceeded steadily. They kept their artillery well to the front and shelled and occupied Pintzan, seven miles north of Kaichow, at noon. It is now reported that they are close to Tatchekiao.

Japanese scouts are close to Yinkow. They can be seen on the neighboring hilltops, from which they occasionally fire upon the Russian outposts.

A Tatchekiao report says that a Russian correspondent, who has just arrived with the Russian rear guard after a running fight from Kaichow, states:

"We evacuated Kaichow Saturday after a fight lasting throughout two days. We made a short stand at Pintzan, seven miles north of Kaichow. The Japanese kept on our heels, and there were constant exchanges between the Russian and Japanese batteries. The Japanese advance stopped eight miles south of here."

Tokyo reports say that after three days of severe fighting, characterized by the desperate attacks of the Japanese and the stubborn resistance of the Russians, General Oku's army has occupied Kaichow, driving the Russians northward in the direction of Haicheng. The Russians had strongly fortified the hills situated in a semicircle south of Kaichow. Their forces consisted of over 30,000 men.

The operations began by the Japanese driving 1,600 Russians from the heights south of Kaichow, constituting the first line of defense. The Japanese occupied the positions, and the Russians retreated northward.

On the same day the right wing of the Japanese army southeast of Kaichow defeated a small force of Russians and the left wing occupied the heights to the southeast.

The Russian cruisers Bayan, Diana, Pallada and Novik, two gunboats and seven torpedo boat destroyers came out of the harbor at Port Arthur July 9, preceded by a number of steamers engaged in clearing away mines. When the Russian vessels reached a point between Sensikat and Lunwantang, they were attacked by a Japanese flotilla of torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers. Fire was exchanged with the Bayan, and the Russian vessels retreated to the harbor.

Admiral Togo reports that the Japanese vessels had one cabin boy slightly wounded. The vessels themselves sustained no damage.

A Vladivostok dispatch says the British steamer Cheltenham, captured by the Vladivostok squadron, has been declared a lawful prize. Her commander did not attempt to defend himself; first, because the proofs against the vessel were overwhelming, and, second, because the evidence tended to show that the ship had already been bought by the Japanese for $20,000. She was sailing under the British flag because some of the formalities of her transfer were lacking. There were only four British subjects on board the Cheltenham. Her crew were mostly Germans, and they did not conceal their joy at the fact that the Russians had captured the Cheltenham. When the prize crew from the armored cruiser Gromoboi left the Cheltenham they were cheered by the Germans.

The protest of the captain of the British steamer Allanton, also captured by the Vladivostok squadron, will be decided by the admiralty court at St. Petersburg.

Lieutenant General Linevitch, who arrived here in the early part of this month, has again left Vladivostok.

May Solve Ressler Murder Case.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 12.—The local authorities are confident that Joseph Day and John O'Brien, tramps arrested at Norfolk and now in jail at Portsmouth, Va., are the men who killed the old toll gate keeper, Samuel Ressler, near Leaman Place on the night of July 1.

BISHOP HUNTINGTON DEAD.

Death Came Peacefully In Room Where He Was Born.

HADLEY, Mass., July 12.—Right Rev. Frederick Dan Huntington, Episcopal bishop of the central diocese of New York, is dead at his summer home here.

Death came peacefully at 4:30 o'clock and found the venerable clergyman in the room where he was born eighty-five years ago. The end was not unexpected, as the bishop had been in failing health for several months from a complication of diseases which old age denied him the strength to successfully combat. Two weeks ago there was a decided change for the worse, and the patient was seized with congestive chills. His physicians then announced that death was imminent.

At the bedside at the moment of dissolution were present the bishop's wife, formerly Miss Hannah Sargent of Boston, and their three daughters, Mrs. Archibald D. Sessions of Northampton and the Misses Mary L. and Arria S. Huntington of Syracuse, N. Y. Of the two sons, Rev. George P. Huntington, D. D., professor of Hebrew at Dartmouth college, is ill at his home in Hanover, N. H., and Rev. Father James O. S. Huntington, superior of the order of the Holy Cross, who is stationed at the Episcopal monastery at West Park, N. Y., was not able to reach here before death ensued.

Following the wishes of the bishop, as expressed during his last illness, the funeral services will be characterized by simplicity.

Professor Huntington Dead.

HANOVER, N. H., July 12.—Dr. George H. Huntington, professor of Hebrew at Dartmouth college, died last night of slow fever. Death occurred only a few hours after the receipt here of the intelligence of the death at Hadley, Mass., of Dr. Huntington's father, the Right Rev. Frederick Dan Huntington, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of central New York.

Grade Crossing Must Go.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 12.—The state board of railroad commissioners announced its decision relative to the accident at the Van Cortlandt station on the New York Central, in which a train struck an automobile, resulting in one death. The report says: "In our opinion the accident was caused by the chauffeur of the automobile, John Spencer, attempting to go over the crossing ahead of a train which he could have seen approaching from the south. The fact that a train was approaching the station from the north does not excuse his lack of vigilance. The volume of travel to and from Van Cortlandt station during the summer season is very large, and it is our opinion that the grade crossing at this place should be done away with."

Terrific Storm at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 12.—A terrific storm of wind, rain and hail prevailed in St. Louis and vicinity a short time yesterday afternoon, causing considerable damage to property. One man was killed by lightning and five others were injured by flying missles. The maximum reached by the wind was sixty-five miles an hour, but this velocity was sustained for only a minute. The average velocity was about forty miles an hour. Twelve barges were blown across the river and eighteen or twenty houses on Twenty-first street, between Washington and Carr streets, were completely unroofed.

Ball Player Killed by Lightning.

PITTSBURG, July 12.—Charles Jeffries, left fielder of the Johnstown baseball team, was struck by lightning at McKeesport and died almost instantly. The team had just finished practice and Jeffries was in the act of throwing the ball to Second Baseman Sapp, when there was a flash of lightning, and he fell on the field. Jeffries is the man the New York National league team was after. His parents reside at Lancaster, Pa.

ANDREW CUNEO SHOT.

Richest Italian In Chicago Fatally Wounded by Fellow Countryman.

CHICAGO, July 12.—Shot down by one of his own countrymen, who had crept up behind him, Andrew Cuneo member of the firm of Cuneo Bros. fruit dealers, Dearborn and South Water streets, one of the best known fruit importers in the United States and said to be the richest Italian in Chicago, is dying at Passavant hospital. His assailant, Anthony Crescio, narrowly escaped lynching by an angry mob that closed around him after the shooting. In less than a minute after the shooting a rope had been procured by some one in the crowd with which to hang Crescio, but the police, in response to a riot call that had been sent in, appeared on the scene just in time to save Crescio's life. For a time the police were unable to take Crescio away from the mob, but after a hard fight, in which clubs were freely used, Crescio was hustled into a patrol wagon and finally landed in jail.

The shooting occurred in front of Cuneo's store, where Mr. Cuneo was busy receiving fruit. Crescio crept up behind Mr. Cuneo and, drawing a revolver from his pocket, shot the merchant twice before any of the dozen bystanders could interfere. One bullet took effect in the left temple, while the second penetrated the head near the base of the brain.

Crescio, who is believed to be mentally unbalanced, was until lately employed by his brother, John Crescio, who has a wholesale fruit store a few doors from the house of Cuneo Bros. J. H. Crescio, another brother of Mr. Cuneo's assailant, married a sister of Mr. Cuneo and, after living with her for a few years, is said to have deserted her. It is believed that this, together with the keen business rivalry between his brother and Cuneo Bros., were sufficient causes in the man's disordered brain for him to attempt to take Mr. Cuneo's life.

TAYLOR CONFESSED.

Notes Stolen From Citizens' National Bank Recovered.

ST. LOUIS, July 12.—Robert B. Taylor, interest clerk of the Citizens' Central National bank of New York city, who was arrested while trying to dispose of bank notes, a part of $6,720 which he had taken from the Central National bank before its merger with the Citizens' bank and before the notes had been signed by the officers of the bank, has made a confession to Henry Demse, cashier of the Citizens' Central National bank. Mr. Demse said: "Taylor has confessed the entire business. He states that he took the money to his home, where he dug a hole in the cellar under the front part of his house and buried it. It remained there unknown to any one until last Friday. Mrs. Taylor was in the Adirondacks spending a few weeks, and Taylor had announced his intention of joining her. He waited that Friday night until his son had gone to bed and then secured the money from the cellar. He signed the notes and cut them apart. He then took the train for St. Louis.

"The Citizens' Central National bank would not have been out any money in any event. Before the merger the Central National had charged the amount up to profit and loss. The bank now is ahead that much."

CAMPAIGN COUNCIL.

Fairbanks, Bliss and Cortelyou at Sagamore Hill.

TO OUTLINE REPUBLICAN PLANS

Conference With President Extended Far Into the Night — All Were Silent as to the Meeting's Outcome.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 12.—Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, Republican candidate for vice president, is a guest at Sagamore Hill. The senator arrived unaccompanied in Oyster Bay at 6.43 o'clock last night.

The vice presidential candidate came directly from Indianapolis and was accorded a cordial reception at the station as he alighted from the train. After chatting briefly with one or two friends he was driven directly to Sagamore Hill.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt, National Chairman George B. Cortelyou, who is also a guest of the president, and the Roosevelt children all gave Senator Fairbanks a hearty greeting. It was the first meeting of the president and Senator Fairbanks since they were nominated by the Chicago convention, and they exchanged personally the felicitations each had previously offered the other by telegraph and by mail.

The arrival of Senator Fairbanks was preceded by an important conference concerning the details of the campaign and the president's speech of acceptance of the nomination for the presidency. The parties to it were the president, Mr. Cortelyou and former Secretary Cornelius N. Bliss of New York, treasurer of the Republican national committee.

Mr. Cortelyou arrived here from Washington early in the day, accompanied by his confidential secretary, H. O. Weaver. He was driven to the summer executive offices, where he was joined by Secretary Loeb. Together they drove to Sagamore Hill. Chairman Cortelyou declined to be interviewed or to make any comments either on the candidates nominated by the Democratic party, the action of the St. Louis convention or the platform. He was here, he said, to confer with the president and Senator Fairbanks.

An hour later Mr. Bliss arrived from New York and was taken to Sagamore Hill in one of the president's carriages. Mr. Bliss declined to discuss the details of the conference.

The president and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained Senator Fairbanks and Chairman Cortelyou at a family dinner last night. The only other guests were Secretary and Mrs. Loeb. After dinner the president, Senator Fairbanks, Chairman Cortelyou and Mr. Loeb held a conference in the president's library. It continued far into the night. All information concerning it is withheld. It is known, however, that in a general way the conduct of the campaign, the president's speech of acceptance of his nomination, the part Senator Fairbanks is to take in the campaign and other matters of detail were considered.

Senator Fairbanks and Secretary Cortelyou left for New York at 11:15 a. m. this morning. During the morning President Roosevelt, Senator Fairbanks and Chairman Cortelyou had some photographs taken.

THE PLATFORMS.

In order that our readers may become familiar with the positions taken by the two great political organizations on the questions at stake in the present campaign, we present today brief extracts from the platforms of the Republican and Democratic parties. Only the leading planks are mentioned here and they are given in such a way that the reader will find no difficulty in ascertaining how the parties stand on any particular question now at issue.

Tariff.

Republican—We insist upon the maintenance of the principles of protection, and therefore rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration, but this work cannot safely be committed to any other hands than those of the Republican party.

Democratic—We favor a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses and for the commonwealth, and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate ends of "equality of burdens and equality of opportunities" and the constitutional purpose of raising a revenue by taxation—to wit, the support of the federal government in all its integrity and virility, but in simplicity.

Money.

Republican—We believe it to be the duty of the Republican party to uphold the gold standard and the integrity and value of our National currency.

Democratic—(The platform is silent on the question but Mr. Parker says he will stand only as a gold man.)

Trusts.

Republican—Laws enacted by the Republican party which were intended for the protection of the public against the unjust discrimination or the illegal encroachment of vast aggregations of capital, have been fearlessly enforced by a Republican President, and new laws insuring reasonable publicity as to the operations of great corporations and providing additional remedies for the prevention of discrimination in freight rates have been passed by a Republican Congress.

Democratic—We recognize that the gigantic trusts and combinations designed to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint products of capital and labor, and which have been fostered and promoted under Republican rule, are a menace to beneficial competition and an obstacle to permanent business prosperity. Any trust or unlawful combination engaged in interstate commerce which is monopolizing any branch of business or production should not be permitted to transact business outside of the State of its origin. Whenever it shall be established in any court of competent jurisdiction that such monopolization exists, such prohibition should be enforced through comprehensive laws to be enacted on the subject.

The Philippines.

Republican—In the Philippines we have suppressed insurrection, established order and given to life and property a security never known there before. We have organized civil government, made it effective and strong in administration and have conferred upon the people of those islands the largest civil liberty they have ever enjoyed.

Democratic—We insist that we ought to do for the Filipinos what we have done already for the Cubans, and it is our duty to make that promise now, and upon suitable guarantees of protection to citizens of our own and other countries resident there at the time of our withdrawal set the Filipino people upon their feet, free and independent to work out their own destiny.

Isthmian Canal.

Republican—The possession of a route for an isthmian canal, so long the dream of American statesmanship, is now an accomplished fact. The great work of connecting the Pacific and Atlantic by a canal is at last begun, and it is due to the Republican party.

Democratic—The Democracy, when intrusted with power, will construct the Panama Canal speedily, honestly and economically, thereby giving to our people what Democrats have always contended for, a great interoceanic canal furnishing shorter and cheaper lines of transportation and broader and less trammelled trade relations with the other peoples of the world.

Capital and Labor.

Republican—Combinations of capital and of labor are the results of the economic movement of the age, but neither must be permitted to infringe upon the rights and interests of the people. Such combinations, when lawfully formed for lawful purposes, are alike entitled to the protection of the laws, but both are subject to the laws, and neither can be permitted to break them.

Democratic—We favor the enactment and administration of laws giving labor and capital impartially their just rights. Capital and labor ought not to be enemies. Each is necessary to the other. Each has its rights, but the rights of labor are certainly no less "vested," no less "sacred" and no less "inalienable" than the rights of capital. Constitutional guarantees are violated whenever any citizens is denied the right to labor, acquire and enjoy property or reside where interests or inclination may determine. Any denial thereof by individuals, organizations or government should be summarily rebuked and punished.

Merchant Marine.

Republican—We denounce the Ship Subsidy bill recently passed by the United State Senate as an iniquitous appropriation of public funds for private purposes, and a wasteful, illogical and useless attempt to overcome by subsidy the obstructions raised by Republican legislation to the growth and development of American commerce on the sea. We favor the up-building of a merchant marine without new or additional burdens upon the people and without bounties from the public treasury.

Democratic—While every other industry has prospered under the fostering aid of Republican legislation, American shipping, engaged in foreign trade in competition with the low cost of construction, low wages and heavy subsidies of foreign governments, has not for many years received from the government of the United States adequate encouragement of any kind. We, therefore, favor legislation which will encourage and building up the American merchant marine, and we cordially approve the legislation of the last Congress which created the Merchant Marine Commission to investigate and report upon this subject.

Negro Problem.

Republican—We favor such Congressional action as shall determine whether by special discriminations the elective franchise in any State has been unconstitutionally limited, and if such is the case we demand that representation in Congress and in the Electoral College shall be proportionally reduced, as directed by the constitution of the United States.

Democratic—The race question has brought countless woes to this country. To revive the dead and hateful race and sectional animosities in any part of our common country means confusion, distraction of business and the reopening of wounds now happily healed. We therefore deprecate and condemn the bourbonlike, selfish and narrow spirit of the recent Republican Convention at Chicago, which sought to kindle anew the embers of racial and sectional strife, and we appeal from it to the sober common sense and patriotic spirit of the American people.

Pensions.

Republican—We are always mindful of the country's debt to the soldiers and sailors of the United States, and we believe in making ample provision for them and in the liberal administration of the pension laws.

Democratic—(The platform does not mention the subject.)

Executive Usurpation.

Republican—(The platform does not mention the subject.)

Democratic—We favor the nomination and election of a President imbued with the principles of the constitution, who will set his face sternly against executive usurpation of legislative and judicial functions, whether that usurpation be veiled under the guise of executive construction of existing laws, or whether it take refuge in the tyrant's plea of necessity or superior wisdom.

When additional stories appear the house is a landmark, and not till then."—Ex.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Considerable disappointment was caused the baseball fraternity in town by the cancelling of the game scheduled for Saturday afternoon by the Reform A. A., of Plainfield. The Reformers did not let the local management know of their disbanding until the last minute, when it was too late to secure another game. The team was in need of Saturday's practice as next Saturday's contest with New Market will need good playing. The fans scattered around at the Alls and New Market games.

Sheppard Randolph, of Randolphville, returned on Sunday from Cornell University, where he is a member of the class of 1905. This summer he will be a member of a surveying party which will be employed in the gold fields of Alaska surveying for the goverment. In the fall he will return to Cornell, where he is taking an engineering course.

Court Dunellen, I. O. F., held its first meeting in its new quarters in the town hall last evening and celebrated the occasion by a smoker. After the regular routine business was concluded all the members joined in and had a general good time, concluding with refreshments and cigars.

The Dunellen A. C. management is preparing for one of the largest crowds of the season at Saturday's game with New Market. Since the latter were defeated by Clinton Avenue, who lost to the locals it looks like a Dunellen victory but there are no sure things in baseball.

The monthly meeting of the Suburban Club, of the borough, was held in the club parlors last night. Only the regular routine business was transacted as the club's social life will not be resumed until fall.

George Allen is catching a great game for the Garwood A. C. team, of Garwood. George's work behind the bat and with the stick would strengthen any team.

A party of young men from Newark and Orange has been enjoying camping life for two weeks on the mountains near Johnston's Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore, of Westfield, have rented the Kadin house on Park avenue and will take possession at once.

The open season for woodcock has tempted a number of the local hunters to try their luck. All report the birds very scarce.

AT THE CONVENTION

WHAT CHICAGO SAW AT THE REPUBLICAN GATHERING.

IT WAS NOT THE OLD STYLE

The Contention That Makes Attendance Worth While Was Lacking—Uncle Joe Cannon the Whole Show.

Chicago.—A thousand men of one mind; a thousand men gathered from the four points of the compass, from more than half way around the globe for one purpose—to nominate one man as candidate for president of the United States.

Political conventions are at all times picturesque gatherings. Within the past half century Chicago has entertained more of them than any other city in the country. Many have been memorable gatherings which will stand for all time as marking mile stones in party history; many of them have been fiercely waged contests between political giants seeking preferment at the hands of their party; many of them have lasted for days while the leaders fought to find solutions for difficult political problems, but none have ever been quite like that of the republican convention of 1904.

The distinguishing feature of the convention that has placed Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Fairbanks before the voters was its unanimity—its thousand men of one mind. It was a unanimity that to the spectators that flock to such gatherings was painful in its lack of hilarious enthusiasm, an enthusiasm that is, as a rule, born of contention. The Chicago public looked down upon the crowded seats of the delegates from gallery vantage points and called it tame.

Where usually there is a brass band for every delegation for this convention one served the purpose of all. It was a good band, led by Sousa, but even Sousa seemed to fail to arouse that degree of shouting enthusiasm characteristic of conventions. He played The Star Spangled Banner, and the crowd sat motionless waiting for inspiration. It was coming. From the national air the band drifted into the quickening strains of "Dixie," and it brought with it the inspiration that was lacking. The delegates of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, South Carolina, and every southern state for the moment broke the lethargy that seemed to possess the mass of men. Nor was the enthusiasm produced confined entirely to the south. Chicago, too, shouted for the familiar air, remembering, perchance, that it was of Chicago origin, that it was composed in Chicago, and first sang to a Chicago audience by a negro minstrel.

When the Spell Was Broken.

There were moments like this scattered through the sittings of the convention. When ex-Secretary Root surrendered the gavel to Uncle Joe Cannon and presented that distinguished son of Illinois with the massive mallet that was to serve as the emblem of authority during the two days during which he presided the crowd yelled itself hoarse in paying tribute to a general favorite.

No man ever had 1,000 men under his complete control so much as Uncle Joe had the delegates to the republican national convention. They laughed when he willed they should; they yelled when he gave the signal for yells; they stood up at his merest suggestion; they sat down and remained silent when his broad palms commanded silence. He was the general in command of the forces of the party. He was the guiding star, his the controlling will when the convention was in session, and his influence was exercised with that benign smile and those homely gestures which have made people liken him to Lincoln and point to him as the remaining link between the old and new type of political leader.

Uncle Joe led the demonstration when the nominating speech for Roosevelt was concluded. He did it well. It but needed a leader to arouse the enthusiasm that was desired, and with his long arms he swayed the crowd to cheer after cheer that echoed and reechoed through the steel girders of the Coliseum.

Tin Horns Lacking.

The republican convention of 1904 was not a tin horn gathering. It was a decorous meeting of men who had assembled to perform a prearranged task. That which goes to capture the crowds was lacking. Noise-producing implements were not in evidence, banners, typical insignias that figure so prominently when favorite local sons are to be presented were lacking. Golden Alaska and little Connecticut were the two exceptions to the general rule. Above the heads of the Alaskan delegation on the first day of the convention roosted four dignified stuffed eagles, standing like totem poles rising above the sea of heads. When, by action of the convention, the Alaskan delegation was increased from four to six delegates two more of the American birds rose beside the pioneers, from no one seems to know where.

These and the little silken national flags of the Connecticut delegation, that were waved when the chairman gave the signal, were the two bits of color in that sea of sweltering, black-clothed delegates. One of the most interesting features of the gathering was to watch the effectual efforts made by these two delegations to produce enthusiasm. The hardy gold miners of the north were deep-voiced and blessed with a wonderful development of lung power as well as muscle. Back and forth, and back and forth they carried the birds, through and through the convention hall marched the little procession, and every move meant a yell at opportune times.

Of course the most enthusiastic moment of the convention was when ex-Gov. Black completed his speech nominating President Roosevelt as a candidate to succeed himself. Then the banners and flags appeared as if by magic, delegates and guests yelled themselves hoarse at Uncle Joe's bidding, but still the tin horn was absent.

When Hawaii Lost.

Of really amusing incidents at the convention there were few. Uncle Joe was the only one reliable funmaker, and played the part well, but one of the variations came with the effort to give little Hawaii six delegates after the report of the rules committee had recommended but two. Senator Foraker pleaded with the convention for justice for the little territory, and asked for the opinion of Gov. Carter, the territorial executive. He got it even before the chairman had an opportunity of realizing that it was to be given. It came in a few words, terse and directly to the point. He was fighting for Hawaii, and out of the incident grew the only roll call taken save that upon which the candidate for the presidency was nominated.

Gov. Carter replaced Uncle Joe as the comedian of the convention during the short time spent in settling this one variation from the prescribed programme. He gesticulated dire threats against all who dared to speak against Hawaii, and during the roll call on the question, which resulted 497 against and 490 for the territorial contention, he played a pantomine on the stage. At every vote for Hawaii he shook hands with himself energetically, he patted himself on the back, he danced an Irish jig, he threw kisses to his friends, he indicated in a way that could not be misunderstood the appetizing liquids that awaited those who voted right. But Hawaii lost. Six delegates might sit in the convention, but they could cast but two votes, though they were privileged to make all the noise they wished, and when the result of the close vote was announced the grief of Gov. Carter seemed real. He was disappointed in the party that had given his island territory a place in the American union. The great drops of perspiration that rolled from his face, produced by his efforts at pantomine lobbying, served the purpose of the tears he wished to shed.

The Makers of Candidates.

Out of a national political convention one may get a valuable lesson in American democracy. The cosmopolitanism of such a gathering is remarkable. The delegates were representative of at least a large proportion of 80,000,000 of people, and all classes and kinds of humanity were necessary to represent them faithfully. Occupying that portion of the convention hall assigned to the delegates were white and black and brown men, philosophers and fools, though of the latter there looked to be but few.

The audience picked out the big guns of the party, sprinkled liberally throughout the delegations, the men who have been at the wheel of the legislative ship at Washington and in the state capitols, the makers of presidents and party platforms. These big cogs in the great mechanism sat complacently beside the little cogs—that part of the mechanism which gets down close to the individual voters and sends them to the primaries and polls, the cogs that have no distinctive voice in the deliberations of the big conventions, and are seldom heard of outside of their local communities.

But a view of this mass of delegates representing every class and color of those who claim protection under the folds of the flag, was a striking object lesson in American democracy, and taught that after all it is the people who rule.

A TRUE STORY FROM LIFE.

Traveling Man Says That Having a Room Next to a Nervous Man Is a Big Strain.

"A traveling man stopped at a hotel at Monticello. The proprietor told him he could not lodge him, not a room in the house," said a commercial traveler to an Indianapolis News man. "The traveling man protested. He must have a room. Finally the proprietor told him there was a room, a little room separated by a thin partition from a nervous man, a man who had lived in the house for ten years.

"'He is so nervous,' said the landlord. 'I don't dare put anyone in that room. The least noise might give him a nervous spell that would endanger his life.'

"'Oh, give me a room,' said the traveler. 'I'll be so quiet he'll not know I'm there.'

"WHAT'S THE MATTER?"

"Well, the room was given the traveler. He slipped in noiselessly and began to disrobe. He took off one article of clothing after another as quietly as a burglar. At last he came to his shoes. He unlaced a shoe and then, man-like, dropped it.

"The shoe fell to the floor with a great noise. The offending traveler, horrified at what he had done, waited to hear from the nervous man. Not a sound. He took off the second shoe and placed it noiselessly upon the floor. Then in absolute silence he finished undressing and crawled between the sheets.

"Half an hour went by. He had dropped into a doze when there came a tremendous knocking on the partition.

"The traveler sat up in bed trembling and dismayed. 'Wh—wha—what's the matter?' he asked. Then came the voice of the nervous man:

"'Blame you! Drop that other shoe!'"

BUYS COFFIN FOR HERSELF.

Healthy-Looking Woman Surprises Undertaker by Making Arrangements for Her Funeral.

A short, stout and healthy looking woman who said she was Miss Martha Olingsdorf, of 412A Germania avenue, Jersey City, entered Undertaker John Campbell's office in Central avenue, that city, the other day and asked the price of coffins.

"For some member of your family?" asked the undertaker, putting on his most solemn look.

"No, for myself," answered the woman, smiling.

"What style?" inquired Mr. Campbell.

"Something plain and not too expensive," replied Miss Olingsdorf. "I think I would like a nice black casket. And I want one carriage to follow the hearse. The carriage is for four professional pall-bearers. I don't want any flowers, and I want you to keep my body just one day. Then bury it. I haven't any family or relatives to mourn me when I am gone, and I'm glad to say there won't be any kind of a fuss."

"NO, FOR MYSELF."

The shopper said she believed in doing things on a cash basis, and paid the undertaker in advance after carefully adding up his list of items. She left as soon as she got her receipt.

Mr. Campbell said to a New York Sun reporter that Miss Olingsdorf seemed to be happy and well for a woman 69 years old.

Girl with Petrified Hair.

Miss Harriet Milward, one of the prettiest young women in Kenosha, Wis., was cleaning the wall paper on a ceiling at her home when some of the chemicals employed fell on her hair. When she washed the hair a short time after she found that it had become hard. The color was not changed, but the hair was so hard that it was impossible to separate it. It became necessary to cut off the greater part of the long tresses.

HONORED ABROAD.

Distinguished Attentions Received by American Women In Germany.

What European nations think of American women in the wealthy social sphere all the world knows. In France, in England, in Germany and in Russia they are among the leaders of fashionable society. It has remained for the International Council of Women at Berlin to prove that the American advanced, serious minded woman is esteemed no less highly abroad than her rich sister who is in the social swim.

The welcome given to the council in Berlin, the distinguished honors paid to the strongminded delegates under the eyes and nose of Emperor William in his own capital showed—well, what? This, that the new woman of Germany is wide awake and is throwing all her influence and strong, solid mental power on the side of liberty and progress for her sex; that, too, in a way that ought to shame some of her lukewarm American sisters.

FRAU MARIE STRITT OF DRESDEN.

The gracious, delightful reception to the international delegates was the result of months of hard work by the German National Council of Women. Its president is Frau Marie Stritt of Dresden. The general secretary of the international meeting was also a German woman, Dr. Elise Ichenhauser. These ladies and their friends labored unceasingly to prepare the way for the meeting and make it the success it was. To their efforts was no doubt due the flattering reception accorded to the delegates in the city hall of Berlin, a reception at which Frau Kirschner, wife of the lord mayor, was chief hostess.

The chancellor of the German empire, Herr von Bulow, gave a reception in honor of the ladies. Rather surprising, too, was it that that same Herr Posadowsky-Wehner, German secretary of the interior, who lately put himself on record on the wrong side of the woman question, nevertheless held a levee for the international delegates. Gallant Chancellor von Bulow kissed the hand of Susan B. Anthony when she was presented to him.

What will probably linger in the memory of the American delegates as the pleasantest outside incident of all, however, is the audience granted by the empress of Germany, her majesty Augusta Victoria. It is not at all improbable that the empress of Germany would be a good advanced woman if she were not so overslaughed by her husband. As it was, though, Emperor William did not deign to give sign that he had ever heard of a woman's congress. His gentle, kindly wife received in the most cordial manner the twenty-one international ladies who visited her and gave them an hour and a half of her time. President May Wright Sewall declared afterward that the empress' manner was a "lesson in kindness and courtesy." Certainly it is a lesson needed by too many American women. We are sometimes brusque, even impolite, in manner, forgetting that politeness and kindly courtesy are due from each of us to every living creature.

The women of our country cannot feel otherwise than proud and gratified that at the Berlin gathering American women were the recipients of special honors. A notable event was that Sunday afternoon meeting conducted by Rev. Anna Shaw, Miss Anthony and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt. It was held in the English church at Berlin. I find an interesting and most respectful account of it in a German newspaper published in Dresden. In deference to German ideas the pastor of the English church did not call the gathering a divine service, but merely a meeting. The newspaper says that the church was packed to its utmost capacity by persons who wished to see "a woman in a pulpit," that sight being wholly new to Germany.

As usual, Miss Anthony was the lion of the occasion as she depicted "in her softly vibrant, expressive voice" scenes connected with her early battles for woman. It is not always that a reformer, at the end of half a century's struggle for a conviction, finds himself or herself thus honored. Miss Anthony told her audience of the rapidly increasing number of women engaging in gainful occupations in her own country. She told them further that it was a good thing for women to earn their own living, because it drew them away from themselves and made them a part of the human whole. Brave Susan!

Fitting it was that this meeting of representative women from all the world should close with a demonstration for universal peace and international arbitration. This will never be reached till the women of civilization bring it about.

A STORY OF YOUNG ILLINOIS

By MARY HARTWELL CATHERWOOD

Copyright, 1899, by Herbert S. Stone & Co.

Both men threw off their roundabouts and vests. Lincoln faced his two companions, making them a screen, and hurriedly unfastened the belt of gold which he wore under his shirt, and put it in his hat. This he gave to Slicky Green, who held it, while Yates stood guard.

"You were cut out for a banker, Slicky," said Lincoln. "I wasn't. I might burst the snakeskin and spill the money."

His opponent rushed at him like a mastiff let loose, and Peggy doubled herself lower upon the horse's neck. She heard the impact of blows, which sent shudder after shudder down her body, and the panting of spent breath. The Grove boys set up a yell, and she stuffed the horse's mane into her ears. The big muscular bully who had made everybody in the Sangamon country afraid of him, and shaped public opinion for the Grove, was taking some cruel advantage of a clean wrestler, unused to sledge-hammer brutality. Then a hush penetrated even the horsehair, and Peggy looked as Lincoln knocked Red Clary flat beneath the chin of a startled animal. He fell against its hoofs, and being pulled into the clear space by one of his friends, lay still.

"I reckon," said Lincoln, pulling his own shirt collar wider open, and sitting on the chest of drawers to breathe, "he has the wind knocked out of him."

"Goody!" Peggy's own cry of thanksgiving was the first sound heard by the vanquished man. He sat up, blinking at those who had seen him humbled.

Lincoln bent over until his body described a right angle, and shook one long horizontal arm at the unimpaneled jury who would have to render verdict in this first case which Yates and he had associated themselves to win.

"A boy," he panted, "is like a white dress: soil him, and he can be washed and made clean again. But a girl is like a glass bottle. If you let her fall, or throw her down and break her, she is broken forever. Now, men, are you determined to have this poor little bottle destroyed?"

There is often speech where there is no language heard; and Pedro Lorimer knew he stood by himself from that instant.

He spurred his horse toward Slicky to seize the hat and break away with it. But Antywine darted out of the cabin and across the open space like a stroke of light, intercepting the Spaniard. His eyes large with fever, and his high features impassioned, he had almost the beauty of an apparition. As the two encountered, Antywine seized the horse's bits and jerked it to its haunches. He and Pedro Lorimer stared at each other. Before the rider found his balance again Lincoln asked with whimsical significance:

"Boys, how would any of you like to get up out of chill-and-fever, and find all Clary's Grove helping a stranger rob you of your own dear gal?"

A sympathetic and sheepish grin seemed to relax as much as could be seen of every rude face; and Pedro Lorimer, throwing away caution, spurred over Antywine. The boy fell, and leaped up, understanding it was a struggle for Peggy. A whiripool of shouts and plunging horses, and men scrambling to mount, drove all watchers back. Even Redmond Clary's voice was heard, denouncing the man whose part he had taken. The crowd that had come down New Salem street seeking Lincoln went back driving Pedro Lorimer.

"AND LOOK OUT FEARFULLY FOR A DREADED FACE."

Horrified as New Salem people were by threatened violence, they were unable to refrain from cheering. They crowded to the chest of drawers, where, left stranded as by a stormy tide, sat Peggy and Antywine. He held the hat and snakeskin which Slicky Green thrust into his keeping before following the ebb. The pair clung together, hearkening to no voices but their own, as two robins escaping from some peril of man, might have felicitated and comforted each other. The air was fresh like the breath of the sea after a hot land breeze has gone by.

Mounted all three upon the horse from which Lincoln had flung Peggy to Antywine. Lincoln and Yates, and Slicky filling its back from mane to tail, made the best haste they could to the Sangamon. They stood at the top of the terraced bank while Pedro Lorimer was rolled down in a barrel.

Three times, tradition has it, the unhappy wretch took his plunge, and came bobbing up like a buoy. Then Lincoln and Yates, and the cooling effect of the water on those who had him to pull out, succeeded in moderating popular rage against him. He was turned loose, and his horse whipped in the direction of Springfield, with emphatic assurance that the barrel would be kept for him, and if he ever came back would be put to its final use as his floating coffin.

Don Pedro Lorimer was never seen again in that country. When Peggy and Antywine were married, and keeping house in their own cabin, she used sometimes to part her white curtains at night, and look out fearfully for a dreaded face. But happiness and security become a habit, and she loved after awhile to tell her own story.

Years later the two who had steered her destiny—Abraham Lincoln and Richard Yates—began to steer the destinies of a nation and a state, and the Spaniard of New Salem grew to experience the grateful awe of a person who has been visited unawares by strong angels.

THE END.

LIBERATED LABORER'S PLAN

Is Left a Fortune and Has Unique Idea for an Enjoyable Celebration.

Fifty-six years old, gray and sad with the weight of misfortunes and hard toil, Patrick J. Hennessey is a much congratulated man over his sudden acquisition of fortune, relates a New York exchange. Hennessey was a workman at the Havemeyer sugar refinery in Williamsburg at $2 a day, who has suddenly come into possession of a big fortune through the death of an uncle in Australia. He has been a hard-working fellow, who has labored hard to keep a motherless family from six in the morning until six in the evening. When the news of his good fortune spread through the big refinery his comrades began discussing the probable uses to which he would put his money. Later in the day they called at his home.

"Hennessey," said one, "what are ye goin' t' do with all that money when ye git it?"

"Why, sure, man," replied another, "he'll jine th' Foor Hundred an' buy an ottomobilly an' a yacht an' ride around in his coach an' foor with the best av thim, will ye not, Hennessey?"

Hennessey smiled and said:

"No, boys, you're all wrong. For years and years I've been awakened every morning by an alarm clock. At five o'clock it has gone off, and it said to me: 'Hennessey,' it said, ''tis five o'clock. Get up; 'tis me orders.' Ar' for years I've had to obey that order.

"When I get the money I'm going to buy six alarm clocks. They'll be set for five o'clock, ten minutes past, 20 minutes past, half past, 5:40 and 5:45, and as each one goes off I'll hurl it through the window and roll over to wait for the next one.

TALE OF LOVE'S TRIUMPH.

American Heiress Besieges the Heart of Her Titled Adored One's Mother.

With a fluttering heart the beautiful girl approached the magnificent old duchess, relates the Chicago Record-Herald.

"I have come," the lovely American said in low, sweet tones, "to speak to you about something that is very—that is very—very—"

"There, there, sit down," the stately dame interrupted. "Compose yourself. Won't you have something to quiet your nerves?"

"O, thank you, you are very kind. As you doubtless know, my father began life as a tin peddler, and my mother in her younger years had a job as dining-room girl in a boarding house. But you will not let these things prejudice you against me, will you? Please say that you will overlook my family and judge me for my worth alone. I love Bertie so much. It would kill me if you were to tell me that he cannot be mine. Please, please say that you will give your consent?"

"H'm! Have you and he arrived at an understanding?"

"Yes. I asked him last night to be mine and he confessed that he loved me. All that we need now to complete our happiness is your consent."

"Well, if you can support him in the style to which he has been accustomed, I suppose I must yield."

"O, you dear, sweet old thing! I will give orders to-morrow to have the castle fitted up with modern plumbing and an elevator."

An Ideal Location

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW.

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

JAPAN HONORS FUKUSHIMA.

He Is the Man Who Made All the War Plans for the Mikado's Victorious Armies.

Tokio (Japan) Special.

Maj. Gen. Fukushima is known as "the brains of the army" in Japan.

There are many other "honorably illustrious" men of brains on the mikado's staff, but none is quite so prolific of ideas as is Gen. Fukushima. In addition to his gifts of generalship, he has rare ability as a poet, and his contributions to his country's literature are honored by all Japanese as the highest expression of patriotism.

On leaving for the seat of war, every man in the mikado's army received a soldier's pocket book, containing instructions in military rules, the tenets of the Japanese religion, which

MAJ. GEN. FUKUSHIMA.
(Known Throughout Japan as the "Brains of the Army.")

reserves a special paradise for martyrs to their country's honor—and last, but not least, a war anthem written by Gen. Fukushima. The following translation of the last verse is fairly accurate:

Break the ramparts of Port Arthur,
Tear the walls of Harbin down!
On the heights of Ural mountains
Float the banner of the sun,
Then unto our sovereign's glory
Praises sound and never cease,
While our hearts unite, rejoicing
In the great and world-wide peace.

Gen. Fukushima made a famous expedition across Siberia and Manchuria 12 years ago on a secret errand for the emperor, riding 6,000 miles alone on horseback, in the depth of winter. Almost insuperable difficulties attended the journey—the roads were impassable and the cold intense. Several times he was captured by bands of lawbreakers, who on one occasion tortured him with fire to force a revelation of the emperor's affairs.

It is agreeable to learn that his indomitable will overcame all obstacles, and that his commission was triumphantly performed. He was rewarded by being made imperial councilor of war, which position he held during the struggle between China and Japan, directing the campaign from Tokio.

Gen. Fukushima is one of the richest nobles in the empire, his ancestral estates being located in the peaceful inland province of Shinshiu, which is famous for its silk industries.

MOTHER JONES IN CHICAGO

Noted Woman Labor Agitator Thinks the Striking Miners in Colorado Are Heroes.

Chicago Special.

"Mother" Mary Jones, who was the central figure at a recent meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor, has by her work for the trades union cause gained the name of "the stormy petrel of the labor movement." She was born in Cork, Ireland, 58 years ago, and immigrated to Canada when a girl. She taught school in the Dominion and in this country. The

MRS. MARY JONES.
(Familiarly Known as the Stormy Petrel of the Labor World.)

Kearney "sand lot" agitation in California provided her first experience in the labor movement. She became one of the most active members of the Knights of Labor, and is now associated with the social democracy. Her efforts on behalf of the United Mine Workers are recent history. She is an orator and debater.

She spoke at length to the Chicago federationists on behalf of the striking miners of Colorado, taking, as might be supposed, a radical stand.

"You do not seem to be awake to the great issues before you," said Mrs. Jones. "If the miners of Colorado are coerced and suppressed by the militia you will soon receive the same treatment from the militia of this state. We are facing a crisis and we may as well meet it now as any other time. The miners in Colorado are fighting your battles as well as their own and should receive your support."

THE PANAMA HAT

CHAT ABOUT THIS FASHIONABLE HEADGEAR.

Where It Is Made and How—Some Misconceptions Corrected—Straw Being Shipped to Europe for Manufacture.

The man with the Panama hat, whether the head covering cost ten dollars or ten times that amount, will be right in style this year, in fact, this light and airy and attractive top dressing is always the proper thing where old Sol gets in his work and the temperature reaches the boiling point. The man who is the proud possesser of a Panama quite naturally and properly takes a deep interest in the pedigree, the history and fiction in connection therewith.

The Panama hat does not come from Panama, as the name might lead one to suppose, but from Ecuador. The Indians of that country are the most skillful weavers, and produce the exquisite hats which sell in London, Paris, New York or Chicago for $50, $100, or even $300. One hears the story that the best hats are woven under water that is heated almost to the boiling point, and that it requires months to produce the finished article, and hence the high price. Such stories are good enough to laugh at, but are not worthy of credit, for no hat is ever thus produced. Moisture and a high temperature are quite essential conditions for the production of the best hats, some of the finest being woven at night either by candle or moonlight when the moisture and heat are at the most favorable state.

Until a few years ago practically all the Panama hats were made at Jipijapa, in Ecuador, but now there is extensive hat weaving at Monte Christi, at a higher altitude. Men, women and children sit about the yard or in the doorways of their bamboo houses, weaving the hats over wooden blocks placed between their knees. In early morning and evening the best climatic conditions are found, and it is then that most of the work is done. During the heat of the day the straw becomes too brittle for safe and successful manipulation, but water is never used upon the straw, the weavers, however, occasionally dipping their fingers in a convenient jar of water sitting before them.

The Indians begin to weave from the center of the crown, and the beginning is called a button. The shape of the button, to an expert, determines where the hat has been made—Ecuadorian, Peruvian or in some other republic.

The children are put to work to learn the art of their ancestors at an early age, beginning at seven, and on very coarse straw. In 15 years the art will have been mastered for fairly good hats, but for Panamas par excellence it requires a life-time of close application.

In January the peasants begin to plant

WHERE THE HAT MAKERS LIVE.

the seeds of this palm and are usually a month in doing it. In about three months the leaves, pleated like a fan, are borne on three-cornered stalks 6 to 14 feet high. These leaves are about three feet in diameter, and cut into four or five divisions they are gathered while they are young and stiff and the parallel veins are removed.

The Indians call the straw ripe when it is about the thickness of sugar cane. They remove the outer husk of green, split the snow white leaf into shreds, but do not separate them at the stalk ends. Then they cover it with boiling water for about half an hour and bleach it in the sun for 24 hours. It requires about one dollar's worth of straw for a hat, and no hat weaver ever buys more than enough straw at a time for one hat.

The straw—which grows at Jipijapa—is now being shipped to Brussels and to Epinal, France, where zealous manufacturers have proved that quicker and cheaper results from work can be obtained from the peasants there than through the doubtful channels of Ecuadorian labor.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Murray Hills played their third contest of the season with Trenton Y. M. C. A. yesterday.

Hickman, formerly playing short stop for Westfield, has signed with Providence, of the New England League.

If the baseball man from the Westfield Standard will look at the score of Saturday's contest he will see that Hickman did not play with Westfield at Trenton.

The Plainfield "Press" gives notice that the Trenton Y. M. C. A. have refused to play any more games with Westfield, on account of Hickman, claiming "Nat" Strong, manager of the Murray Hills, had a contract with "Hick." "Nat" probably let out a little "hot air" when in Plainfield on the Fourth, but did not finish the story. If they will have a little talk with Hickman they will possibly learn something of interest on this matter. Westfield plays at Trenton tomorrow with Hickman at short.—Westfield Standard.

They are believed to belong to the same gang. One of those caught yesterday, a man named McCarty, was shot in the leg while trying to get away. The four men are now in the jail at Flemington. George Blume, who was arrested on Saturday, has since turned State's evidence, although he is believed to be the leader of the gang.

The strike of the paper mill employes of Glens Falls was settled by arbitration Saturday. Four weeks ago the employes asked for the reinstatement of a discharged piper and struck because the demand was refused. The arbitrators have decided unanimously in favor of the piper's reinstatement.

SMALL BOY'S ADVENTURE.

Little Andy Nolan Runs Away and is Located at Somerville.

With the inherent boyish desire for adventure, fourteen-year-old Andrew Nolan, of Arlington avenue, took a solitary excursion from this city on Sunday. On the lad's failure to return to his home last night, his father became alarmed and reported his departure to the police department.

Late last night, it was learned that he had left town by way of a passing west bound freight and Chief Kiely's efforts to trace him by wiring to the various neighboring stations resulted in his being found at Somerville. He returned to this city early this morning.

The Season's Hits, Including "The Gondoliers," and "The Sun Dance," Are to be Rendered by the Band.

For tomorrow night's concert in Concert Park, Leader Ben LaVere makes the welcome announcement that he has secured "Billy" Murray as vocal soloist. Tomorrow night he will sing a brand new song, "Oysters and Clams," that is being whistled and hummed all over New York. In addition he will give "I've a Feelin' For You," and perhaps another local favorite.

The bandnumbers on the programme are nearly all popular selections that are sure to please. Among them are the season's big hit, "The Gondoliers" and the odd Indian characteristic, "The Sun Dance," regarded the superior of all "Minnihaha" compositons. Louis Anderson will be the cornet soloist.

The children were sent without personal expense and will spend the day at the pavilions and bathing beach, returning late this evening.

Camp Cahoone News.

Herbert Brokaw, one of the leaders at Camp Cahoone, the Y. M. C. A. boys' camp at Lake Hopatcong, returned to town yesterday for a few days. He reports things going finely at the camp and thinks that there hasn't been all the rain at Lake Hopatcong that there has in Plainfield. The boys are getting into the swing of the camp life and are beginning to tan up in true summer style. All are well and having a good time. Brokaw will return to the camp again the last part of the week.

The members of the Republican County Committee will attend a meeting at the Dix building at Elizabeth tonight.

Michael Flynn, one of the election officers in the First district of the Fourth ward, in explanation of the claim set forth by Jacob Kriney as to the reasons why he did not receive his commission as a Justice of the Peace, said today, that the officers complied with the law by filing the returns with the county board of elections and the secretary of State, S. D. Dickinson, notwithstanding the statement of Secretary Dickinson. He contends that if the returns were not complete the board would have heard of it before this, as it is the duty of the county board to canvass the returns. In case of mistakes the local board is notified. City Clerk J. T. MacMurray is now in communication with Secertary Dickinson regarding the matter and he hopes to have it straightened out within a few days.

"Why, I consider the nomination of Judge Parker a good one," declared former Senator James Smith, Jr., in the president's office of the Federal Trust Company at Newark yesterday. "Judge Parker has proved himself a second Grover Cleveland. He is greater than his party and the eastern states will regard his patriotism by giving him their electoral votes." "What do you think of the position he took on the money question, senator?" asked the reporter. "His stand for gold," the former senator replied, with emphasis, "insures him the electoral vote of New Jersey. It also means that New York and Connecticut and the other states where the citizens are weary of the Roosevelt comedy and fear for the country's welfare so long as Roosevelt is at the nation's head, will fall in line."

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

Deputy Grand Worthy Patriarch Williams, of Elizabeth, installed these officers at a meeting of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, last night: Worthy Patriarch, Alfred Stokey; worthy associate, Mrs. C. Howard; financial scribe, John Manley; treasurer, W. B. Ayers; recording scribe, Sylvester Scribner; chaplin, Mrs. Gibbons; conductor, Mrs. W. B. Keeyer; assistant conductor, Miss Lyda Edgar; inside sentinel, William Root; outside sentinel, W. E. Keeger. After the installation there was a social time and refreshment were served.

A delegation of Freedom Castle members went by special trolley to New Brunswick last evening where they installed the officers recently elected by the castle there. They were afterward entertained and spent a pleasant evening up to the time of returning. Owing to a lack of power on the M. and S. division they had to shove their car part of the way to Bound Brook and were then carried to Dunellen arriving there at 2 o'clock this morning. Some walked home and the remainder took the 2:14 train from the Dunellen station. Among those in the party were R. V. Kinney, G. K. Niles, William Day, Horace J. Martin, Dr. C. M. Luckey and Dr. Buchanan.

Ocean Grove Speakeasies.

Rev. E. A. Boom, of Trenton, made a remarkable statement in the New Brunswick preachers' meeting at Ocean Grove Monday to the effect that 200 government licenses to sell liquor were taken out annually in Ocean Grove and 240 in Asbury Park. The statement was contradicted, and a heated argument ensued, the claim being made that the government was not responsible for the conditions if such existed. The incident is causing much comment.

Desperate Plans Foiled.

One of the most daring plans of plunder are arranged when the house is vacated. No harm can result if your valuables are safely stored. The City National Bank vaults are just the place to send all articles for safety, being spacious and secure. A private box is a convenience to many.

Title to the lot on Somerset street, recently purchased by the borough Board of Education, was passed by Collector Brown, this morning. The balance of $5,000 remaining was then paid over by District Clerk R. M. Fountain.

MR. CLARK RECEIVES PRESENT FROM EXEMPTS

Borough's Volunteer Firemen Honor Former Councilman in a Fitting Way.

GOLD HEADED CANE

DR. BUCHANAN TELLS OF FIRE LADDIES' APPRECIATION.

Stag Affair in Exempts' Rooms on Somerset Street—Programme of Vocal and Instrumental Selections.

Members of the borough Exempt Firemen's Association and a large number of their friends gathered in the rooms of the organization last evening and enjoyed one of the most delightful affairs in which either have yet participated. It was intended to mark the first of a series of "stags" which the social committee has in mind and for an initial effort it will be hard to excel.

The rooms were tastefully decorated with the national colors and fire fighting trophies secured when the companies disbanded. Frank Kesselring presided as chairman and before the arranged programme was commenced sprang a surprise on many of those present by calling upon Former Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., to present himself before the gathering. The latter was then presented with a gold-headed cane suitably engraved, Dr. Buchanan making the presentation speech. By it he acquainted Mr. Clark with the fact that the exempts hold deep appreciation toward him for his efforts in their behalf while he was a member of the councilmanic body and that the gift was a slight token to express it formally. Although taken entirely by surprise Mr. Clark soon regained his composure and warmly thanked the donors. He remained with the gathering and was keenly interested in the further proceedings of the evening.

While cigars were being smoked, banjo and guitar selections were given by Joseph Loughead and Fred Finnigan; fancy dancing and jig steps by William Campbell, Sr., and vocal selections by Asa D. Pope, William Doud, B. C. Firstbrook, Thomas M. Muir and George B. Cose. A phonograph was operated by John Shroop. There was ice cream, cake and other refreshments in abundance and with all these features it was nearly midnight before the affair ended.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the "stag" consisted of Frank Kesselring, chairman; D. J. Begley, Frank Keller and J. J. Stahl, and they were warmly complimented upon its success.

BATHING EMBARGO.

The Small Boy is No Longer Allowed to Take a Dip at "Ossie's."

There is woe among the small boys in the West End who have been in the habit of seeking refuge from the sun's warm rays in Green brook. The favorite swimming pool is on Halstead Compton's property and because of their propensity to wander out of the water and roam around his place in their birthday suits he has forbidden them their accustomed privileges. For many years "Ossie's" has been a gathering spot for youngsters in the afternoon and the embargo is taken very much to heart.

Plainfielder on Examining Board.

Dr. William H. Murray, of this city, was one of the examining board appointed by the State Board of Health to pass on the examination papers of the candidates for appointment as State health inspectors. The examination was brought about through act of the Legislature, approved April 8, 1903, to provide for improvement of local sanitary inspection service, which act places the licensing of health officers under the State Board of Health.

Colored Giants Next.

It is quite probable that Alis will play the New York Colored Giants on Crescent Oval, on Saturday. Manager Johnston was endeavoring to arrange a game with Roselle, but it is reported that this team has another date and cannot come here. The Giants recently played Westfield four contests and the series broke even, each team winning two.

Dr. Chambliss Improving.

Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor emeritus of the First Baptist church, has received a letter from Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss. The latter states that he is improving rapidly and that his throat is a great deal better.

WILL PLACE A SAFEGUARD

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS TO EXAMINE ROAD NEAR HOLLINGSWORTH'S MILL.

At the regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders, yesterday afternoon, Messrs. Demler, Emmons and Codington were appointed a committee to consider a petition from the North Plainfield Township Committee for the erection of a guard rail on the brook side of the road near Hollingsworth's mill. The matter is one that has been under consideration for some time and the Board's action will no doubt result in the guard being placed. A resolution was passed authorizing the payment of a bill from the W. T. Kirk Company, for furnishing and erecting the bridge on Union avenue, Bound Brook, amounting to $241, after it has been properly audited by the committee.

The Board will meet next Friday at the Three-Mile Run bridge in the morning and in the afternoon with the Middlesex county board at New Brunswick for the purpose of discussing bridge matters. The county collector was authorized to borrow $20,000 in anticipation of taxes.

TRAIN RUNS INTO A BRIDGE

ENGINEER IS INJURED AND TRAFFIC BLOCKED AT SOMERVILLE.

An eastbound freight train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, running at the rate of thirty miles an hour, was wrecked by a misplaced switch at Centre street, Somerville, at 9:30 last night. The engine dashed into the stone abutment of the Centre street bridge and was badly wrecked. Abram Stout, of Elizabethport, the engineer, was hurled through the cab window and knocked against a stone wall. He was seriously injured about the head and was removed to the Somerset Hospital. William Pennally, the fireman, jumped before the collision and escaped with slight injuries. A number of freight cars were piled up behind the engine, blocking traffic on the east bound track.

INSPECTED PLAINFIELD ROADS

NEW YORK COMMISSION PASSED THROUGH THIS CITY YESTERDAY.

State Supervisor of Roads R. A. Meeker, of West Front street, together with State Commissioner Henry I. Budd, accompanied members of the New York Legislature, road commissioners of that State, on a tour of inspection of the New Jersey roads this week. The party made the trip in three automobiles and passed through town yesterday. There were also in the party members of the Automobile Club of America. The trip was solely an object lesson in the art of good road-making.

From here the party went to Paterson and after inspecting the roads in the northern part of the State the members will proceed through New York State and into Massachusetts, toward Boston. It is expected that the party will reach the capital of the Bay State by Saturday.

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL.

A Design for the Monument Which is to be Erected at Elizabeth.

The monument to be erected at Elizabeth in memory of the soldiers and sailors who died in the Civil War will be a granite shaft about thirty-five feet high, and three feet, nine inches in diameter. The top block of the base will be seven feet high.

The shaft will be surmounted by the figure of a color bearer ten feet tall. The committee has not decided whether this shall be bronze or granite. The flag will be raised about four feet above the soldier's head. On the base will be inscribed infantry, cavalry, artillery and navy, also the dates 1865-61. The committee now has under consideration several sentences, one of which is "Erected in memory of those who fought to maintain the union of the States." The monument will cost $10,000.

Mr. Smith has been at the Royal School of Music for some time completing his musical education.

CO. K BOYS READY FOR GOVERNOR'S DAY

Principal Annual Event at Sea Girt Camp is Scheduled For Tomorrow.

REGIMENTAL BANQUET

FRANKLIN MURPHY IS EXPECTED AT FEAST TO BE GIVEN BY COL. COLLINS.

Plainfield Soldier Boys on the Sick List—Trial of Private Sampson —Co. K Members Are Honored.

Camp Franklin Murphy,
Sea Girt, N. J.,
July 13, 1904.

The members of Co. K are looking forward to Governor's day, which is observed tomorrow. The regiment will be received by Governor Murphy. In the evening Col. Collins will entertain the officers of the regiment at an elaborate banquet. It is said that Governor Murphy will attend.

For the first time since the regiment is in camp they will use blank cartridges in the extended order drill. The men look forward to this with a great deal of pleasure as the use of blank cartridges gives them the nearest insight to actual warfare.

At sick report this morning the following men went to the hospital tent for treatment: Privates McGurck, Judson, Frazee, Scribner, Smith, Dorgan, Richards and Townley. They are mostly troubled with the usual camp ailment (Sea Girt water). Captain Martin this afternoon started a precedent by taking his men bathing as a company. This was a most amusing thing to the observers. The company was marched into the ocean in a column of fours. The men went through company evolutions in the ocean. The laughable part of this came when the breakers would throw the men over, then there would be a general scramble to get back in line. A very pleasant hour was in this way passed.

The feature of the week will be the trial of Private Sampson, who is charged with stealing a kitten from Co. I, of Elizabeth. He will be tried before Judge Richards and a jury of six men composed of Co. I and K men. Sampson will be defended by Private Milne, of Elizabeth, and the prosecutor will be Corporal Apgar, assisted by the court crier, Corporal Tranchand. All this fun of course comes before taps.

Co. K being this year the best disciplined company in the regiment, Captain Martin has been highly complimented for it. A. T.

Camp Franklin Murphy,
Sea Girt, July 13, 1904.

Not only are the men of Co. K thoroughly enjoying their work in drill and guard duty, but they are being appreciated by their superiors, as the selection of sentries for the posts at the quarters of Gen. Gillmore, the colonel of the regiment and also at the Governor's cottage, has shown. Each day since the company arrived at camp, has seen Capt. Martin's men represented at one or more of these important posts. Sunday, when Lieutenant Kitchell was officer of the guard, Privates Bond and Weaver were on sentry-go at Gen. Gillmore's and the Governor's cottage, respectively.

On Monday, Emmons was posted at the General's and Ford at the Governor's, while today, DeCamp is at the General's and Sampson is walking post at the abode of the State Executive. As these selections are the direct result of personal appearance and company excellence, no little jubilation is expressed by the boys from Plainfield, who are bound to make a mark in some way even though they will have no opportunity to show their ability on the range this year. The only shooting done by the Second will be with blank cartridges, in the course of skirmish drill, which is gone through in battalion formation. This drill was practiced on Monday and was gone through again yesterday afternoon.

An hour after dinner Tuesday, the company fell in and marched to the beach in a body for a plunge in the surf. While waiting for the word to form for the march to the beach, the men amused themselves by ducking each other under the hydrant. Owing to the fact that all were in their bathing suits, or less, the ducking resulted in more fun than misery, for the one subjected to it. Hospital Corpsman Nathan Titsworth, who was unable to come down with the company on Saturday, arrived Monday morning and is eating overtime to make up for his lost opportunities. Tuesday's dinner included fried spiaice and was heartily commended by all hands from the officers down. The day of all the week will be Thursday, of course, as Governor Murphy is to be here and will review all the troops in camp. It is expected that many Plainfielders will be here from Asbury Park as the largest excursion of the season is down for that date.

Every day the Plainfield boys fight to obtain The Daily Press when the bundle of fifty copies arrives in camp. The members of Company K are eager to hear the news from home and they waste no time in getting hold of the favorite paper.

BRASS THIEF RELEASED

JUDGE VAIL SUSPENDED SENTENCE ON FRED SNYDER.

On an allegation brought by his counsel, William G. DeMeza, Esq., Fred Snyder, accused of stealing brass from the Pond shop, was arraigned before Judge Vail at Elizabeth today. The man pleaded guilty to the charge but made a strong plea for clemency on the ground of having a large family and having recently recovered from a severe illness. His condition bore out his statements and taking the facts into consideration the court suspended sentence with a warning.

But for the action of his counsel, Snyder would have had to remain in jail until the next session of the Grand Jury, having been unable to secure bail.

WILLIAM D. MURRAY CONDUCTED A COURSE AT NORTHFIELD CONFERENCE.

William D. Murray, of West Eighth street, who has been in charge of a Bible class of young men at the Northfield Y. M. C. A. conference, has returned home. Mr. Murray's students were fifty-nine in number and represented delegations from forty-four different colleges, including Yale, Princeton, Harvard and Cornell.

In his instruction of the class, Mr. Murray made use of the Gospel text book recently written by himself, entitled "The Life and Works of Jesus According to Saint Mark." This book has had a large circulation both in this country and in England.

PRICES OF MEAT TAKE A BIG JUMP

General Advance in This City From Two to Five Cents a Pound is Announced.

DUE TO THE STRIKE

SUPPLY HERE WILL NOT LAST OVER A WEEK.

Wholesale Houses Powerless — No Fresh Supplies in Sight— The Cause of the Raise.

Within twenty-four hours after the great beef strike began in the middle West, announcement was made by the local butchers today that the price on all grades of meat would be advanced. In some instances it will be as high as five cents while in others it will be but two, the difference marking the high and low grades.

One of the leading butchers declared the strike has been looked forward to for several weeks and that today's advance may only be a commencement of the effect that it will have locally. There is every indication he said, of further increase within the next ten days as there is barely any supplies in the East.

Two weeks ago before strike rumors had become threatening it was thought prices would be raised owing to a shortage of cattle and now that the butchers have gone out the meat prices may become the highest ever known.

So far 40,000 men have quit work in the big packing houses in Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City, East St. Louis and other cities, and in New York 3,500 butchers went out today. The strike was caused by a dispute over the wages of unskilled laborers employed in the packing houses. The trust wished to reduce their rate of wage one cent an hour but they objected and though they form only a small percentage of the employes, they were sustained by the others.

It is asserted the trust made no effort to avert trouble and within an hour after the unions ordered the men out the price of beef was advanced. Although the managers of the Beef Trust declare they have been caught with a supply sufficient to last only a few days, it was reported yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade that a large secret supply is being held in reserve and will be let go when it can be sold at double the present rate. As the East derives its supply almost entirely from the West all this section faces a meat famine that will be more severe than the coal famine of two years ago. One of the local beef houses received a car from the West this morning and when the butchers began purchasing they found the cost five cents beyond yesterday's prices. There is no likelihood of the strike trouble itself reaching Plainfield as the beef is already for the markets when it reaches here and the drivers are in no way affiliated with the western unions.

At the offices of the Union Beef Company it was said this morning that the local supply would suffice only for this week. After that Plainfielders will have to subsist on a vegetable diet as there is no prospect of buying enough cattle locally or getting any from Jersey City.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD.

Mrs. Voorhees VanFleet Passes Away at Her Home in New York.

Mrs. Voorhees VanFleet, at one time a prominent resident of the city and also the borough, died Monday at her home in New York, aged ninety-three years. She resided for many years at the corner of Park avenue and Fourth street, where the Miller building now stands, and also Duer street and Lincoln place, which property she owned at the time of her death. Surviving her are three sons, two of whom live in New York and the other in Newark.

The body was brought to this city today and interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Tennis Doubles at Y. M. C. A.

After the presentation of the tennis awards to the winners of the Y. M. C. A. tennis tournament last evening, plans for a midsummer doubles tournament were discussed. It was finally decided that such a tournament be held and that play begin Monday if sufficient entries be received. Chauncey Koons, Walter Rogers and Paul R. Collier were appointed as the committee to take charge of the affair.

Mrs. Whitney Frasee, of South avenue, is quite ill at her home.

HE SUES TO RECOVER $1.80

SQUIRE HAND IS DETERMINED TO COLLECT THE COSTS OF A JUDGMENT.

For the sum of $1.80 which he declares is due him on account in an action brought in his court recently, Justice Hezekiah Hand has commenced suit against George J. Tobin. Papers have been filed in the matter and it will be heard before Justice Clark at Scotch Plains this afternoon. The complainant will be represented by counsel and he has taken every precaution to guard against an adverse decision.

The Justice declares that some time ago Frank Hand sued Tobin in his court and judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff. Tobin forwarded the amount of the claim to Hand but the fact that $1.80 was due the court must have slipped his mind as His Honor never received it. Knowing by experience what methods are pursued in bringing debtors to terms he decided upon suit on contract but believing that the local courts might recognize the profession and be prejudiced he generously had the summons issued from Scotch Plains even though it costs car fare to get there.

FEW FAVORED THE REGISTRY

ONLY FORTY ANSWERS RECEIVED TO 500 POSTAL CARD INQUIRIES.

Out of five hundred postal cards sent out by Miss Miller and Miss Wells, who are interesting themselves in the compilation of a social registry for this city, forty persons have responded, thereby signifying their desire to have their names placed in the book.

In view of the limited number of names received, it seems hardly probable that the register will be published. Miss Wells was instrumental in compiling the one at Orange which was a success and she believed that such a book would meet with approval here.

CITY VALUATION $9,600,000

INCREASE IN LOCAL ASSESSMENTS AGGREGATE $600,000.

Judging solely from the statistics now at hand it is roughly estimated that Plainfield's assessed valuation for the coming year will be not less than $9,600,000. This shows a great increase over the present valuation, which is $9,000,000 To bring about this increase of $600,000 no apparent effort was made on the part of the assessors, who, it is reported, exercised much care in not overvaluing local property.

The Board of Assessors has completed its work, at least so far as making the usual canvas. The various assessors in the several wards have the new figures all at hand and have already held several meetings collectively. They are nearly through their work and will have their books ready for inspection at the next meeting of the Common Council. Subsequently the books will be taken by the local assessors to the regular meeting of the Union County Board of Assessors and there the rate for the county will be made known. Later the city rate will be fixed.

MEDALS PRESENTED.

Trophies in the Y. M. C. A. Tennis Tournament Are Awarded.

Paul R. Collier and Munroe H. Long received last night their trophies as winners of the recent tennis championship tennis tournament held at the Y. M. C. A. These prizes, black silk watch fobs, with a heavy silver reproduction of the Y. M. C. A. seal surrounded by a wreath attached, were presented to the young men by Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood in the name of the Association.

The teams which contested in the tournament turned out in force and after the presentation a social evening was enjoyed, during which refreshments were served.

Plainfield's Corps Visit.

The local branch of the Women's Relief Corps, Winfield Scott Post, No. 10, visited the Elizabeth corps last evening at the latter's lodge rooms. There a reception was tendered to the visiting delegation of officers from the Grand Lodge and the Plainfield corps gave a flag drill. At the conclusion of the regular programme refreshments were served by the Elizabeth corps. Jersey City and Newark were represented by visiting delegations.

Star Course Programme for the Fall and Winter is Selected by the Committee.

GOOD TALENT BOOKED

FIRST ENTERTAINMENT TO TAKE PLACE ON NOVEMBER 8.

Dr. Henry M. Maxson Chairman of Committee Having Charge of the Course—Complete List Announced.

Announcement is made of the programme for the star course entertainments at the Y. M. C. A., which is a popular attraction here annually. The committee on selection consisted of Dr. Henry M. Maxson, Dr. B. vanD. Hedges and Curtis M. Thorpe, and they have chosen only the best of Metropolitan talent.

J. W. Macy, a humorist and buffoonist, will appear on Tuesday, Nov. 8, which is Election Day. The event for Thanksgiving Day night, Thursday, Nov. 24, will be a show to be given by the DeBarrie-Gill combination. It will include a programme of songs, readings and impersonations of the finest order. On Thursday night, December 1, the Thespian Dramatic Company will present sketches, recitations, and scenes from well-known plays. Following this attraction will be the John Thomas Concert Company. This combination includes a quartette of vocalists and a humorist.

For Monday night, January 2, the committee has booked four popular artists. Miss Edith Cline Ford and Miss Emily Farrow Gregory will entertain with songs and sketches and Miss Katharine Lane will appear as a soprano and ballad singer. The fourth member of the troupe is Miss Edith Palmer, who will whistle. The last entertainment will be given by a company of New York artists on Monday night, January 23. Their specialties include a violin trio, harp and piano numbers and some readings.

In all probability a special attraction will be arranged for February 22, Washington's Birthday, and it is possible that there will be another event in March.

To Test Pigeon Law.

Test of the New Jersey law prohibiting live-bird shooting will be made by the fashionable Riverton Gun Club this week, but not in the defiant manner that was at first suggested. It is planned that one member of the club, which includes in its membership prominent Philadelphia sportsmen, will go to the club house and, in the presence of an officer of the law, use his gun upon a solitary bird. That, it was said, would be sufficient "defiance" to take the case into court and determine if the Legislature had acted within its rights.

England Retains Palma Cup.

The Council of the National Rifle Association met at Bisley, Eng., yesterday and decided that last year's contest for the Palma trophy should be considered abortive, and that the trophy shall be retained by England, as custodian, until another match is arranged. The Palma trophy was returned to England by the winning American team after the claim was made that the rifles used by the team in shooting for the trophy were not in accordance with the rules governing the contest.

Thompson Dismissed.

Walter Thompson, the expressman arrested Monday on the complaint of Baggagemaster Jerry Garretson, was dismissed by City Judge Runyon at the city court this morning. Charged with disorderly conduct and fighting on the station platform, the Judge declared that no proof against him sufficient for punishment had been produced.

Shriners at Atlantic City.

Although there are about forty Plainfielders who are members of Salaam Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine, of Newark, there are no representatives from here attending the convention of the order at Atlantic City. Several planned to go, but business engagements interferred with the trip.

Surprised Miss Martin.

An enjoyable surprise party was tendered Miss Hazel Martin at her home on Marion avenue last evening. Seven of Miss Martin's friends were present and a lively evening was spent with games and dancing. Miss Jessie Garthwaite and Miss Marie Woolston arranged the surprise, which was most complete.

BRYAN'S MANIFESTO

Nebraskan Gives His Reasons For Supporting Parker.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET FOR PEACE.

St. Louis Platform Opposes Imperialism and the Spirit of War, Which Roosevelt Stands For—Is For Reason and Arbitration.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 13.—W. J. Bryan has issued the following statement here:

"I shall vote for Parker and Davis, the nominees of the Democratic national convention, and shall do so for the following reasons:

"First.—Because the Democratic ticket stands for opposition to imperialism, while the Republican ticket stands for an imperialistic policy. On this question, which was the paramount issue in 1900 and which must remain an important issue so long as an attempt is made to hold colonies under the American flag—on this issue the convention was unanimous, the platform emphatic, and I have no doubt that the candidate will carry out the platform.

"Second.—Mr. Roosevelt is injecting the race question into American politics, and this issue, if it becomes national, will make it impossible to consider economic questions that demand solution. The election of the Democratic ticket will put a quietus upon this attempt and permit the race question to work itself out without the bitterness which Mr. Roosevelt's conduct has engendered.

"Third.—Mr. Roosevelt stands for the spirit of war. His friends present him as a man of blood and iron. He believes in strenuousness and inculcates a love for warlike things. The Democratic ticket stands for peace, for reason and for arbitration rather than for force, conquest and bluster.

"Fourth.—The Democratic platform declares in favor of the reduction of the standing army, and as this plank was unanimously adopted there is reason to believe that a Democratic success on this subject would bring some advantage to the people.

"For these four reasons I feel justified in supporting the ticket, but I shall not misrepresent the situation or appeal for votes for the ticket upon false grounds. A Democratic victory will mean very little, if any, progress on economic questions so long as the party is under the control of the Wall street element. On the money question Mr. Parker is as thoroughly committed to the side of the financiers as Mr. Roosevelt. If he does not go as far as the Republicans would in retiring silver dollars, in establishing branch banks, in enlarging the powers of the national banks and in the substitution of an asset currency for the present currency, it will be because he is restrained by the Democrats in the house and senate. Nothing good can be expected of him on the money question.

"On the trust question the Democratic platform is very much better than the Republican platform, but the nomination of Judge Parker virtually nullifies the antitrust plank. Unless in his letter of acceptance he commits himself to attempt antitrust legislation we need not expect him to pursue a different course from that pursued by President Roosevelt.

"So far as the labor questions are concerned we must await Judge Parker's letter before we shall know whether the laboring man has anything to expect from his election. The labor plank as prepared by Judge Parker's friends on the subcommittee was a straddling, meaningless plank. In the full committee planks were adopted in favor of arbitration, the eight hour day and against government by injunction; also a plank on the Colorado situation. If Judge Parker is silent or ambiguous on these subjects it will mean that the financial influence back of him will not permit him to take the labor side on these disputed questions.

"On the tariff question some little progress may be hoped for, but the Parker men on the committee were necessarily in favor of a very conservative tariff plank, and it remains to be seen whether Judge Parker will carry out the positive and definite plank which was submitted by the full committee. This is the situation.

"Judge Parker stands for enough things that are good to justify me in giving him my vote; but, as I have tried to point out for several months, the triumph of the Wall street element of the party denies to the country any hope of relief on economic questions. I have nothing to take back. I have nothing to withdraw of the things that I have said against the methods pursued to advance his candidacy. It was a plain and deliberate attempt to deceive the party. The New York platform was vague and meaningless and purposely so because the advocates of Judge Parker were trying to secure votes from among the people who would have opposed his views had they known them. If he had sent to the Albany convention the telegram that he sent to the St. Louis convention he would have had very few instructed delegates from the south and no possible chance for the nomination. But he and his managers adroitly and purposely concealed his position until the delegates had been corralled and the nomination assured. Then his friends attempted to secure a gold plank, which was overwhelmingly defeated in the committee. After the party had rejoiced over the harmony secured by the omission of the question and after he had secured the nomination he injected his views upon the subject at a time when he could not be taken from the ticket without great demoralization. The nomination was secured, therefore, by crooked and indefensible methods, but the Democrat who loves his country has to make his decisions upon conditions as he finds them, not upon conditions as he would like to have them.

"After having stated that I shall support the ticket and after having given my reasons for so doing, I think it due to the Democrats of the nation to say that while the fight on economic questions is postponed, it is not abandoned. As soon as the election is over I shall, with the help of those who believe as I do, undertake to organize for the campaign of 1908, the object being to marshal the friends of popular government within the Democratic party to the support of a radical and progressive policy to make the Democratic party an efficient means in the hands of the people for securing relief from the plutocratic element that controls the Republican party and for the time being is in control of the Democratic party. This plan of organization will be elaborated soon."

HAHNE & CO., NEWARK, N. J.

AT ESOPUS.

William Sheehan's Return Marks Opening of Parker Campaign.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 13.—The return home of William F. Sheehan from the St. Louis convention marks the opening of the national Democratic campaign, which will be largely conducted from Esopus. Actual plans for the campaign have not been completed, but it is probable that Judge Parker will remain at Rosemont most of the summer and fall.

Mr. Sheehan on his return visited Judge Parker for nearly three hours, but nothing is known of the subject of their conference, as neither would talk about it. Both Mr. Sheehan and the judge were asked regarding the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee, but upon that subject also they were silent.

It is known that Mr. Sheehan is very much averse to the proposition that he should take the position himself. There is a rumor at Kingston that Judge Parker wants the chairmanship to go to Senator Gorman, but no verification is possible.

The formal notification of Judge Parker will take place at Rosemont within a fortnight, but no date has been fixed yet.

It is beginning to be a source of some wonder as to what has become of the telegram to Judge Parker which was formally adopted by the St. Louis convention Saturday night. It has not yet reached Esopus, and Judge Parker knows its tenor only from a bulletin which was telephoned to him that night. It may have gone astray, as did the Hearst telegram, which reached Judge Parker only after it had been duplicated twenty-four hours after it was filed at Chicago.

Road to Success Cleared, Says Hill.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 13.—Former Senator David B. Hill last night gave out the following interview on Judge Parker's declaration for the gold standard: "I am gratified that the convention so enthusiastically indorsed the brave and manly stand of Judge Parker and that the whole country has so favorably received it. The party is in the position in which I wished it to be, having indorsed the present gold standard. The financial question is now entirely out of the campaign, and the Republicans are powerless to drag it in. The road to a successful campaign has been cleared."

Collision at Salt Point, N. Y.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 13.—A passenger train on the Poughkeepsie and Eastern railway ran on to a siding at Salt Point and collided with a freight train. Both engines were wrecked. Conductor M. D. Marcy was probably fatally injured and is now in Vassar hospital. No passengers were hurt. The accident is said to have been caused by Edward Kellerhouse, a brakeman, who became confused. He thought the switch was open when it was closed and ran and opened it, allowing the train to take the siding. After seeing the damage caused he ran away.

Monument Unveiled at Brightwood.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—With impressive ceremonies and in the presence of Commander In Chief Black and other representatives of the Grand Army of the Republic and a large crowd of spectators, a monument in honor of the men of the One Hundred and Twenty-second New York volunteers who fell in the battle of Fort Stevens, in defense of the national capital, was unveiled at Brightwood, a suburb of this city.

Cloudburst In Oregon.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 13.—A cloudburst accompanied by loss of life and great damage to property has occurred near Mitchell, Ore. Mrs. Bethune, aged ninety years, and Martin Smith, ninety-one, were drowned. Twenty-eight houses in Mitchell were destroyed. A terrific rainstorm occurred in the mountains back of Mitchell, causing Bridge and Mill creeks to overflow their banks.

Women Single Taxers Meet.

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—Following a mass meeting of the Woman's National Single Tax league, held in Music hall, at which an address was delivered by Congressman Robert Baker of Brooklyn, a business session occupied the attention of the delegates. The convention will close today.

Brooklyn Couple Find Body.

CLAYTON, N. Y., July 13.—The body of Freeman Rusho, a Thousand Island fisherman, who was capsized in his boat during a storm early in May, has been found floating in the St. Lawrence near by Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Duncan of Brooklyn, who were fishing.

A GENERAL STRIKE

Meat Packers of Seven Cities Go Out For More Pay.

WILL AFFECT THE WHOLE COUNTRY

Trouble Started In Chicago and Was Followed Out of Sympathy by Men and Women In Packing Plants at Other Points.

CHICAGO, July 13.—The strike in the great packing plants of the country is on and a meat famine and immediate advance in prices are looked for.

Fifty thousand men are affected by the strike order, and at a late hour 15,000 had gone out here, 5,000 in East St. Louis, 5,000 in St. Louis, 4,000 in Omaha, 8,000 in Kansas City, 1,000 in Sioux City, 700 in South St. Paul, Minn., and 500 in Fort Worth, a total of nearly 40,000.

New York city is still to be heard from.

The strike is the result of a stubborn disagreement, chiefly over wages for unskilled labor, and will be the most extensive in the history of the meat packing industry of the United States. If prolonged the strike is expected to cause widespread inconvenience, possibly equaling the anthracite coal famine of two years ago.

The unanimity of the strike is complete. More than 45,000 employees are directly involved. In Chicago alone 18,000 men are on strike.

Arthur Meeker of Armour & Co. said: "We consider the demand of the union for an advance in wages of unskilled labor entirely unwarranted by industrial conditions. We could not concede it and proposed to submit the question to arbitration, which the union declined and called a strike at all our plants. Every department is kept running, however. We have had applications from hundreds of unemployed men for positions at less wages than we have been paying and every day expect to increase our output."

President Michael Donnelly, the strike leader, said:

"I wish to make it clear that we are not fighting for an increase of wages but against a decrease.

"Our original demand was for a minimum of 20 cents an hour for laborers. This demand was amended after our second conference with the packers in June.

"We then agreed to a scale of 18½ cents an hour, except in Omaha and Sioux City, where the scale is 19 cents.

"The packers, on the other hand, refused to pay more than 17½ cents an hour and declined to sign any agreement at all except with a small proportion of the workmen."

The last of the strikers here will not be out until near midnight. One hundred girls employed in Nelson, Morris & Co.'s label department struck in sympathy.

Many thousands of men who did not strike are compelled to be idle in the various cities.

While the strikers were passing out of the gates of the packing plants women, children and other sympathizers congregated and shouted encouragement.

Although no definite arrangements have been made by any of the packers for the hiring of nonunion men, five car loads of cots are distributed among the various plants.

The stock yards commission houses at once began wiring to all shipping points, advising cattle men to hold their stock until further notice.

The packers say there is fresh meat enough in Chicago to last about ten days.

Edward Morris, vice president of Nelson, Morris & Co., said that the company's plant did not have more than three or four days' supply of dressed meats on hand. The Swift plant has about three days' supply.

Before there was cessation of work Chief of Police O'Neill made a tour of the stock yards with a view to deciding the best manner of disposing of the police for protection against possible violence. Half of the total number of policemen at the stock yards station and at two adjoining stations were ordered held in reserve, to be available to meet any outbreak.

Other stations in the southern divisions of the city were notified to have policemen prepared for extra duty.

New men will not be employed for ten days, so the police profess not to expect trouble for that time.

The butcher workmen demand a minimum wage of 20 cents an hour for common labor and that the wages of the skilled workers should be equalized in each branch of the trade.

Bey of Tunis at Paris.

PARIS, July 13.—President Loubet gave a dinner to his guest, the bey of Tunis, at which there was a significant exchange of toasts. The president referred to the respect which the French government entertained for the traditions of the Mussulman population of Tunis, and the bey in reply expressed his appreciation of French support.

Church Struck by Lightning.

GENEVA, N. Y., July 13.—The First Evangelical Lutheran church in this city was struck by lightning and set on fire during a severe electrical storm last night. The heavy downpour of rain, which was without precedent here, extinguished the flames before much damage was done.

Plainfield, N. J., July 13, 1904.

And now it is Fairbanks who won't talk. Politics is getting to be reduced to a science.

We're threatened with a beef famine. Come to think of it we never did hanker after meat in hot weather anyway.

Mr. Bryan now offers himself as a sacrifice in the cause of harmony and is willing to be crucified "upon a cross of gold."

That St. Louis platform may be evasive, but what do you think of the New York Sun when it comes to the "beating around the bush" act?

Various party organs are telling of Mr. Cleveland's disappointment on not having his name considered by the Democrats at St. Louis. At the express wish of the former President, former United States Senator James Smith and former Representative Flanagan insisted that Mr. Cleveland be not placed in nomination.

The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune displays its ignorance when it says: "Mr. Cleveland is beginning to tumble to the fact that that private wire was an exceedingly unnecessary expenditure."

As a matter of fact the telegraph company places wires in the leading candidates' homes at the time of National conventions free of charge.

Those fiends in human form who attacked a Burlington woman have each been indicted on three separate counts and it is almost unnecessary to add that they will get the maximum penalty—forty-nine years imprisonment. The Grand Jury very sensibly recommends "that the law of this State providing a punishment for the crime of assault upon women be so altered as to provide for capital punishment or for imprisonment for any term of years, in the discretion of the trial jury, the present punishment for the said offense appearing to be inadequate."

A reunited Democracy exists after twelve years' bitter rebellion and Grover Cleveland and William J. Bryan, the recognized leaders of the two factions, both declare that they will not only support the ticket but will make campaign speeches. During Cleveland's second term his worst enemy was found within the ranks of his own party and the few "cuckoos" were the target of the radical element in the halls of Congress. The breech widened and the Cleveland element "bolted" the ticket after the name of the sage of Princeton had been hissed in the National Convention. Four years later there was no great change except possibly that the fight seemed to be more general. At last a platform has been made upon which the party stands reunited. Mr. Bryan says it is one that satisfies nobody and yet satisfies everybody. That does not speak well for the platform, but it serves a purpose—warfare in the ranks has ceased for the time being at least.

Double Attraction.

The excursion train of the Crescent Avenue Sunday-school tomorrow will stop at Netherwood both going and returning, so that persons wishing to go to the shore will be accommodated. The Sea Girt camp is but a short distance from Asbury Park and Plainfielders will have an opportunity to visit Co. K.

The City Republican Executive Committee will meet next Tuesday evening. On account of the rain last evening, this postponement was made necessary.

Both Stokes and Briggs have expressed a desire for the location of the Republican State headquarters in Trenton, and it is probable they will be established there, with possibly a branch headquarters in Newark, where the secretary will spend a portion of his time or an assistant secretary be left in charge.

Hon. A. A. Clark, of Somerville, one of the delegates to the Democratic Convention, said yesterday: "It is a strong ticket. Parker has shown by his actions that he is a man who thinks and acts for himself and his telegram, his first utterances, put all his opponents to confusion." Mr. Clark further predicted that Parker would carry New Jersey and New York and Davis will carry West Virginia.

President Roosevelt, Senator Fairbanks, and Chairman Cortelyou at Oyster Bay, held a conference yesterday that may continue through today. Mr. Cortelyou arrived on the 10 o'clock train. He declined to discuss the Democratic platform, Judge Parker's telegram, or anything of a political nature. The next to arrive was the Treasurer of the Republican National Committee, Cornelius N. Bliss. He reached the Roosevelts' residence in time for luncheon.

The announcement that Assemblyman George Cook, of Allendale, is a candidate for the Senatorial nomination has aroused the leaders of Bergen county, for Senator Edmund W. Wakelee is a candidate for renomination. Democrats expect to see a bad split in the G. O. P. ranks. Senator Wakelee has made a good record at Trenton. He has a staunch friend and supporter in former Senator W. M. Johnson, of Hackensack, one of the ablest Republican leaders in the State. Some of the Hackensack leaders are said to oppose Wakelee because he did not consult them during his term of office but used his own judgment on all matters of importance.

Senator Stokes's nomination for Governor on the Republican ticket this fall was about as thoroughly assured three years ago as now. He has not yet announced himself as a candidate, but that also is seemingly the thing with Republican candidates, Murphy's boom began a year before the nominating convention. Stokes, apparently, purposes to carry out the same coy policy. Although it is taken for granted by everybody that Stokes will be the candidate, Stokes enthusiasm, excepting in his own county of Cumberland, is at a premium. It is only within the last few months that some of the county leaders, especially in North Jersey, have become reconciled to his nomination. In South Jersey there has been not a little jealousy of the Cumberland man on the part of older leaders and politicians.

Making the election this fall almost as vital to the Republican party as the election of a Governor, is the fact that the Legislature next winter will elect a successor to Senator Kean. It is very important to the party that the Legislature, as well as the Governor, should be Republican. It is equally important to Senator Kean, who hopes to succeed himself, that the Legislature should be friendly to him. It so happens that most of the Republican bosses who haven't enthused much over Stokes are ardent Kean men. As a matter of fact, there is no reason to believe that Kean himself is particularly enthusiastic about Stokes's nomination. But Kean does know, and the county bosses know, that if anybody else were nominated for Governor South Jersey would probably be pretty nearly united in urging Stokes for Senator, and Kean is not taking chances when he can help it. The effect of all this was that a few months ago the Kean men about the State, who were hanging back, were all tipped off to get into line for Stokes.

—The city steam roller which has been engaged in repair work on lower West Front street, is to be shifted tomorrow to East Front street to make some needed improvements.

JAPANESE REVERSE

Russian Report Claims Great Victory at Port Arthur.

LOSSES PLACED AT THIRTY THOUSAND

Dispatch Says Enormous Casualties Were Caused by Russian Mines. Tokyo Dispatches Say Army Has Taken Sintchikou.

LONDON, July 13.—Advices from St. Petersburg say that, according to intelligence received from Mukden, the Japanese last night attacked positions near Port Arthur and were repulsed with enormous losses, not less than 30,000 being killed or wounded by Russian mines.

A Tokyo dispatch says that the Japanese Takushan army is moving northwest from Siuyen. It has fought a series of small battles with the Russians as it moved forward. The army is divided into two columns for its advance against the Russians. When the first column approached Chikuanching the Russians retreated southwest through the valley, but at nightfall they took up a position on the heights west of Chouchiachang.

The Russians were dislodged by the second Japanese column when it advanced along the road toward Tongchis. They attacked the advance line of the Russians near Siutanglaku. The Russians were re-enforced and compelled the Japanese to withdraw.

At dawn both columns attacked and dislodged the Russians from the height west of Cinchiaku. The Japanese pursued them and again attacked a strong position held by the Russians at Siutehikou. After a desperate fight the Japanese occupied the position. After occupying Kaichou General Oku's army moved northward. The Russians have strong defenses at Tapingshan, Nangmatai, Chinghishan and camps near Kuochiauao. General Oku will attack these positions as soon as his troops are rested.

A St. Petersburg special dispatch says that the Japanese advance to Tatchekiao is shrouded in mystery. It is thought there that the Japanese will not attempt to take Yinkow before they capture Tatchekiao, as otherwise they would be liable to an unexpected attack from the Tatchekiao force, which is within easy striking distance, thanks to the railroad.

The Japanese advance north will perhaps be delayed for some days until the southeastern columns converging at Siandian compel Major General Mistchenko to draw off, leaving the Siuyen road clear to Tantchie and Tatchekiao.

As soon as the Japanese troops enter Yinkow and succeed in removing the mines from the mouth of the Liao river the Japanese gunboats lying along the coast will come up, but it is not believed that the Japanese will venture to land a considerable force or to send war material so long as the Port Arthur squadron is able to come out whenever it likes.

British Ships Held Up by Russians.

PERIM, Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, July 13.—The British steamer Menelaus, from the Clyde for Shanghai, which arrived last night, reports that she and the British steamer Crewe Hall, from the Clyde for Kurrachee, were stopped on June 11 in the Red sea south of Jedda by the Russian volunteer fleet steamer St. Petersburg, which carried eight guns and a large crew. Both steamers were boarded and all their papers and manifests overhauled. The vessels were detained four hours, after which the St. Petersburg steamed off to the northward.

Verax Is on the Rocks.

SYDNEY, N. S., July 13.—A special from Quebec says the coal steamer Verax, bound for Sydney, was run into by the Donaldson line steamer Athenian of St. Laurent, Isle of Orleans, shortly after midnight. The Verax is now lying on the rocks with a hole sixteen feet long in her starboard side. The pilot of the Verax claims that he was hugging the shore going down and seeing the Athenian doing the same feared that he would be driven on the rocks and so attempted to cross to the other shore. The Athenian then crashed into the Verax's side and forced her ashore.

Alleged Fraud a Shoe Shiner.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 13.—John A. Ritter, formerly confidential clerk for A. P. Ordway & Co. of New York, has been arrested at Columbus, Neb. For about a year Ritter has been running a shoe shining shop at Columbus. He is charged with defrauding Ordway & Co. of $25,000.

Mrs. Clemens' Body at New York.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) and his two daughters, bringing the body of Mrs. Clemens, who recently died in Italy, have arrived here on the steamer Prinz Oskar from Genoa. Mrs. Clemens' body will be taken to Elmira, N. Y., for burial.

Killed Baby With a Hammer.

CINCINNATI, O., July 13.—Howard Dobell, aged four years, confessed to his parents and the coroner that he killed his brother, aged five months. The baby was sleeping when Howard hit it on the head with a hammer.

Cable Lines to Alaska.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Brigadier General A. W. Greely, chief signal officer, has left here for Seattle and Sitka, Alaska, where he will attend the formal opening of the government cable between those two cities.

Weather Forecast.

Fair and warmer; west winds.

HIGHBALL BROKE A LEG.

American Derby Winner Did Not Finish and May Be Shot.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Highball, the American Derby winner and one of the best of the three-year-olds, broke his leg at the ankle during the running of the Seagate stakes at Brighton Beach. Bud May, half owner of Highball, would not consent to have him shot, as Highball is insured for $25,000. A telephone message was sent to a representative of the insurance company in New York to come at once to look at the Derby winner and end his agony.

Only three faced the starter for the Seagate stakes, with Highball favorite at 11 to 20. Highball showed in front to the first turn, when he broke out and Odom had to hit him over the head to keep him in. Knight Errant then assumed the lead and showed the way to the finish, winning easily by two lengths from St. Valentine.

As the field swung into the stretch Highball was seen to falter, and Odom at once pulled him up and dismounted. After several attempts to walk him off the track a man held the broken leg while a half dozen others pushed him to the infield, where his leg was strapped up so it could not touch the ground.

Americans Will Win Cricket Match.

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—The international cricket match between Canada and the United States, on the grounds of the Merion Cricket club at Haverford, was cut short by a thunderstorm while the Canadians were at bat in the second inning. When stumps were drawn the Canadians had lost eight wickets in their second inning. Their grand total for the first inning and eight wickets of the second inning was 343, or 14 runs more than the Americans made in their first inning. The probabilities are that the Americans will easily win the match.

Bragg Won at Harlem.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Backed from 9 to 2 to 5 to 2, Bragg, under severe punishment, got up just in time to win from Action by a head in the final stride in the mile and a sixteenth handicap at Harlem. The struggle between the two lasted the full length of the stretch, Action holding the advantage to within three jumps of the wire, where Helgesen's superior finish on Bragg landed the latter in front. Outcome and Handzarra were the winning favorites.

Racing at World's Fair.

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—Three horses went to the post in the fair grounds feature. The race was a loaf to the stretch turn, where Jack Young, in the best going on the outside rail, and Taby Tosa, held in the heavy going by Young, began their run to the wire. The pair raced head and head down the stretch. Neely on Jack Young gradually forced Taby Tosa into the heaviest part of the track and won by a nose.

Spring Meeting at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 13.—The spring meeting at Narragansett park opened with excellent racing weather and a large attendance. Favorites won in two of the three classes, Jim Kyle taking the 2:15 pace and Ralph Wick having a walkover in the 2:13 trot. Anna Belle, a local horse, defeated the favorite, Pauline Simmons, in the 2:30 trot handily.

Chicago Basket Ball Champions.

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—The Buffalo Germans defeated the Central Y. M. C. A. team of Chicago in the last of the world's championship Olympic basket ball games at the Stadium, the score being 39 to 28. The victory carries with it the world's Olympic championship, each team having previously won four games in the series.

Tennis Tourney at New York.

NEW YORK, July 13.—In the second day's play of the invitation gentlemen's round robin tennis tournament in doubles of the Country club of Westchester R. D. Wrenn and G. L. Wrenn, Jr., beat W. J. Clothier and Edgar Leonard in a four set match. Wright and Ward also won in four sets in the other match of the day's play.

A LEGAL VIEW OF POUTING.

Missouri Judge Holds That a Husband Who Sulks Gives Good Ground for Divorce.

In deciding for the woman plaintiff in a divorce case recently, Judge Shelton, of Lancaster, Mo., held that pouting on the part of a husband was ground for separation.

Mrs. Mary M. Smith, aged 30, testified that she was married to Evan A. Smith in Scotland county, Mo., June 14, 1900, and that after her husband failed to establish a law practice at St. Louis they returned to Scotland county, where they lived with her parents.

"During the past 18 months," said the plaintiff, "Mr. Smith spent nearly all the time pouting. He would get in a corner and sulk and speak to nobody.

"It became unendurable. I tried to be kind to him, but received no encouragement. Once he brightened up enough to tell me I had no sense. I couldn't love an iceberg, judge, and just had to leave him."

Smith said he was quiet by nature, and not given to much talk. He added that he loved his wife, and never abused her.

The judge said the wife had a right to expect love making and caresses from her husband, and if she didn't receive them, she was justified in seeking a separation.

"A pouting woman is bad enough," the court said, aside, after leaving the bench, "but a pouting man is the limit of intolerance, and I don't believe the good Lord ever expected any woman to put up with such a creature. If she can, her wings are due."

PULLED GIRL FROM TRAIN.

"Why, Dick, You Love Me," Exclaimed Miss Chicago as She Regained Her Feet.

There was a remarkable scene at the St. Lazarre railway station, at Paris, the other day, that ended in a rapturous hug and kiss on the part of a young man and an American girl.

Just as the train for Cherbourg was pulling out the young man ran up to the last car, at the door of a compartment of which stood the girl, stylishly gowned, her face wreathed in smiles.

"Won't you say good-by to me?" cried the young man.

"Gladly, my boy," replied the girl, in a shrill soprano.

She held her hand out of the open window and the man grasped it as he ran alongside of the moving train. With a powerful grip he pulled her out on the platform, and they rolled over two or three times. The girl got up in tears and indignation. Then she got a look at the swain and saw something in his eyes.

"Why, Dick, you love me!" she exclaimed, gleefully, and she tumbled into his arms with all the emphasis in her. That ended the episode as far as the public was concerned, for the twain disappeared in a waiting carriage, and there is reason to believe that there will soon be work for a parson in their behalf. According to the New York World, the girl is said to be one of Chicago's fairest.

Stories in Oriental Rugs.

Real Turkish and Persian rugs have interwoven in their meshes characters that are not only legible, but are capable of translation by those familiar with the Arabic tongue. These inscriptions are usually worked round the borders of the rugs in such a manner as to make them easily distinguishable by the expert.

Women Swimmers

Several of Them Make Brilliant Records

IN many of the London public schools swimming pools are provided for the pupils, both girls and boys, and teachers are employed to give them free instruction. Perhaps because Great Britain is surrounded by water on all sides more interest is taken in the noble exercise of swimming than is the case in America. In the lovely island of Jersey the public authorities have inclosed beside the sea at St. Helier's a spacious swimming pool for ladies. There, with the winds and waves of the ocean tempered by rocky cliffs that rise toward the northwest, with the sky of ineffable blue above, all the air full of electricity, seaweed odor and sunshine, the ladies' swimming pool lies in a sheltered cove.

Some of the rosy, hardy Jersey girls take dips in that tank in midwinter, although I have the word of one of them that she did not stay in the water very long. The Hilson sisters, who live near the pool, are among the best swimmers of Great Britain. Jersey sends some of these fine girl experts to England to the annual contests for the woman's championship. At Bath every year is held a series of swimming matches for women which attract notice throughout the country. King Edward and Queen Alexandra sometimes attend the contests, and the king so much approves of the feminine sex learning to swim that he has presented a challenge cup, which is in custody of the ladies' swimming club of Bath, to be striven for by women of all nations. No American woman has won it.

In the United States unfortunately so far there is nobody to encourage the art of swimming among women, and they must therefore encourage themselves. This matter is quite a proper subject for action on the part of women's clubs and organizations of mothers. It is really a disgrace to our land that in quite half of its area a boy cannot learn to swim unless he and his mates sneak out surreptitiously to some "swimming hole" and splash in the water on the sly. They have no suits and when they take off their clothes and go into the water they are regarded as indecent and improper "bad boys." They are often hounded as nuisances off the property of the landowner to whom the swimming hole happens to belong. Nuisances they certainly are at times, yet it is only because they have no chance to be otherwise.

As for the poor little American girls, those who live away from the seashore have little opportunity to learn to swim, and thousands of our women have been drowned because they did not know how even to keep afloat upon the water.

Where the proper facilities exist fathers and mothers should themselves take their girls to the swimming pool at least once a week in the season. Unfortunately at present few mothers know how to swim, but most fathers do. That father is criminally negligent who, himself a swimmer, will not teach his little daughters also to become such. A bathing suit for a little girl is easily made. It need consist only of a single combination garment, as light and scant as possible, covering the body from the shoulders to the knees, with an opening for buttoning down the front to a little way below the waist. For girls in their teens a very scant skirt reaching to just above the knee may be buttoned around the waist. On general principles, the less clothing there is to weigh down and hamper the better.

American women are generally not so good swimmers as their British sisters. Our best are those who have been brought up near the seashore and learned to swim when they were little, practicing every summer. Several of these reside in the vicinity of New York city. One, Miss Margaret McDonald, has swum seven miles without stopping. She has saved several lives. Once, in a race in which four men and two women were her competitors, all the rest, even the men, gave up because of the rough water, leaving Miss McDonald the only one to finish.

Last summer the woman's world's record for a 100 yard dash in open water was made by another New York girl, Miss Ethel Golding. She made the distance in 1 minute 24 2-5 seconds. The world's record for the open water 100 yard dash is held by a man, who swam it in 1 minute 5 1-5 seconds. Miss Golding, Ethel's sister, is also a noted swimmer.

THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

CHAPTER I.

Under the scorching rays of an afternoon sun the limitless expanse of the African veldt lay shimmering and quivering in torrid heat.

All around there rose, fold upon fold, an interminable and maddening succession of low, rounded rises, clothed to their stony summits with short, coarse grass and purple karroo bushes, the reddish soil baked hard by the drought of the dry season.

Scarcely a sound broke the stillness of the wilderness; not a wing whirred; not an insect buzzed. There was no spoor or sign of game, large or small—most of it had been killed off long ago. The grass bent languidly to the faint draught that came out of the north as from a furnace mouth.

All nature drooped and panted for nightfall; the desolation was profound; the silence was oppressive.

Out of the west, following the windings of a little kloof, there crept a lumbering, dusty, and dirty white-topped wagon, of the kind used by traders or hunters, innumerable creakings and groanings and shudderings testifying to many day's journeying with a "plentiful lack" of axle-grease.

Four poorly-conditioned oxen drew the cumbersome equipage. The lolling tongues of the beasts, their languid, dragging steps, and their lean condition told eloquently of hard travel and scanty forage.

By the side of the cattle shambled two Kaffir "boys," each armed with a long goad. In front of the team strode a white man, his naturally white face tanned to a dusky red, his clothing soiled and travel-stained from many nights' sleeping out, his veldt-schoon in the last stages of dilapidation. Resting in the hollow of his left arm lay a shining Winchester, the best-kept and smartest thing in the whole of his shabby outfit. For upon the rifle the little band of adventurers depended mainly for their subsistence from day to day. Game was scarce and shy; the wagon was none too plentifully stocked with the bare necessaries of flour, sugar, and coffee; a poor shot might mean a supperless bed.

He was a giant in stature—fully six feet two, with the build and brawn of the pioneer. In age he was on the better side of 30. A great brown beard swept his chest, and there was a tawny mustache to match, while from under the front peak of his fore-and-aft pith helmet there gleamed a clean-cut profile and a pair of keen, Saxon blue eyes of the kind that are apt to be undimmed by fatigue or undaunted by disaster.

Slowly the little caravan plodded on, the Kaffirs continually urging the wearied beasts with throaty, clicking sounds, the white "baas" striding sturdily along, consulting a pocket-compass from time to time as the windings of the kloof brought the sun now upon one hand, and anon upon the other.

Evening was approaching; not more than a couple of hours' daylight remained; it was time to be thinking of a camp for the night.

After a more than usually heavy ascent, the oxen of their own accord stopped to breathe, the Kaffirs squatting listlessly under the wagon out of the sun. The white man, glancing back for a moment, strode without halting to the summit of the nearest kopje, and there stood shading his eyes and looking steadfastly northeast. Suddenly he was roused by a loud cry:

"Water, baas! I smell water!" shouted one of the "boys," pointing in the same direction.

Simultaneously the drooping oxen picked up their heads, and of their own accord started onward at a smarter pace. The "baas" descended and fell in at the rear of the wagon, for the Kaffir instinct is infallible, and water was surely not far away. This meant not only renewed life for the cattle, a camping place, and probably some game for the pot, but also the goal of their journey.

Likewise success or another dismal failure!

Half a mile was covered in this fashion, the man in the helmet consulting a rude map as he stumbled through the slippery veldt grass, after which, with an exclamation of satisfaction, he called out:

"We must be nearly there, Joey!"

Scarcely had the words left his lips than the heavy wagon commenced to move more speedily down an easy decline, and the weary beasts broke into a shambling trot.

A sudden turn round the shoulder of a hill revealed the wider expanse of a little valley, perhaps a half mile broad, through which meandered a thin ribbon of shallow water, bordered by a narrow expanse of pebbly beach that in time of flood would be entirely covered with a yellow, swirling torrent.

In a trice the wagon stopped, the oxen were unhitched and galloping towards the water, into the center of which they waded knee-deep, drinking greedily of the precious fluid. This done, they proceeded to wallow in the stream, after which they turned their attention to the more succulent grass growing near by.

Although the near-by kopjes were casting long shadows eastward, there was yet more than an hour of daylight.

Methodically and silently the younger native proceeded to unpack the scanty camp utensils and build a fire, while Joey, taking a gun from the bed of the wagon, sneaked off up-stream in quest of an eland, a harte-beeste, or a klipspringer buck.

The white man, leaving all these details to his "boys," strode off in the contrary direction down-stream, apparently at random and as though he were likewise looking for game, until out of sight around a bend. Then his whole demeanor changed. He attentively studied the dried-up shore on either hand, crossing the exposed river beach diagonally from the farther margin of caked bluish clay to the strip of coarse gravel and pebbles that bordered the water's edge.

Apparently the indications were satisfactory. Bending nearly double, he eagerly scanned the patches of pebbles, scratching here and there with his fingers, and letting the stuff winnow through his hand.

Suddenly, with an ejaculation of pleasure and triumph, he dropped his weapon and began to pick up pebbles here and there. Curious dirty-looking stones they were, grayish white and rusty, but having strange fiery gleams in their depths.

With feverish haste he produced a stout canvas bag, holding perhaps a quart, tied with leathern thongs. Greedily he continued his quest, picking up stones apparently at hap-hazard, but really with the quick selection of the expert. Some of them were hardly bigger than a pea, many others were as large as a marble or a hazel-nut, a few even larger.

Now, it is a blessed peculiarity of precious stones, cut or uncut, rough or polished, set or unset, that a fortune may be contained in one very small compass. And although mere size does not always count in assessing the value of a stone, yet those which our prospector had gathered might be expected to be worth anywhere from a hundred to a thousand pounds apiece. For in knocking about the diamond fields he had become something of a connoisseur, and in picking over this new field he had with quick decision selected only the finest specimens, albeit only in the rough.

The whole "claim," when properly exploited, would doubtless prove to be very rich, and of this claim he was of course the owner by right of discovery, in which the drastic mining laws of the colony would jealously protect him.

An hour sufficed to fill the bag, the mouth of which he quickly fastened and flung it on the sand. Then, raising his clenched fists towards the heavens, cried in a voice hoarse with excitement and triumph:

"At last! At last!"

With a grim smile lifting the corners of his tawny mustache he gave the bag a kick and thus apostrophized its contents:

"There you are, my beauties! This is my claim, and I'm one of the richest men in South Africa!"

For that dirty canvas bag held twice a double handful of diamonds, and the claim would be worth no man could say how much. Richard Dysart's quest was ended; he had found a virgin deposit of those precious white stones, for which, not two hundred miles away, in Kimberly, an army of white men and Kaffir slaves were madly tearing out the bowels of the continent.

Dysart picked up the bag, walked to where he had thrown down his Winchester, and turned his face towards camp. A distant rifle shot rang out at that instant and apprised him that Joey had probably brought down their supper.

"Confound the fellow!" he muttered. "I wish he hadn't fired the gun!"

The sun had disappered below the hills to the westward, and in less than a quarter of an hour it would be dark.

Coming in sight of camp, he discovered Joey in the act of skinning and cutting up a young buck, while the other boy was tending a cheerful fire built of drift wood left high and dry on the river bank.

Flinging himself down by the fire, the precious bag by his side, Dysart removed his helmet, baring his white forehead to the cooling night-breeze, which was even now briskly fanning the fire.

As he sat there, plans for the future came trooping through his brain. Now he could go home to England. The weary years of wandering, hardship, and ill-luck were all behind him. He saw himself taking his proper place once more among his fellows, wealthy beyond the most sanguine dreams of ambition or avarice. No more sleeping out on the veldt, frozen by night and roasted by day—for your African desert, even within 20 degrees of the equator, is as cold as Labrador between sunset and sunrise. There was a gentleman's estate, good society, and pleasures innumerable at the end of the journey!

And a wife, perhaps—the queenly Marcia Churchill.

They had laughed at him in Kimberly when he talked of a new diamond country away off to the northeast, and no one had faith enough in his scheme, based on a story heard from an old Kaffir, to lend him a paltry 100 pounds for an outfit. Well, the laugh was his now! He would be a diamond king!

Through all his visions of the past with its cruel hardships, and of the future with its golden triumphs, there floated a fair face—a woman's face—crowned with an aureole of dusky hair, framing a pair of steadfast gray eyes that could look a man through and through, and forever banish falsehood and guile.

But perhaps she had not waited! Ah, in that case—and with a sudden tightening of the chest Dysart half rose to his feet, showing himself full in the ruddy glare of the fire.

As if in answer to the cruel thought, from out of the darkness across the narrow stream there was an angry spat of flame, a sharp report, and with a groan Richard sank back as though lifeless, shot through the body!

A sound of hurried and scrambling footsteps, a sudden plashing in the shallow water, and then there appeared out of the darkness whence the shot had come the form of a man running swiftly. He made straight for the silent figure of his victim, grabbed the bag of diamonds lying by his side, and vanished in the blackness whence he had come.

A life-tragedy in the space of two hundred ticks of the watch!

The two Kaffir boys, startled by the shot, saw only the silent form of the "baas" and the swiftly moving apparition that seemed to swoop down upon them out of the African night.

With a simultaneous yell they dropped their tasks and fled into the surrounding blackness. Richard Dysart was left alone—dying, perhaps dead—alone on the veldt, treacherously and cruelly robbed of his hard-won treasure!

CHAPTER II.

When two men fall out who are closely allied by blood or by friendship the breach is apt to be all the more deadly and bitter than if they had been only mere acquaintances.

And when the same men quarrel over a woman, covertly or openly, beware of the consequences, for a very pretty feud is apt to ensue.

It was Richard Dysart's misfortune to be born the younger son in a family long in lineage but short in wealth. He was bred to the law, having hopes of family influence and preferment in that quarter, his own taste being for the army. But old Sir Arthur Dysart, his father, had his own way, and Rick religiously kept his terms and ate his dinners at the Temple.

The elder brother, also named Arthur—there had always been a Sir Arthur Dysart since Charles Second's time—was of a studious turn, being slight and dark in stature and complexion, presenting a complete antithesis to his Berserk younger brother. In tastes and likings they were also at opposites. Arthur seldom shot over his father's preserves; Rick was never so happy as when he had a gun over his shoulder and a good dog at heel. Arthur loved books and flowers and music, and was something of a colorist; Rick almost hated the sight of a book, and esteemed a ride to the hounds worth more than a library of Elzevirs, and the merry toot of the huntsman's horn prettier than a classic symphony.

But it must not be inferred that Arthur was by any means a milk-sop—he was a type of the modern English gentleman, than whom there is none finer on God's footstool; and if his pursuits were of the more peaceful order, he could, nevertheless, be trusted to hold his own anywhere and with anybody.

Now, the Dysart acres were strictly entailed, and as a younger son Richard Dysart could not expect more than a modest inheritance. Old Sir Arthur had foreseen this, and managed to lay by a few hundreds which at his death he intended to bequeath to Rick to tide him over the briefless days that come to every budding barrister. Stella Dysart, the sister, was amply provided for, her mother's jointure having been settled upon her absolutely.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark.

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the property perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

WANT LAW ALTERED.

True Bills Returned Against Assailants of Mrs. Biddle.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., July 13.—The grand jury of Burlington county has returned three bills of indictment against Aaron Timbers, Jonas Sims and William Austin, one for felonious assault upon Mrs. Elsie T. Biddle, one for assault with intent to kill and one for breaking and entering the residence of Thomas Stricker on the Rancocas road. For these three offenses the maximum penalty is forty-nine years.

Indictments were also found against Joseph and Israel Timbers, brothers of Aaron, and Horace Robinson of Burlington, as accessories after the fact and for obstructing the police officers in the discharge of their duty when they were searching for the three principal offenders.

In making their presentment the grand jury offered the following resolution:

"This grand jury hereby recommends that the law of this state providing a punishment for the crime of rape be so altered as to provide for capital punishment or for imprisonment for any term of years in the discretion of the trial jury, the present punishment for the said offense appearing to be inadequate."

GOLDEN RULE MAYOR DEAD.

Samuel M. Jones Passed Away Last Night at Toledo.

TOLEDO, O., July 13.—Samuel M. Jones, the Golden Rule mayor, died at his home last night at 5:07 o'clock as the result of a complication of diseases. The immediate cause of his death was an abscess on his lungs. When this abscess broke the mayor was not strong enough to throw off the poison from his system and death resulted. The mayor had suffered for years from asthma, and this was the primary cause of his fatal illness.

The death of Mayor Jones has caused the greatest sorrow all over the city. Although many did not believe in his ideas on sociological problems, everybody loved and respected him. His one great strong hold with the people of Toledo was his honesty. He will be succeeded as mayor by Robert Finch, president of the city council.

Belmont Murder Trial Opened.

BELMONT, N. Y., July 13.—The trial of Antonio Georgia, one of the four Italians charged with the murder of John Van Gorder and his half-sister, Anna Farnham, has begun here. District Attorney Church said he would show that the prisoner and his companions went to the Van Gorder farm on the night preceding the murder apparently for the purpose of buying provisions, and that the double murder was committed for the purpose of robbery. He said they would trace the Italians from the farmhouse to Swain's, the nearest railroad station to the scene of the murder, and from there to Buffalo, where they were arrested. The Van Gorders were stabbed to death with stilettos.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Mike Leonard has signed to play third base for Hoboken in place of Sweeney, who only officiated in a few games.

Montross and Allen composed the battery for Garwood A. C., on Saturday in the contest against the Westfield A. O. U. W. Westfield won 6 to 1.

Moorehead, who covered second for Chatham on Saturday, was at once remembered as the old Hackett-Carhart and West End player. He was given a cordial welcome.

Trenton Y. M. C. A. shut out the Murray Hills on Monday by a score of 4 to 0. The visitors secured six hits off Kline, while the association boys got nine off Deegan, the deaf mute.

The Aeolians will go up against Westfield on Saturday in the third contest of the series. The organists hope to repeat their former work and snow under Manager Denman's pets.

Manager Johnston has decided to let Badgley, the pitcher, go. He did not exactly come up to the manager's expectations in some respects. Johnston expects to land a better man in the near future.

Wells, the new captain of the Princeton 'Varsity baseball team, lives at Hopewell, and he frequently coaches the fast Hopewell aggregation. The locals defeated Towandas on Saturday by a score of 4 to 3.

A baseball contest is being arranged for among some local newspapermen and lawyers. It will take place on Crescent Oval on Tuesday afternoon. It is understood that officers of the Plainfield Bar Association will officiate as umpires.

Jack Warner, of the New York Giants, has the reputation of being one of the most courteous men in baseball. He is unassuming off the field as well as on it, and cheerfully answers all reasonable questions from strangers as well as lifelong friends.

Twenty-four fielding chances, accepted without an error, four hits, two steals and three runs, including participating in a fine double play, were Gilbert's record for the New York Nationals in the two games against Philadelphia on the Fourth.

They are after "Kid" Walton. While the infant phenom was eating 'em up on the field in Saturday's game, a telegram from J. A. Ernst, captain of the Corning, N. Y., nine, offering him $100 a month and transportation came to the box office. Ernst begged the "Kid" to come at once. The Cornings are one of the strongest aggregations of athletes playing independent ball in New York State.

According to the official score the Aeolians were defeated by Alis last Saturday in a 12 inning contest, 1 to 0. With any fair-minded umpire, however, Alis would have lost the game, but with Merrity handling the reins Alis could not lose, and by robbery of the most glaring kind the organ grinders were doomed to defeat. Westfield knows full well all about Merrity—that gentleman umpired a game in Westfield a season or two ago for the Equitable Life team and his work was most disgraceful.—Westfield Standard.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

A few members of the Park Club are becoming interested in bowling on the green and it is one of the probabilities that the game may be introduced at the club in the near future.

Mayor "Bill" Smith, of New Market, is becoming quite an adept chauffeur. He recently purchased a 14-horse-power Olde-Tenneau from F. L. C. Martin, the Park avenue "auto" man, and spends much of his time on automobile runs through the towns about Plainfield.

ROD AND GUN.

James R. Blair and Isaac Vail spent yesterday at Boynton Beach, fishing. Each secured a mess which was enjoyed for supper last night.

Wood to Succeed Lanning.

Peace reigns in the Mercer County Republican camp. Former Assemblyman Ira W. Wood having consented to take the nomination for Congress, in the Fourth district which includes Somerset county, succeeding William M. Lanning, who recently resigned to become United States Court Judge. This avoids a lot of trouble which seemed to be brewing and clears the way for several adjustments which will add to the strength of the party.

—Mrs. U. G. Pierson, of Richmond street, recently lost a valuable pin. She advertised her loss in The Daily Press. An employe of the postoffice, a reader of The Daily Press, found the pin on July 5 and returned it to the owner.

SEEK MAYOR BILL'S MONEY

BURGLARS AT WORK IN FAIR HEIR'S NEW MARKET HOSTELRY.

After a cessation of excitement of any kind for several weeks, New Market citizens awoke this morning to find that burglars had invaded the quite precincts of the village during the night and had visited several places. They may have been members of a bold, bad gang attracted by the stories of Mayor Bill Smith's stacks of greenbacks and gold but their trip was devoid of any great gain.

The men evidently came in via the Lehigh Valley road and first looked in the office of Charles Kelly, coal and grain merchant. Bolts and bars were no barrier to their progress and in a short time they were working over the office safe. It was opened easily but Mr. Kelly knows a thing or two and there was nothing in it but books and binder twine. A search of the office, as revealed by the topsy-turvy state of affairs, showed as much more and the nocturnal prowlers departed plunderless.

A second place visited was Thornton's hotel on the hill, presented to the proprietor by "Mayor Bill" and which they evidently mistook for the chief executive's mansion. While they again found money as scarce as Parker speeches they came upon Thornton's stock of liquid goods and took a generous portion. A close inspection this morning showed the following to be missing: One bottle of champagne, held over from the Mayor's recent dinner, ten bottles of whiskey and several boxes of cigars. They may have played a few games of pool on the table in the parlor but there was no harm done and everything was found intact.

Several residents near the hotel were awakened at an early hour by strange noises and they are positive that their homes were selected for visitations that were afterward crossed off the list, as no windows or doors had been tampered with. The leading villagers sleuthed about today but so far no trace of the scoundrels has been found. If found, the plunder will be confiscated and Jersey justice will be dealt out in large chunks.

DELEGATES ARE APPORTIONED

IMPORTANT TRANSACTIONS AT COUNTY REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE MEETING.

A meeting of the Union County Republican Committee was held in the Dix building at Elizabeth, last evening, for the purpose of considering several matters of interest. The attendance was large and included James F. Buckle, James Morrison and William Newcorn, of this city.

A communication from the State committee was read, acknowledging the receipt of a communication from Chairman Hamilton F. Kean recommending John W. Murray, Jr., of Plainfield, as a member of the County Board of Elections. Notice was given by the chairman of the number of delegates to which the districts are now entitled under the new amendment to the Primary act. By it Plainfield's representation will be as follows: First ward—State, 2; congressional, county and city, 4; Second ward—State, 2; congressional, county and city, 5; Third ward—State, 2; congressional, county and city, 5; Fourth ward—State, 3; congressional, county and city, 7.

SCHOOL PLANS CHANGED.

Board of Education Orders Alterations to Keep Within Limit.

A special meeting of the city Board of Education was held last evening for the purpose of conferring with the architect with reference to the changes necessary in the new High School plans before bids can again be invited. He presented his report and it was carefully considered from all sides. By cutting out some features, substituting limestone for granite, a cheaper brick for gray brick and other changes, it is hoped to reduce the cost to the $105,000 available.

It is thought this meeting will suffice for the changes and the architect will have the new plans ready for contractors on July 22 in order to have the new bids submitted on August 9.

Awful Effect of Borough Fire Water.

Marshal Flack, of the borough force, gathered in a drunk on Somerset street, last night, thought to be a farm hand from over the mountains. He was still under the influence this morning and could tell nothing about himself. If he is in fit condition he will be given a hearing tonight.

Mission Secretary to Speak.

N. J. Wright, of Washington, who is eastern secretary for the American Christian Missionary Society, will speak at the Rescue Mission meeting in the Christian church, tomorrow night.

—New Edison records for July in stock. All the latest. Call and hear the same. Harry K. Lister, North avenue.

Colonel William Edwards, of San Fnancisco, who is a brother to Maze Edwards, of this city, has been appointed chairman of the escort and reception committee of the Knight Templars triennial conclave to be held in September. Colonel Edwards is Eminent Commander of Golden Gate Commandery and a Past Worshipful Master of Golden Gate Lodge, of San Francisco. He has informed his brother in this city that the Plainfield delegation will receive a cordial welcome.

A delegation of distinguished Englishmen, the highest officers of the Great Priory of England and Wales, will attend the triennial conclave of the Grand Commandery of the United States, Knights Templar, in San Francisco, next September. They came on an official visit, representing the Great Priory of England and Wales, of the United Order of Britian and of Ireland, and as personal representatives of King Edward VII, and the Duke of Connaught. It is the first time in the history of Templarism that such an honor has been conferred upon the Grand Encampment of the United States. The party will be headed by the most eminent and supreme grand master of the Great Priory of England and Wales, the Earl of Euston, grand cross templar; Charles F. Matier, the great vice-chancellor and grand cross templar; Charles E. L. Wright, past grand prelate; Abraham Woodiwiss, knight commander of the temple, Thomas Phipps Dornan, knight commander of the temple; Alfred James Thomas and Thomas Frazer. The guests will be assigned the place of honor in the great Templar parade. A dinner and reception will be given in their honor, and they will be escorted on excursions to places of interest in the interior and up and down the coast.

PLAINFIELD MILITIA IS GIVEN AN OVATION

Co. K Boys Receive Great Applause As They March Past Reviewing Officers.

VISITORS AT SEA GIRT

UNION'S FREEHOLDERS AND PLAINFIELDERS CALL AT CAMP.

Corporal Bilyeu Improving—Photograph of Local Company is Taken—All in Good Spirits.

Camp Franklin Murphy,
Sea Girt, July 14.

There is joy in the ranks of Company K today and not a little pride is exhibited by the Plainfield boys. The latter is pardonable because of the honor accorded them at the regimental review held Tuesday evening. Of all the companies participating, Company K was the only one greeted by applause as the reviewing officers were passed. Not only did the spectators greet the boys with vociferous handclapping but the officers themselves expressed their approval in a decided way.

We have as guests of the company at present members of the Union County Board of Freeholders and they are enjoying the visit immensely. They have been taken in charge by the officers and time will not hang heavy on their hands. The party includes William A. Westphal, Major King, Thomas Pierson, George Oladek, Mr. Connolly and Mr. Marsh.

Last night a photograph was taken of the regiment for which occasion it was placed in line of masses. The photo is an excellent one, proof of which has been shown in camp today. The following Plainfielders visited camp yesterday: Miss Mildred Thayer, Harold Chandor, Webster Littell, William Huiskamper, Mrs. Harriet, Mrs. Lewis, Mr. Bartis and Mrs. Trenchand.

Today will be red letter day for the regiment as this is Governor's day and all the politicians in the State are expected in the little White House, and will see the regiment reviewed by the Governor.

The men stationed in the County Jail are kept awake by the loud snoring of "Red" Emmons and "Col." Dorgan. Corporal Bilyeu has improved greatly and was able to take his place in line this morning.

YOUTHFUL THIEVES CAUGHT

F. W. YATES CAPTURED WALTER CARR AND WILLIE VANHORN.

The fruit stealing expeditions on the part of the small boys in the neighborhood of Kensington avenue, were brought to an abrupt end early last evening by the arrest of a pair of the youthful marauders at the premises of Frederick W. Yates, on that thoroughfare. The residents of the locality have been the victims of thefts of apples and vegetables ever since the summer began, and last evening Walter Carr, who lives on Putnam avenue, and Willie VanHorn, of North avenue, were captured in the act of stealing apples from one of Mr. Yates' trees.

Mr. Yates caught the boys himself and detained them at his home while he telephoned to police headquarters. The patrol wagon responded with Chief Kelly and Patrolman McGinley. The Chief gave the lads a forceful warning against further offenses, but as Mr. Yates refused to press any charges, the offenders were dismissed.

ITALIANS ON A STRIKE

MEN DIGGING IN TRENCHES QUIT, BUT SOON RETURN TO WORK.

A local strike occurred yesterday morning among the Italians employed in the sewer work on Leland avenue, Netherwood. A workman had some sort of a quarrel with the gang foreman, John Murtaugh, and high words followed. Murtaugh discharged the man, whereupon the other members of the gang refused to work longer and about thirty of them left the trench. By afternoon, however, the trouble had blown over and all but eight were willing to resume work. The men who did not go back say they quit out of sympathy for their brother workman.

INVENTS A CUP HOLDER

ROBERT LOVE APPLIES FOR PATENT ON COMMUNION SERVICE DEVICE.

Robert Love, of the borough, has applied to the U. S. patent office for a patent on an individual communion cup holder. It is a neat and very simple affair and will undoubtedly be installed in all churches where there are individual sets for administering communion.

The holder is constructed of nickle-plated wire and has two circles to accommodate as many cups. They are held by a projection fitted with a sharpened point which makes it easy for them to be attached to the back of any pew. As soon as cups have been used in communion they can be easily and quickly disposed of by placing them in the holder and can be collected at leisure. Mr. Love will have the holders manufactured in this city.

CONSENTS TO BE REFEREE

JUDGE RUNYON SAYS HE WILL ACT FOR ALIS IN SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTE.

City Judge William N. Runyon has consented to represent the Alis Club in a settlement of the disputed Alis-Westfield game. It is quite likely that Randolph Perkins will represent the Westfield Club and the two will select a third man. As yet Judge Runyon has heard nothing from Mr. Perkins or the Westfield Club, but something will probably be done this week as Judge Runyon will leave on Sunday for Cincinnati to attend the convention of Elks.

However, it is not considered imperative that the matter in question should be settled quickly. The dispute is to have no bearing on the coming series and the dispute may be settled at the convenience of the committee of three. As soon as Mr. Runyon and Mr. Perkins can get together the third member of the committee will be chosen, but until then nothing can be done.

The first contest in the series between Plainfield and Westfield will be on Crescent Oval on Saturday, July 23.

ARRANGE TENNIS DOUBLES.

Entries for Y. M. C. A. Tournament Close Saturday Night.

The committee appointed Tuesday for the arrangement of the midsummer tournament in tennis doubles at the Y. M. C. A. drew up certain necessary rules for the playing of the matches at a meeting held yesterday. The entries will close Saturday night and so far four teams of players have entered the contest. Play will commence Monday afternoon and each match will be for two out of three sets. The prize for the winning team has not been decided upon as yet.

Wedding Reception.

A wedding reception was given Tuesday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Waldron, of 50 Chatham street. The affair was largely attended, there being guests present from Bound Brook, Mount Pleasant, Alton, Springdale and this city. Mr. and Mrs. Waldon received many handsome gifts, and Mrs. Waldron was presented with a piano by her husband. Refreshments were served late in the evening.

Double Installation of Officers.

Two degrees were worked on six candidates at the meeting of Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., last night and arrangements were made for the double installation of officers at the next meeting, when Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., will join with Queen City Lodge for this purpose. It is expected that there will be many visitors present from nearby lodges and a supper will be served after the installation ceremonies.

REPURLICANS SURE OF CARRYING STATE

Party Leaders Here Declare That New Jersey Will Go for Roosevelt.

ESTIMATE MAJORITY

SOME LOCAL POLITICIANS EXPRESS THEIR PREDICTIONS.

Mayor Jenkins, City Judge Runyon, Sheriff Coriell, James F. Buckle, John W. Murray, Jr., and James T. MacMurray Interviewed.

Mayor O. L. Jenkins—I believe that Roosevelt is fully as strong as McKinley was in his last election and I have no doubt whatever but that he will not only be elected, but that he will carry New Jersey by a large majority.

John W. Murray, Jr.—Cleveland is the only one who could stand a chance on a gold platform. Roosevelt will carry New Jersey by at least 30,000 and will be elected easily.

Frank H. Smith—Roosevelt will carry New Jersey by 30,000. Cleveland would have been much stronger in this State than Parker. Roosevelt will have as many electrol votes as McKinley had.

Andrew McCardell—I think Roosevelt is equally as strong as McKinley was and I do not think that there is any question but what he will carry New Jersey, in fact I cannot see how Parker can defeat the Republican ticket.

James T. MacMurray—Roosevelt will have at least 25,000 majority in New Jersey. There is no question about his election. The Democratic platform is very weak, don't you think so?

James F. Buckle—You can't tell much about majorities. It looks to me that the Republican party will hold New Jersey by a safe majority. I don't think the Democrats can get together and from the way things seem now Roosevelt will have no trouble.

William N. Runyon—I can not see that there will be any material change in the State. Roosevelt ought to carry it without any difficulty. I believe 25,000 majority for the Republican ticket is about right for Jersey.

George J. Tobin—While I believe that Roosevelt will be elected, I also believe that the independent vote will be influenced somewhat by Judge Parker's nomination. As for the Republican rank and file I do not think there is any question but that Roosevelt will get its hearty support.

B. Frank Coriell—I firmly believe that Roosevelt will be elected, but if by any chance there should be a change to Parker, I think the Democrats have selected a man in whose hands the country would be safe. Naturally, if there is a change, there would surely follow a season of depression in business. It would be just as true if the Democrats were in power and a change was made to a Republican form of government.

BAND ANNOYS SPEAKERS

OPEN-AIR CONCERT INTERFERES WITH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH MEEETING.

The usual weekly prayer meeting at the First Presbyterian church last evening, was conducted under trying circumstances and all but had to be abandoned. Concert Park, where the popular band concerts are held, is but a few hundred feet away and the worshippers had barely assembled when the strains from LaVere's band floated in upon them. At times the speakers could barely be heard while singing was almost impossible. It was only while the band intermissions took place that the meeting could properly be conducted.

When Mr. LaVere was informed of the matter this morning he expressed sincere regret that the concert had conflicted with the meeting and stated there would be no recurrence of the trouble. He had selected Friday evenings for the concerts but had to hold this week's last evening because of several other important matters occurring on the regular night. Hereafter Wednesday will not be set for any concert that cannot be held on Friday.

—George Egel, a dispenser of soda water and ice cream at L. W. Randolph's drug store, will take his two weeks' vacation during August. He will probably spend the time at the seashore.

FORECAST OF COUNTY REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Frank H. Smith's Nomination As Registrarer of Deeds is Reasonably Certain.

ASSEMBLY CANDIDATES

EMBERY, TILLMAN AND COYNE LIKELY TO BE NAMED.

James C. Calvert Probable Candidate for County Clerk—Review of the Political Situation.

Friends of City Collector Frank H. Smith express themselves as feeling reasonably certain now that he will be nominated at the Union County Republican convention for Registrar of the Deeds, an office created by the last Legislature. There is only one other candidate in the field, He is Major Hicks, of Summit. The latter's boom is merely local and it is not believed that there will be any trouble from that quarter when the convention meets. If he is nominated, it is expected that Mr. Smith will receive such a vote as will insure his election by a good majority. In that event the Plainfield man will take office within one week after the election, which falls on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Mr. Smiths' candidacy has the support of County Chairman Hamilton F. Kean as well as the local leaders. James T. MacMurray, Andrew McCardell, Dr. Olin L. Jenkins, William N. Runyon and the other local leaders are heart and soul for the popular Fourth ward man. From Rahway has come the assurance that the politicians there favor Mr. Smith. Charles Codding says that Westfield will whoop it up for the Plainfield candidate in the proper fashion.

In addition to a registrar of deeds, there are several other candidates to be named. Three assemblymen are to be nominated. The fortunate men will likely be George H. Embery, of Westfield; Peter Tillman, of Rahway and Edward Coyne, of Elizabeth. Tillman and Coyne are popular here, but Plainfield politicians do not take to Embery, but they claim that Westfield should be allowed to name its own candidate and its choice should be respected by the convention. James C. Calvert, of Elizabeth, is likely to be named as county clerk.

The county committee will not select the date for the convention until its meeting during the forepart of September. The convention will take place during the latter part of the same month.

FREDERICK VISITS HOSPITAL

WRECK VICTIM CONFINED AT INSTITUTION EXPRESSES GRATITUDE.

Desiring to express his appreciation of the kind services rendered by the nurses and attendants while he was confined to the institution, Wilson Fredrick, of Dunellen, paid a visit to Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon. He was accompanied by Dr. F. W. Brakely, of Dunellen, and the two spent some time inspecting the place.

It was Mr. Fredrick's first visit to the institution and his second appearance in this city, he having attended Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., on Tuesday night to thank the men who bared their arms for Dr. Albert Pittis to remove cuticle to be used in skin grafting.

While at the hospital he personally thanked Miss Wildey, the matron, and all the other nurses, telling them of his deep gratitude for all they had done for him. Mr. Fredrick was a patient at the old hospital in West Third street for ten months, having been removed there from the scene of the railroad wreck at Westfield on January 27, 1903.

OOM PAUL DEAD.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Clarens, Switzerland, July 14—Paul Kruger, former President of the Transvaal Republic, died here at 3 o'clock this morning from pneumonia and supervening heart weakness.

The body was embalmed, and this afternoon the remains will be placed in a vault pending funeral arrangements. Application will be made to the British Government for authority to transport the body to the Transvaal. In the meantime it will be temporarily interred here.

NO FURTHER ADVANCE IN LOCAL MEAT PRICES

Yesterday's Quotations Will Probably Prevail Until Strike is Ended.

SHIPMENTS CEASED

SUPPLY NOW IN HAND WILL LAST ONLY A WEEK.

Packing House Officials in Chicago and Strike Leaders to Hold Conference Tomorrow—May be Settlement.

Word was received at the local beef house today that commencing with yesterday there would be no further shipments of meat from the western packing establishments while the present butchers' strike is on. One car shipped some time ago will arrive here tomorrow and after that Plainfield will have to look elsewhere for its meat supply. As stated in yesterday's Daily Press what is now on hand may last out the week, and according to one retailer, there will be no further advance in prices.

In most of the city and borough markets today the following prices are being quoted, the ante-strike prices being also noted: Porterhouse steak, now 28 cents, was 25; sirloin steak, 22 cents, was 20; round steak, 20 cents, was 18; roast beef, 22 cents, was 20; legs of lamb, 20 and 22 cents, were 18 and 20; lamb chops, 30 cents, were 25; chickens, 20 cents, were 18. On cured meats the prices remain the same but there is an indication that they will soar as the fresh supply diminishes.

In New York city today the situation remains about the same, the total number of men out on strike being about 3,500. In Chicago the packing house officials have commenced overtures to the butchers and helpers and there may possibly be a conference tomorrow. A meeting has been arranged between the strike leaders and representatives from houses where the men are out. This was brought about mainly through the efforts of J. Ogden Armour and President Donnelly, of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers' Union.

It has been said that men are being imported from New York and points east to take the place of strikers but this has not been verified. So far there has been no disorder and it looks as if both sides will play a waiting game in the event of no immediate settlement.

A strange phase in connection with the strike is the fact that the retail dealers in Philadelphia are maintaining regular prices and will continue to do so as long as their supply lasts. In a statement issued by them yesterday they declared they had not been asked to pay more for what they bought and there was no reason why the cost to the consumers should be increased.

SPENDING DAY AT SHORE

EIGHTEEN CARLOADS OF PLAINFIELD SUNDAY-SCHOOL PEOPLE AT ASBURY.

Invited by this morning's clear sky and cool breezes, about a thousand parishioners from the local Episcopal churches, accompanied by a delegation of three hundred from Bethel chapel, left North avenue station this morning on the annual excursion of the Sunday-schools. The fourteen cars composing the first section pulled out of the station at shortly after 8 o'clock; on board were nearly nine hundred people. But four cars of the second section were filled, and the empty ones were dropped off the train at Fanwood. The Sunday-schools of Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Grace P. E. church, Holy Cross church, St. Stephen's church and Bethel chapel were represented and the general committee in charge of the affair was composed from the Sunday-school superintendents of these schools. J. B. Coward was the chairman. The excursion will spend the day at Asbury Park and many of the excursioners will take advantage of the opportunity thus offered for a visit to the Co. K boys at Camp Murphy, Sea Girt.

The usual attendant number of "left-behinds" was reduced to a minimum by the fact that the second section was nearly ten minutes late in leaving. Despite this, one delegation was forced to remain at Plainfield all day, arriving on the platform just after the train had pulled out.

BOROUGH VOLUNTEERS TO BE INVITED TO TAKE PART AT MORRISTOWN.

For the first time in many years Morristown is to have a big firemen's parade, September 28. There are six fire companies in Morristown, and each has invited two visiting companies, so there will be in line eighteen companies.

The visitors will include organizations from North Plainfield, Montclair, East Orange, Summit, Madison, Bound Brook, Somerville, Dover, Boonton, Newton, Hackettstown, Little Washington, Easton, Pa., Bernardsville, Goshen and New York.

Twenty big brass bands and several fife and drum corps will be in the parade.

HIS HAND MANGLED BY SAW

JOHN STEWART RECEIVED SEVERE INJURIES WHILE AT WORK.

While at work in the Rushmore Dynamo Company's plant, yesterday afternoon, John Stewart, of East Third street, met with an accident which almost caused him the loss of his left hand. He was operating a revolving saw when in some way his hand was drawn against the teeth and it was horribly mangled.

He was hurriedly taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where the injury was dressed by Dr. Long, assisted by Dr. Buchanan. The second and third fingers were amputated and also half of the index finger. The others were torn as was the palm also but unless complications ensue he will have their use.

BOY DIES FROM TETANUS

FOURTH OF JULY ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL TO LINCOLN LAD.

The deadly Fourth of July tetanus was the cause of the end of Samuel Johnson, the eldest son of Peter Johnson, of Lincoln, at his home yesterday. The boy, who is fourteen years of age, had a blank cartridge pistol for his Independence Day celebration, but late on the morning of the Fourth, the weapon became clogged by an unexploded cartridge and while tapping it and working the trigger, the troublesome cartridge in some way went off and the wad was blown into the palm of his left had.

Medical attention was given the wound, but not until the following day, when the disease had already begun its fatal work. Death occurred early yesterday morning.

Aside from his father and mother, the lad leaves two sisters, both younger than himself. He was well known among his neighbors and was a regular attendant of the Sunday-school and day school at Lincoln. The funeral was held from the home this afternoon at 2:30 and the interment was made in the Mountainside cemetery.

HEAD CUT OPEN.

Gash in Italian's Head Which is Unexplained.—Taken to Hospital.

Frank Frangisci, an Italian, aged twenty-nine years, of this city, was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon suffering with a cut on the head an inch and a half long, inflicted by a stone.

Just how the thing happened is not known, as Frangisci cannot talk English. It was believed to be an accident. The patient only remained at the hospital long enough to have the wound dressed.

Interesting Contract Case.

The contract case of Ruckman against Ruchman will be tried before Justice Huff this afternoon. This is the contention in which Mrs. Ruchman, the widow of Mail Carrier Benjamin Ruckman, who was killed at the North Avenue station last January, is suing her brother-in-law for the balance of contract money she claims was due her husband.

The $1.80 Suit Ended.

The expected suit between Justice Hand and George J. Tobin for the recovery of $1.80 owed the former did not take place yesterday as announced. Just previous to its being called for trial the parties agreed upon a settlement. After paying the court fees it cost the defendant in all $3.66.

During the summer months Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Runyon, of Madison avenue, will camp out on the mountains, Mr. Runyon going back and forth every day to his law offices.

20,000 MEMBERS OF UNIFORMED RANK TO BE IN PARADE.

Cash Prizes in Competition Drill Exceed $10,000—Nearly 100 Bands Entered in One Contest—Banners as Trophies.

As the time draws near for the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, to convene in Louisville, many of the lodges and companies of the uniformed rank throughout the country are busy completing their plans to attend the biennial. The meeting will open August 15, and will last at least ten days. A delegation from this city is expected to attend. There are three organizations of the order here, including Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Unity Lodge, 102 and Crescent Co., No. 13, Uniformed Rank. As a rule the uniformed rank plays an important part in these conventions. This year an effort is on foot to make the demonstration excel that of any previous session.

Cash prizes and banners will be offered to the companies leading in number of men in line and in distance traveled to attend. The music committee will offer prizes to the bands, and there will be competition for drum corps also. Santa Anna Company, of California, will bring its band of thirty-five pieces to try conclusions with the rest. So far the music committee has received advices that eighty-nine bands will be in the city during the convention week.

Reports received at the headquarters of the encampment committee indicate that at least 20,000 members of the uniformed rank will participate in the parade August 16. This demonstration will be in charge of Major-General James R. Carnalian, of the rank. It is said that at least 4,000 men come from Indiana.

It is promised that the business houses of Louisville will join in the work of decorating the city and that private residences generally will display the red, blue and yellow of the order in bunting during the day, and in electric lights during the night.

Clay Lodge, No. 1, of Louisville, invested 205 candidates with the first rank June 10. This represents the first division of the class of one thousand candidates which the lodge expects to put through before August 1. It is now planned to confer the third rank on all these candidates July 15. The lodge's degree team consists of 100 members. A liberal percentage of the money paid by these candidates as degree fees will be turned over to the general entertainment committee by Clay Lodge.

It is said that the cash prizes offered in the competitive drills will exceed the sum of $10,000.

Supreme Chancellor Tracy R. Bangs, of North Dakota, will preside over the deliberations of the Supreme Lodge. The companies of the uniformed rank in this State are planning to make up a battalion to represent this jurisdiction in the parade.

Any itchiness of the skin is annoying.

Little danger in itching skin diseases,

But they make you miserable.

Doan's Ointment is a never-failing cure

For Piles, Eczema—all itching troubles.

New Jersey citizens endorse it.

A. H. Woodruff, of Vailsburg, N. J., says: "For the benefit of those similarly afflicted as I was with hemorrhoids or piles, I want every reader of this paper to know that I suffered with attacks of this tormenting nuisance for over fifteen years. During that time I spent a lot of money trying 'sure cures' and exhausted all my knowledge about salves and ointments and also the advice of my friends. One day while reading an advertisement about Doan's Ointment I concluded to make one more effort and I commenced the treatment. Greatly to my surprise the area of itching gradually contracted until it completely dried up. What is of considerable more importance to me, there is no indication of a recurrence."

Just such emphatic endorsement can be had here in Plainfield. Drop into L. W. Randolph's drug store and ask what his customers report.

DEAD HEAT AT BRIGHTON.

Major Pelham and Gay Boy Divided Jamaica Stakes.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Major Pelham and Gay Boy ran a dead heat in the Jamaica selling stakes at Brighton Beach. Both owners agreed to split the stake, and the purse was divided. Counterpoise made the running to the stretch, where Major Pelham took the lead and looked a winner, when Burns brought Gay Boy up with a rush and secured a dead heat. Ingold was third.

Jockey C. Green, the colored steeplechase rider, who had the mount on Terrible Terry in the steeplechase, fell at the first jump and sustained injuries which may prove fatal. He was removed to the Emergency hospital at Coney Island.

English Lad at Harlem.

CHICAGO, July 14.—In one of the most exciting finishes ever seen on any track English Lad won the fourth race at Harlem by a nose from the odds-on favorite, McGee. McGee had a lead of at least three lengths turning for home, but English Lad showed a wonderful burst of speed in the stretch, and the two were even at the final eighth pole. Both horses during the remainder of the journey were pushed to the limit. English Lad finally took command, however, and at the finish was slowly but steadily going away from McGee. Witful was third, four lengths behind. McGee was always an odds-on favorite, with English Lad second choice and Witful a close third.

Wheaton defeated the Later Day Saints of Salt Lake City, 40 to 35, and Hiram then defeated the Latter Day Saints, 25 to 18.

Racing at World's Fair Track.

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—Elastic, Brancas and Pretension were the successful favorites at the fair grounds on a lumpy track. Elastic won his race after a brief brush in the last sixteenth with Otto Stiefel. Brancas and Light Opera fought it out from the head of the stretch, the former winning by a nose at the wire. Pretension was much the best in the closing event.

Almont King at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 14.—The veteran driver, Hiram Woodruff, was the star at the second day's racing of the spring meeting at Narragansett park. He drove the handsome Almont King three superb miles in the 2:18 trot, forcing Vance Nuckols to take second money with the favorite, The General. John McEwen outclassed his field in the 2:20 pace.

Shuttle Ran a Strenuous Race.

UTICA, N. Y., July 14.—The bolting of Shuttle, entered and driven in the 2:16 trot by William Matthewson of Syracuse, and the clever driving of T. E. N. by M. P. Moore of this city were the features of the day's racing at Utica park. Shuttle threw Matthewson out, ran around the track five times and smashed the gig.

THE GREAT STRIKE

Hostile Demonstration by the Meat Packers at New York.

PRICES GO UP ALL ALONG THE LINE

Business Interests to the Value of One Hundred Millions Tied Up at Chicago, Where Teamsters Are Helping the Strikers.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Seventy-five strike breakers, chiefly negroes, were smuggled into the packing house of Schwarzschild & Sulzberger here through a cattle shoot from a tug in the East river. Hundreds of excited strikers gathered on the water front and a hostile demonstration by them was prevented only by the efforts of the leaders and the presence of the police reserves.

The packers do not seem to take an alarming view of the local effects of the beef strike. The largest establishments in New York have from one week's to two weeks' supply on hand, and the managers say that prices will not be seriously affected for at least ten days or a fortnight.

There is a possibility that the benchmen and stationary engineers and firemen employed in the cold storage plants will strike in sympathy, thus destroying the available local supply and precipitating a meat famine.

In Chicago, the center of the great meat industry of the country, the effect of the strike is being felt most keenly. Business interests aggegating $100,000,000 are tied up and more than 25,000 butchers and workers are out of employment.

A Chicago dispatch says that the strike has spread somewhat by the action of teamsters in considerable numbers, but ostensibly acting as individuals, refusing to handle any product torched by newly hired nonunion workmen. This refusal was usually based on the time honored plea that a different contract prevailed notwithstanding, would put the teamster in peril of his life. Extensive installments of sleeping cots and cooking apparatus for strike breakers at the various packing houses were apparently the main irritating cause for action by the teamsters, although there were a number of sporadic mob attacks on a small scale.

The packing house proprietors did not appear to share the alleged fear of mobs. J. Ogden Armour, alone in a runabout, made a tour of the stock yards and of the streets adjacent. He was recognized all along the way by strikers, but met with no demonstration.

One of the most interesting statements made regarding the strike situation came from Miss Mary E. McDowell of the University of Chicago settlement, near the stock yards. She said that the greatest difficulty the union workmen had to expect was that presented by the casual worker, who, she said, was at the beck and call of the plant superintendent. There are about 5,000 of this class of laborers around the yards looking for work, according to Miss McDowell, and the regular workmen are in constant fear they will be supplanted. Many of these workmen, it is said, are now being engaged to take the places of the strikers.

Miss McDowell made the remark

"I do not expect serious trouble unless troops are called out."

Attacking afresh the allegations that the strike is for increased wages, President Donnelly, the strike leader, gave out the following statement addressed to the public:

"Our organization is taking a stand against a reduction in wages for labor in the plants owned and controlled by the following companies, which are those affected: Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Nelson, Morris & Co., National Packing company, Schwarzschild & Sulzberger and Cudahy. All our organization asks is that 18½ cents an hour be the minimum. In view of the fact that in nearly all of the departments the average working time is forty hours a week, it can be readily seen that our demands are not unreasonable. All the independent companies are paying a much higher rate than we are asking the trust companies to pay."

A Des Moines (Ia.) dispatch says that another advance was made in the price of meats by Des Moines dealers, pork advancing 2½ cents a pound. The rise is due to the strike of the butchers.

A report from Omaha says that a few cattle were slaughtered at Swift's, Armour's and the Omaha Packing company's plant, but Cudahy made no attempt to start any department. Men in other departments, including the mechanical and engineering, to the number of nearly 1,500, have joined the strikers, making a total of 5,500 men who are out at South Omaha. Fresh beef has advanced $2 a hundred.

A Providence (R. I.) dispatch says that prices of beef, pork, lamb and mutton have taken an upward turn in that city and in the surrounding towns as the result of the strike of the western packing house employees, the advances ranging from 1½ cents a pound for beef to 3 and 4 cents a pound on other meats.

A Worcester (Mass.) report says that the price of beef at wholesale has advanced from 2 to 3 cents a pound in that city as a result of the strike at western packing houses. Retail markets are almost entirely cleaned up.

Coldwell Made a Fatal Slip.

ALBANY, July 14.—George E. Coldwell, nineteen years of age, of Hartford, Conn., while trying to catch a freight train at West Albany yesterday afternoon slipped and fell under the wheels of the fast moving train and was instantly killed.

JAPS ARE CLOSING IN

The Japanese Generals Have Tatchekiao In Their Grasp.

ONCE TAKEN, NEWCHWANG MUST FALL

Kuropatkin Must Hold Back Two Large Armies of the Japanese. Kuroki Exerting Pressure at Haicheng.

LONDON, July 14. — Advices from St. Petersburg say that steadily and cautiously General Oku's army from the south and General Nodzu's army from the east are closing in upon Tatchekiao, where General Kuropatkin is reported to be intrenching. One hundred and thirty thousand men are involved in the movement. The next few days will determine whether and to what extent General Kuropatkin intends to make a stand at Tatchekiao, the possession of which by the Japanese would compel the immediate evacuation of Newchwang.

The outposts of the armies are scarcely fifteen miles apart. The slowness of the advance is apparently due to the natural difficulties in the way of a rapid movement of the Japanese eastern flanking columns.

Lieutenant General Sacharoff reports that General Kuroki is massing his troops near the Pkhanlin pass and moving out by both roads upon Haicheng. Heavy pressure from this quarter would render Tatchekiao untenable.

All the Japanese energies now seem to be concentrated on Tatchekiao and Haicheng. The operations to the north, which throughout may have been feints, have been suddenly suspended.

The growing activity of Chinese bandits in the valley of the Liao river at this critical moment means additional embarrassment to General Kuropatkin.

A well informed military critic believes that General Kuropatkin is deliberately surrendering his southern positions like that of Kaichow for the purpose of drawing on the Japanese into the open country at or above Tatchekiao, where the Russians will be able to display large forces and to derive advantage from their superior cavalry. He attributes General Oku's advance to the necessity of helping General Nodzu, whose divisions are stalled in the Chapan and Dalin passes on account of transport difficulties and to the stubborn resistance of General Zaroubaieff, commander of the Fourth Siberian army corps, whose forces will have to be cleared out before a southern advance is made.

The Japanese game of strategy is to effect a juncture between Nodzu and Oku in order to force Kuropatkin to the northward and if this plan should be successful to combine with Kuroki near Liaoyang.

A special dispatch received from Mukden repeats the story of a Japanese repulse at Port Arthur with the loss of 30,000. The dispatch says:

"News has been received from reliable sources that the Japanese Third army, on the night of July 11, attacked Port Arthur and was heavily defeated, an immense number being killed by Russian mines. The total loss is about 30,000."

There is great anxiety throughout St. Petersburg for further details of the reported disaster to the Japanese.

A Tokyo report says that Field Marshal Marquis Oyama, commander in chief of the Japanese forces in the field, accompanied by his chief of staff, Lieutenant General Kodama, arrived at Dalny last night.

A Tatchekiao dispatch says that the Japanese have made an attack on Tatchekiao, but it was not seriously pressed, the Japanese retiring eventually toward Kaichow.

A Newchwang report says:

"Japanese scouts have been seen at Black Woods pond, six miles south of here. General Oku, with 50,000 men, is advancing rapidly between this place and Tatchekiao."

A Tokyo report says that several torpedo boats of the Vladivostok squadron have appeared off the island of Yesso.

Mason and George Blackwell, sheriff of Shelby county, and demand their resignations as public officials. All gambling houses have been closed.

An Ideal Location

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW.

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

WILL RUIN REPUBLIC

Merchants of Panama and Colon Oppose Duty.

AGAINST SPIRIT OF CANAL TREATY

Newspaper Campaign Started on the Isthmus to Prove Injustice of Order by Governor Davis to Establish Custom Houses.

PANAMA, July 14.—The decree of Governor Davis establishing a custom house in the canal zone has created exciting comment here. The principal merchants of Panama and Colon assembled in the Commercial club to discuss the situation and unanimously decided that the establishment of custom houses in such form means the ruin of the commerce of Panama and Colon and consequently of the republic.

The canal commissioners and officers of the government have discussed the situation, which is considered by all to be extremely serious unless the decree be revoked and the interests of Panama considered.

The chamber of commerce at a meeting appointed a committee to communicate with the government. The chamber considers the application of the Dingley tariff act not only detrimental to the interests of commerce and of the government, but against the spirit of the canal treaty.

The newspapers have started a campaign to prove to the people and the government of the United States the injustice of the measure, which is the cause of excitement in all circles. The steamship City of Peking of the Pacific Mail Steamship company has arrived from San Francisco, which port she left on June 18. On arriving at Corinto the City of Peking got clearance papers for Ancon, the American port in the canal zone, and the captain of the port of Panama has refused to receive the steamer, claiming that under the treaty with the United States all ports in Panama are under jurisdiction of the Panama authorities. The captain of the port also made a protest on the action of the Pacific Mail Steamship company, which he considers against the rights of the republic, and sent a copy of it to the president of the company and its agents.

High Jinks at Esopus.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 14.—Today Judge Parker has an appointment with Senator Patrick H. McCarren of Brooklyn, who is expected at Esopus at 2:06 p. m. and who probably will be in conference with the judge most of the afternoon. In the evening citizens of Kingston and vicinity, irrespective of party, are to visit Rosemont and pay their respects to the Democratic nominee for president. A special train has been arranged for, and there will be speaking, music and fireworks. Judge Parker is himself a voter in the Third district of the Ninth ward of the city of Kingston, being registered from the residence of his son-in-law, Rev. Charles M. Hall. That district is the only one in that ward regarded as normally Democratic.

Choate at Cunard Liner Launching.

LONDON, July 14.—Ambassador Choate, replying to Lord Inverclyde at the launching of the Caronia, said he hoped that the stars and stripes and the union jack which adorned the Caronia would never be further apart. They were emblematic of unity, friendship and good will. He was, he said, a strong advocate of close and friendly communication between the United States and Great Britain and no organization during the last sixty years had done more than the Cunard Steamship company to promote international intercourse and good will.

Wants King's Rights For Matnafa.

HONOLULU, July 14.—The Samoanisch Zeitung says that the governor of German Samoa, Herr Solf, has received a native demand that former King Mataafa be allowed to countersign all ordinances, to overlook the public expenditures, that he be given the right to a royal salute and permitted to wear an official uniform. According to the newspaper, Herr Solf says that Mataafa has repudiated the sender of the demands in his behalf and that he has apologized for the act of his man. The trouble was stirred up by dissatisfied whites.

Barge Canal Progress.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 14.—The state canal board will meet on July 19 to pass on the plans for barge canal work, including construction at Waterford and Fort Edward. At Waterford a connecting canal around the falls in the Mohawk river and two single locks will be built. Superintendent Boyd of the state department of public works will be directed to advertise for proposals, and it is believed that the contractors will have the work started in August.

Stole $10,000 In Bonds.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 14.—William I. Stine, former chief clerk to General Manager Scott of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railway, has been arrested upon a complaint sworn out in the county attorney's office on a charge of stealing $10,000 in bonds from a safe in the general manager's office. It is charged that Stine took the bonds shortly after the death of Mr. Scott last year.

Plainfield, N. J., July 14, 1904.

In an article on "Democratic leaders say Parker'll win," the first two "leading" Democrats quoted by the Elizabeth Evening Times are the proprietors of that paper.

Cherries are a drug on the market in Pennsylvania at one cent a quart. Funny the Robin found in the Keystone State is so different than what it is claimed to be in New Jersey.

The State government has arranged to purchase a part of the new issue of school bonds from Kountze Brothers, the successful bidders. If the State authorities had been as eager for a good investment as the dozen banking concerns which made an effort to buy the bonds, it might have obtained the entire lot.

The presentation of a cane was a timely recognition on the part of the North Plainfield volunteer firemen of the effort of Robert Clark, Jr., on their behalf while he was a member of the borough Council. Mr. Clark was firmly convinced that the volunteers were treated unjustly and he championed their cause unceasingly, strongly opposing the introduction of the paid department which resulted in their being ousted from office. Mr. Clark won't need the cane to flay his opponents, his sound argument in debate being entirely sufficient for that purpose.

It is safe to say that few cities are as fortunate as Plainfield in having their affairs conducted in a thoroughly business like manner and to the best interests of the tax payers. The finances of the municipality have been invested in a way that makes their result apparent in the various departments of the local government. Today Plainfield is blessed with improvements which are seldom to be found in much larger communities and there is no tendency to change the policy of spending the people's money only where some change for the better can be brought about. Including the issue of $60,000 of school bonds, the total indebtedness only amounts to approximately $350,000. The assessed valuation is about $9,500,000 and the tax rate is but $2.50.

Hay, Hitchcock and Wilson are the only three members of McKinley's Cabinet holding their offices today. John Hay still remains the Secretary of State and is generally considered as great a premier as America ever had. James Wilson is Secretary of Agriculture and Ethan Allen Hitchcock is Secretary of the Interior. Lyman J. Gage, Elihu Root, Philander C. Knox, Charles Emery Smith and John B. Long, five big men in the McKinley Cabinet, have retired from office, and their places have been taken by Leslie M. Shaw, William H. Taft, William H. Moody, Henry C. Payne and Paul Morton respectively. During Roosevelt's term, the office of Secretary of Commerce and Labor has been created, George B. Cortelyou being its first incumbent. He has retired to take charge of the Republican campaign and Victor H. Metcalf is his successor.

When the agitation for a higher liquor license fee was at its height here, not a few citizens were of the opinion that the present rate, $700, was as high as any in the country, excepting Philadelphia, where the Brooks high license act is in force and where the fee is $1,100. Plainfield, or rather a strong element in Plainfield, wanted the rate here advanced to $1,000 but the effort met with defeat by a close vote in the Common Council. The question is not settled forever and therefore some figures given by the Elizabeth Daily Journal may be of interest. Lawrenceville, Mass., has a rate of $2,500; Lowell, Mass., gets $1,800; Lynn, Springfield and Fall River exact $1,500, Des Moines, Iowa, and Salt Lake City, Utah, charged $1,200; Pittsburg and Allegheny, Pa., demand $1,100. It is needless to quote further. One thing is certain, and that is that should Plainfield increase its rate to $1,000 it would be taking no extraordinary action.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY

There are prospects of a good-sized building boom striking Dunellen in the near future. Some out of town parties have been in town recently looking at some property and as their visit was satisfactory it is probable that work will be started soon on the erection of some blocks of houses, which will be of a class suitable to the wants of working men, a large number of whom the new factories have brought to town.

The hum of the presidential bee in town has hardly been started yet, although the leaders of both parties are satisfied with the tickets as named and will begin hustling soon to get the voters together.

The local ball game Saturday afternoon should be a good one as the Orange Field Club is a strong team and the local club is playing good baseball at present. Game will be called at 3:45.

JERSEY ROADS AT ST. LOUIS

ROBERT A. MEEKER THE BUILDER OF MODEL HIGHWAYS.

The road exhibit of New Jersey in the "Model City" in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis portrays the method which has made the State so justly famous as the home of good roads. In the model street New Jersey has a section of trap rock macadam, flanked on each side by slips of New Jersey's famous gravel, exemplifying the standard methods of road construction, namely, macadam centre, sixteen feet wide, with gravel wings extending to the gutter. On the track just north of the model street the method of road construction is shown in progressive stages: (1) the sub-grade or compacted earth, shaped to the same form and curvature as the finished road; (2) the foundation course; (3) the one-and-one-half-inch course; (4) the finished road, covered with fine stone, commonly known as screenings.

The foregoing description applies to both the telford and macadam methods of construction. In addition to these samples, both gravel and oyster shell roads are shown. The latter is the only satisfactory road thus far devised for travel across the salt marshes, which connect the mainland with the beach along the New Jersey coast. These exhibits are attracting a great deal of attention, because every one is interested in securing as good roads as possible. New Jersey, being the oldest road-building State in the Union, it is but natural that the methods should attract widespread attention on the part of the citizens of her sister States, who are anxiously seeking to secure as good highways as those for which New Jersey is justly famous. New Jersey, though the forty-second State in area, has more miles of good, hard, smooth roads convenient for travel at all seasons of the year than any two States in the Union. Of course, there are States where the natural conditions give them good roads during the summer season.

The road exhibit of the State is under the direction and supervision of Robert A. Meeker, of Plainfield, State supervisor.—Newark News.

Westfielder on a Rampage.

Samuel Moffett, who hails from Westfield, was arraigned before City Judge Runyon at court this morning on the charge of causing a disturbance in Paoli's fruit store on North avenue. Investigation showed that Moffett had come to town to sample Plainfield brew and that while in the good humored condition which follows such experiments, he had wandered into Paoli's store in an argumentative mood. Mr. Paoli made no charge at court this morning, so the offender was dismissed.

Recovers From Sunstroke.

Harold Phillips, of Madison avenue, is able to be about again after the severe illness which followed his sunstroke on July 4. On that day, Phillips and a party of friends had an outing on Newark bay. The heat was intense and Phillips was effected by sunstroke. On his return home he was placed under the care of a physician and was severely ill until Sunday, when his improvement began.

—Letter-carrier Charles Glaentzer has completed his fifteen days' vacation.

QUEER ROYAL VISITOR

ENGLAND ENTERTAINS A DUSKY AFRICAN MONARCH.

The Alake of Abeokuta Is an Interesting Personage from the West Coast — Has Proven Himself a Progressive Ruler.

England is called upon to entertain many queer guests because of the wide range of her colonial possessions and subjects, but none have been more interesting that the Alake of Abeokuta, and his wives, who recently visited King Edward.

The territory of which the alake is the principal ruling chief is comprised within the Protectorate of Lagos, on the west coast of Africa. It is spoken of as the province of Abeokuta, or as the territory of the Egbas, the most enterprising, active and energetic division of the Yoruba race. In number they exceed a quarter of a million. The capital of the province is the town of Abeokuta, which is situated on the river Ogun, some 60 miles from Lagos by railway. The alake's capital has thus both water and rail communication with the port of Lagos. A large number of the 60,000 or 70,000 people that live in Abeokuta are engaged in trade.

The alake and his people possess some 6,000 or 8,000 square miles of the most fertile and productive soil in West Africa. From several of the higher points on the undulating districts traversed by the railway, scores of square miles of forest, composed chiefly of palm trees, may be seen stretching away to the horizon on each side. This palm tree is indigenous, and flourishes here in splendid luxuriance, yielding a perennial never-failing crop, from which the palm kernal and palm oil of commerce are obtained through the toil and industry of the natives.

The whole of this rich and valuable country belongs exclusively to the alake and his people. The king's government recognizes the absolute proprietary rights to the soil of the native owners, and the laws and customs of Egba prohibit the alienation of land. The province possesses no minerals, unless, perhaps, some apparently unimportant deposits of lignite. No gold-bearing stratum has been proved to exist. It is not one of the great timber-producing districts. The farmers of Abeokuta are, however, both enterprising and intelligent, and they have entered into the cultivation of cotton with remarkable spirit, so that at present there is good reason to expect that this industry will become one of great importance in this province.

THE ALAKE OF ABEOKUTA AND HIS WIVES.

The alake came to England to do homage to his royal protector, whom he claims as his king and sovereign. The king's protection is to the alake and his people no empty form. Up to only a few years ago the town of Abeokuta was surrounded by the works of defence, the making and the maintenance of which must have cost much in time and labor. The wealth of the district was an irresistible temptation to strong neighbors, such as Dahomey, for example, which endeavored to overcome Abeokuta. The Egbas showed that they could fight well. But what the ultimate issue would have been but for European intervention, it is impossible to say.

The alake is a man of middle age, of strictly temperate habits, strong in mind and body. He has completely set aside the usage of his country, which required that a great and crowned chief should not proceed beyond the precincts of his own courtyard. He visits all parts of his province to direct and encourage the making of roads, the extension and improvements of agriculture, and to see personally to matters of administration. He has a duly appointed council, in which the leading men of the Egbas have seats. Of this council the alake himself is the president and moving spirit.

The alake is a reformer, and therefore he has many difficulties to face among a people so very conservative as the Yorubas. Naturally some of his beliefs and people think he goes too fast; whilst others, especially the younger men, think he proceeds too slowly. His devotion to his country and people are, however, so apparent to all, that this gives him great power, combined with his superior intelligence and strength of purpose. Recently the alake has had the finances of his province put on a sound basis. Regular estimates of revenue and expenditure have been prepared and passed by his council and have been approved by the secretary of state.

July 17: "The World's Gain Through Universal Peace."—Ps. xlvi, 9-11; Isa. ii, 2-4.

Passages of Scripture representing Jehovah as the God of battles are not few, and this aspect of the divine nature and the corresponding truth in human history have been greatly magnified.

The lesson for this week places emphasis upon another phase of affairs and shows Jehovah as ruling the nations of earth in such a way as to bring them into harmony and secure universal peace.

Such a condition has long been dreamed as possible and desired by many who dislike strife and contention. How it may be secured has long been the search of many of the wisest and best. At times it has seemed as if the way would be found by human diplomacy and statecraft, but each time some unforeseen and often frivolous event has arisen and destroyed at a stroke the most carefully wrought out schemes until we are forced to conclude that if peace ever comes permanently to the nations it will not be because of some superficial sentiment or selfish human device for personal gain, but because in the truest and deepest sense Jehovah maketh wars to cease unto the ends of the earth by a radical and permanent lifting of human nature into the plane of right reason and good will by the masterful possession of His Spirit.

Our lesson this week calls for a study of the gains to be had by such peace rather than by war.

The first and most apparent advantage would be the effect produced on the world's food supply. A large fraction of the people of the earth have never yet been well fed. Millions have never known what it is not to be hungry. Wars make a wilderness of the fairest provinces and ruin their harvests. Armies eat the food which others produce, but never add an ounce to the world's stock nor turn a furrow nor harvest a meal. Equipped with hoes instead of guns, the armies of the great nations would in a year banish all dearth and feed all the hungry. The military and naval expenditures would irrigate deserts, drain marshes, span continents with rails, build fleets and load every man's table with the products of many climes.

Again, peace would give industrial arts an opportunity never yet enjoyed. Clothing and equipment of armies might be changed into that for mechanics, artisans and producers of goods instead of being wasted on destroyers of goods and lives. The millions of earth's naked races could be clothed and make homes for themselves then. Interior China has no roads. Her rivers and canals are her only highways. Mud hovels house the greater part of her population. One-tenth of all the goods carried on her great river, the Yangtse, are lost in the rapids. Her great cities like Fuchau have never seen a pump. All water is lifted and carried by men. Peace instead of war might give highways, waterworks and sewers, houses and home comforts and all the betterments of improved living. What a field for invention and uplift is opened!

Peace means more knowledge possible of disease and conditions of health. It means in building a Panama canal that the first work is to make the isthmus a healthful place for men, which it never has been since time began. It means the redemption of earth's plague spots for the homes of men.

Best of all, it means a higher regard for the rights and worth of man, and deeper reverence for God. It means the breeding and rearing of men of giant strength for good; of stalwart sons of righteousness and gentleness.

Enthusiasm.

Enthusiasm that will last is that which God approves and which He enkindles in the soul. It must have a meritorious object in view; it must have truth for a foundation. The less enthusiasm for that which is not based on truth the better. The sooner men become discouraged in a false undertaking the better for them and the world. God will not inflame men with the spirit of triumphant zeal in a cause that He cannot approve. Such zeal comes from another quarter and is without knowledge. Extravagant representations of a good cause or a false coloring always produce a reaction sooner or later, when the facts come out. While a few may be ensnared, the mass of people will see through the thin coating and beware. Honesty is the best policy in all things.—Christian Instructor.

Substantial Religion.

I will not quarrel with you about opinions. Only see that your heart is right toward God, that you know and love the Lord Jesus Christ, that you love your neighbor and walk as your Master walked, and I desire no more. I am sick of opinions, I am weary to hear them. Give me solid and substantial religion; give me a humble, gentle lover of God and man, a man full of mercy and good fruits, a man laying out himself in the work of faith, the patience of hope, the labor of love. Let my soul be with these Christians, wheresoever they are and whatsoever opinions they are of. Whosoever thus doeth the will of my Father in heaven, the same is my brother and sister.—John Wesley.

God's Work.

God works in you to will. He does not work to make you feel, because feeling ends in smoke so often. God does not work in you to think, because you think and think again. But God works in you to will. That is, there rises up in your heart a desire which becomes at last a purpose to be free.—F. B. Meyer.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 17.

Topic.—The world's gain through universal peace.—Ps. xlvi, 9-11; Isa. ii, 2-4.

Universal, worldwide peace would be the greatest blessing that ever came upon the human race. Yet how improbable it seems. The elements of nature are at war. In the heart and life of the same person there is constant conflict; among the nations and races of the world strife and contention are ever present. "Wars and rumors of wars" are ever with us; the sword is scarcely ever sheathed, and the soldier has little else than dreams of rest. Nor among the people of God, over whom the Prince of Peace rules, is there unity of faith and love. Instead of being one in Christ, they are divided and subdivided time and time again. But let us also remember that war has not always been an unmitigated evil nor has peace always been necessarily a great blessing. The law of life, in our universe at least, is development through struggle. Conflict develops character, and often is necessary to bring out the best that is in nation or in man. Yet the goal of life is peace and not warfare, a time when we shall no longer need struggle to develop or perfect our lives, but when, having reached a point of superior excellence, the pursuits of peace shall appeal to us more strongly than the battle din of war.

It is well to remember also that war and its issues are in the hands of an infinite and all wise God. "He maketh wars to cease unto the ends of the earth; He breaketh the bow and cutteth the spear in sunder; He burneth the chariot in the fire." When will He do this for the whole world? Men differ as to whether it will be before the coming of Christ or after His coming. But God knows, God has promised, and He will bring it to pass in His own time, and in His own way, and when it comes it will redound to His honor and glory. "Be still and know that I am God. I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth."

In his prophecy of universal peace Isaiah comprehensively sets forth the gain to the world through such peace. "He (God) shall judge among the nations and shall rebuke many people." This is the preliminary step. God shall take charge of the nations. The purposes of war having ceased He shall control all the nations for peace, with the result that "they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks (scythes); nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." What a tremendous gain to humanity if this condition should be brought about. God should occupy His proper place among all men and nations. War should give place to the arts and sciences. The immense sums of money now spent for standing armies and navies in peace and in war could be invested in the pursuits of peace and in the betterment and uplifting of humanity. Why, even the instruments of war could be turned into tools of usefulness. The swords that destroyed human life in war could be beaten into plowshares to cut up the earth for the support of human life, and the spears which in war cut down men could be turned into scythes that they might cut down grain for man's preservation. Let us work and pray for the hastening of the time when these prophecies shall be fulfilled and there shall be brought about through Christ, the Prince of Peace, the realization of the angel's song at His birth, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Num. vi, 22-26; Isa. ix, 6, 7; Jer. xxxi, 7-9; Isa. xxvi, 1-3; Ps. xxix, 1-11; Nah. 1, 15; Luke ii, 14; John xiv, 27.

Ohio's President.

Ohio is justly proud of its talented young leader in state work. Rev. J. E. Fout of Fostoria is a West Virginian by birth and an active Endeavorer in every sense of the word. He gained prominence in the District of Columbia union. He has also been president of the Ohio union since 1902. Last year, with the field secretary, he made a tour of twenty cities in the state and raised over $1,200 for the spread of Christian Endeavor in Ohio.

REV. J. E. FOUT.

The Great Need.

The great need of our country societies is not the need of a more complex organization, of more variety in our meetings, of more committees, of more members on our rolls. These are very important considerations, but really minor secondary details. What we need most of all in order to be successful soul winners for Christ is to drop the spirit of these little, petty importances which sometimes burden our minds and get into vital union with the great source of all true Christian endeavor—Christ Himself. We need to be filled with His Spirit, and then, and only then, we shall be strengthened for quiet, prayerful, persistent, individual work, without which no society is of any value.—Miss Maggie Anderson in Irish Endeavorer.

Tithing.

A recent poll of the members of the society in the Central Presbyterian church of New York city showed that 25 per cent of the members gave one-tenth or more of their income for benevolence.

BEAUTIFUL HANDS.

How a Woman May Obtain Them and Keep Them.

There used to be a saying that by the appearance of the hands one could tell whether a woman was a lady or not.

There is a good deal in that.

No woman who is willing to do certain simple things need have rough or red hands. In the first place, lots of people make the mistake of washing their hands too often. Only do it when it is really necessary, and then don't half wash them. Half washing the hands and omitting to rinse out the soap makes them coarse and dirt grained. If the hands are stained, a little olive oil rubbed into the skin will loosen the dirt and make the hands soft.

RUB IN A LITTLE COLD CREAM

Dry the hands until not a particle of dampness remains. Press back the cuticle around the nails when drying them.

Occasionally before retiring rub in a little cold cream when you notice the hands are getting dry, but it is throwing it away to apply it to a dry skin. Soak your hands first in warm water, then, without drying, apply any skin food you may want to use.

Moist and clammy hands may be dusted with oatmeal after washing.

Nails filed twice a week never need cutting. Cutting is rather apt to make them split. However, if you have an aversion to filing soak the nails for about five minutes in hot water and use the file merely to round off the corners.

There is no better hand beautifier than lemon juice. Strain and bottle it and it will keep for weeks. It may be rubbed into the skin as often as you like. It whitens and softens it and takes away stains.

Above all, don't wear rings that are too small or gloves that fasten too tightly around the wrist. They impede the circulation and spoil the appearance of the prettiest hand. If your hands are large, avoid white gloves as much as possible and especially gloves stitched in a different color.

Some people buy expensive powders and polishers for the nails. Try rubbing them against the palm of the other hand. It gives them a very good polish.

HELEN CLIFTON.

COLONIAL EFFECTS.

A Favorite Style of Decoration For Country Homes.

The colonial style of interior decoration lends itself to small incomes and can be easily carried out by the woman of taste. Something, of course, depends on the woodwork, as this is apt to be one of the important features of the room.

The picture shows a living room the walls of which are done in paneled whitewood. The carpet is green, and quaint green covered furniture shows attractively against the whiteness. Besides the old fashioned chairs there is an old fashioned piano.

GREEN AND WHITE COLOR SCHEME

The frieze is of greenish and bluish tones, and the quaintly molded ceiling adds to the charm of the room. The pictures are also of the antique description framed in dull gilt.

R. DE LA BAUME.

Sound Advice.

Listen to what Eleanor Kirk says: "If you cannot do what you would like to, do what you can and have a good time doing it. There is a greater good time in making your own good time than in having somebody else make it for you. The first is victory; the last a surrender."

THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

Copyright, 1902, by J. P. Lippincott Company.

But the will, put on from day to day, was never made, and one morning the old baronet came a cropper over his horse, was carried home with a broken neck, and a new Sir Arthur, tenth of his line, reigned at Denecroft.

The latter was perfectly cognizant of his father's intentions respecting his brother, and meant to scrupulously carry them out, when an unexpected obstacle occurred, to wit, a bitter and acrimonious quarrel betwixt the brothers.

Marcia Churchill was the woman in the case, daughter of old Squire Churchill, the reigning beauty of at least three counties, at this time in the heydey of her social triumphs.

Perhaps because Marcia Churchill and Stella Dysart were representatives of two distinct types of beauty they were pretty close friends. Marcia might have stood for one of DuMaurier's women, for she was tall and stately, patrician, and severely beautiful. Stella Dysart scarcely came up to her shoulder, being as petite and as pretty as a Dresden shepherdess.

The four young people had known one another from childhood, when they romped together in the woods of Denecroft or roamed over the daisy meadows of Gatewood, the Churchill property. As boys the two Dysarts vied with each other as to who should be Marcia's champion, and with characteristic feminine impartiality she showered her favors upon each in turn. Now it was Arthur's week, and again Richard would be her knight.

The rivalry continued, more quietly but fully as intense, after the brothers came back from Cambridge, but both of them feared to put the question of precedence to the test. Marcia went through two seasons scathless and apparently heart-free, so perhaps her mind was made up after all.

If Arthur Dysart had the advantage of the heirship on his side and of nearness to the Churchill estates while Richard was grinding away at his lawbooks in London, the latter had his own little compensations, for he saw the girl constantly during the season, and lost no occasion of quietly keeping himself to the fore. Richard divined somehow that Arthur would not propose while his father lived, and so was content to wait, hoping the while that his own ship would come into port.

Matters were at this stage of truce and tension when there came the news of Sir Arthur's death.

Richard went down for the funeral, and then it was discovered that there was no will. Immediately his position flashed upon him; he was absolutely dependent upon his brother's bounty, for naturally his allowance stopped with the demise of his father. It also dawned upon him that now Marcia would be called upon to make a decision, and that she would perhaps prefer a baronet de facto and dejure to a penniless young barrister with no law and few facts in his favor.

It is not surprising, then, that he felt very much like a modern Esau, and in no pleasant mood, when, on the third day after the funeral, as the brothers were at breakfast, the new Sir Arthur said, in his hesitating habit of speech:

"Er—er—Rick, if you're not going out this morning I should like a word with you."

Sir Arthur had what is called a bad manner; he was self-conscious and bashful to a degree; upon ordinary occasions he was apt to hesitate and falter and flounder, although at other times and upon other topics where he was sure of his ground he could be terse and even epigramatic.

Rick looked up from his letters, and, being in the "dumps," as he would have expressed it, merely grunted an assent.

Nothing more was said until the meal was ended. Then, leaning back in his leather chair and lighting a cigar—Sir Arthur abhorred tobacco—he said sulkily, sarcastically giving his brother his title—

"Well, 'Sir Arthur,' what is it?"

It was not a very inviting opening. Yet it may be conceded that fate had certainly not been kind to Richard. At bottom he loved his brother, and in his heart he knew that Sir Arthur wanted to do the right thing. But a perverse humor held him that morning, and he would make no effort at complaisance or conciliation.

Sir Arthur flushed painfully at Rick's carelessly contemptuous tone. He rose and went to the window, where he stood in silence while the second-hand of the old clock ticked solemnly halfway round its dial.

"I—I—want to put things right, old man," he said at length, facing inward, towards Rick, who sat moodily smoking, his cigar tilted towards the ceiling.

"Do you? That's kind!" was the curt rejoinder.

The baronet looked at his brother in mute surprise; the hot color flamed in his sallow face and as suddenly left it paler than its wont. He had never before seen Rick like this. But he controlled himself and went on, a little more fluently, as though the other had not spoken.

"Yes. I happen to know what father's intentions were about money matters, and I am prepared to carry them out to the letter."

"Did he tell you to do it?" inquired Rick laconically.

"You remember he never spoke after they carried him home," said Sir Arthur reproachfully, "but I knew from what he said to me at times that you were to be taken care of—that you would have been provided for if there had been a will—and I simply mean to act in his stead."

All this was certainly very fair and generous, and the baronet looked expectantly at Richard for some sign of a relenting humor. But the perverse devil which clutched his heart-strings would permit no relaxation, and the only response was a monosyllabic and irritating—

"Well?"

Sir Arthur's patience was giving way, and signs of the Dysart temper appeared in the shape of certain twitchings and indentations of the nostrils, yet he kept himself in hand wonderfully.

"There is not much ready cash, Rick—you know there never has been," he went on, "but father set aside certain sums which you were to have at his death. I believe the amount is now something like a couple of thousand pounds, and this shall be paid in to your account as soon as the lawyers can arrange it."

"Thanks awfully," drawled Richard. He knew in his heart that Sir Arthur was acting nobly and generously, even as he would have acted had their positions been reversed. Yet back of it all was the knowledge, common to each, that a woman had come between them, that they both loved her, and that only one of them could possess her. This hardened both of them.

But Richard had begun the interview badly, and the Dysart pride, which was fully as bad as the Dysart temper, would not let him descend from his lofty perch. And although he knew he was wronging his brother grievously by the suspicion, the fiend within compelled him to continue—

"And so you wash your hands of me, and I can go to the devil with your two thousand pounds!"

Sir Arthur's patience was exhausted, and even his affection could not withstand this last thrust, coupled with what had gone before. Still, as Rick waxed hot, he grew cool.

"It is a matter of complete indifference to me what you do or where you go," he retorted icily. "I have done my duty. More you could not ask; more you shall not have. I wish you good-morning and a better temper!"

With these words he turned away, and was for stepping out on the lawn. But in a couple of strides Richard was by his side, a strong hand on his shoulder, so as to swing him round, and they stood face to face, one as hot as molten iron, the other as cool as chilled steel.

"All very fine!" Rick sneered. "Now that you've got the title, I suppose you think you'll capture the lady besides. But don't be too sure!"

The caddish thrust told. The baronet quivered, and then steadied himself as does a good fencer when his enemy's foil touches a vital spot. His eyes blazed, yet still he kept admirable outward control of his temper. With cool and cutting irony he rejoined:

"If the lady gets you, I shall be the first to congratulate her on her exceedingly wise choice. She might do better. I do not see how she could do worse!"

Then he passed out to the grass, paused, and again turned to where Richard stood, speechless with rage and chagrin, saying as though to a mere caller:

"I will order the gig round in an hour. There is a train at 12:40. I would not hurry you, or hint that I am the master here, but doubtless you will be glad to leave Denecroft."

And with a slight bow he passed round a turret angle, and Richard saw him no more. Thus the brothers parted.

Half mad and blind with rage, mortification, and self-condemnation Richard went to his room, tossed his traps into his bag, left directions for the gig to bring it after him, and then started to walk to the station.

"MARCIA," HE WENT ON, "BEFORE I GO YOU MUST CHOOSE ONCE FOR ALL BETWEEN THE RICH BARONET AND THE POOR BARRISTER."

Long before he reached London his better self regained the ascendancy, and bitterly he rued the wrong he had gone his brother and the mess he had made of things. Pride forbade him to go back and apologize as he ought. Not a penny of that cursed money would he touch. He would leave England and carve out an independent fortune for himself.

But at first he must see Marcia and find out if she too were among the things he had that day lost.

Fortunately he found her "at home" and alone. It was the first time they had met since his father's death, and as she rose and came forward with outstretched hands to welcome him she said—

"I knew you would come to me first upon your return."

Her words and her manner fell like balm on his storm-tossed and angry spirit, and something like a sob had to be gulped down before he could speak, and even then his eyes were suspiciously moist.

"Yes," he said, leading her to a seat, "and even now I am come to say good-by. I am leaving England," he continued in answer to the mute and appealing inquiry in her eyes.

"Leaving England!" she replied in deep contralto tones; "and why?"

"To make my fortune," he answered as jauntily as he could.

"But surely—" she began, when he took the words out of her mouth.

"Oh, yes, Sir Arthur has done the handsome thing so far as money is concerned, but we've had a beastly row, and I can't touch a penny. So I'm going away."

"A quarrel with Sir Arthur—going away!" she repeated dully, with dilated eyes.

He nodded. "But it was all my fault; I acted like a cad. I was mad with doubt and uncertainty. Arthur behaved like a Dysart—practically ordered me off the premises, just as I'd have done if he had cheeked me. I've only myself to thank," he concluded gloomily.

Richard was very, very young, or he would have known that one of the surest ways to a woman's heart is self-depreciation, especially when that woman is in love with a man. Because then she has the satisfaction of proving, among other things, that her idol is not made of clay.

For Rick it was a relief thus to make confession, to look into her troubled eyes, their depths stirred for him, as he felt, and to divine that she at least would not be indifferent to his going.

Marcia laid her cool palm on his hot hand, and unthinkingly left it there. In a moment he had covered it with the other, and held it imprisoned.

"I own I was in the wrong," he reiterated. "But I was wild at the thought that perhaps I had lost everything. Marcia," he went on, "before I go you must choose once for all between the rich baronet and the poor barrister. You know what I mean, dear!"

The warm color rose to her cheeks; her bosom palpitated; her breath came and went in fitful unison with its throbbings. He held her hands insistently, nor did she strive to withdraw them. Raising her eyes to his she said, while a half smile dimpled her mouth:

"You foolish boy! the choice was made years and years ago, and—it isn't the baronet!" she faltered, as her head sunk on his shoulder.

"My darling!" he exclaimed, as he strained her yielding form to him, "do you mean it?"

"Yes," she sighed blissfully; "it seems as if I had always loved you, Rick!"

"And will you wait for me, Marcia?" he queried.

"For ever and always!" she rejoined, gladly and proudly, smiling at him through her happy tears.

And thus they parted, plighting their troth. In a week Richard Dysart sailed for Cape Town, to try his luck in the diamond diggings.
